HARRY WALKER BATTING LEADER IN NATIONAL LOOP

Pat Mullin of Detroit Tigers Continues to Lead the American League

New York, May 20 — (AP) — The National League boasted a new batting leader today in outfielder Henry Walker of Philadelphia Phillies while Pat Mullin, slugging flychaser of Detroit Tigers continued to hold a commanding lead in the American League individual batting race.

Walker came out of nowhere during last week to move his average up to .360, 20 points above Frank Gustine of Pittsburgh. Harry replaced his brother, Dixie of the Washington Senators, who fell from the top to fifth place. Mullin also dropped from last week's .444 to .412, but he still holds a 35-point edge over Bob Dillinger of St. Louis and George McQuinn of New York, tied for second place at .377.

Luke Appling of Chicago was moved up a notch from fifth to fourth with .346 while Philadelphia's George Binks instructed from fourth to fifth with .341. Ted Williams of the American League champion Red Sox was sixth with .333, one point ahead of Lou Boudreau and Hal Peck of Cleveland.

Bunched close behind Harry Walker and Gustine in the National were Bob Elliott, Pittsburgh; Emil Verban, Philadelphia; Dixie Walker, Brooklyn; Johnny Mize, New York Giants; Marion, Cincinnati, Elliott and Verban were tied for third with .327 while Walker, Mize and Lamanno were deadlocked for fifth place with .326.

Wild Duck Hatches Eggs on Canada House

London, May 20 (CP)— A wild duck which laid her eggs in a rooftop flowerbox above Canada House overlooking busy Trafalgar Square now is a mother of five lemon-chested ducklings. Her new address is Ducks Island in near-by St. James' Park.

A few hours after the eggs were hatched the mother and ducklings were moved from Canada House to the shelter of a large wooden crate fronting the Horse Guards parade near the park.

On being released the mother duck followed by four of the ducklings waddled proudly across a busy street while a policeman held up traffic. The fifth and youngest attempted to follow, but kept falling over so Tom Hinton, the park fowlkeeper, gave it temporary shelter in his pocket.

Entering the park, the mother and family waddled to the lake, took to the water and swam to their new island home all except the youngest, which has been adopted by Hinton.

Bloodhounds were brought out to track down the notorious patient who escaped the gallows for the killings by being declared insane. She was recaptured in an orange grove on the outskirts of Phoenix. It was her third flight from the asylum in eight years.

Duke, 40, was docketed for arraignment in district court on a charge of murder in the death of a 53-year-old divorcee whose body, police said, was found in his apartment Sunday. District Attorney Frank E. Smith of Bristol county said an autopsy report showed Mrs. Eva Alexander was the victim of a "drunken sexual orgy."

Final Enactment Of Finance Bill Virtually Assured

London, May 20 (AP)—Final enactment of Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton's controversial Finance Bill was virtually assured today following its passage at the decisive second reading in the House of Commons last night by a vote of 274 to 126.

The measure, which includes Dalton's dollar-saving taxes, including a heavy levy on tobacco, was opposed by the Conservatives on the grounds that it was inadequate to meet Britain's financial crisis.

The opposition also maintained that the high tobacco tax would impose a hardship on old age pensioners. Dalton promised that an arrangement would be made to exempt the pensioners from the increase in tobacco prices.

The Chancellor reiterated his appeal to "right-minded and patriotic men and women" to help the government by "saving precious dollars" and added:

"It is clearly a necessity not to spend dollars for fags when we want them for food."

TRUMAN'S MOTHER WEAKER

Grandview, Wo., May 20 (AP) — President Truman abandoned all hope today for an immediate return to Washington as his mother remained gravely ill from a fried heart in her modest bungalow here in rural Jackson county.

Mrs. Martha E. Truman rallied slightly during the night but the President told reporters that his 94-year-old mother was growing perceptibly weaker.

Committed On Murder Charge

Timmins, May 20—(CP)—John Gagne, 27, brought here from Angus, Que., to face a charge of murder in the slaying of Robert Todd, 74-year-old trapper, was committed for trial by a higher court at conclusion of the preliminary hearing which began before Magistrate E. R. Rucker of Cochrane late Saturday.

The aged trapper was found dead in his cabin, his body tied up, and police suspected he was slain for the proceeds of an old-age pension cheque which he had just cashed.

Dr. R. P. Smith of Timmins testified death was caused by strangulation with a towel after Todd had been trussed with leather thongs and a length of dog chain.

Accused was identified by Albert Cancon, taxi driver, as the man who had asked to be driven to Todd's cabin 11 miles out of town. Cancon said he refused the fare because accused was toying with a "pistol."

Alex Burdick, truck driver of Wawell, said he drove Gagne to the Todd cabin March 11. "He told me he was going to see his dad," witness said.

40 to 75 P.C. Seeding Done

Toronto, May 20 — (CP)—The Ontario Department of Agriculture weekly crop report revealed yesterday that farmers in Haldimand began seeding at midnight May 10 but rain halted their nocturnal attempt to catch up on the late season.

All work in that area halted on Tuesday because of rain.

The counties of Perth, Waterloo, Brant, Durham, Ontario, Prince Edward and Frontenac reported from 40 to 75 per cent of seeding completed. Many farmers in Wellington county are still waiting to sow their first bags of grain, the report said.

Farmers report oats and barley acreages will be smaller this year with acreage in late crops, corn, beans, flax and buckwheat. Despite an inadequate growth of grass, most cattle are out to pasture because of a feed shortage.

Howie Meeker, Star Winger Of Champion Leafs Voted Calder Trophy as Best 'Rookie'

In Army and Live Grenade Exploded at Feet, Legs Being Torn by Fragments

By STU THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 20 — (CP) — There were some prouisingly looking rookies in the National Hockey League this past season, but shifty Howie Meeker of the Stanley Cup-winning Toronto Maple Leafs — who three years ago was nursing shrapnel-torn legs in a British hospital and wondering if he ever would play again—far outpaced the classy field in voting for the Calder Memorial Trophy and the "rookie of the year" award.

The perenially worried looking 22-year-old with the crew cut collected 49 of a possible 54 points in balloting by 54 hockey writers and broadcasters, three in each N. H. L. city, the league announced today.

His closest competitor, Jimmy Conacher of Detroit Red Wings, polled only 13 points. Only one of the 18 selectors failed to name Meeker on the ballots, which listed three choices, with three points for first, two for second and one for third.

Results of Vote:

Results of the vote for the trophy, awarded in memory of the late Frank Calder, former N.H.L. president:

*Howie Meeker, Toronto	49
Jimmy Conacher, Detroit	13
Cal Gardner, New York	9
Leo Gravelle, Montreal	8
Fernie Flaman, Boston	7
Roger Leger, Montreal	5
Bill Gadsby, Chicago	4
Gordon Howe, Detroit	4
Gus Mortson, Toronto	3
Ralph Nattrass, Chicago	2
Leo Reise, Detroit	2
Garth Boesch, Toronto	2*
Pat Lundy, Detroit	1

*Meeker also received the $1,000 Cash Prize

By amassing the trophy — and the $1,000 cash prize donated this year for the first time by the league — Meeker maintained the virtual monopoly Toronto has held on the rookie award. Maple Leaf players have won the trophy four times in the last five years and have had five winners in the 11 years the cup has been in competition.

Meeker, born in Kitchener, played with championship Junior teams in Stratford, before enlisting and going overseas.

While in England a live grenade exploded at his feet during training manoeuvres and his legs were torn by fragments. Later he served on the Continent, and returned in the middle of the 1945-46 season to play with Stratford Seniors.

Lost winter he moved up to the Leafs and was rookie-award "calibre almost from the start. He piled up 27 goals and 13 assists to finish third among Toronto scorers and 15th in the league standings. Besides that, his 27 goals were good enough to establish a record for first-year men, as did his total of sinking five markers in a single game.

ROYALS OUTLAST ROCHESTER WINGS TO WIN BY 11-10

Baltimore Orioles Even Series With the Syracuse Chiefs

(By The Associated Press)

Trailing 3-1 and 10-7, the persistent Montreal Royals exploded with four runs in the ninth last night to outlast Rochester Red Wings 11-10. The win pulled the defending champion Royals within two games of first-place Jersey City.

Matt Sorkont was coasting along for the Wings until the seventh when his 3-1 lead vanished before a six-run barrage. Rochester came back in the eighth for seven counters and what "looked like victory, but John Mikan put the winning run on base in the ninth and was charged with the lost, although Glenn Gardner smirked the game-winning blow, a single with two on.

Baltimore Orioles squeezed out a 2-1 decision in the opener last night at Syracuse, but the home towners, assisted by Hank Sauer, who hit two home runs, ran away with the second contest, 8-1. They were Sauer's fifth and sixth homers of the season.

Ray Poat shaded Mike Schultz in the first game, both yielding 6 hits.

Newark and Jersey City settled with the weatherman for a 3-3 tie after five rain-splattered innings.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARTER, Sports Editor.

IN THE MAIL—AND MERKLE

J. P. M., Cobourg, is 23 years since Fred Merkle, the baseball member of the New York Giants, executed the unforgivable baseball sin, "boner" of baseballdom. It forecast a playoff, the Giants lost the playoff, and then they lost the 1908 pennant to the Chicago Cubs.

• • •

A hundred and one versions of the play have been given since then, one contradicts the other in some definite essentials. One man and one man alone so qualified to chant the ditty and he is Johnny Evers who played second base for the Cubs that afternoon, who noted Merkle's mental lapse, demanded the ball and made the force-out at second at least five minutes after Merkle and his fellow Giants had gone to the showers thinking they had won the game.

• • •

But here is Evers' own story "We were playing in New York and as the Giants took their turn at bat in the last half of the ninth the score was tied 2-2. The first two batters were retired. Then came McCormick. He singled. Merkle followed with a single that sent McCormick to third. McCormick ran home with the apparent winning run. I walked to the outfield and everybody thought the game was over and the Giants had won 3-2.

"The crowd began jumping onto the field and the players started for the club house. But from my position at second I noticed that Merkle having run about 30 feet toward second and seeing that McCormick was certain to score, stopped hustling for second. He just trotted off the baseline and headed for the clubhouse, then in right field.

Evers figured that Merkle would be a force-out at second if he could get the ball and tag second before Merkle woke up to the blunder he had made. He yelled to a Giant outfielder for the ball, but by that time the crowd was swarming on the field, and the outfielder threw the ball high over Evers' head.

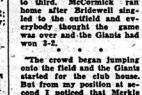
Joe Tinker, Cubs' shortstop, saw the poor throw and ran to a point between first and second and got the ball into his hands. Joe McGinnity, Giants' first base coach had seen the blunder and reached for the ball. Tinker pinned the coach's arms but he snapped it away and it sailed back into the crowd around the shortstop position.

• • •

"A spectator," Evers related afterwards, "picked up the ball. Floyd Kroh, one of the pitchers who was out on the field acted as the fan to start over. The spectator refused and Floyd took it away from him. But the wallop was high.



It nearly crushed the fan's derby hat. Then he handed Kroh the ball. Kroh waited over to where I was standing on second and handed me the ball. That completed the force-out of Merkle and retired the Giants."

• • •

"Bob Emslie was the base umpire but I couldn't find him in the crowd." Merkle went on, "so I yelled at Hank O'Day who had been handling the plate job. Hank advanced as close as possible on second. He couldn't make the complete call but the excited crowd was packed around the big like sardines. As the umpire approached I held up my hand and shouted that I had ordered a play-off when we later tied the Giants for the league leadership. We grabbed that play-off and the pennant."

• • •

Evers-kept the famous ball and later turned down offers of several thousand souvenir hunters that ran into big money.

• • •

From slaughterhouse to slugs and back to good name for the story of Douglas Isaac, 40-year-old Markham farmer who "cashed in" on the daily double at the Woodbine track on Saturday. In short Isaac invested ten bucks at a race meeting many years the glue factory in 1943, and the appreciation he paid back the money with plenty of interest—$3,004 to be exact.

"Lovely Jo" was the name of the mare which four years ago was headed for the backs of envelopes, stamps etc vit the usual five factory channels. Isaac felt sorry for her and paid the sawbuck to save her. Later she dropped a neat but not gaudy foal by Happy Fox and Isaac named it "Lovely Fox."

• • •

Saturday, "Lovely Fox," with vicious perhaps of the same fate as that which ill mother narrowly escaped, made no mistake. She flashed to the head of the turf class in the first race and stayed there, Isaac bought 13 daily double tickets on the smart little filly and was able to carry away one in his second hand. He was, naturally, one of the 9,000 people at the daily double of 23,126.40. The payroll, together with the winner's purse, for the day, brought Isaac more than $1,000 for his original ten-dollar investment.

Saint John, N. B., May 20—(CP)—The Quebec Provincial Independent Baseball League "has cut a wide swath in the more lush pastures of maritime baseball," says Doug (Saint John Telegraph-Journal) Costello.

Doug reports that the Quebec League, using money bait that "even the fabulously publicized Halifax district League with its $1,000 bonus front could not match," has skimmed off the cream of talent and left a mark in Maritime baseball that will take years of development and heavy monetary efforts to erase.

New Brunswick was just shaking off the annual blow from Nova Scotia's money-soaked teams says Doug, when the new call came from Quebec. It drew the best Maritime players asked and ready signed to contracts "which hold good only in the province in which they originated because of the lack of a Dominion or maritime baseball administrative body."

Like Canadian hockey, baseball clubs in Nova Scotia and Quebec are operating more and more on a professional and semi-professional basis, asserts Doug. He suggests New Brunswick baseball interests should take immediate action to prevent further drainage unless a player is definitely marked for bigtime baseball, as concludes:

"Those who have left should be brought back."

Back to Hockey

A post-season hockey note comes from Don (Moncton Transcript) Fay, who quotes assurances from local moguls that the Herd will ice a more formidable team next winter. But Don says a stronger need is more support for Juniors and juveniles.

"So long as relative indifference is shown to the younger players it will continue to be necessary to look farther afield for puckster of senior calibre," maintains Don.

Trick Shifts and All, Williams Still Most Feared Batter In the Major Leagues Today

Every Team Ganging Up on Him but He Is Clouting Ball at 330 Clip

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Trick shifts and all, Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox slugger, still is the greatest as well as the most feared batsman in baseball today.

It is doubtful if opposing teams ever ganged up on any player the way they have on Williams. Every time he strides to the plate, they start a troop movement toward the right side of the diamond.

This shift, first used by Lou Boudreau, Cleveland manager, undoubtedly has hurt Ted, robbing him of numerous base hits.

Despite that, the colorful flychaser is enjoying one of his greatest seasons. His .330 batting average—great for other hitters but only fair for Ted—does not tell half the story. It is his devastating clutch hitting which makes the San Diego, Calif., swatter the most valuable player in his circuit.

Williams has driven in 24 runs, tops in the league, and has scored the most runs, 23, mainly because sweary hurlers have handed him 20 free tickets in 20 games. Of his league-leading home run output of nine, four have come in the ninth or extra innings.

His circuit clout yesterday came with one aboard in the last of the ninth to give the American League champions a split with the league-leading Detroit Tigers.

Tigers Win in 15

The Bengals won the 12-inning opener 3-2 and were ahead 4-3 with one away in the Red Sox half of the ninth of the second game. Up stepped Williams and blasted his two-run homer to give the Sox a 5-4 victory.

In defeating the Red Sox in the opener on George Kell's 12th-inning double which scored Ed Lake from first, the Tigers gained the distinction of handing Dave (Boo) Ferriss his first defeat on home grounds in two seasons.

The third-place Indians remained hard on the heels of Detroit and Boston by taking a 5-4 decision from New York Yankees. The Indians led throughout with Hal Peck's seventh-inning homer the deciding blow. Charlie Keller and pinch-hitter Frank Colman from London, Ont., hit homers for the Yankees.

Chicago Cubs took undisputed possession of third place by outslugging Brooklyn Dodgers 8-7. The triumph snapped a five-game losing streak for the Cubs and dropped the Brooks into second division.

Marking the 11th successive game in which they failed to score more than two runs, Washington Senators bowed to Chicago White Sox 4-1 in 13 innings. Skeeter Dickey's double with the bases loaded in the 12th accounted for the winning runs.

Catcher Del Rice and first baseman Stan Musial provided the big blows as the St. Louis Cardinals finally broke the spell the left-handed pitchers have held over them this season to give the Redbirds a 5-3 victory over Philadelphia Phils. Rice hammered his second home run of the season off southpaw Oscar Judd of Ingersoll, Ont., with one man on in the fifth. Musial singled in two runs in the sixth and scored himself on a wild pitch. Howie Schultz accounted for all Philadelphia's runs with a seventh-inning home run.

Baltimore Rookie Fires

Baltimore, May 20 — (AP) — Police reported Pierce Hunter called in a hot story to the Baltimore Sun city desk last night.

He said he had been called to — the Sun pressroom.

Flames were quickly extinguished after the paper did not miss an edition.

HAMILTON WINS IN 11 INNINGS

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Thurstons came from behind in the ninth two times and finally edge Waterloo Tigers 4-3 after 11 innings at Hamilton in the only inter-county senior ball game played Monday.

Wild throws were made by both teams. Waterloo's volatile hurler, Ken Somerville, allowed only three hits—two doubles and a single—but walked eight and wild-pitched two home, and lost the game in the 11th with a high throw that put the winning run on third.

Hamilton presented the visitors with an early two-run lead when first baseman Gavedoni caught up a throw from Sammy Lyttle in the second inning, but got one back in the third when Dumouchelle came up with his first wild pitch to let Yorston score from third. In the eighth Dumouchelle lashed another one to home plate over the catcher's head and Mielko graced in with the tying run.

In the 10th Waterloo collected their third run to lead again, but Yorston doubled down the left field foul line, made third on a fly to Crowder and scored on Martin's error to knot the count. In the 11th, Sanicrel singled through short, gained second on Dumouchelle's fifth wild pitch, and was sacrificed to third by Stewart. Olejnick worked a perfect squeeze play to score with the winning tally.

All teams are idle today. On Wednesday Stratford is at Guelph, Kitchener at Brantford, and Hamilton plays a night game at London.

HY LEE MEETS BRO. JONATHAN HERE FRI. NIGHT

Perhaps no two more colorful exponents of the grimace and grunt game have been in Belleville than the pair slated for the main bout here on Friday night when Hy Lee, 200-pound Giant tangler with Brother Jonathan, bewhiskered Mormon from Utah, who has gained his wrestlin' here before and became a favorite.

The towering youngster from the Ozark Mountains, has plenty of what it takes. He stands six feet eight inches in his bare feet, is splendidly proportioned and beautifully developed. In fact he resembles no one so much as Otto Satchel Feet" Pringo Carners. But he knows plenty of the answers despite his 22 years on earth, and not all of them are what is called in polite wrestling circles, exactly orthodox.

Brother Jonathan is no stranger to Belleville fans and his return to the mat wars here will be welcomed by many of the faithful. He is a charming fellow when off-color with a favorite hold he terms the "Mormon Crusher". You merely put your head in the opponent's midriff, place your arms around him and pull. It's simple but effective.

In the semi-final will be seen the popular Ben Sharpe who meets the villainous Strangler Bob Wagner. Tiger Tanaka also will be back in the preliminary to tangle with Irish Tom Collins. Looks like a high-class card.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 20 (CP)— In Philadelphia the fans no longer call Lynwood Rowe "Schoolboy, He's now the schoolmaster. For in taming the wild and potent National League hitters Rowe has won six straight and is unbeaten so far this season and if you count his victories in his last four 1946 games the Schoolboy has won 10 in a row.... to Lynwood, his control and partial achievement of climbing back to his peak as the reigning sensation of the 1946 Tiger pitchers.

That was the year he equalled the American League record of 16 consecutive victories, finished the season with a 24-8 record, and wound up in the World Series against the Cardinal's famous Dean Brothers, Dizzy and Daffy.

St. Louis won the World Championship in seven games but the Schoolboy was in there pitching all the way.... In one of the games he retired 22 men in a row, from the fourth inning until one out in the 11th. Detroit winning in the 12th, 3-2... '35 and '36 were 19-victory seasons for Rowe. After that—a decade of hard luck.

Hardest Road of All

Rowe's pitching arm went dead in '37.... it may have been the automobile accident he had during the winter of that year when his car collided with an oil truck near Hot Springs, Ark., and Rowe miraculously escaped death although he was badly cut up.... in two years he won but win only one game for the Tigers and they farmed him out to Beaumont in the Texas League.... his record with Beaumont was 12-5, good enough for Detroit to recall him .... the Schoolboy again was a mainstay of the Tigers' pitching in the 1946 World Series against the Reds of Cincinnati who whipped him twice and won in seven games... finally Detroit unloaded him to Brooklyn Dodgers in August, 1942 Rowe balked at going to Montreal on option and threatened to get a job in a war plant.... but he went to Montreal, won a couple of games for the Royals in 1942 and the following spring Brooklyn sold him to the Phillies where, except for a year in the armed forces, he began to remold his winning ways.

Mexican Baseball On the Upgrade

Mexico City, May 20 (AP)—Mexican baseball, a year after New York Yankees instituted legal action to discourage big leaguers from jumping the border at the jingle of silver pesos, is on the upgrade both as sport and as a business.

No official figures are available but reliable estimates show half of last year's eight clubs lost money and the rest barely broke even. The league as a whole went into the red and two teams, Nuevo Laredo and Torreon, unable to meet another loss, dropped from the league this season.

With surplus players from two failures, league president Jorge Pasqtel decided to call off temporarily the costly raids and put the increasingly-popular sport on a firmer economic foundation.

All teams except Puebla are in the black and some are earning good money for the first time.

Apps Renews Contract With Toronto Leafs

(By The Canadian Press)

Syl Apps, veteran centre ice star of Toronto Maple Leafs and recently-appointed Ontario Athletics Commissioner, has renewed his contract with the 1947-48 season with the club. The 30-year-old Paris, Ont., native has been with Leafs since the season of 1936-37 and was the first winner of the Lady Byng award for the National Hockey League's outstanding rookie of the year.

Johnny Greco, Montreal—welterweight has been given a summons to appear before the New York County—Grand Jury June 4 after appearing voluntarily for questioning yesterday in the New York District Attorney's probe of reports that racketeers exert influence in the boxing game.

A Canadian Legion Softball League of 12 teams from Port Colborne, Welland, Merriston, Niagara Falls, Toronto, St. Catharines and Fort Erie has been formed and will open tonight with Leaside Colored on Monday playing a Legion team at Fort Erie.

No, it wasn't a jet-propelled plane that streaked over Renfrew Ont., at 118 miles an hour the other day. It was "Rosie" a blue-barred hen pigeon owned by John Gibson of that town. Rosie covered the 59 miles from Chalk River in 30 minutes to capture the first racing pigeon flight of the season.

The Canadian Canoe Association's eastern trials will be held at the Cartierville Boating Club, near Montreal, July 26, the secretary has announced. Eastern section contestants for the Dominion championships at Mooney's Bay, Ottawa, Aug. 2, will be decided on the results of the Cartierville meet.

The 1948 Canadian Ski Championships will be held at Banff March. Feb. 26-29 it was decided recently at the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association in Montreal.

Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League announced Monday outright release of catcher Tony Ravish and return of catcher Clarence (Tex) Aulds to Louisville Colonels of the American Association.

The welterweight championship bout between Ray Robinson of New York and Jimmy Doyle of Los Angeles, originally scheduled for May 30 in the Cleveland arena, has been set back to June 17 by cuts Robinson suffered to his eye in a New York bout with Georgie Abrams last Friday.

100 YEARS AGO in Canada, mail was delivered by coaches who collected the postage in cash. The first sewing machine resulted in a riot among employees of mantle tailors. There were only a few struggling newspapers, and only the beginning of a railway.
Under such conditions and during a period of acute national instability, the Canada Life was born. Though many financial institutions failed in the great depression which followed, the Canada Life, founded on a sound and conservative basis, weathered the storm. It has progressed through 100 years of wars, epidemics and depressions. In the meantime life insurance has become the accepted means by which Canadians safeguard the security of their dependents.

CHAPTER 20

"Take very good care of Daddy, darling. That's out secret. And don't you pay any attention to what Aunt Cherry says about Daddy. He's our best friend, isn't he?"

Kenny nodded swiftly. Then he whispered: "Aunt Cherry is a very bad girl. Marty the girl next door said so."

Curt was waiting to see April when she awakened from her nap. Miss Sayres the day nurse combed her hair and bathed her face and put a frilly bed jacket on her before he came in. Then she went out and left them alone.

"Hello, darling." Curt bent and kissed April lightly on the lips. "You're looking very beautiful today."

He sat down and took April's hand. She held it tightly.

"I'm feeling better every day. I'll be out of here, soon, won't I, dear? Very soon."

"Very soon!" Curt nodded. "And I want you to do something very special for me, darling."

"What is it? You know I'd do anything for you, Curt. You're so good to me."

Curt leaned closer. "Anything, my beloved?"

"Well," April smiled, "almost anything! What is it, Curt?"

"Promise me," he put his lips to her cheek, "you'll marry me here at the hospital, and let me take you to Pennyhaven. I want to know you're there where I can take care of you. Will you, darling?"

April drew away, her heart sinking. "Oh, no," she said quickly. "I can't do that, Curt. Not until I'm up and walking about. I wouldn't feel right about it. You must wait until I'm well."

Curt closed his eyes, holding her close.

"Oh, but my sweet, you mustn't feel that way. If you knew how much I wanted to take you home to Pennyhaven to take care of you, you'd marry me without hesitating. I'm being selfish, dear, I know. But I just want you near me. That's all I ask."

April smiled with a sudden fear. "You—you're afraid I'll never walk again. That—that's why you're afraid to wait."

Curt denied quickly: "No, No! You mustn't talk such nonsense. It's just that Pennyhaven is so much better equipped with all the things you need, darling. You need to be in a country place, not an apartment. That's the reason."

April shook her head swiftly. "No, Curt. I couldn't marry you until I'm able to walk. It wouldn't be fair to you."

"Gay is going to be very much disappointed," Curt argued. "We've talked it over, and she feels the same as I do about it. She says she would want to go back to Douglaston for awhile if you didn't come to us. She'd be worried about you."

"No, but she mustn't," April said. "It wouldn't be right, for her to leave Penny. Hyacinthe and Cherry can take care of me. If they can't, I can have a nurse for awhile. Why the way you talk, Curt you'd think I planned to be an invalid for the rest of my life. That—that's why you're afraid to wait."

Curt denied quickly: "No, No! You mustn't talk such nonsense. It's just that Pennyhaven is so much better equipped with all the things you need, darling. You need to be in a country place, not an apartment. That's the reason."

April shook her head swiftly. "No, Curt. I couldn't marry you until I'm able to walk. It wouldn't be fair to you."

"Gay is going to be very much disappointed," Curt argued. "We've talked it over, and she feels the same as I do about it. She says she would want to go back to Douglaston for awhile if you didn't come to us. She'd be worried about you."

"No, but she mustn't," April said. "It wouldn't be right, for her to leave Penny. Hyacinthe and Cherry can take care of me. If they can't, I can have a nurse for awhile. Why the way you talk, Curt you'd think I planned to be an invalid for the rest of my life.

Curt winced, kissing her tenderly on the top of the head.

"You'd better think it over and decide I'm right, dear. Because I'm not going to be easy to convince that I'm not right. Don't make up your mind too definitely. If you love me just a little, try to see it my way."

April held his hand to her cheek: "I'll try to see it your way, dear. But I'm afraid I can't. I'll walk when they let me out of this darn plaster-cast. You'll see! I'm almost tempted to get up and try it sometime while this thing on. Oh, I am tired of being in bed."

Curt said with an effort: "I know you are, dear. But you must be patient. After all you did get quite a shaking up. You don't know how lucky you are to be alive. They didn't give us any hope for you, you know."

A little later April said: "Hill was here today. With Kenny."

"I know you were glad to see them," Curt looked away. "I suppose you thought Kenny had grown."

"Like a weed," April said maternally. "And he looks so funny without his teeth. Bless his heart! Hill is teaching him how to play golf."

"I guess Hillyer has been spending a lot of time with the lad," Curt said. "It's nice they're getting together oftener."

"I'm glad," April sighed. "Hill looks a wreck. I guess it's because he's been working so hard getting his new golf school organized. Isn't it marvelous he's going into business? I know he'll be a success, if he settles down. With his personality, nothing can stop him."

"I hope he makes a go of it," Curt De Witt said heartily. "He certainly knows his golf."

"I wonder," April mused, "if he's really going to marry Dru Bayne. He almost snapped my head off when I asked him if he was married to her. You'd have thought I'd insulted him."

Curt shrugged. "He won't mix very well with his business, I'm afraid. She wouldn't like a husband who devoted his time to anything but her. What she needs is a gigolo."

"I don't believe," April said thoughtfully, "that role would suit Hill. Somehow, I have a feeling he has changed. He seems to have grown up all of a sudden. It makes me think I was right to divorce him. Standing on his own feet was what he needed. I always thought so."

"Losing you, my darling should be any man's idea if he is ever going to do any thinking." Curt took April's hand in his. "I love you, April. So terribly. Let's just talk about us for awhile. You change your mind and marry me now? Every minute I live without you is wasted."

April held him close, wanting so much to make him happy. But she could not bring herself to promise she would marry him before she could walk again.

Hill had seen very little of Drusilla Bayne since the early morning hours when they had walked out of the night club and learned from the headlines that April was in Chasning Hospital. Drusilla was becoming desperate with the fear that she was losing Kent Hillyer.

When she had to make excuses to her friends for Hill's continued absence from their parties her ego suffered almost more than she could bear. As a substitute escort she was being seen quite frequently with a well-known band leader, but Hill was her only real interest.

In all of Drusilla's hectic life she had never been as interested in any man as Kent Hillyer. She was glad he hadn't any money because if he married her Drusilla knew she would have him tied, she reasoned in her own peculiar way.

Dru had to admit to herself that she had tricked Hill into getting engaged to her, but she had no intention of letting him get away. It was no joke to her. She'd been in love with him too long. Ever since she had seen him win the championship at Miami, Dru had considered Hill the most desirable man she'd ever seen.

"His indifference to her had only served to pique her interest. Drusilla was so used to men finding her irresistible, Hill's almost brutal blindness to her charms made her the more determined to capture and hold him.

Hill had taken Kenny home after seeing his mother at the hospital, and stayed with the child while he had his bath and supper. Then he had read to Kenny a few minutes before he went to sleep. Afterward he drove back to Flushing, stopping at a lunch wagon for a hurried bite to eat. He was tired and he wanted to get back to his apartment and go over some plans for the golf school.

Hill took a shower and got into his pajamas and robe. Then he sat down at his desk and began to work. It was difficult to concentrate because the picture of April lying helpless in the hospital blotted out everything else.

After a time he gave up trying to work on the plans and got up to pace the floor. The thought that April would always be helpless, that she would never walk and dance and be gay again was almost more that he could bear.

How would April react when she learned the truth? Would Curt De Witt still want to marry her? Would she marry him, knowing she would be a helpless cripple? What would happen to the beautiful girl who had come into his life? The woman he had hurt so deeply that she had preferred a divorce to going on as they had been going.

How right she had been about his duty to his family. All the time he had known she was right, but if he had admitted it he would have admitted he was wrong, and had been shirking responsibility as a husband and father.

What woman with an ounce of pride or character could have lived with a man who would not bear his share of the burdens attached to a home and the raising of children? Now he would give his life to be able to take all of April's burdens from her slender, tired shoulders and it was too late.

Hill walked the floor in an agony of remorse, his face lined with anxiety. If only he could have Kenny with him while April was ill it might not seem quite so lonely. But he had no right to his son. He had forfeited that right.

Finally, Hill went to a decanter on the side board and poured himself a drink, gulping it swiftly. Then he lit a cigarette and strode to the desk and sat down to pour again over plans for the golf school. He had to snap out of it, he told himself sternly, or he would go out of his mind.

Hitler Trick to Bleed U.S. Supplies By Secret Red Peace Try Bared

Washington, May 20 (AP)—The Nazis hoped for an armistice with Russia in 1943 which would have been kept secret from the Western Allies and in which the Soviets would have continued to divert land-lease from the United States.

This sly but unsuccessful move by Hitler came to light Saturday night in captured German naval documents which also disclosed:

1. Bombing of the United States with a new high-speed, long-range, air-engine plan was considered but was abandoned in July, 1943, "because the few aircraft planes which could get there would be of no significance but would only arouse the will to resist in the population."

2 Admiral Karl Doenitz, as commander-in-chief of the navy, wanted to use "the new weapon of the air force," apparently the V-1 robot bomb or the V-2 rocket, to attack allied shipping at Gibraltar in the summer of 1943. He proposed to launch them from the area of Marseilles, France. But Hitler vetoed the plan because of "the risk that some of the new weapons might fall on land at Gibraltar and that the British will find out what they are." It was not until the following year that they were loosed at London.

The official German naval documents, including intelligence reports and records of conferences Hitler held in 1943 with his top naval commanders and others were released simultaneously Saturday night by the United States Navy Department here and the British Admiralty in London.

The reference to the plan for a Russian armistice did not make clear whether it actually had been submitted to the Soviets. It was mentioned in the minutes of a conference which Hitler held with his commanders July 17-18, 1943, under the heading, "Grand Strategy." The complete reference was as follows:

"We can hope to win the war only if we can stop expending our forces in the east. So far Japan has not been used for this purpose, for fear of weakening Japan in the south by engaging her in the north. Also, she might not be able to muster the necessary supplies for both fronts.

"The Japanese Kwantung Army stands ready with 1,000,000 men. Japan herself evidently realizes that intervention in Siberia may become necessary.

"Russia is getting considerable supplies via the Far East. Therefore the question arises whether a threat by Japan that she will enter the war against Russia will help to make the latter accept the German offer of an unannounced armistice on the eastern front to be kept secret from the Anglo-Saxons. Russia would continue to accept land-lease materials. This political goal is worth every sacrifice.

"If this fails the East Wall must be built as quickly as possible."

Germany's defeat was beginning to appear likely that summer, although none of the high army and navy leaders around Hitler wanted to be the first to admit it.

Hitler himself was looking for "an unexpected way out" to present itself, as he declared forcefully, it had many times in history.

The situation was "perilous" he admitted, but hoped that the Allies would fall out among themselves the nearer they got to success.

At a conference with his commanders at his headquarters August 8-11 he cited "discrepancies between the war aims of Britain and Russia," added that North Africa, in turn, Britain and America do not see eye to eye," and concluded:

"Even though today the Anglo-Saxons are still determined to annihilate us, favorable political developments are by no means impossible in the future."

Among the documents was a report to the German Naval Intelligence from Tokyo December 10, 1945, saying that "there is no doubt" that President Roosevelt at the Teheran conference "insisted upon the use of bases in Eastern Siberia" and that "experts on Russian affairs consider it unlikely" that Generalissimo Stalin agreed.

The reports from Tokyo were supplemented by the Nazi leaders with this estimate of their own:

"1. Russia's demand for the opening of a second front is now strongly supported by her threat of seeking an understanding with Germany. However, as long as Russia maintains her military pressure on the eastern front of her own accord, there is no reason for America and Britain to submit to Russian desires, particularly since both powers are greatly interested in seeing Russia weakened even more. The shift of British and American interests to the Pacific—even though that shift may only be temporary—is evidenced by the fact that campaign in Italy came practically to a standstill since the threat to the Suez Canal was removed.

"2. The granting of bases in Eastern Siberia, definitely demanded by Roosevelt, has just as definitely been rejected by Stalin, since in the latter's mind war to give away the last trump he holds in hand. Stalin is now more vitally interested in seeing Britain and America weakened."

Railroads Will Soon Start To Move Wheat Crop

Chicago, May 20 — (AP) — Railroads which soon will start to move the first billion-bushel winter wheat crop in a government survey reported today that their boxcar supply situation was improved over 1946.

However, they agreed that transporting such an enormous amount of grain will present a "tough problem."

Within the next 10 days harvesting of this fabulous crop, believed to be the largest ever to mature, will begin and when it is over around mid-July a whopping store of wheat will have been added to the food supply of a world desperately in need of bread.

Railroads now are girding themselves for a job unmatched in peacetime history.

United States Agricultural Department officials estimated the crop, as of May 1, would total 1,025,789,000 bushels, but private reports since that date have made the outlook had further improved. Large demand and high prices are expected to encourage farmers to ship the wheat as soon as possible.

600 'What's New' Answers Given

Chicago, May 20 — (AP)—The question "what's new?" has more than 600 answers in a new digest-style magazine.

They are contained among ideas listed in the "Digest of New Inventions," published by the International Foundation for Science and Industry.

Alfred Babcock, who launched the foundation last July as a non-profit clearing house to help bring inventor and manufacturer together, reported inventions flowed in from every state, Canada, the Panama Canal Zone, and from faraway Guam in the Southern Pacific.

Mrs. Ida Price, Marked Tree, Ark., submitted a combination ashtray and cuspidor for cigar smokers in the home who have no place to house their clubs.

A sample of the ideas arriving from Cahada was a grain "stooker" from F. W. Turnbull of Hamilton. He described it as an automatic attachment for a grain binder capable of setting firmly-built, round "stooks" having eight to 10 sheaves.

Babcock said he had expected at first to receive "crackpot" inventions which never could be produced commercially, but had discovered these were in an extremely low percentage.

Messages Heard Had No Connection With Missing Plane

Vancouver, May 20. (CP)

The echoes of the "phantom voice" which earlier raised hopes that the 20-day mystery surrounding the disappearance of a transport Canada airliner with 13 aboard would be solved, faded last night.

Dominion government telegraph officials discounted the possibility that the messages heard on telephone lines between Lillooet and Ashcroft in interior British Columbia, during the weekend had any connection with the lost plane.

"The messages now look too sketchy to be of any value," said Supt. D. G. Bishop of the Dominion Telegraph Service here. "It looks like we have been hoaxed, but how the messages got onto our line I don't know."

Check of the line between Ashcroft and Lillooet, 130 miles northeast of Vancouver, showed that "electrification" was possible at one or two points, but there was no sign of tampering.

Seven Soldiers Killed in Crash Of B-25 Bomber

Crash in Illinois Occurs In Violent Electric Storm

Champaign, Ill., May 21—(AP)—Seven soldiers were killed last night in the crash of a United States Army B-25 Mitchell bomber, in a farm field during a violent electrical storm, police reported today.

It was the second army plane crash in the United States within a few hours last night. Earlier an Army transport crashed near Austin, Texas but all the crew escaped by parachute. Twenty men parachuted out, 13 were injured and two still were missing today.

The wreckage of the plane, strewn over a wide area about 18 miles north of here, was found early today. State police said the craft was en route from Cheyenne, Wyo., to the air base at Chanute Field near Champaign.

It was last heard from at 11:47 p.m. EDT as it passed Burlington, Iowa, police said.

Residents of the area said they heard a terrific crash. Others assumed it merely was thunder.

Ed Berman, reporter for the Champaign News-Gazette who was among the first to reach the crash, said the wreckage of the plane was scattered over the field. Its two engines were 100 to 200 yards from other debris, Berman said.

Ekke Fleisner, in whose freshly-planted cornfield the plane crashed, said his brother-in-law called him and asked "What's that in your field?" They went out and found the pieces of the big airplane scattered all over.

The body of the ship lay about 250 yards from the Fleisner residence and the motors a quarter of a mile away. The plane did not take fire.

MEMBER PLEADS FOR EXEMPTIONS ON AGE BASIS

Suggests That Persons From 55 Onwards Be Entitled to Decrease In Income Taxation

By D'ARCY O'CONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 21 (CP)—Members of the Commons evening yesterday to a wide variety of requests and suggestions during the consideration of the budget speech, heard one of their number advance a proposal which would provide special income tax exemptions for persons 55 and over.

Roland Beaudry (L—Montreal St.) Wednesday suggested that Canadians from the age of 55 onwards, "be entitled to a decrease in the current rate of income taxation, a decrease to be based on their age and on the amount of money they are receiving pension to have accumulated or to earn."

Mr. Beaudry said in practice this likely would mean that a 67 or 70 man would no longer have to pay income tax. He might in some objection as to the amount of exemption such men of 70 might evade, but there would be no difficulty in fixing by law the full amount of revenue to which his suggestion would apply.

Before speaking the day's debate included J. R. Kirk (L—Antigonish-Guysboro); Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia); H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West); Max Campbell (CCF—the Battlefords); and Walter Kuhl (Social Credit—Edmonton).

The debate, resumed shortly after 8 o'clock, continued, was preceded by these developments:

1. Finance Minister Abbott announced passage of an Order-in-Council authorizing the Bank of Canada, had not gone to London with any government instructions or directions "with respect to aid for Britain or reimposition of exchange control, import and export controls in fears of a world dollar crisis.

Question of Loans

The question of loans to other countries and of foreign trade was raised in the budget debate by Mr. Beaudry and Mr. Herridge.

Mr. Hackett expressing concern over Canada's growing trade excess of United dollars, said Canada should not advance further into the international trade field with its dollars until parliament had been given "all the facts."

Mr. Herridge urged the government to take "immediate" steps to conclude a trade treaty with Russia and promote a "free exchange of goods, ideas, scientific and human relations with the dominions' great northern neighbor."

Mr. Campbell felt the budget had failed to recognize there was a possibility of an economic recession. Saying the government had no plans to cushion such a recession, he urged that a Dominion-provincial conference be called to draft works for the prevention of unemployment in periods of depression.

Mr. Kirk dealt mainly with the needs of his own constituency.

Not Getting Share Claim

Mr. Beaudry also figured on the division of national income showed that the maritime provinces were not getting their fair share.

Arabs and Jews Clash Six Miles From Tel Aviv, 2 Arabs and Jew Killed

Jerusalem, May 21 — (Reuters) — Two Arabs and a Jew were killed and six Arabs wounded when Arabs and Jews clashed near Petah Tiqva, six miles from Tel Aviv last night, it was officially stated here today.

A statement purporting to come from the underground Jewish organization, Haganah, said it was "fighting guilt" of Haganah attacked an Arab village Petah Tiqva in retaliation for the alleged murder of two Jews.

The unit killed two Arabs and lost one man itself, the statement added.

As they withdrew, the Haganah men planted four bombs in what is alleged to be the Arab gang's headquarters.

The bombs were detonated by British sappers who were passively watching the cafe.

A few hours after this skirmish a 24-hour curfew was unofficially reported to have entered Ramat Gan, midway between Tel Aviv and Petah Tiqva, the centre of the Jewish industrial section of Palestine. All were armed and some were dressed in British military uniforms, private sources said.

The report said the Arabs dropped a mounted Jewish watchman from his horse, stabbed the animal to death, wounded the watchman with knives and left him dying.

Another Arab-Jewish clash was reported from Jaffa, on the main highway between Tel Aviv and Haifa, near Ramat Gan. A group of Jewish settlement police encountered two armed Arabs who were said to have opened fire and fled.

The disturbed area in which the fighting occurred was under the jurisdiction of Tel Aviv municipality in the government would conjecture. Observers said the clashes were isolated incidents or perhaps the seed of large-scale racial fighting.

3,800 FOREMEN AT FORD PLANT OUT ON STRIKE

Spokesman for Union Says Walkout Will Halt the Production Within 10 Days

Detroit May 21 (AP)—An estimated 3,800 foremen began a strike at the Ford Motor Co. at 10 a.m. today.

The company said its Rouge and Lincoln plants were the Dearborn, Mich., area would be immediately affected report on the Highland Park plant, in the Detroit area.

Initial reports indicated the strike would not affect assembly plants in the government would conjecture. There was no immediate comment from the company after the Ford Motor Co. spokesman, Andrews, (IND.) ordered its members off the job. A later statement was promised.

Robert H. Keys, president of the Ford Chapter of the U.A.W. received unanimous approval of the Ford Chapter of the U.A.W. Tuesday night

A spokesman for the union predicted that the walkout would halt automobile production at Ford within 10 days.

The F.A.A. filed its strike notice April 21, and the 30-day waiting period, which expired Saturday, was extended to permit a conciliation board to complete officials' strike this week.

A contract with the company and the Independent Union was terminated almost simultaneously with the C.I.O. April. Ford later offered a one-year contract to the C.I.O.

Keys outlined the chief issues at dispute as raiding of ranks of the foremen's association by Ford, failure to equalize the wage rates between skilled and unskilled foremen and overtime pay, and what he labelled "arbitrary action" by Ford officials.

Keys said picket lines would be established "by supervisory employees only" and that United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) in the three Ford plants here would not cross the picket lines.

Plants affected are the Rouge, Lincoln and Highland Park plants. Production at the Willow Run plant, the company demanded a renewal of the old contract "with no amendments" for one year, while the C.I.O. demanded certain alterations in the terms.

Authorities Fear Uprising of 20,000 Kurdish Tribesmen

Army Garrisons in Iran Are Strongly Reinforced

By JOSEPH GOODWIN

Tehran, May 21 (AP)—Army garrisons in northwestern Iran were strongly reinforced today as official observers voiced fears of an uprising by Kurdish tribesmen resentful of the government's decision that they must disarm.

At least 20,000 Kurdish rifleyers reported to be massing defences in their home villages, which will worsen and chilly dren were said to have been evacuated.

A reliable Kurdish source said all the villages of the Shahkhak, Jalali, Milan, Panek and Pesa tribes had been evacuated except for mounted riflemen. Approximately 50,000 women and children from these areas were reported moving toward the Turkish frontier with livestock and household goods in the hope of crossing the frontier if trouble breaks out.

Official observers feared the scene of the unrest on Russian agitation, and Jalali tribal representatives asserted that Soviet agents had promised the tribesmen republics, "including anti-tank guns."

"We do not want to be under the Russian gaunt," one Kurdish source said, "but if the army starts to disarm us, we will not seek aid to survive."

Minds of observers from the northern Iran have been currently by powerful Qashgai and Bakhtiari tribes in the south.

The situation was complicated by recurring reports of small units of the former Azerbaijan army moving into the region and in hiding in the northern provinces there is considerable sympathy with Azerbaijan leaders across the Russian frontier.

5-DAY EFFORT TO FORM ITALIAN GOVT. FAILS

Francesco Saverio Nitti Formally Refuses Post of Premier

Rome May 21 (AP)— Francesco Saverio Nitti announced today that he had failed to form a new Italian government, despite five days of effort.

The 79-year-old independent told reporters as he left Provisional President Enrico de Nicola's residence that he had formally refused the post premier offered him following the resignation eight days ago of Alcide de Gasperi three-party coalition cabinet. He said de Nicola would resume consultations today in an effort to find a new premier.

There was no immediate speculation that President de Nicola would turn again to de Gasperi or some other Christian Democrat to form a cabinet.

Nitti's inability to form a cabinet was foreshadowed yesterday by the refusal of minor left-wing parties to adhere to his proposed "national concentration" government.

An hour after Nitti had announced his failure, Vicce-Emanuel Orlando, 87-year-old first Premier of Italy under, arrived at de Nicola's residence, stirring rumors that he might be asked to undertake the task of forming a cabinet.

Leaving de Nicola's residence, however, Orlando said he had not been designated to form a new government, even unofficially.

Nitti having failed, "the president would have to do whatever he said. He added that he would confer with party leaders to explore the situation.

Electric Current Shot Thru Head Curing Diseases

New York, May 21 — (AP) — Electric current, shot through the human brain by electrodes placed on the head, is curing cases of spill personality, mania, depression, and other headaches, migraines, asthma, weakness, loss of appetite and restlessness.

It has recently come into national use in heavy, shocking currents, that cause convulsions, but often result in mental cures.

The shots of electricity are given in 20 to 30 treatments over 20 days. At the College of Medicine of the State University of Iowa, F. E. Huston, M. D. and C. R. Neff, M. D., Ph.D., reported on who had shock treatment.

Some of these complained of memory difficulties for several months afterward. But at the end of six months all the memories are covered.

Determined Nature Twice Tried To Give Earth Sabre-Toothed Cat

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington, May 21 — (AP) — Nature is a determined critter. For instance, she tried twice to give the earth a sabre-tooth cat.

She had two tries, one at it 40,000,000 years ago, give or take a few weeks, the Smithsonian Institution, reported today.

This creature was known as sabre-toothed tiger, and the first thing anybody knows, nature's balance wheel is out of kilter.

The sabre-tooth tiger, for instance, with its protruding tusks, was mighty handy at carving up mastodons. It was convenient, too, when the mastodons disappeared, to still the tiger's hunger pangs.

As for the other, Gazin doesn't even have an extinct theory.

Fred H. Bolte Retires After 45 Years Service

After 45 years in the service of the Canadian National Railways and C.N.R. agent at Belleville for the past ten years, Fred H. Bolte, Queen Street, has retired from his service.

Mr. Bolte officially retired on May 15th due to ill health. His successor as C.N.R. agent has not yet been appointed.

A native of Belleville, Ontario, Mr. Bolte entered the service of the railway back in 1902 at Rockcliffe, Quebec, where his father was transferred to the Belleville division where he remained until 1912, at which time he received an appointment as agent at Lyn, Ontario, near Brockville. Mr. Bolte remained in that district until 1932 when the station was closed. He was then agent at Mudoc Junction for a short period until that station was closed and then went to Tweed and Bloomfield, following which in 1937 he came to Belleville.

Ardent Sports Fan

An ardent sports fan as well as having a decided yen for fishing and hunting, Mr. Bolte has a soft spot in his heart for Consecon. It was at this locality that Mr. Bolte coached the hockey team which in 1934 was successful in winning the county championship. He still attends local hockey and baseball games.

But it is at his own favorite fishing haunts where Mr. Bolte intends to spend a considerable time this coming summer. He candidly admits that fishing is the right "spots" but that is as far as he will go. He also enjoys duck hunting in the fall.

To Remain in City

Although his original home was in the Brockville district, Mr. Bolte intends to remain in Belleville "for the time being" as his son William lives in Stirling while another son, Douglas Bolte has his home in Morris Plains, New Jersey. A daughter, Mrs. Barbara L. Bowman, and a two-months-old granddaughter, live with Mr. and Mrs. Bolte.

Married to an R.A.F. officer who trained in Canada, Barbara lived in England until March when she flew home just prior to the birth of her baby, Her husband is still with the R.A.F. but expects soon to receive his discharge.

8-3-4 Lb. Brown Trout Hooked At Shanty Lake

The brown trout are showing a distinct yen for the spinning bait, according to reports from the fishing haunts of the district this week.

The other day a beauty weighing 8¾ pounds was pulled from Shanty Lake near Marmora with the honors going to Adam Sands of Peterborough. With Sands were Lorne Foster, a resident of this city and a well-known former softball player, Mel Wood and Samuel Maw.

Shanty Lake is 21 miles east of Bancroft. The party caught ten fine specimens the prize one being of course the eight-pounder. Another of the bag weighed six pounds.

Purdy Lake, also near Bancroft, is yielding its quota of speckled trout. A recent nice catch was that of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Belskirk of Peterborough who caught nine all told, with the best weighing 4 lbs. 15 ounces and another 4½-pounds.

BEES ON STRIKE

Lewiston, N.Y., May 21—(AP)—Now comes a sit-down strike of bees.

Niagara county fruit farmers say their bees are laying down on the job of pollenizing fruit trees because of prolonged cool, rainy weather.

The farmers' reports were confirmed by U. S. Weather Observer Percy R. Morgan who said bees just can't work in temperatures for that sort of thing when the temperature drops below 57 degrees.

SEES PLANE CRASH

"The way the plane was acting it looked to me as though there was a quarrel in the cabin. It seemed to be all over the 'ship' as though they were fighting over the controls." Violence Cause Of Child's Death Verdict of Jury

The adjourned inquest looking into the death of the infant whose body was found three weeks ago beneath a culvert on Moira Street, West, was held at the city police station Tuesday afternoon before Coroner Dr. Russell J. Scott.

The verdict returned by the coroner's jury was that "The unknown male child came to its death in or in the vicinity of Belleville at some time prior to April 12th and after April 25th, by violence caused by person or persons unknown."

Three witnesses were called by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnelly. They were Dr. J. E. McKay, pathologist at the Belleville General Hospital, and Inspector Clare Hayes of the Belleville police.

Dr. McKay told the inquest jurymen that the child had been fully developed and had lived following birth. Death is believed to have been the result of multiple fractures of the skull. Inspector Hayes told of the finding of the body of the infant which had been wrapped in newspaper and placed beneath the culvert on Moira Street. The body had been discovered by school children who reported their find to a local groceryman with police in turn being notified.

Ladies' Night Of Kiwanis Club Much Enjoyed

Members of the Kiwanis Club, their wives and lady friends enjoyed a splendid program at the regular May 19th meeting of Tabernacle Church on Tuesday evening, when Cecil Pringle, a member of the local graphic department of his years in the Ferry Corps, showed the films he exhibited, films taken by himself in far away places of which formed, and Milford Lewis, both of Dundas Street, entertained with a drunk driving charge, while his companion is charged with being intoxicated.

Local police have been asked by C. B. Card, 306 Bridge Street East, to endeavor to contact his 16-year-old son, Leonard Card, who over the weekend left home and has not been heard of since.

It was first thought the youth had joined the Merrick Brothers Circus which played in the city last week, but the parents now believe their son may have enlisted and make his way to the United States.

Police Blotter

The old adage that "boys will be boys" is still applicable to present day youth it was learned by several local motorists who had occasion to park their cars on Bleecker Street, near Christ Church recently.

The motorists returned to their cars to find that in their absence the boys had had their fun and the police could find no trace of those responsible.

Night of a car being driven in an erratic manner led to the arrest by police officers of two local young men, James Spearing and Milford Lewis, both of Dundas Street, on charges of drunk driving charge, while his companion is charged with being intoxicated.

Local police have been asked by C. B. Card, 306 Bridge Street East, to endeavor to contact his 16-year-old son, Leonard Card, who over the weekend left home and has not been heard of since.

Sorely-Tried Greek People Desperately in Need of Aid

Remember Greece in 1941?

Of course you do. Yet today with little but a flicker of hope, this Greece is struggling to rebuild their shattered land. To give their children a chance to become its citizens of to-morrow a chance to hold their heads high in the Community of Nations.

In this devastated area, brought to practically rubble by the iron heel of the invader, the people is striving to rise from the ashes of the holocaust of war, the privation and suffering.

Many of those people stretch their hands to the bright torch of Freedom, so near and yet so far. Years of subsistence in fields without fuel or clothes has brought the Greek people to its knees, but their spirit is far from dead. The Greeks, like Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again.

But they are direly in need of help. Food, clothing, medical supplies and equipment, hospitals, etc.

Every dollar given will bolster that flicker of hope that smoulders in their bosoms. It is the best investment you can make for the future of mankind because when you give to the Greek Relief, you are investing in free human beings.

Theirs is a tragic story. Many little children, ragged, emaciated, under - nourished, cry for assistance. Adults, unkempt, the look of utter despair in their faces, turn their eyes to Canada for help. They must be saved for humanity's sake.

Belleville has been asked to contribute to the Greek Relief Fund. Knowing its generous heart, those in charge of the city campaign here feel confident that its citizens will not shrink away from its urgent appeal for aid.

Cash donations will be received at any chartered bank branch in the city, or the offices of this newspaper. Help, won't you?

School Children Will Have No Holiday Monday

Although local manufacturers will observe the holiday on Saturday and local merchants will close on Monday, school children in the city will this year have no official holiday in connection with the observance of Victoria Day.

According to officials of the local board of education, there can be no school holiday on Monday without the day being proclaimed a holiday by the Mayor or by provincial or federal authority.

Manufacturers in the city have announced that they will observe Victoria Day on Saturday, the day on which the 24th falls, while merchants will observe Monday. To date Mayor Frank Follwell has not proclaimed any holiday for Monday.

TESTIFIES ON REDS

A former Soviet official who renounced Communism. Victor A. Kravchenko is pictured in Washington as he testified before the House un-American activities committee, which is probing Communist-infiltration of the film industry. He alleged that his life had been threatened.

C.A.S. Pays Tribute To Memory Of Late H.B. Fetterly

The regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held Tuesday in Bridge Street U.C.C.

Mr. Chas. Hyde who was in charge asked for a moment of silence in memory of the late Past President, Mr. H. B. Fetterly.

The usual business was conducted after which Mr. Ruston reported on the Annual Meeting of Children's Aid Societies of Ontario held recently at Niagara Falls.

Mr. Lockyer gave a very interesting account of one day's activity in his work. He made eleven calls during the day covering a distance of 85 miles. He pointed out that there was a great need for a social worker in this district. Eight of the eleven cases investigated were of such a nature that C.A. funds could not be used to cover the expense.

HEAVY RAINFALL

Moscow May 21 (AP)—Heavy rainfalls reported today in the principally Russian grain growing section affected by drought last year brightened this year's crop prospects in those regions.

A despatch from the Saratov section on the Volga, one of the regions hardest hit by last year's drought, said approximately 3,000,000 acres had been sown to spring wheat and that the winter crop was in "very good condition."

ADVANCE GUARD OF LABOR ARRIVES

St. Catharines, May 21—(CP)—The dozen or more young Maritimers who arrived here at the week-end to work in heavy industry will form the advance guard of more than 100 who will be brought to this area to keep the industries in operation, L. P. Cunningham of the National Employment Bureau, said today. The men required to replace those leaving industry for farm and other work.

Storing of Gold Bullion In Anticipation of Rise Announced by McIntyre

Toronto, May 21 (CP)—Storing of gold bullion, currently valued at $5,587,637, in anticipation of a future increase in the price of gold, was disclosed in the annual statement of McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. issued today.

Explaining the reason for storing the bullion, President Ralmer Nelly said the company believed that "barring discriminating legislation, it is the best security available, and that in the not distant future, the successful functioning of exchange upon an international basis will necessitate the adoption of the gold standard of value, and that when near equilibrium is finally attained, the price of gold, expressed in terms of currency will be on a higher level than that presently in effect."

Greeks' Need Cries Out

The name of Greece is an inspiration in the democratic world. Modern democracies know what the present day world owes to the people who inhabit the southern part of the Balkan peninsula. It was the ancient Greeks who brought the light of civilization into the western world and it was they who at Marathon, at Thermopylae and at Salamis saved the western world from being overrun. At the same time they developed one of the greatest civilizations the world has known, this civilization being marked in so many forms in the modern world, especially in the free democratic nations. Greece has been one of the greatest blessings to the western world.

But Greece not alone in the far past when Europe was beginning to emerge from the dark ages following centuries has been a light of freedom of mind and spirit. Time dealt harshly with Greece for a long time but eventually she became free. The democracies of the west have always held her in highest regard for the past and for her present.

In the last war Greece played the hero's role. Her decision was to stand by the Allied Nations. Her people drew upon her the aggression of Germany and Italy, but her deeds stayed the advance of Hitler, making impossible his penetration farther towards the Middle East. Greece then suffered the inhumanity of the Hun, but she helped to win the Allied victory. That is her glory which will never fade.

Greece passed through terrible suffering and today she needs the help of the civilized world. Today she bears the marks of bitter war and the cruelties of the enemy who ravaged her land with fire and sword. That land which means so much to modern democracies was submitted to all the horrors of Hun aggression. 1,300,000 of her people are homeless, hundreds of thousands of orphans are cared for and the gallant disabled veterans want attention and food and all that modern medicine and science can bring. One of the worst evidences of all the woes brought upon this stricken land is the state of two million children who are victims of malnutrition and disease and deformity. A large percentage of her people suffer from tuberculosis and disease can unfortunately find.

This is the task the friends of Greece, benefactor of the world for centuries, face, the task to aid this people to recover their strength.

The United Nations world is in the debt of Greece for never in history did a more heroic demonstration of courage appear than when, knowing full well what the result would be, this people decided to stand by the United Nations.

Today the people of the United Nations want to stand by her and help her recover her strength. Throughout Canada the campaign is in full swing to help this noble people. The cause is just and merits the assistance of every citizen. Support the local campaign by leaving a contribution at the Daily Ontario Intelligencer in aid of our gallant ally in World War II.

Holiday Exchange

Over 100,000 people in Britain and Europe will spend holidays in each other's homes this year. They are members of the World Friendship Association — a United Kingdom organization founded approximately enough on May 8, 1945, V E Day. The countries concerned are Britain, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Holland, Luxembourg, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland. 25,000 Dutch families have offered hospitality to United Kingdom guests this year, Denmark has invited 5,000 and other countries are equally hospitable. The scheme works simply. Members elsewhere the centre in which they wish to spend their holiday and the Association arranges accommodation in homes of members there whose tastes and occupations are similar. In return continental members visit their counterparts in Britain. The cost is under $40 per person which covers fares from port to destination, meals on the journey, insurance and four-day excursions. All these expenses are borne by the hosts.

British Shipyards Lead

Shipyards in Britain and Ireland are now building more than two million tons of merchant vessels according to Lloyd's Register of Shipping. This is the highest figure since March, 1922 and is equivalent to 54.3 per cent of the world total, excluding Danzig, Germany, Japan, Poland and Russia. The United States has dropped to third place with approximately 215,000 tons, Sweden and France leading foreign yards with approximately 244,000 and 233,000 tons respectively.

Babel in Berlin

From Berlin, Reuters discloses that young people in the city are learning a polyglot language combined of English and Americanese. They quote Professor Dr. George Karlzka, one-time Yale and Toronto University teacher, and now professor of phonetics and literature at the University of Berlin, to this effect. The fascinating result of the eagerness of Berliners to pick up the language of the occupying troops has been a shocking concatenation of Cockney, broad Scots, Dublin Irish, rough Yorkshire, a broad Oxford "A" and all sorts and conditions of American usage. It is easy to understand that when a young German frauleln works successively for an English, American, Irish or Scottish officer her new language is an astounding hodge podge.

Almost half a century ago a group of world citizens, believing that language was the highest barrier dividing the nations, conceived Esperanto, which they fondly hoped would be universally accepted. After a brief though well-publicized life, Esperanto died out. Possibly the idea was a century ahead of its time. The nations were not yet ready to forego their national tongues. But the world wars may well tend to underscore them as to the general value of national sovereignty.

Today it is the English language in its varying forms including pidgin English in the Orient which tends to become the world language of trade and intercourse although French retains the old values of clarity and freedom from ambiguity that makes it the choice of the diplomats. Esperanto is now a dead letter, so is the hope of a universal language. But it might be beneficial and conducive of Peace if we laid more emphasis in our schools on acquiring foreign languages — French, German, Spanish and Russian — a knowledge of which would certainly expand the world opportunities of Canadians in the post-war world.—London Free Press.

Premium on Manners

In recognition of their good manners, several hundred Boston school children have been given an award of $5. The school principal said that the awards were based not only on courtesy and good manners, but on honesty, friendliness and good character.

It is nice to know that mannerly children are being rewarded. But it is a commentary on our civilization when, by implication, good manners are the exception rather than the rule, and when a public school is the place where they are encouraged.

The qualities which this Boston school recognizes in the children are those which contribute largely to pleasant and profitable living. Good manners, courtesy and friendliness are not frills. They are fundamentals. They are an expression of the Golden Rule and a practical demonstration of the simple art of being kind, which, as another has observed, is what the old world needs.—Guelph Mercury.

One of our favorite economists, who writes weekly observations from Wall Street, has passed on the following alarming inflation news: The price of dead cats for laboratory use in the New York area has skyrocketed from a pre-war $3 each to $6; the price of live giraffes in East Africa has gone flp 500 percent, says Milwaukee Journal.

SLOW-GROWER

I suppose I ought to stop
And some foolish interests drop;
Like Sir Oracle, of Shakespeare's,
I suppose I ought to be.
And it's time I should behave
In a manner wisely grave,
But the boy I was continues
To live on inside of me.

Though he should have gone away
Long before my hair turned gray,
Still he gets me into mischief
And the things I wouldn't do.
Still I run when I should walk;
And when serious, wise men talk
As a dreamy wide-eyed schoolboy
I just stare the window through

Oh, I know the world's upset;
But the brooks are rippling yet.
And the flowers come to blossom
And the bees are in the hive.
Though there's work that should be done
Every day holds so much fun
That I'm sure I'll never grow up
Should I live to ninety-five.

Critical Shortage Of U.S. Dollars May Change Policy

London, May 21 —(CP)— A forecast "change towards the East" in Britain's foreign and trade policy, with the critical shortage of United States dollars, appeared shaping up today.

The forecast came yesterday by the Paris newspaper Le Monde, which often expresses French foreign office views. The paper said that Foreign Secretary Bevin favored a policy of developing trade between Britain and Russia.

Support was lent to this forecast today when an authoritative Moskowman said a British commercial credit to Russia may be the subject of talks now taking place in London between the board of trade and a Soviet delegation.

"There is likely to be a definite change of policy side when a balance is struck," the spokesmans holding "it may well be that one of the big purchases we shall be able to make from Russia will be wheat, but we won't get this until the next Russian harvest."

Sir Stafford Cripps, secretary for overseas trade who led the recent British trade delegation to Moscow, has stated since his return that there were only two ways to develop trade with any big food and lumber deals with the Soviet and the other is through multilateralism. Wheat was said to be a major item in the negotiations, along with lumber.

The U. S. Navy Department has disclosed that Lieut. Cmdr. Edward H. Little (above), of Monrovia, Calif., is defendant in a secret court-martial trial at the naval gun factory in Washington. The admission of secret proceedings followed a published report that a Lieut.-Cmdr. Little was on trial for carrying favor with the ages by delegating secretarial fellow Americans at Camp 17, Fukioka district, Japan. The report stated that Little was in charge of the U. S. mess in the prison camp where food was very scarce. Actual camp commander during part of the time was Maj. Achilles Tiadelle, of Orange Park, Fla., a reserve officer who outranked Little, But Little complained that he had seniority and refused to take Tiadelle's orders.

placing of such orders "would of course lead to reducing our dollar expenditure."

He said the coming Russian wheat harvest would be good, but an extremely good one and "it looks as though there will be a surplus of wheat.

"It will not, of course, come in time to help us this year, but if we could have some of the consequent supplies we should then know that it would not be necessary to spend so many dollars."

"Naturally," he added, "we would take Canadian wheat and other supplies our expenditure on wheat from America."

Yugoslav Group Admits Attraction 'New Social Order'

Montreal, May 21 (CP)—Bluntly a group of Yugoslavs returning to their homeland in the next few days admitted today that "the new social order" in Yugoslavia under Marshal Tito is the attraction which brings them to and expected to reach 1,500 Canadian Yugoslavs this year.

"It is the new conditions, it is the regime of Marshal Tito that is bringing us back to our country," said Edward Yardas, Secretary of a seven-man group of Canadian Slavs.

They spoke last night to a farewell banquet arranged for the 200 Yugoslavs from different parts of Canada who are gathered here awaiting the sailing of the Yugoslav ship Radnik about May 28.

Old and young, a majority of them in working clothes and with their possessions, they were attracted by the promise of easy travel to and repatriation in a hotel and restaurant of Yugoslav melodies.

The travellers seemed happy about their proposed trip, unworried by statements made recently by Dr. Mladen Gulnic, Toronto dentist and Canadian leader said the returning Yugoslavs were dupes of the Communists.

Along with Yardas, whose family moved to Canada, he also arranged the impending trip, Peter Kovacevich, who succeeded Zako Popovitch as consul-general in Montreal, addressed the group and Vukelich spoke in the Slav language and charged that "the propaganda of slander" had been undertaken by the "fascist" Mihailovitch old regimes but he assured the gathering "our people want to be happy and proud because they know you are returning...to help with your skills them a mighty industrial Yugoslavia."

When the travellers leave they will take with them thousands of dollars of clothing, tools and implements, many of which now are awaiting loading on the Montreal waterfront.

ALCOHOL OVER SUS ACTIVITY

Once's a person of low I.Q. has experienced the false "lift" produced by cocktail, any late in the afternoon it is difficult to interest him or her in the correct, restorative or refreshment he or she really needs — physical activity.

The physical activity —work, play or exercise—which the tired weary, worn or fagged white collar worker, student, professional man or woman needs to restore or refresh efficiency and sense of fitness and well being may well be a brisk walk of a mile or two. Try it youngsters, if you are not already addicted to alcohol. You'll get genuine refreshment from oxygen on the head, without the sad-let-down that follows a "shot" of liquor.

Speaking of refreshment, efficiency and well being—well being or the sense of well being (being well) is a way of saying happiness and contentment—listening to the radio, of a track meet or baseball game, one of the main events was a walking race, I was reminded that this is spiritually and well being is still the finest all-around exercise any one, young or old, can take to keep fit.

In America today, as it seems to me, a great deal of the "nervousness" which people, young and old, try to relieve or combate with sedative or narcotic drugs, including alcohol, is due to lack of physical, and too little walking; too much sport and not enough play; too much entertainment and not enough diversion; too much mind and not enough recreation; too much business and not enough work; too much emphasis on social approval. In the green book "Nerves and Nutrition" by Carlson and Haines, explanation of all this is given for copy send twenty-five cents to the author care of this paper stating your address.

Naturally, he added, "we would take Canadian wheat and other supplies our expenditure on wheat from America."

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who said he could move the earth if he had a place to stand? Tradition attributes this saying to Archimedes (287-212 B.C.), Greek mathematician and inventor who was the Benjamin Franklin of the ancient world and the subject of many legends.

According to one legend, Archimedes once said to Hiero II, his kinsman and the tyrant of Syracuse: "Give me a place to stand and I will move the whole world with this machine." Another version of the saying is: "Give me a lever long enough and a prop strong enough and I can singlehanded move the earth."

No historical evidence that Archimedes actually made the statement has been discovered and many authorities regard it as an invention of later days.

Another story is that Hiero asked Archimedes to test a gold crown to determine whether the smith who made it had slipped the precious crown with base metal. The philosopher didn't know how to do it, and so he went to his bathtub to think over the problem. As he lay in the tub he observed that some of the water ran over the edge, and the idea struck him that a solid body immersed in water must displace its own bulk of the liquid. Since silver is lighter than gold, he reasoned, a pound of silver would displace more water than a pound of gold and therefore would give him a method of measuring the quantity of each metal in the crown.

Archimedes was so excited about the discovery that without stopping to dress and without putting his clothes on, ran through the streets of Syracuse shouting, "Eureka!" which means "I have found it."

In 214 B.C. the Romans under Claudius Marcellus invaded Syracuse by land and sea. Archimedes is supposed to have invented several machines of war, of ingenius engines of war that played an important part in the defence of the city during the two years' siege. Some of these engines catapulted stones weighing 1,800 pounds for a distance of 600 feet.

Archimedes is supposed to have set Roman ships on fire by means of mirrors that reflected the rays of the sun.

When Syracuse was finally taken Archimedes was killed despite orders issued by Marcellus to spare his life. Legend says the scientist was engaged in contemplation when a squad of soldiers burst into his room. To the soldier who was about to kill him he calmly said: "Don't disturb my circles."

Vanished Youth

I walked with youth beside me
Through many a changing year.
No Winter days were dreary
With youth beside to cheer:
Though rough the road and weary,

He gently led the way,
A comrade bright and cheery
To gild the darkest day.

We feared no heavy burdens,
No task was e'er too great,
We bravely faced the future
With heart for any fate;
But one long day I missed him.
This comrade bright and gay,
I wondered, oh! I wondered
When he had slipped away.

Or was it That left him
Far down the fading years?
The scene of that sad parting
How dimly it appears!
But somewhere I shall greet him.
For have we not been told
Of a land of endless Springtime
Where none will ever grow old.

Church Must See Beyond Own Work To Other Lands

Hallowes Street Y.P.U. was privileged to have Rev. C. A. Campbell, of Whitefield, as guest speaker on Monday evening.

The speaker continued, "A church must have vision to see beyond its own work to the great need in other lands, if it is to carry out the command of Jesus to His disciples that they preach the gospel to every creature. Every person has a responsibility beyond that of supplying financial assistance for the support of missionaries; prayer is very important. There are three missionary responsibilities, i.e. Witness among friends in the community and in the world. Every modern baffling missionary leaders may be solved by the inspiration of Bible teachings. God depends upon us to carry out the commission Jesus gave to His disciples" Jeanne Marshall, Christian Missions convener, expressed appreciation to Mr. Campbell for this inspiring address.

Assisting the conveners in the worship service were Dorothy Mills, Betty Keeble and Grace Stewart, Mr. Gordon Brown contributed a violin solo.

During the business period it was decided to accept the decision of the executive relative to the use of the funds from the play as follows: $100 to the Moira Lake Camp; $75 to the Board of Missions, earmarked for Rev. J. Honey and Mrs. Honey, in China; $75 to purchase needed furniture in the vestry; $15 to start a Y.P.U. library, a signboard for the church and a rubber stamp.

Rosslyn Robertson led in a singsong with Margaret Hillis at the piano, after which recreation and refreshments were enjoyed.

The Canadian Cheese Family Grows

The origin of foods is always a romantic story and the story of early cheese-making is no exception. According to legend, the first cheese was made by accident. Many centuries ago a wandering merchant was travelling across the hills of Arabia. Like all travellers of his day he had filled his canteen, made from a dried sheep's stomach, with milk. He plodded all day over the hills in the heat and by night-fall he found no milk would pour from his canteen. For all the skin and found a mass of semi-hard sulaglaous, which upon tasting he found to be delicious. The goat's milk had been curdled by the rennin part in the sheep's stomach. It was in this way that rennin was discovered as the essential factor in the curdling of milk for cheese making.

Our early ancestors held cheese in such high esteem that it became a medium of exchange and barter, for the wandering tribes of Asia. Today every homemaker considers cheese one of the most important items in her menus. From the three miniature cheeses on the market a suitable cheese may be selected to be served at any course of the meal — as appetizer, soup, main dish or dessert.

Many cheeses, which were formerly imported are now made in Canada and compare favorably with the original product. The majority of Canadians prefer a mildly flavored cheese, but now that there is a larger supply of these less familiar types, the taste for them will undoubtedly develop rapidly.

Cheeses may be grouped into soft, semi-hard and hard types, according to the amount of moisture left in the curd, the bacteria or mould developed and the method of curing. The most commonly used varieties of the soft type made in Canada are Cottage, Cream, Camembert; in the semi-hard class are Roquefort, Limburger, Oka and Blue cheese, which is a type of Roquefort. Among the hard cheeses the most popular is Canadian Cheddar. Others are Gouda, which is similar to Dutch cheese in texture but without the large holes and Canadian Brie. The latter is a navy cheese similar to Parmesan and it is usually grated before using.

For general cooking purposes Canadian Cheddar cheese will remain the homemaker's favorite. However, the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest that these newer cheeses be served either with the meal or course or as the dessert course with crackers or crisp wafers.

BEAUTY

Dance, Little Lady!

Dancing is an exercise that should appeal to all women, even those who make sour mugs when you mention calesthenics. It promotes grace to the highest degree, especially when an instructor is present to insist upon correct posture and neat movements. It produces ease of manner and perfect rhythm.

The percentage of women who go in for outdoor sports, or physical education as it is taught in a gymnasium, is small. A grand step forward is interest in swimming. It becomes more popular each year. It is an ideal exercise; one is out in the sunshine and the effort of propelling the body through the water awashes the lungs But the season is short.

Exercise should continue throughout the year. Even middle-aged women need a certain amount of muscle workout. Holding down an easy chair means that hip spread is invited. Let these self-indulgent women turn on the radio and dance. Let them step lively. They'll shake off some of the adipose padding. They'll feel better and look better. The circulatory system will be stimulated; the complexion will benefit. A feeling of youthfulness will come back to them. They will recharge their energy batteries.

Every little girl whose parents can afford it should have dancing lessons—aesthetic, social or gymnastic, according to her fancy. Because dancing is the most beautiful form of physical expression, little daughter will Sustained efforts extend the walls of the chest, tighten the muscles of the lower portion of the back, strengthen the intercostal fibres of the abdominal region.

Let the self-indulgent women turn on the radio and dance.

Doris Charlotte C. West, in her interesting book, "Ageless Youth", has this to say about dancing:

"Dancing is prescribed for its physiological as well as for its psychological effects. It brings out the lighter and more whole-some qualities, infuses into the atmosphere a blending of a mixing of joy, happiness and hope, and optimism that might be called the "spirit of the dance."

"Dancing is, of course, the most marked example of appeal made by rhythmic movements. It enables a girl to create grace that she will never lose. Even though she does not take up dancing seriously, an ease of manner and deportment is acquired that equips a young woman for any future social life that she may enter—such ease and grace as it is difficult to assume in later years."

be greatly benefited. Dancing aids development of the bony framework, makes for the social ease and poise that many girls lack during the so-called awkward period. It is particularly helpful to shy, self-conscious lassies.

Your Diet Affects Your Skin

Use a soothing cream twice a day.

By HELEN FOLLETT

CONSIDERING the sobbing that goes on among the good looks complainers, you'd think there were no such thing as a normal, well-behaved complexion.

Truth is, complexions improve right along, because we are learning more and more each day about what eating habits, the benefits of the balanced diet, fresh air, outdoor exercise. Cosmetics have done their part; fragrant creams keep the epidermal surface smooth and soft, and the friction necessary for their application acts as a cleansing agent, stimulates the functions of the blood streams and the skin itself.

Some light-headed sisters love to harp about their delicate, sensitive skins as if they were an inheritance from a long line of distinguished ancestors. They can change conditions by being fussy about the soap they use, drying the face thoroughly after it has been washed, using a soothing emollient freely, working it well into the flesh.

There are two special classes of wailers, the drys and the oilies. The first need more fat in the diet; the oilies need less.

Diet has more to do with the condition of the skin than most of use realize. Also, one should drink plenty of water. Loss of sleep will devitalize the skin, cause tissues to soften, wrinkles to form. So will worry.

The dry skin shows tat sloughing off of cuticle is going on more rapidly than it should. The cutaneous structure is ever in a state of decay and renewal, dead scales fluffing away, new ones forming. To deter excessive cuticle-sloughing, a soothing cream should be used twice a day, at bedtime and left on, again after the morning rinsing to remain on until the time comes to decorate with cosmetic war paint.

All powders are not agreeable to all skins, so select yours with care. It should be heavy enough to adhere, not so heavy that it goes on in patches. Remove the surplus with a powder brush. And never, never, apply make-up to an unclean skin.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Teen-Agers and the Mothers Who Don't Understand Them

Many and vehement are the complaints received by this department from teen-agers whose mothers, they declare, don't understand them.

Most of this failure on the part of the mothers, if appears, has to do with youthful romances. Mother doesn't like the boy who, at the moment is the first place in the teen-ager's affections. Mother won't permit the teen-ager to go out in the evening with her boy friend. She thinks the teen-ager is too young for attentions from boys anyway.

Here's the sort of thing in excerpts from some of the teen-agers' letters:

"I am a girl of 17. My mother is wonderful to me in all ways except one. She does not believe that I should go out on dates."

"I am a girl 15 years old and like a 15-year-old boy whom I have known for over a year. He comes from a nice family and has a good character and personality. My mother knows I like him, but won't let me go with boys or any school friends. She says I'm too young."

"I am 16 years old and like very much a boy who is 18. We have known each other for about two years. My problem is this: My parents do not want me to go out with boys."

"I am a girl of 13, who has everything a girl wants, including a baby grand piano, victrola and radio set combined in one, etc. But still I am not happy. My mother is 34 years old, and to me is very old-fashioned. I have a boy friend, 14 who has parties quite often and invites me to them, but I am not allowed to go to any parties or to the movies. Do you think I am too young to go out with this 14-year-old boy or to any parties?"

Boiled down to their essence, such complaints as these reduce, of course, to the fact that the teen-agers want more freedom and their mothers want them to be content with less.

In many situations, it is no doubt that the teen-ager is right and should have more freedom than she is allowed. In her anxiety to shelter her girl from every possibility of harm her mother protects her, and in so doing, circumscribes her daughter's life to an unnecessary and unwise degree.

In other situations, it is the mother who has the better of the argument, with the teen-ager demanding independence to an extent for which, at her age, she is not ready as, perhaps, in the case of the 13-year-old girl.

Need it actually be so hard for mother and daughter to reach a compromise? And how can it be brought about?

Well in the first place, it might be a good idea for the teen-ager to contemplate the possibility that if her mother fails to understand her point of view, perhaps she, on her side, has made no effort to be in her favor. She has not been willing to give honest consideration to the merits of her mother's arguments.

This same suggestion goes for those mothers, too, who have been unwilling to acknowledge their daughters' right to a fair hearing. Instead of paying attention to what her teen-ager has to say, and talking it over on a woman-to-woman basis, the mother brushes the daughter off with the old "Mother knows best" routine, or simply forbids the situation into an excuse for a display of that type of parental authority which holds that, where children are concerned, it is "theirs not to reason why," but merely to render blind obedience.

Sometimes I suspect a maternal attitude of this kind stems from pure laziness, or, to be more charitable, plain busyness. Mother has her hands full running a household, no doubt about it, and it's a great time saver to just lay down the law and let things go at that. But if she would only remember that her willingness to realize the importance of establishing a state of understanding between herself and her children is the measure of her own intelligence, she might be readier to find the time for such discussions.

Nobody can be entirely right all the time, neither the teen-ager nor her mother. If each, on her side, would resolve to listen fairly to what the other has to say, to accord it the consideration it deserves, and to accept and abide by those parts of it which are logical and reasonable such a procedure would go far toward reducing the number of teen-agers who feel they are misunderstood and increasing the number of mothers who find in happy companionship with their daughters ample reward for the effort they have made to achieve it.

VEHICLE IDEAL FOR DISABL ED PERSON'S REQUIREMENTS

Here a London driver looks on with interest at the "Lamar" car which belongs to a disabled law student. The "Lamar" car is unique, both in design and adaptability. Its single cylinder, 2½ h.p. engine enables the car to climb any normal hill and cruise at 35 m.p.h. It can be easily manoeuvred in a limited space, having a turning circle of 15 feet diameter. The controls are as in a normal car, but these can be varied to suit the requirements of a disabled person, according to his disability. A person having lost a leg, both legs, or an arm can travel in comfort and safety and with all-weather protection.

Youths Suspected Of Being Linked With Underground

Paris, May 21—(Reuters)—Paris police have arrested five youths, suspected of being linked with a Jewish terrorist organization, on a charge of arms trafficking and having propaganda pamphlets in their possession, it was learned today.

When police raided a hotel in the Rue L'Odeon just before midnight last night they found the alleged terrorists with a number of revolvers. The ages of the youths ranged from 15 to 20 years.

The pamphlets, according to a police statement, contained the following communique:

"We combatants of liberty state that our troops are in action in London.

"We have now penetrated into Trafalgar Square and have attacked and destroyed the British Colonial Club. We are firmly decided to fight the enemy on his own soil until our independence is recognized and we are finally rid of the enemy which oppresses us. Signed—the combatants of liberty and the Stern group."

In March an explosion shattered a wall of the Colonial Welfare Club in London's St. Martin's Place, off Trafalgar Square, injuring six.

COST TO HEAVY

London, May 21 (Reuters) — Maintenance of British Military forces in Germany cost Britain £94,000,000 ($336,000,000) during the financial year which ended last month Defence Minister Alexander said in the House of Commons today.

None of this cost currently fell on German authorities, but the occupying powers have claims for its eventual recovery.

The cost of British forces in Austria during the same period was about £10,000,000.

Civil Service Commission Seeks Stenographers

Ottawa, May 21 — (CP)—Room shortage? — If that's all that's keeping stenographers and typists out of Ottawa, then they can stop worrying, the Civil Service Commission said today in announcing a Dominion-wide competition next month to replenish its supply of shorthand and typing gals.

"When it comes to rooms there are plenty — and at reasonable prices," said one official. "And if that isn't enough there are several vacancies at Laurentian Terrace, where a civil service girl employee can get room and board for as low as $8 a week."

Stenographers and typists have been pulling out of the civil service at the rate of 100 a month and that's why the commission is anxious to get all the applications it can for the examinations to be held June 28.

"At present the service needs 80 stenographers right in Ottawa," he continued. "Numerous other vacancies exist in government departments across the country."

The competition is for four grades of stenographers and typists with a salary-range of $900 to $1,704. All appointments will be permanent.

Seaway Project To be Considered BySub-Committee

Washington, May 21 — (AP)— Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep.-Wis.), chairman of a Senate foreign relations sub-committee that will begin consideration of new St. Lawrence seaway legislation May 26, said today he is "optimistic" the Senate will act on the measure this session.

"It all depends on how quickly we can bring the bill out of committee," Wiley said in an interview. "If delays are encountered — which I hope will not be—then we will have no alternative but to schedule it for early action in the session beginning next January."

Wiley said he knew "no reason" why the measure, providing for the imposition of tolls to make the $300,000,000 international development self-liquidating, should require extended sub-committee hearings.

"After all," he said, "the seaway is a familiar storm in Congress. Practically every phase of it has been explored in previous hearings. I shall make every effort to confine the testimony to the new tolls proposal."

Wiley said he did not know at this time what witnesses would be invited to appear for and against the project. He said his assistants were now at work on the matter and that "something definite" would be forthcoming shortly.

As to his length of the hearings, Wiley said it was his view that "six or seven days" should be sufficient to hear both sides.

Believe de Valera Would Like More Co-operation

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, May 21 (CP)—Ask the butcher, the baker or the candlestick maker to name the barrier to goodwill between Eire and the United Kingdom and he says emphatically: "Partition!"

And it, he adds, and the two countries will draw ever closer together.

So far the tendency has been the reverse. From being a part of the United Kingdom, Southern Ireland in 1922 became a "Free State" with the constitutional status as Canada and in 1937 a "sovereign independent democratic state" recognizing the the crown only as an instrument to facilitate international relations.

No Allegiance

Prime Minister de Valera has described Eire as "an independent republic" and said "no citizen of ours owes any allegiance whatsoever to Britain or to the British crown."

But de Valera sends delegates to British Commonwealth meetings when, Eire is invited and there seems little prospect he will take action to break the Commonwealth relations.

Because of economic and security considerations, there is reason to believe he would like to see greater co-operation. Eire needs to sell more and to buy more from the United Kingdom to improve living standards. The British Isles obviously can best be defended as a geographical unit.

Little Animosity

But while partition remains, political considerations would make this an extremely slow process. There is little outright animosity toward the United Kingdom and the people of Eire have a quite evident appreciation of the British war effort, recognizing that it maintained the integrity of neutral Eire's frontiers.

It is just as evident, however, that Eire wants no "entanglements" with the United Kingdom while the British Government (Irishmen say) refuses to recognize the majority demand for a United Ireland ruled by an all-Ireland parliament at Dublin.

Eireann politicians contend that abolition of partition would bring an amount of public goodwill for Britain never attained in the past.

When arrested with two companions, Lukas had spent all but $3,500 of the money in 29 days of high living in Milwaukee and Chicago. They were headed for Florida when picked up. The companions were identified as Rudy Forslund, of Alpha, Mich., and Nick Poulos, of Milwaukee.

13,000 Miners Almost Certain To Return to Pits

Glace Bay, N.S., May 21 (CP) —Return to work of 13,000 Maritime miners next week appeared almost certain today following quick and unanimous endorsement yesterday of the proposed settlement for the strike by Phalen Local, largest in United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) district 26 and hooked upon as its policy-setting unit.

The agreement calls for an immediate $1-a-day wage increase to Dec. 1 and another 40 cents a day after that date if production has been raised to company-set levels.

Besides Phalen Local, which has some 1,400 members, No. 16 and Caledonia Locals also approved the settlement plan drawn up by U.M.W. and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation heads at Montreal Friday. The agreement already has been endorsed by the full district board of the union.

The referendum on the agreement is scheduled to go before the full membership of the union Friday. Acceptance by the Phalen Local was regarded as pointing to general endorsement by the remaining 11,500 miners in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Edmonton Citizens Among Most Air-minded People in World

By ENID NEMY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The strategic location of Edmonton for both war and peacetime flying has made it first among the most air-minded in the world.

The Alberta capital has been called the "crossroads of the world" and it does not bear its name lightly. Wartime lend-lease shipments through Edmonton to Alaska, Siberia and Russia have given way to routine flights to the Orient but the 750-acre municipal airport is still one of the busiest in the Dominion.

The airport, a 2 1-2 mile, six-minute jaunt from the centre of the city, was granted a commercial licence in 1928, the first in Canada. It has been expanded and improved constantly since then until now its runways and building are valued at between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000.

Nine companies together with the R.C.A.F. and the United States Army Air Corps have headquarters or offices here and the field has been used by as many as 82,000 aircraft in one year and 865 in a single day.

The aviation industry, in some cases, is the only link between small but vital northern outposts and civilization. Prospectors, trappers, fishermen, business executives and government officials make regular flights between Edmonton and Yellowknife, Whitehorse or Edcorbo as casually as a Toronto man would fly to Montreal.

Nine miles from Edmonton is Namao airport,one of the largest on the continent, built during the war but not now in use. A seaplane base is also maintained at Cooking Lake, 20 miles east of the city, for use of northern flotation aircraft.

PILOT REPORTED SAFE

New York, May 20 — (AP) — Operations officers at Mitchell Field said the pilot of a P-47 forced to parachute from his flaming plane over the Lighbound Long Island south shore last night telephoned the field today he had landed safely. No other details were known.

Hope he was alive waned earlier following an unsuccessful all-night search by five Coast Guard boats among the offshore islands in the south shore.

DIG UP AND STEAL SOD

Sali Lake City, May 21—(AP) 'sod from an area 15 by 15 feet. Swift reported the theft of lawn —Fairmont Park caretaker Eddie Evidence indicated, he said, that someone backed a truck to the area, dug up the sod and hauled it away.

"I guess," commented city parks commissioner Fred Tedesco, "we'll have to put extra guards on the city swimming pools to keep 'em from stealing the water."

"The Road Back" is a long, hard path for the children of Greece. Their country has been devastated. Today there are 2,000,000 undernourished children, 375,000 homeless orphans. The Canadian Relief to Greece Appeal is being made to help send medical supplies and hospital equipment to these children.

War and Shortages Deplete Canada's Fire Equipment

Vancouver, May 20. (CP)—War and depression shortages have so crimped Canada's fire-fighting equipment that "half the apparatus now in use is beyond the age of reliability," Dominion Fire Commissioners in convention here were told yesterday.

W. J. Scott, Ontario Fire Commissioner, old Fire Marshals attending their 26th annual convention that two-years' backing of orders for new equipment had piled up across Canada since the end of the Second World War.

Mr. Scott criticized the concern of hotel managers over bill-skippers, unauthorized room visitors and a dislike of publicity for contributing to high fire death tolls.

Canada Fire Commissioner W. L. Clairmont of Ottawa, reported that fire claimed an all-time record in loss of life and property last year.

He said at least 80 per cent of the $49,000,000 fire loss last year could have been prevented only in British Columbia did the per capital loss from fire decline from

Greece to Pledge Full Co-operation In Balkan Vigil

Lake Success, May 21 — (AP) —Greece was ready today to pledge her full co-operation to a United Nations Balkans border commission keeping a vigil over the troubled Balkans. Two neighbors, Albania and Bulgaria, prepared to dispute the authority of the investigators.

All three countries were on the speakers list as the security council was called to act on a Russian resolution which would curtail sharply the powers of the subsidiary group.

Another Balkan state, Yugoslavia, assailed the validity of the commission last week.

The United States and British planned to oppose the Soviet move, which would limit the investigators to specific council-drafted assignments.

The interim commission was ordered into the border area to stand watch until the regular commission, now drafting findings in Geneva on Greek frontier incidents, could get its report to the council for action.

Indications were that the full report would be delivered here the second week in June. It was expected to show a wide split between Russia, which blames the Greek government for the trouble, and the western powers, which support some of the Greek allegations that guerrilla activities are being sponsored from outside.

Deny Report Leaders To be Invited to Conference in London

London, May 21 — (Reuters) — Official quarters denied a report published in several London papers Tuesday suggesting the government is considering inviting the Indian leaders to come here for a conference, which would take the place of that scheduled for New Delhi.

It has been assumed that the main purpose of the present talks here was to enable the Viekroy, Viscount Mountbatten, and cabinet members to clear their minds on the Indian political issues and to take certain decisions before the Viceroy's meeting with Indian leaders at New Delhi June 2.

Desecration of Hallowed Spots Being Closely Watched in Britain

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, May 21 (CP)—There was a time when London's landmarks were sacrificed ruthlessly to the march of progress. Roman remains disappeared to make way for railroads and jacobean buildings were smashed to provide office space. Today such incidents are rare.

Throughout the land keen eyes are on the watch for desecration of hallowed spots. Sometimes the watchers are caught napping but it's not often, and when they bring themselves into the fray it's with a vigor that must terrify straightforward architects and planners.

Detract From View

One of the finest examples of defensive action is being fought now against a project to enlarge the existing Barkside Power Station on the south side of the Thames. No historic landmark is threatened with destruction, but critics say the bulk and towering chimneys of the new building will detract from the view of St. Paul's Cathedral, which is on the other side of the river, half a mile away.

"If the proposal to erect a power station on Barkside is pressed with, the historic Dominions of St. Paul's Cathedral over London and the river would be lost, together with the opportunity of developing the site for domestic and commercial buildings in accordance with the county of London plan and of treating the north and south banks harmoniously at this important point," said Dean W. R. Matthews of St. Paul's in a letter to the Times.

Defends Action

A detailed defence of the project was made by E. J. Randall, managing director of the City of London Electric Lighting Company, Ltd., who said that four other stations in the London area already had to be built or enlarged to meet "the acute shortage of generating plant."

"The new station will be widely separated from St. Paul's by the river and intervening buildings. The cathedral is built on land which is 40 feet higher than the Bankside site.

"The height of the nave of the cathedral is approximately 120 feet, so that a roof level of St. Paul's apart from the dome, will be 70 feet above the power station buildings.

Better View

"The maximum height of the (station) chimney will be 300 feet, which will be about 105 feet below the top of the dome, and the chimney may possibly be lower still. How then could the power station, nearly half a mile away, dwarf or affect the dominance of the cathedral?

"The buildings will be set back 200 feet from the river frontage, and this will enable a wide roadway, a promenade and gardens to be constructed. From such a river frontage people will enjoy a view of the cathedral which has not been obtainable for perhaps 200 years."

Marshal Zhukov Sent to Prison?

London, May 21 (AP)— Two British news services distributed last night an unsubstantiated report that Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, commander of the Russian forces in occupied Germany, had been sent to prison for 15 years on a charge of plotting against a Soviet Union.

The report was attributed by the news services to the American licenced German radio station in Munich, which subsequently denied that it had made any such broadcast. Directors of the Frankfurt station produced a script and witnesses indicating that the report resulted from confusion concerning a broadcast about sentencing of a Bulgarian General.

Trump Jack was led from west. After three rounds of hearts took away opponent trumps, south cashed his two top diamonds. West showed out right there and it looked as if two losers were in that suit.

Seeing only one entry to dummy, the contract seems lost. And most players would have called it tough luck and let it go at that. Not so with senior masters. They do not give up so easily.

He studied a moment and came up with a clever thought. West was out of red cards. So, south won spade ace and then led a spade deuce. When west did not go with the jack, dummy chanced playing the ace.

When this finesse worked, the contract was made. West owned the club ace. Club king was led from dummy and south chucked spade king on it. West took with club ace and had to return a black card.

Now it made no difference whether west led back a club or a spade. Either is taken with a dummy queen and both black queens in north are cashed. On these south throws both small diamonds.

Clever as was this play, it seems not unusual for masters. In this duplicate championship a famous expert pulled the same stunt. Rolled down it is made up of simple components.

Playing spade ten instead of queen at first trick, Schenkein threw spade king on club king is unblocking. Schenkein went on and cards is stripping. Exiting to west for a deadwood return lead is an endplay. The last two make up the strip-and-endplay.

Each is a simple basic. Combined they look like something from the clouds. Come down out of there.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

If you like Mickey Rooney and are a follower of the Judge Hardy Family adventures, you are in for a treat in the current "Love Laughs at Andy Hardy." In it is one of the funny sequences we have seen in many a moon.

The story, which is the usual fluffy comedy of life in "a typical American family," gets Rooney involved with the tallest and most beautiful female imaginable. She is Dorothy Ford, six-feet, four-inches tall, and every well—proportioned acre of her is balm to the eyes.

Ultimately the minute Rooney, who has to shade his eyes to look at the top of a hydrant, attends a dance with Miss Ford and they do a jitterbug routine that will roll you in the aisles.

The Hucksters Sequel

Frederick Wakeman, author of "The Hucksters," has been at it again and his latest manuscript has been purchased by Rinehart and Company for publication next autumn. Universal-International have bought screen rights to the story which will be called "Saxon Charm." It is a tale with a New York background and is about theatrical people, which could mean anything. Wakeman also wrote "Shore Leave" which received wide acclaim for its earthiness.

Follows the Trends

Movie companies are probably the greatest "trend followers" in the world. Their products run in cycles, it seems, and here's a prophesy of a new one: Watch the flood of quickies that will concern the affairs of juveniles, following on present interest in the rising crime wave among the young.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 21 — (CP) — Along Broadway legendary stories revolving around the crusty things betting folk sometimes do often are told with enjoyed exaggeration in wagering circles . . . Up-to-date tales that still ring true seem almost as fantastic . . . recently a talent scout, lamenting that Broadway was losing its old allure for beautiful women from small towns, told how he 'lost' his latest betting on a prize fight . . . Last summer the beauty scout went to the Johnny Greco - Tony Janiro fight in Madison Square Garden to bet $500 on Greco . . . "It's that bet," another betting man said, "if you win I'll give you $1,000. But if you lose I want that beak of yours pared down and I'll pay for it."

The manslaughter of beautiful girls agreed. Greco dropped a decision to Janiro . . . The next morning two husky individuals called at the loser's apartment. "We've come to take you to the doctor for that operation," they said. "Those are instructions to get your nose cut down" . . . The scout played the bet was a gag but the burly callers firmly insisted he be a hospital to pay off.

Now the talent man has a 'pug' replacement for his once-aquiline profile.

$10 Well Spent

For Jim Nichols, one-armed golfer, a $10 bill will be found on a Fort Worth (Tex.) fairway in 1929 still a big dividend . . . Jim finished second Monday in the Massachusetts shoot-off for the P. G. A. championships in Detroit starting June 18 . . . Nichols posted a 36-hole total of 151 to win a place among his second's five leading golfers. Archie Kyle of the P. G. A. tournament . . . Nichols, who lost his right arm at the elbow in a railroad accident in 1929, says he found the $10 bill while watching two friends play golf . . . they suggested he buy a few clubs with the money since there were no claimers. He did and had a hard time breaking a 100.

His fortune came when one day he picked up a regular right-handed mid-iron. He had been using left-handed clubs. By experimenting with the right-handed clubs he discovered he could use them from an orthodox stance. From then on his game improved . . . Nichols has played in several major interscetional tournaments with a good measure of success.

CARPET MAKING OF 1600's

Manufacture of carpets was introduced from Persia into France about the beginning of the 17 century.

ATLANTIC DIP

Summery temperatures brought bathers to Coney Island, N.Y., including Mrs. Connie Clark, of Denver, Colo., and her 20-months-old daughter, Chrystal. It was Mrs. Clark's first sight of the ocean and she liked it so well that she went in for a swim. Chrystal evidently doesn't share her mother's feeling for the water.

Sports Shorts from Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May. 21. (CP)— A mile-long queue of fans, some of whom waited 24 hours in pouring rain, bought the Scottish Football Association's quota of 41,000 tickets for the May 10 match between Britain and the rest of Europe in less than four hours.

The lineup stretched around seven adjoining streets from the Glasgow office of the F.A.

A new idea in photo-finish cameras was introduced at the Epsom Spring meeting. It was the flashing beacon, a device invented by an English electrical firm, which flashed every 1-15th of a second after the winner passed the post.

The flash was automatically photographed together with any horses which happened to pass the winning barrier at that time. It was inconspicuous and did not interfere with the spectators' view of the races.

An 18-year-old Lancashire mine-worker sat down to a dinner with a distinguished gathering and gave his ideas on the future of British sport. He had been selected as a typical representative of British youth to attend the banquet which inaugurated the national sports development fund of the central council of physical recreation.

Mineworker Sidney Burrows said he knew dozens of boys who played football or cricket or were keen on athletics but stopped playing any form of sport because they couldn't find a decent club to join. "Clubs can't start without good leaders and coaches," he said .

Sydney Wooderson, Britain's great miler who officially "retired" last season from competitive track athletics, is still breaking records.

In a recent London-to-Brighton relay race, the Londoner negotiated the 53 miles in 7 minutes, 19 seconds—one second better than the record set by James Parker in 1926. Wooderson's team, Blackheath Terriers, finished second.

Interest in the April 30 Amateur Boxing Association championships at Wembley Stadium reached an all-time high. The "house full" sign was posted nearly a month before the event —the first time this has happened since these championships started at St. James' Hall, London, in 1881. The fights were televisioned.

Stories kept cropping up to chase the old hoodoo that Scotsmen are a wee bit tight-fistich. Here's the latest:

A busload of football fans, decked out in tam o'shanters and plaid scarves, tossed sixpences (10 cents) and half-crowns (50 cents) to London children on their way to the East End for celebrations after the International Scotland-England game which ended in a 1-1 draw.

Purist Fly-Casters Shocked by Heretic

Toronto, May. 21. (CP)—Fly-casters who scorn any less comely form of fishing for trout and bass are gently put in their places by Ray Bergman, one of the connoisseurs Park's best-known fishermen, in his latest book "With Fly, Plug and Bait". (McClelland and Stewart).

Bergman shocks the purists by devoting the opening chapter of his 640-page volume to worm-fishing for trout—though not in exactly bare-foot-boy fashion.

The book has a comprehensive section on fly-fishing but treats in detail of minnows and other live bait as a lure for trout and large-and small-mouth bass. His chapter on how to strike a fish heretically questions the dogma that a bass always pauses to turn a minnow around. And it includes such odds-and-ends as how to rake earthworms and how to thread them properly on a hook.

Bergman's book—aside from its friendly experiences on fresh-water fishing—is of particular interest to Canadians. He devotes lengthy passages to the experiences fishing for bass in Lake Erie off Port Rowan and on the St. Lawrence off Kingston and for native trout in the fabulous lakes of Quebec's Laurentides Park.

Bergman, as freshwater fishing expert for the Outdoor Life, has cast his flies in every part of America. But he says Laurentides Park—because of its location and the management which "conserves the resources of its outstanding brook trout fishing"—is North America's finest.

He also pays special tribute to the art of left-handed Philippe Gagnon, Quebec's famous "mite," intendent of parks: "Incidentally, Mr. Gagnon is an analyst of rare ability and probably knows more about this northern brook trout than anyone than most of us."

Something new in Bergman's chapter on "spinning", which at thread-line fishing with a fixed spool rear which looks like a coffee-grinder and really cannot backlash. Bergman unreservedly new technique is gradually growing in popularity.

47 Valuable Fighting Cocks Being Sought

Montreal, May 21 (CP)— A Sherlock Holmes appeared needed today to solve the "disappearance" of 47 valuable fighting cocks, some reported as much as $100 apiece, which police took into custody some weeks ago in a raid on a barn at suburban Pointe-aux-Trembles.

The cocks were turned over to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for safekeeping while police and the crown prosecutor's office prepared for the case. That done, the birds were scheduled to be sold back to the municipality.

William J. Bailey, manager of the S.P.C.A. is reported to have gone to Pointe-Aux-Trembles and to have verified that the birds delivered to the municipality were not the same ones originally left in the society's care. Not only that but there were only 42 of the "new" birds, described as a "poor" lot.

The report caused quite a controversy at a meeting last night of the Pointe-Aux-Trembles council with members finally deciding to accept an offer of $500 and "travelling expenses"—from the S. P. C. A. quarters to the municipality—for the 42 birds.

Mayor Marcelle Monette said the offer had been made by police Inspector Georges Beauvais, who was not described further. The councillors seemed to feel that if Mr. Beauvais was ready to pay that amount for all domestic roosters it was his own business.

SATISFIED URGE

Jackson, Miss., May 21.—(AP) Miss Lucy Cate operator complained to police today that a waitress off duty watches "were constantly picked up a chocolate pie and a glass of milk."

"This is what I've wanted to do for six months," the complainant quoted the waitress' rooming house but the landlady reported she had gone to Texas.

Surprising Giants Lead N.L. After Phenomenal Hartung Hurls Second Straight Victory

Team Getting Great Hitting From Johnny Mize and Walker Cooper

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The startling renascence of New York Giants is matched only by the almost incredible performance of their talented rookie, Clint Hartung.

Last-place finishers in 1946, the Giants today lead the National League and have won seven out of their last eight games.

The hard hitting of Johnny Mize and Walker Cooper have figured prominently but the talk around the Giants is all Hartung.

Hartung began the season as an outfielder but because of his inept fielding manager Mel Ott sent him to work out with the pitchers.

Hartung had won 25 games without a setback while pitching for an army team, but all he had was a fast ball. Now he has developed a "wrinkle" and this, coupled with his blinding speed, has enabled him to chalk up two straight victories.

Last night his brilliant exhibition propelled the Giants into first place by six percentage points over Chicago Cubs.

Hartung turned back Cincinnati Reds 9-1 in a night game, scattering eight hits. In addition, he rapped out a triple and a single.

Walker Cooper, who batted in four runs and Johnny Mize, who slammed out four hits in five trips, led the Giant barrage.

Cubs Squeeze Out Win

The Cubs squeezed out a 3-2 10-inning decision over Philadelphia Phillies at Chicago with pinch-hitter Lonnie Frey breaking up the game with a base-loaded single. Harry Walker of the Phils had a perfect four for four to increase his league-leading batting average to .400.

Hank Greenberg knocked Boston Braves out of a second-place deadlock with the Cubs by singling home a run in the 10th inning last night that enabled Pittsburgh Pirates to grab a 4-3 victory.

Boston Red Sox tightened the American League's flag chase by trouncing the leading Detroit Tigers 8-3 to pull to within one game of the Tigers.

Veteran Joe Dobson spaced ten hits in gaining his fourth win of the year. Ted Williams accounted for Boston's eighth run by slamming his 10th homer of the year in the fourth. The blow enabled Williams to tie Mize for the majors' home run leadership.

Cleveland Indians pulled within two games of the Tigers by downing the Yankees 4-2 in New York to sweep their three-game series from the Yanks. Ed Klieman doubled in what proved to be the winning run in the 8th inning.

Al Philadelphia Bob Muncrief turned in St. Louis Brown's first win of the year over a Philadelphia Athletics as the Browns supported his four-hit pitching with an 11-1 decision.

Chicago White Sox got revenge for Monday's easy hailing distance of the lead by turning back Washington Senators 7-4.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Ted Williams, Red Sox — Hit his 10th homer of the year, beat out a hit and scored twice.

Mickey Vernon, Senators — Singled once in four official trips to the plate and batted in and scored one run as Washington lost 7-4 night game to Chicago.

Hank Greenberg, Pirates — Singled home winning run in Pittsburgh's 4-3 10-inning victory over Boston.

BATTING AND PITCHING STARS

Batting, Walker Cooper, Giants, Batted home four runs on single and double to spark Giants to 9-1 night game victory over Cincinnati and first place in National League.

Pitching, Clint Hartung, Giants, Rookie sensation gained second win of season by downing Cincinnati, 9-1 on eight hits. Also collected single and triple and drove in one run.

PITCHING STAFF OF ROYALS NOT MEASURING UP

Toronto Leafs Defeated by Bisons and Move Into Cellar Position

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals are beginning to live up to pre-season predictions that almost unanimously tabbed them as favorites to win their second consecutive International League flag. Manager Clay Hopper's crew is slowly finding itself and currently occupies second place in the standings, two games back of Jersey City Giants.

The Royals, who hit only three bombers in their first 13 games, have cracked out nine in their last 10 encounters but the pitching staff, with the exception of rookie Erv Palica and veteran Al Gerheauser, hasn't measured up.

Palica and Gerheauser, the only two who have won more than one complete game, have turned in four.

Last night Gerheauser pitched the Royals to their third straight victory by turning back Rochester Red Wings, 6-2. The star left-hander limited the Wings to eight hits but the Royals waited until the eighth inning to score the game when they pushed three markers across.

Another veteran lefthander, Jim Prendergast, of Syracuse, cut the Leafs to the cellar. Men worked for their living in those days. So did Jim Prendergast. But they were God-fearing folk, accustomed to food that was not dressed in the kitchen, to be short of calories. In fact Jim was built to provide the Bears with a, 6-3 triumph over Baltimore Orioles.

Buffalo Bisons outslugged the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs 10-7 by scoring four runs in the eighth inning. Fourteen hits off three pitchers of the Bisons slapped a four-master with the bases loaded to shut the Bisons out in front but the Leafs came back and forged ahead, 7-6, only to blow up in the eighth.

Former Player Elected Chairman Selection Com.

(By The Canadian Press)

Bob Murray of Montreal has been elected chairman of the Selection Committee for Canada's team for the Olympic team, the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association has announced. Murray is a former Davis Cup player himself and was ranked among the Dominion's top ten players in 1933-34-37-38. He was Canada's No. 1 ranking player in 1937. The Canadian Davis Cup team for the 1948 matches against Australia here in August, will be chosen, on the basis of tournament play during the season.

Scotty Rankine of Preston and Ab Morton of Galt, two of the country's best runners, will compete in an invitation road race at Kitchener May 24. Both are entered in the two and five-mile events.

They could easily call Jack Gray of Western Tech, Toronto, the "Iron Man". He is entered in ten track and field events at a secondary school meet to be held soon. Jack is the first athlete in the school association's annals to be entered in so many events.

John Howard Stewart, 64, one of the Ottawa District's leading curlers and a former member of the capital's lacrosse team, died in hospital at Ottawa yesterday. A retired civil servant, he was a native of the Capitol.

Toronto's Negro Boxing sensation, lightweight Lil Arthur King, meets Montreal's Dave Castillous at Maple Leaf Gardens Toronto, June 2, and although there is no title at stake—neither contestant claims a title crown —a packed house of 15,000 fans are expected to pay $25,000 to witness the event.

Barefoot Poet, they call him, and he really lives up to the title. The 22-year-old American Navy Veteran from Rochester, N.Y., who stars down there as a barefooted performer in football, basketball, softball and baseball, is coming to Toronto, June 14, to compete—minus shoes—in the 26-mile Canadian Marathon championship.

Fred Orpen, representing the Orpen tracks at Long Branch and Dufferin Park, both in the Toronto district, last night advised the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association that the Orpen interests would pay their requested purse of $1,250 minimum at Dufferin, but not at Long Branch. The horsemen originally demanded purses of $1,500 minimum and the track owners offered $1,200. The $1,-250 figure was a compromise offer and was accepted for the current meeting at Woodbine Park, Toronto.

CHIPS
OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK
By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

(News Item:—Major Merritt Price of Actinolite died here today.)

(The Rev. Andrew McLauchlin now succeeds him in the editorial staff of the United Church Observer, who knew the late Major well, is the source of the following paragraphs. Mr. McLauchlin senior by the way not to be confused with his son of the same name, is slowly dwindling from a recent illness in his home in Trinity. But being a newspaper man, Mr. McLauchlin kindly passed on the information to the sports department.)

It happened way back in 1911. And 350 miles north of New Liskeard, Ont., where Eskimos mingled with the white man, and where the midnight sun pole lie rising, is the small community of Thornloe.

Radio was unheard of. Roads were tracks through the woods. The gals wore ankle length dresses and the men wore flowing moustaches. There was no movies then. Baby bonuses were not even a dream of the future. It was a life in the raw. Men worked for their living in those days. So did Jim Prendergast. But they were God-fearing folk, accustomed to food that was not dressed in the kitchen, to be short of calories. In fact Jim was built to provide the Bears with a, 6-3 triumph over Baltimore Orioles.

Fourteen hits off three pitchers of the Bisons slapped a four-master with the bases loaded to shut the Bisons out in front but the Leafs came back and forged ahead, 7-6, only to blow up in the eighth.

Major Price then a theolog. had ridden his flaming motor-propelled bicycle to the then northern terminus of Ontario. How he had done it was the mystery. But he was now situated. There were no roads. Broken trails furnished the entree and exit to these northern outposts of Ontario. But the youngster was all fired up by transportation problems. It was simple.

That day, as he stood dusty and tired beside his motorcycle, he realized that his was the first power-propelled bike to go into the northern parts of the province. He did not receive the accolade of a celebrity. He did not stand on the steps of a city hall and receive the verbal flowers and whatnots that are the inevitable rewards of those who do something out of the ordinary — and are the first to do it. He was a "first" man who took a chance — and made good.

For the answer to his surprising appearance in that far north community aboard a motorbike is that he disdained the paths of riding righteousness, and took to the railway tracks.

It sounds incredible. But the fact remains that the late Major Merritt Price, in the days of which we write, drove his powered bike over the ties of the railway until he reached his objective. And to quote Robert Service, "The faster I rode, the easier it was to ride." And methinks you, was in that wild Ontario wilderness of those days, between New Liskeard and Englehart.

He rode back. And according to Mr. McLauchin,' some time later Major Price was seriously hurt in an accident while riding in racers in Toronto. In fact he had his entire scalp torn off. Hearing about the affair, Mr. McLauchlin, then stationed at Larder Lake, took time off from administering to his flock and went to the Grace Hospital, Toronto, to see his young friend. He eventually recovered, but it is not known as to whether he rode a motorbike again.

And back to that railroad tie trip of Major Price. On the return journey he was warned that a bridge had gone out. But undaunted he made his way at top speed over the ties to his destination in the "banana belt."

Toronto and Montreal sports fans, having retrieved the hockey gauntlets which lay in the arena all winter are all set to toss the symbolic mitts again with the signing of the Canadian crack lightweight Dave Castillous pride of Les Canyons, and "Lil" Arthur King, dusky idol of the Queen City fandom. The joust takes place in Maple Leaf Gardens on Monday June 2nd. and already both camps are in an hostile glances in the direction of the other camp.

King made sports headlines a short time ago when he decisively defeated Johnny Risko, Toronto slugger. He is now said to be a full-fledged lightweight tipping the scales at 134 1-2 pounds. Castillous gets a guarantee of $3,000 or 25 per cent of the gate.

And now you soccer fans. Tonight there is a meeting in the YMCA and an important one at that. All soccer players and enthusiasts are requested to turn out. There is important business and good news for you. Be there. The "Y" at 7:30.

And tonight the Belleville Commercial Softball League gets under way at the Alexandra field with a double header. The Belleville Bankers lands in with Whalen's Dairy in the curtain raiser while in the second game Belleville Foundries meet Elliott's Service Station. First game starts at 6:30.

From Callander, Ont., Phil (The Voice) Lawson, postcards us that he and the Whipper Billy Watson are living the life of fishing Reillys for a week and getting their quota of six pickerel each and every morning. Regina, May 21 — (CP)—Just how short a spell there is between hockey seasons was deftly demonstrated when Bill Tobin stepped here recently long enough to arrange to have a sheet of ice ready by Sept. 15 when his Chicago Black Hawks will start training—or will they have enough time to get out of training?

Tobin tarried long enough over a session of gin rummy with Dave (Leader-Post) Dryburgh to tell him that the contract of Metro (Marvellous) Prystal, Moose Jaw Canuck 19-year-old, was not for "sale, trade or loan."

Emile (The Cat) Francis would start as No. 1 goalie for Hawks next fall after a session of hudcles with Tiny Thompson to smooth out the rough edges.

The Hawk owner, once a second string goaltender, has made no decision on who would be coaching but he would like to move Johnny Gottselig into the front office.

Dryburgh dropped hockey for a moment to make the blunt statement that rasslin will be one of the first sports hit when the current "golden era passes."

He contrasted the eastern attitude where race horse men were still wrangling over purse money, with the western situation. The prairie racers had calmed after a mild-winter outburst and would draw only a shade more in purses.

The fact that about 500 horses would line up in Calgary this week probably indicated that horsement were "out to get all they can while the getting is good."

LIMIT FIELD LIKELY TO GO IN KING'S PLATE

Possibility Seventeen Horses May Face Starter at Woodbine Saturday

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 21 — (CP) — A limit field — as many as the track can accommodate—today appeared a distinct possibility for the 58th renewal Saturday of the King's Plate, the oldest continuously-run horse race in North America.

It won't be until Friday afternoon's entries that the definite starting field can be lined up but 23 hopefuls contested the two divisions of the plate trial last Saturday, and of these at least 10 are certain to start. Additional possibles may bring the field to 14, 15 or 16.

In a pinch, the old Woodbine Park race-track-in Toronto's east end might accommodate as many as 17 starters.

With three more days to go before the starter's bugle sounds for the classic for Canadian-bred three-year-olds, anxious attention was being given to weather probabilities. Since the opening of the Canadian racing season at Woodbine last Saturday chilli winds and frequent showers have kept the crowds huddled in warm clothing.

Of the King's Plate field, racegoers already have decided that C. George McCullagh's colt Tularch is the horse to beat. Tularch is a son of Archworth, whose King's Plate victory in 1939 saw His Majesty personally presenting the 50 guineas to Mr. McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Tularch won one division of last Saturday's Plate trial in 1.13 3/5 for the six furlongs, while the other division was captured by Leonforte, owned by the Braeside stable operated by Jim Coleman, sports columnist on Mr. McCullagh's newspaper. Leonforte needed 1.14 3/5 and was driving at the finish whereas Tularch won easily.

The Don Earl stable's highly-regarded Watch Wreck, forced to miss the Plate trial because of a hoof crack, appeared today to be a likely starter in the guineas. The colt worked out yesterday and today.

Besides Tularch and Leonforte, the virtually-certain starters include Mulligan, Tregaron, Kanlee, Snoop Comet, Victory Chimes, Burboy and Dirigo, plus Watch Wreck. The remainder of the field probably won't be established before Friday.

GIRL'S BASEBALL LEAGUE WILL HAVE 6 TEAMS

Salaries Range From $40 to $106 Weekly With 96 Game Schedule

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, May 21 (AP)— If you think baseball is a man's game then you haven't seen the curves in the National Girl's Baseball League.

More than 100 lassies from 21 states and Canada begin playing Professional Baseball in Chicago tonight at salaries ranging from $40 to $100 weekly.

Six teams of the league will play a 96-game night schedule before winding up the season on Labor Day. Total attendance is expected to top 500,000.

Money has been pumped into the four playing fields spotted throughout the city in lively competition to outdo each other in attractiveness, comfort and conveniences, and new television has picked up the trail and will shoot many of the games.

Foremost in the "dream parade" is the Parichy Stadium, home of the bloomer girls. The other five clubs are called the Rinehards, Cardinals, Chicks, Queens and Muscle Maids. Emery Parichy, a roofing and paint magnate, has unfolded $50,000 in the last three years enlarging and grooming his park.

His girls' dressing room — a somewhat gaudy red and white affair replete with individual shower rooms, clothes closets shoe racks and a theatrical mirrored dressing table—set him back $7,000 this season.

Club owners like to theorize that their professional league has opened new careers for the girls at better money. Of the more than 100 who are now under contract, at least 80 are from outside Chicago. About 35 of them augment their baseball salary as stenographers, typists, parlor operators and factory assembly line jobbers.

CHAPTER 21

There was no sense in letting his nerves get the better of him he reasoned. If he let go he would be of no use to April whatsoever. The only way in which he could help her was to work hard and save money and take over all the financial responsibility possible.

At least she would never need worry about money. If he could make a success of the Kent Hillyer School of Golf. He'd find a way to make her accept his help after she got out of the hospital, no matter how strenuously she objected.

Hill was bent over the remodeling plans, trying hard to concentrate and get his mind off April and her helplessness when the door bell rang. He swore mildly. There was only one thing to do. Refuse to answer it.

But when the bell rang long and continuously, as though the caller meant to ring all night if necessary, Hill got up to answer it. It was Drusilla. She was the last person he had expected to see, as she had never been to his apartment.

"Hello, darling," she smiled sweetly. "I hope you weren't asleep."

In the frame of mind he was in Drusilla was the last person in the world Hill wanted to see. He could not have hid his annoyance if he had tried.

"Well, Dru," he said grimly, "this is a surprise. Why didn't you telephone before you come bursting into a man's apartment at eleven o'clock at night?"

A flicker of anger lit her heavily beaded eyes. But she smiled and said in what she fancied was her most lurid contralto.

"Darling," don't be an old bear. Aren't you going to ask me in? W can't talk here on the doorstep."

Hill stepped aside:

"Well, come in," he said rudely. "Now that you're here."

Dru entered, dropping her mink wrap over the back of a chair and taking off her little flowered hat. Then she held out her arms:

"Aren't you going to kiss me, sweet?"

Reluctantly Hill went through the motions of kissing Dru. Dru laughed lightly, but not very convincingly.

"My that was a fine exhibition of passion! I believe I did wake you, darling."

She settled herself on the divan and lit a cigarette. Hill went back to his chair at the desk.

"I've been working," he said shortly. "I've a lot to do tonight before I can go to sleep."

"Working!" Dru raised her brows. "Tell me about it."

Hill shrugged. "There isn't much to tell. I'm just beginning to do what I should have started years ago, before I threw all my money away and lost my wife and child."

Dru moved to the edge of the divan, clutching her cigarette. "Was that what he wanted more than she had ever feared anything in her life comes!" Was she to lose Hill because of what had happened to April? It was the first time he had ever shown any regret over his divorce. Dru struggled for composure.

"What do you mean—a job?" you should have started years ago?" she asked.

"I'm going to work," Hill said simply. "To support April and Kenny. I'm organizing a golf school that will open on the Sillier estate at Great Neck. That's why I've been so busy lately."

"At least,' Dru struggled to smile, 'you haven't been neglecting me for anything serious. Not that you'd only been working."

"I'm serious for the first time in my life," Hill looked at her coldly. "I'm afraid you don't understand. I said I was going to work to support my family, as I should have done years ago. It will be necessary for me to devote all my time to the school. I shall not have time for parties."

"But," Dru swallowed, "you'll have time for me. I'll understand if you don't go to parties. That doesn't matter."

Hill drawled going on. But he knew it was then or never. He had to make her understand he was through with her. He said stiffly:

"Dru are you going to make it harder for me by pretending you don't understand what I'm trying to tell you?"

She said, her scarlet lips narrowing: "Just what are you trying to tell me, Hill?"

He sighed: "If I must draw a diagram, Dru, I'm not going to have any time for you either. This farce has got to stop. You know perfectly well you tricked me into a fake engagement when I was four sheets to the wind. You announced it to the papers entirely without my knowledge. I let it ride because I thought it was a good way to publish April for divorcing me. I thought she would try to stop me from marrying you if she thought I was serious. But she fooled me. So I was left holding the bag. Well, I'm not going to be a damn fool any longer."

By that time Drusilla Bayne was white with rage. To have Kent Hillyer sit there so coolly telling her to her face he'd been using her to make his former wife jealous, was the most humiliating experience she had ever known.

Her brain worked quickly, trying to figure out the best way to handle the situation. If only she could keep a cool head, she might be able to make Hill change his mind. It couldn't be possible he did not find her desirable. The wealthiest and most famous men in the world had showered money and jewels at her little feet. There must be some way she could get him back. She wouldn't admit, even to herself that she had never possessed Kent Hillyer for one little minute.

There was strained silence as Hill sat drumming on the desk, waiting for Drusilla to answer. He said finally, shortly:

"Well, have I made myself clear, Dru?"

The Blonde Bombshell" decided to appeal to his sympathy. She covered her face with her hands and said in a small voice:

"Well, darling, I—give me a little time to pull myself together and we'll talk about it. I—I think I'm going to cry. Oh, Hill!"

Dru began to sob softly. Hill watched for a moment, impatiently then he struck a light of it:

"Pull yourself together Dru. You're not the weeping type. I must say I never expected to see you shedding tears over one man, when all you have to do is lift a little finger a regiment will come running to take his place. What's your game, Dru?"

Dru laid her head over a pillow still sobbing brokenly:

"But I don't want a regiment, Hill. I only want you. I'll never want anybody else. Oh Hill! I'll die if you don't love me! I'll die!"

Hill sighed. Then he began to doubt that. You've known all along I didn't love you, Dru. I've never told you I did. I haven't even intimated I had any affection for you. Why I haven't even made love to you. We've had fun going to theatres and parties and making the rounds but that's all there has been to it. Now don't try to sell me the idea I've misled you as to my feelings."

Dru stiffened, her rage getting the best of her. She raised her head angrily:

"You certainly did mislead me! You've made a fool of me in front of all my friends. They all think we're going to be married. You've led them all to believe it. Now I'll just die with humiliation."

Hill lit a cigarette, still keeping cool: "If they think we're going to be married it's because you told them so. God knows I never did."

"You just denied it!" Dru tossed her head, wiping her eyes furiously. "The only decent one person you denied it to!"

"That was hardly a gentleman's job under the circumstances," Hill argued. "The lady usually officially breaks an engagement. I'm perfectly willing for you to give out a story to the newspapers saying you have thrown me over. You may tell the world anything you like, Dru. It doesn't matter to me. Just get it over with, that's all!"

Dru dropped all her pretense of injured innocence. She stood up, gritting her teeth with rage.

"You—you!" Her voice rose. "You—conceited cad! You can't make a fool out of me!

"I haven't tried to," Hill was beginning to get nervous at the storm signals burst forth from the blazing angry eyes. "I've tried to be very fair about this whole thing. Now it's up to you to be reasonable from your viewpoint. You've been engaged often before to me you had no intention of marrying. Just for publicity. Why not look it in that way. Tell everybody it was only a publicity stunt."

Eire News Letter

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, May 21.—(CP)—Fianna Fail, prime minister De Valera's party, expects to remain in office after the next election but members of the government say it probably will lack an over - all majority and that a second election will be called within a year.

Life of the Dail extends to 1949 — the last election was in 1944— but opposition deputies predict De Valera may go to the country any time.

Small Majority

"De Valera will go back as leader of the biggest group in the Dail," said one prominent political man in an interview. "But he will not have an overall majority because proportional representation helps the small parties.

"The history of Irish elections is that the big party loses strength when a gap of two or three years separates elections and it gains when the votes are only a year or so apart.

"When the first election is called, Fianna Fail will lose seats. The small labor party will gain and so, probably, will Fine Gael, the principal opposition.

"But in the second election, about a year later, Fianna Fail will gain strength and should have a safe majority."

De Valera Fitness?

"The multiplicity of parties in Eire is one of Fianna Fail's main advantages — that and the personal prestige of De Valera for his work in attaining the country's independence.

"I'm afraid De Valera's party will slip in cities as long as he stays in politics," said one of his opponents.

Latest effort to form a united opposition bloc in the Dail was made by Dr. T. F. O'Higgins, Fine Gael member for Leix-Offaly, and it failed dismally. Gen. Richard Mulcahy, Fine Gael leader who sponsored a similar move just before the last election, maintained a discreet silence.

Farmers Independent

Clann Na Talmhan, Farmers' party, is the next largest group in the Dail and without it an opposition bloc would have little hope of success. Joseph Blowick, leader for Mayo South and its leader, said it would remain an independent body.

De Valera's party now holds a few more than half the Dail's 138 seats. Fine Gael has slightly less than one-quarter. Clann Na Talmhan has 10 and Labor eight. The other seats are held by various independents.

CALL FOR GENERAL ELECTION HEARD IN PARLIAMENT

Member Claims Whole Question of Dominion-Provincial Relations Should Go to People

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 22 (CP)—A call for a general election on the issue of the tangled Dominion Provincial relations was heard in the Commons yesterday from the Liberal benches.

It was sounded by Rona Arsenault (L—Bonaventure), who contended that the whole question of Dominion-Provincial relations should be "put to the people" and argued that the Federal proposals contained no threat to constitutional provincial rights.

Mr. Arsenault was replying to J. G. Hamel, (C—Maurice—LaFleche), who said the Dominion attitude left Ontario and Quebec only three courses—to sign agreements and surrender their autonomy in the field of direct taxation; to refuse an agreement and lose 24,000,000, at least so far as Quebec was concerned, or to seriously consider withdrawal from the Dominion Confederation.

Mr. Hamel also argued that the Federal proposals were not set out as a Dominion-wide social security but a straddling the Dominion to undertake more freely foreign commitments such as the last year's loan to Britain.

The discussion developed during the budget debate, in which the House heard two other speakers—Garfield Case, (PC—Grey North) and Ralph Moore (CCF—Churchill).

Mr. Case said the government has failed to meet the most major problem since the end of the war.

Mr. Case said Finance Minister Abbott's budget "merits no congratulations." He pointed to a $352,000,000 had been a legacy from units of war capital goods.

He had failed to lift income tax exemption levels. He said the minimum exemption levels. He had taken a "grasping attitude" towards the future and had "disregarded the present."

Mr. Case said the minister would have inspired Canada if he had slashed the income tax rates right across the board and unshackled the restrictions still pinning the country apart from unconvertibility.

The government had "failed to ease the present tax burden" to the end of the war. Scores of public projects had been delayed by handicapped builders and manufacturers.

Unemployables wanted private enterprise given a chance to work, Mr. Case declared.

Production of many things basic to Agriculture was being drained of its workers. Canada was losing physiologists and "scientists of leaders." Government paternalism was fostering an outlook that was a dangerous one for Canada's future. Rome had decayed when the government became "almost servile" to the common people, "hook or by crook," it has been said. Mr. Case declared that the agreement while it "overlooked" the two main provinces.

Coal Allocated to U.K. Will be No Loss to Other Consumers in Europe

London, May 22 —(Reuters)— The European Coal Organization after prolonged discussions, agreed today to allocate to Britain the first 600,000 tons that should become available from the United States in the third quarter of this year, beyond the minimum of 9,000,000 tons to be allocated to other European countries.

Of all further American coal made available beyond 9,600,000 tons, Great Britain is to receive a proportionate share with other European users.

This agreement is unanimous and will be subject to revision only in case of a total breakdown on Ruhr coal production which would be cause for a general reallocation of European quotas. Apart from this, Britain's only coal imports will be 6,000 tons under the trade agreement with Poland which has been approved.

by the E.C.O.

The formula adopted by the E.C.O. and British and American emergency claims will be partly or wholly met without any European country receiving less coal in the third quarter of 1947 than in the current second quarter. James Eaton Griffith, chairman of the E.C.O. explained today.

Griffith stressed that the British bid from the start had been framed in such a manner as not to cause any loss of coal to other European users. Britain had asked only for coal made available from the United States over and above the present rate of deliveries, up to a maximum of 1,200,000 tons per quarter or 4000,000 tons per month.

Britain had benefitted from making any bid for Ruhr coal, he added, though it was better in quality and considerably cheaper than exportable American coal.

U.S. ACTION MAY OVERCOME HUGE DOLLAR SHORTAGE

British "Austerity" Will be More Severe Unless More Dollars Are Available

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 22 (CP)—There is a growing belief in political circles here that the world shortage of dollars, an ultra-serious problem for both the United Kingdom and Canada as well as other countries, will be overcome at least partly by United States action.

The disclosure this week that half the British loan to Britain and that roughly half the Canadian credit already were drawn leaves the dollar difficulty into prominence. Newspapers have been driving home that unfavorable trade balances with sharp currency countries must be trimmed.

More exports would be one way that is impossible immediately because of the after - effects of the war. Fuel and raw materials only alternative is less imports now and is seems probably that the British austerity must grow more severe unless more dollars are available in greater quantities.

Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, yesterday said one-third of Great Britain's imports had been financed by the Canadian and American loans. When the loans run out imports will have to be cut unless they can be paid for by British exports. The $1,250,000,000 Canadian loan to Britain received royal assent in the Senate last week. The last $425,000,000 was to run over a five-year period and up to last March up to $640,000,000 had been used.

Historic Policy Set, Truman Signs Bill For 400-Million Aid

Bolsters Weak Nations, Step in Building of Peace

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Kansas City, May 22 (AP)—President Truman today signed the $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish Aid bill setting in force a historic American policy of bolstering weak countries "against outside aggressions and subversion" by the United Nations.

He termed it "an important step in the building of peace" and said it offered "proof" that the United States will make "a vigorous effort to help create conditions of security."

The measure, a far-reaching departure in international relations off the United States government, became law in a simple ceremony in a mid-western hotel with Truman's pledge it would not be used to benefit "any particular group or faction."

Replying to the objections raised against it in a recriminatory debate that it would "by-pass" the United Nations, Mr. Truman declared it would help further U.N.'s aims and added:

"Our aim is that assistance, if evidence not only that we pledge our support to the United Nations but that we act to support it."

The President originally planned to sign the bill in a White House ceremony last Monday. He cancelled this when his mother's serious illness at nearby Grandview brought him flying to her bedside.

It was final congressional approval a week ago today after two months and three days of bitter debate.

Thebill, as finally passed puts not only American Army and but American Military equipment into the campaign to stem the communist expansion short of the Mediterranean.

Turkey is to receive up to $100,000,000 of the total, exclusively to train its armed forces.

The $300,000,000 remainder is earmarked for Greece.

Bodies in Mine May be Recovered Within Few Days

Malartic, Que., May 22—(CP)—Pumping operations continued today at the East Malartic gold mine and hope was high that the bodies of 21 men trapped there over a month ago may be recovered within the next few days.

Mine manager D. D. MacLeod said last night that about 500 feet of the number four shaft still had to be emptied. The shaft was flooded to put out a fire at the 10th level where the men were working when they were trapped April 24.

"As the water is pumped out of the shaft it is possible we may find some of the bodies at stations built in the shaft, but it isn't likely they will be all together," he said. "They may be anywhere in the shaft area."

The district coroner, Dr. L. P. Bourassa and the six-man jury which will sit at the inquest when the bodies are recovered spent some time underground yesterday examining the scene of the fire. Twelve miners perished in the disaster but one body was recovered the same day.

Farm Lands in W. Ontario Inundated As Rivers Overflow After Heavy Rains

(By The Canadian Press)

Flood conditions prevailed today in several Ontario counties following heavy rainfall the last few days which swelled to overflowing streams such as the Grand River in Brant, Haldimand and county and Kettle Creek in the St. Thomas district.

Yesterday's rainfall of 1.85 inches in the Kitchener area began pest the Grand and RIN on the rampage as their overflow of water inundated low-lying sections of Waterloo county. Level at Galt was 2.5 feet above normal, near Kitchener early today and said to be five feet above normal. Farmers and livestock only recently seeded is being carried away.

At St. Thomas, Kettle Creek rose three feet, flooding low areas around the city and causing worry at the water works plants while some farm lands were inundated. Homedale—St. Thomas' new residential sub-division was transformed into a series of miniature lakes. Sandbags had to be placed around the new Timken Company plant to divert water pouring onto the property from a golf course nearby.

The Thames was moderate today which will melt yesterday's heavy snowfall in the watershed easing of the situation was seen in the Timmins area of Northern Ontario where the rivers were not affected by flood conditions feared by a heavy overflow of the Mattagami River. In the lowlands of the district sandbagging supplies to isolated farmers are being distributed today.

Near the Kapuskasing area, the swirling flood waters of the Mattagami River was reported to be delaying the biggest log drive in the history of the district as well as having forced the close of the Spruce Falls-Highway between Hearst and Kapuskasing where a bridge washed out last Sunday. Temporary traffic settlement the flood hazard should pass in 10 days if the weather becomes warm.

116 Ships With Million Tons Of Food to Arrive by July 18 For Anglo-American Zones

By EDWIN SHANKE

Berlin, May 22 — (AP)—Bremen port authorities announced today that 116 ships loaded with nearly 1,000,000 tons of food are arriving from May 1 to July 18 to alleviate the critical shortages in the American and British occupation zones.

Col. Hugh B. Hester, chief of the food and agriculture division of the American military government's staff said the 1,460,000 German school children in the United States zone would receive a ration-free meal at school daily by June 1. The 2,000,000 children in the British zone have been receiving such a meal for some time.

American officers at the Bremen port expressed irritation although no mass demonstrations by German segments of the German population and statements by some German politicians that the United States was largely to blame for the food crisis for failing to help.

"Right here in Bremen you can find Germans who will tell you America isn't sending food when actually the food ships are unloading less than a mile away," one official at Bremen stated.

Bluey on Way To Press Ball, Then to Zoo

By ERWIN FRICKE

Vancouver May 22 —(CP)— Safely past seven police-guarded arms of members of Vancouver Women's Press Club—who were rumored anxious to lure him to a "frolic" here—Bluey, Kangaroo "teleport" to the Toronto Press Club By-line Ball, today is winging his way to Toronto on the last lap of his 11,-000-mile flight from Sydney, Australia.

Six-weeks-old Bluey left here on an Eastern Airlines plane last night still tingling from the reception given him by Vancouver photographers and newsreel cameramen and hundreds of Vancouverites.

After loping about beneath the plane in apparent dismay, Bluey scuddled to the Press Club girls and even got around to shaking hands with several necks of one or two.

He had been like that on the aircraft too, said one of the crew. Not only did he make the trip "better than some passengers" he became friendly enough with one of the women to put her hat, he wasn't on a bet. Bluey eats just about anything.

A gift of the Sydney Journalists' Club, Bluey will act as representative of the Australian newspaper men at the Toronto Press Ball, June 7.

After a brief fling at-the ball, Bluey will retire from his highflying life into the seclusion of the Toronto Zoo.

Calls Bevin's Words "Sinning Against Fact"

Moscow, May 22 (AP)— The Government newspaper Izvestia declared today that British Foreign Secretary Bevin's recent speech to the House of Commons on the Moscow Foreign Ministers meeting was "a sinning against fact."

The article which took up three-quarters of a page declared that Bevin's statement did not represent a "proper presentation" of facts and declared it could in no way be called a "report on what took place in the Soviet capital.

The paper also accused Bevin of giving an improper account of conversations anent the projected revision of the British-Russian treaty of alliance.

Assessing Officers At Peterborough Pass Resolution

Peterboro, May 22 — (CP) — District No. 5 of the Association of Assessors of Ontario at a meeting here last night, requested the Department of Municipal Affairs to amend the Assessment Act so that properties owned by private owners and leased or rented to churches and other religious institutions, from which a fair revenue is derived through rentals, should be assessed for general taxation.

Harold Bateman of Belleville presided over representatives present from various municipalities in the counties of Hastings, Prince Victoria, Peterboro, Hastings and Northumberland and Durham.

Seeding Situation Reported Serious

The seeding situation throughout Ontario is reported serious according to the weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. A considerable acreage was planted during the past week, but not nearly as much as was hoped for because of the rain.

According to the report the acreage of oats and barley is most likely to be considerably reduced and will be substituted by other crops such as corn, beans, flax and buckwheat.

In Prince Edward county some sections report approximately 75 per cent of the seeding now completed, but tomato plant growers have had a late year and many plants will be late.

In Northumberland county the seeding is considerably ahead with most factories just well started. First cutting of alfalfa has been applied in nearly all orchards.

U.S. Officers Decline To Give Details Of Investigation

No Interviews Permitted With Husband in Hospital

Orillia, Ont., May 22 —(CP)— Police investigating the honeymoon death of pretty, 22-year-old Christina Kettlewell hinted today that her drowning "may not have been accidental."

Officers investigating the death of the eight-day bride of Jack Kettlewell at their isolated honeymoon cottage refused to amplify their statement following an interview last night with the 27-year-old husband in hospital where he was recovering from a head injury and the apparent effects of a drug.

Meanwhile police also probed the mysterious fire which razed the five-room cottage shortly after Kettlewell had been dragged from the building by Ronald Barrie, his business partner and best man at the wedding.

The Sign of Girl.

At the scene of the drowning near Severn Falls, Major Lawrence Scardifield was reported to have told police he saw no sign of the girl when he drew water from the Severn River to fight the cottage fire at the spot where her body was found a few hours later.

Barrie, released from hospital after treatment for shock, said he was shocked when he dragged the dazed bridegroom from the burning cottage, returned to the scene with police to the foot of Dinnertime Rapids, and saw Mrs. Kettlewell's body clad in flowered pyjama pants and a man's shirt.

In hospital here, Kettlewell said only interviewed and police cautioned the hospital staff against making any statements.

Inspector Thomas Wright of the Ontario Provincial Police said he could not say whether there was any question of foul play.

Ronald Barrie, contracting partner and lifelong friend of the groom, drove Kettlewell to hospital in here Tuesday evening after finding him sitting in a chair in the cottage "as if he had been drugged."

Cottage Destroyed

Barrie told police his friend was attacked by a purse-snatcher that night, Mrs. Kettlewell's purse, he said, was carrying and was found in a detention home for a 17-year-old high school student, Sam Shwetz, Toronto, identified only as a husky 14-year-old boy, is being held in a detention home charged with assault and attempted robbery.

Titles Go Begging in New Issues Of Aristocrats' Blue Book in Britain

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

London, May 22. (CP)—Thick bulky-red-backed volume known as Debrett's peerage has come out again and this year it shows 12 baronetcies "to let".

Cyril Hankinson, tall, austere editor of the publication founded in 1873, says there may be some who do not know the title is open for claiming.

"On the other hand," he added, "some of the rightful holders have probably been killed in the Battle of So. baronet". Others are unidentified because their ancestry cannot be traced or because the claimant's people have lost touch with him. Though I have received many letters, mostly in Spanish, from people claiming to be descended from Mr. Power.

On investigation, they all failed to substantiate their claims.

The latest of the 12 baronetcies asked for advice in tracing heirs. Last year Sir Charles Harding, fifth baronet of Lurcon, Fermanagh, called to say that he did not know who was his heir.

"His nearest male relative, Charles Hardinge, had been created to Canada last century. Sir Charles remembers hearing of his death years ago and knows that he left a son and a daughter. But he has never been able to trace their whereabouts.

Governor Makes Blunt Statement On German Food

Berlin, May 22 — (AP)—British military governor in Germany informed the German political parties last night that they have no right to demand continued sacrifices by Americans and Britons to feed Germans.

"The German people must appreciate said Air Marshal Sir Sholto Douglas, "that the cost of imports to the Anglo-American zone, which currently amounts to five times the value of exports, increases a heavy burden on the British and American people.

The suggestion that Germany is entitled to claim this sacrifice as a right cannot be accepted

The sharp fall of food imports into Germany is due to a world shortage of supplies."

British Foreign Policy Defended By Labor Party

London, May 22—(AP)—Labor party chief Attlee, girding for a showdown with a leftist rebel bloc at next week's annual party conference in Margate, declared today that the aim of British-American understanding is to prevent war.

"The labor government," the prime minister declared said in a booklet published today, "does not propose to ride in a lineup for the next world war."

The booklet, entitled "Cards on the Table" — a phrase much favored by Foreign Secretary Bevin — was designed in part to disarm, caustic left-wing critics of British foreign policy who contend that Britain is snubbing Russia and aligning herself too closely with the United States.

The leadership's new booklet, which details the recent actions of both Russia and the United States, rejected charges and assertions of the "rebel" bloc that the British-American alliance was aimed at Russia.

"The really striking feature of world politics today is that Russia is frightened of America," the booklet said, "and America, with undisputed control of the atom and the ocean, is frightened of Russia.

Aim is to Prevent War

"For Russia, which foresaw a struggle with Nazi Germany entirely impossible by sea and could be starved by defeat in a few weeks by the American fleet (which is) six times as big (as British).

"The aim of an Anglo-American understanding is to prevent war by proving to Russia that an aggressive anti-British policy is impossible.

"As long as Britain plays a decisive part in the defense of American security, it is impossible for America to adopt a policy of world aggression without British agreement.

Delegates Give Report of V.O.N. Annual Meeting

Reports of delegates to the annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada, held recently at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, featured the regular monthly meeting of the local committee held in the Y.M.C.A. with the president, Mr. C. A. Morgan, in the chair.

The president expressed the regret of the members in the passing of a valued associate on the Board, Mrs. Lela St. Pierre, and a message of condolence will be forwarded to his family.

During the business of the meeting reference was made to the gift of the members to Mr. E. S. James as a token of appreciation for the years of service as treasurer. Miss Wishart was introduced to the nurse who is taking field training this month with the Belleville nurses. It was decided to hold all future meetings at the Y.M.C.A. in giving the speaker's table to Mrs. Morgan thanked all those who assisted, particularly Mrs. Cameron for her splendid work.

In the 47 nursing activities for the month of April, Miss V. Addie said that the nurses had been very busy and to have Miss Elizabeth Reed, National Office Supervisor visit the branch during the past week. Miss Reed regretted not being able to remain in town for the meeting.

463 Visits in April

The work in April was somewhat lighter than it has been for the past couple of months, with 69 patients registered, 27 having been enrolled for care. Four hundred and sixty three visits were made, five with the previous month and seven the same period last year. Of these visits 270 were to mothers and new babies which includes prenatal, postnatal and visits to see born instruction; 34 to patients with communicable diseases; 19 to adult ill with cancer; 44 to chronically ill and 32 to medical and surgical patients.

Three child health conferences were held in total attendance of 99. One toxoid and one dental clinic were held at which 46 patient nurses from the Belleville General Hospital were in attendance. On April 1st at St. Michael's Academy, the annual vaccination and toxoid vaccination clinic at which 304 were vaccinated.

Miss Marion Tresidder, field supervisor of public health nursing from the University of Toronto, visited the branch April 17th in connection with post graduate students. Appreciation was expressed by the nurses to the Belleville Utilities for the excellent window display in connection with tag day also to the C.D.S. and the Percival Electrical Store for the loan of furnishings.

Annual Meeting

Miss Agnes Gallagher, who with the president, Mr. C. A. Morgan, Mrs. H. A. Francis, Mrs. A. Tilley and Miss Dorothy Connor, was a delegate to the annual meeting in Ottawa, gave a report on the various sessions held. On this occasion Miss Elizabeth Smellie, C.B.E., was officially retiring from her office as chief superintendent and tribute was paid her by the Prime Minister through Hon. Paul Martin, by Viscountess Alexander on behalf of officials and nurses of the Victorian Order throughout Canada. Gifts expressed the affection and esteem of her associates in a tangible way.

Sessions were held at the Chateau Laurier when delegates were privileged to hear such speakers as Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of Health and Welfare in the Dominion Government, who outlined the aims of Canada's campaign against cancer; Senator Norman Patterson, national president of the V.O.N.; Dr. C. E. Hall, principal of Western University who spoke on the problems of an aging population. Luncheons were held in Rideau Hall, attended by their Excellencies to whom the three hundred delegates were later presented. Leonard Brockington, K.C., was guest speaker. Reports of officers and chief's address showed the progress made in the work and the final day's conference brought the problems of each individual branch before the delegates.

Miss Dorothy Connor gave an interesting account of Miss Smellie's last report which traced the progress of the Order since its inception to the present time when it has 103 branches and 475 nurses who make over eight hundred thousand visits to 110,381 patients across Canada.

Miss E. M. Crothers, superintendent of the Queen's Institute of Nursing, London, Eng., was an honored guest at the meeting and addressed a luncheon at the Chateau Laurier. Miss Connor gave a splendid comparison of this system of nursing as compared to the program of the Victorian Order of Nurses. Mrs. George Black formerly Jhenine Lapierre, wife of parliament for the Yukon, entertained the nurses at breakfast at the Chateau and another entertaining event was the dinner held by the nurses in honor of Miss Smellie, at which time she was presented with pearls.

Miss Gallagher and Miss Connor thanked the members on behalf of the delegates for the privilege of attending the meeting. Appreciation was expressed for the extensive reports which were brought to the local branch by the speakers.

Television Set Manufactured By Stewart-Warner in Chicago Being Exhibited in the City

Television arrived in Belleville yesterday. At least part of it did.

The first of its kind to arrive in Canada a handsome television receiver with a 16" screen in a bleached mahogany cabinet arrived at the plant of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Company here and today was put on display in the windows of the Hydro Appliance Store, Front Street.

The console will remain on display here for three days, then will be shipped to Toronto and London where it will be shown in the Manufacturers' Industrial Exhibition.

The model being shown here is the commercial type and was taken off the production line of the company in Chicago. Officials here pointed out that it was not a "demonstrator" or a model built for the specific reason of advertising. These models are being produced daily in the Chicago plant.

Technically the television reception set is known as the "Cascade" model. Commercially set as is being shown here, as was said before is known as the Wendell-Estelle while for the home in period design there is made in handsome Georgian style, in all mahogany.

Screen, Radio Synchronized

It has a frequency modulation television sound plus a complete A.M. radio. The television screen and radio are synchronized so that the owner can hear a program of entertainment broadcast while actually seeing the principals in the studio. Pictures can be seen in broad daylight as well as at night. It brings the living world into the home in static-free sound, and in clear action pictures.

The sets receive on all thirteen channels now used for television broadcasts. It has 24 tubes plus a big ten-inch cathodoray (picture) tube and two rectifiers, and a twelve-inch superdynamic speaker.

In Full Production

Messrs. Arthur Young and Stanley Hagerman, Stewart-Warner-Alemite officials here, stated that the sets are now in full production, but could not predict when they would be in the Canadian television arrived in Windsor recently for the first time in Canada. This became television studios have been set up in Detroit. Television in Canada, Mr. Young said, depended entirely on the installation of studio here.

Stewart-Warner is also producing radio-phonograph combinations, television-radio-phonographs. Cabinets for these models and the television sets will likely be made here in the future.

Moira Masonic Lodge Hosts At Ladies' Night, Canon Burke, Ottawa, Being Special Speaker

You can't defeat a nation with a sense of humor," stated Rev. Canon Nicholas Burke, B.A., of St. John's Church, Ottawa, when he addressed a meeting of Moira Lodge on Wednesday evening in St. Andrew's Church hall. The occasion was Ladies' Night with the Masonic brethren and their ladies enjoying a sumptuous banquet of home-cooked food, prepared and served by two groups of the Women's Guild.

"The Irish have a sense of wit, but they lack a sense of humor; the English have it, and the Scottish people are par excellence," Canon Burke contended.

Basing his remarks on four proverbs chosen by Dr. Charles Beard to sum up the lessons of history, Canon Burke quoted first "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." Hitler was a true example of this saying.

"William Byrant Jennings used to say that a wise man gets an idea in his head, and a foolish man gets it in the neck," the speaker continued. "A foolish person can cause more trouble than a bad person. A fool is a person who lacks a sense of proportion. We have two musical expressions which describe this, harmony and discord. Harmony is the proper balance of tones and discord is being out of harmony. Forced this harmony.

"Nations were forced into harmony during the war, why can't they do it now? If Moiory only had a sense of humor, the United Nations could soon settle their difficulties. A harmonious development of essential elements is what makes for human happiness.

"We have stressed the intellectual values until the spiritual values have suffered. Two things are necessary for harmonious living, religion and a sense of humor. Religion saves man from his own foolishness. But putting God in His own place, man then fits into life with his fellow man. Religion puts everything in proportion and establishes harmony.

Close Connection

"There is a close connection between religion and a sense of humor. I ask my congregation to say a prayer every day for a sense of humor," Canon Burke declared. "If religion does not make a man happy then he hasn't got religion. Some faces have been connected too long with the religious person. If in time our God-given sense of humor was given a chance. It is a safety-valve which prevents a breakdown when things get too much for us. Humor is the quality to see things in a sense of proportion, the ability to recognize incongruities."

Dealing with the second proverb, the mills of the gods grind slowly but they grind exceedingly small, the Canon stated that a moral purpose runs through history. It is true of individuals and of nations that if you break the moral law you must pay the price.

Briefly, Canon Burke touched on the last two proverbs, "There be always fertilities the flower which it robs", and "when it gets dark enough you can see the stars". These four proverbs contain the sum of all history. It is unfortunate that adversity has to come before we begin to search for the values. Planning has to be based on experience, we must be students of history. We have to learn lessons from the past, look back, from experiences of the past" we have to face the future."

Speaker Introduced

Rev. Arthur Smith, rector of St. Matthew's Church, introduced the speaker of the evening, and in his opening remarks he said he was happy to recall that his grandfather was initiated into Moira Lodge in 1871. The thanks of the listeners were expressed by Mrs. Gilbert Stackhouse.

Mr. C. R. Lidster, W.M., was chairman for the evening. Community singing was led by A. Evans with Alec Gordon at the piano. Two solos were contributed by Miss Helen Cook who sang "Indian Love Call" and "Annie Laurie" accompanied by Miss Leona Rigby. Mr. James Bankier sang two numbers "Since Lassie Went Away" and "The West Wind" with Mr. Gordon accompanying.

The toast to the ladies was proposed—by Rt. Wor. Bro. W. C. Clarke, who finished the evening of the fair sex. He reminded his audience that Moira Lodge was one hundred and forty-six years old, and that the members had reason for pride in their Freemasonry.

Mrs. Stackhouse Responds

Mrs. Gilbert Stackhouse responded to the toast in a humorous vein, pointing out some of the peculiarities of men as well as of the follies of the male.

Thanks to the visiting artists were expressed by Alf Evans and to the ladies who gave the banquet by A. G. Stackhouse, following which all joined in the Junior Farmer.

The members and their guests adjourned to the Masonic Temple where dancing and cards were enjoyed. The prizes for bridge going to Mrs. Jack Lawrence, first; and Mrs. G. Stackhouse, second. The prize winners for euchre were Mrs. Gill, first; and Mrs. Wilkinson, second.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 22 —(CP)— Action slowed down towards the third hour of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today but prices remained firm with sizeable advances posted by golds and industrials. Range in the mining issues was wider than in the last few days for selected issues with good support for most stocks trading. Western oils were fairly active on a majority of gains.

Volume for the first three hours was 509,000 shares.

Gains of 10 points or more were common on the mining board although a handful were down as much. Heavier losers were Anglo Huronian, Smelters, Giant, Lingman, Ogama.

Industrials were firm for the papers where nearly all stocks trading posted good fraction gains. Liquors were ahead but utilities were irregular, foods and steels were up slightly and other groups generally up.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 23 — (AP) — Selected rails and industrials rose fractions to around 3 points in today's stock market although many leaders operated with some difficulty.

Among Canadian issues McIntyre gained 1 point at mid - day and Dome Mines moved up 3-4. Distillers Seagram was up 3-8 (ex dividend) while Canadian Pacific added 1-4.

On the curb, Giant Yellowknife added 1-8.

Meeting Held At St. Michael's

On Saturday, in St. Michael's Academy, a meeting of the members of the O.E.C.T.A., a branch of the Parent Association, the Ontario Teachers' Federation, was held.

The meeting opened with prayer and was conducted by Sister Mary Dorsililla, President.

After the roll call, Sister Mary Lenore B.A., gave a very instructive talk on the latest developments of the O.E.C.T.A. at the Easter Convention. Sister Mary Philip, of St. Peter's School, Trenton, showed the group a "Project in Textiles" which had been worked out by her Grade VIII pupils. These artists displayed exceptional ability. A brief, but definite outline of just what the O.E.A. is, was given by Sister Mary Claude of St. Peter's School, Trenton. The topic "The Marian Congress in Relation to the School" was very ably discussed by Sister Mary Hilda B. A.

Refreshments where then served by the Home Economics class of St. Michael's Academy.

Six-Fifteenths Of Estate Left To P.E. Hospital

The late William Henry Benson reputed to be the wealthiest man in Prince Edward County and one of the richest in Ontario, who died at his home in Picton last week, has bequeathed six-fifteenths of his estate to the Prince Edward County Hospital, officials of that institution announced yesterday.

A copy of the will was read at a special meeting of the hospital board held on Tuesday evening.

Secretary Treasurer R. B. Small stated that the bequest is in the form of an endowment and will be invested by the Board in accordance with the authority of the laws of the province. It will be possible, he said, to use only the interest for hospital operating purposes.

The residue and remainder of the Benson estate was left to be divided into 15 equal parts, the hospital to receive six.

Movie Theatres

Marking of certain feature length films as "Adult Entertainment" has not only been successful but acceptable to everyone says the annual report of the Motion Picture Censorship and Theatre Inspection branch. The plan was an experiment without penalty attached and the result has been that film distributors and nearly all theatre managers have co-operated willingly so that the chairman, O. J. Silverthorne, has recommended that it be made a permanent effective June 1st of this year with penalties provided for in the regulations regarding movie theatres. During the year of a total of 472 subjects viewed by the board, 64 were passed as adult entertainment, "because they contained much crime, murder, suicide, excessive use of alcoholic beverages, sex and domestic infelicity."

"Recently," says the chairman, "appear to be taken the marking of certain films as a guide for their children. Theatre managers throughout the province, especially in our neighborhood theatres, report that they receive many telephone calls each week enquiring if a certain picture is adult entertainment or if it would be suitable for their children to attend."

The report indicates that the theatre business is growing. Last year was an active one in the building of many new houses of movie entertainment.

It is also shown that "since the close of the war, drastic steps have been taken to bring the several hundred theatres of the province into what is regarded as present day requirements from the point of view of safety and health."

A matter of interest to parents is the development of a plan to ensure that children attending matinee performances receive supervision and protection care. The board recommends that a specific portion of the auditorium be marked off for the use of children only and that this section be convenient to exits. This should help to remove those from the children who are attending performances during matinees being molested by adults.

There are 421 theatres for the entertainment of the people of Ontario and during the year there were 104 travelling shows.

Monty's View

Lord Montgomery believes that the peacemakers have not been doing too badly. He says, "I would far sooner take a bit longer to win a good peace than patch up a bad peace quickly."

Ottawa Journal declares that "Monty" is right. An editorial writer says, "Too many people who are going about in shrouds lamenting the world's desolation are doing so because they expected the peace the war's end. When the fighting was on they drugged themselves and others with silly talk about a "brave new world," as though humanity could change its nature overnight. Now they profess to be disappointed because their talk has proven false, whereupon they go about with lamentations, seemingly not understanding that a world was built with impossible standards of structure, couldn't leave things as they were."

Field Marshal Montgomery has a forthright way of expressing his views as everyone knows who read his orders of the day during the campaign in North Africa when the renowned leader was making a name which all the Allied world was praising for its daring grasp of conditions and ability to face them.

Resuscitation Pointers

Though the weather conditions may not indicate it, two thirds of the season of spring can be numbered with the past. But despite the state of the weather, the season moves on. Soon it will be the end of spring, just a month away, schools will be out and people will be crowding the vacation resorts and lakeside. Soon the swimming season will begin. Industrial Accident Prevention Associations have directed a special bulletin to the public. Aptly it points out that resuscitation methods must be learned before they can be put into practice. "Resuscitation is not something that can be read about after a body has been pulled from the water or after a person has been rescued from a gas-filled room — resuscitation should be learned in advance and practised."

The bulletin goes on to describe the preliminary rules to be used in dealing with three types of accident:

Drowning — Quickly remove victim from the water and place on ground or other hard surface. If possible have head slightly lower than the rest of the body, so that water and other liquids will drain away from the victim.

Gas Asphyxiation — The first thing to do is to get the patient into fresh air quickly. Fresh air does not mean out of doors in cold weather: no! breathe gas yourself, even for a short time. If it does not overcome you it will cut down your strength.

Electric Shock — The victim must be freed from the electric circuit promptly as possible. Use a dry stick, dry rope, dry coat or other non-conductor. The use of your own hands is dangerous and may add another victim to the accident.

It may be added that soon bathing will be taking place in the bay and streams and this fact again calls attention to the necessity of care where one bathes so that there may be no tragedy. Swimming in unknown waters, in rivers whose bed is not known to the swimmer, taking chances in going beyond one's depth when one cannot swim or is not a competent swimmer are practices to be avoided. Water is a treacherous enemy to the unwary and thoughtful.

Loss of life while bathing in lakes and rivers is greatly to be regretted. Such tragedies destroy the joy of the rest of a season which should be happiest for it is the time when there is possible the greatest freedom in the great outdoors.

German Self-Pity

Germans think that their suffering is unique and are wallowing in an orgy of self-pity. They refuse to see that the restrictions under which they now suffer—with rations in the Anglo-American zone to be cut from 1,500 to 1,200 calories a day on May 26 — are mainly of their own making. No one has any sympathy, nor will they under the reduced rations.

More British Woodlands

Britain's forests are to be increased from 3,000,000 acres to 5,000,000, says United Kingdom Office. The Forestry Commission have started work on a 50-year plan which will ultimately enable Britain to satisfy at least 35 percent of her timber needs from home ppoduction.

Before the war imports supplied 96 percent of these requirements at a cost of $252,000,000 each year.

Sacrifices during two world wars have made serious inroads on woodlands and in consequence the timber shortage presents quite a serious problem.

LAUGHTER

Set a man to laughing, he,
For the time, is worry free.
Put a smile upon his lips,
From the bonds of care he slips.
Give him laughter, and you take
From him every hurt and ache.

Set a man to laughing, he,
For the time, is burden free.
Loss and failure are forgot;
Little slights remembered not.
Give him laughter, and the gift
Every weight he bears will lift.

For that merry moment brief,
Laughter is a cure for grief.
For the pains that men endure
Laughter is an opiate sure.
Set a man to laughing, he,
For the time, is trouble free.

Speaker Claims Liberals Favor The C.C.F. Party

Montreal, May 22 (CP)—Donald Fleming, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Toronto-Eglinton, said there last night that recent "redistribution" of Canadian electoral districts had resulted in awarding the C.C.F. party an advantage over the Progressive Conservative party in almost every instance, "another instance of tendency of the Liberals to favor the Socialists at every opportunity."

Addressing a meeting under the auspices of the Mount Royal Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Fleming also criticized the present handling of the housing situation, saying "if any government ever deserved defeat on their record the Liberals deserve defeat on this one issue."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

CALL FOR GENERAL

Turning to trade, Mr. Case said there would have been pressure from somewhere to have tied Canada to the U.S. dollar in parity with that of the United States because "nobody in this House has ever agitated for parity."

Must Encourage Mining

The gold mining industry must be encouraged to help Canada and Canada's trade balance. Canada shouldn't have to wait for the U.S. to raise the price of gold.

She should give help to production of her gold and could well increase the price to $40 an ounce or even more.

The prediction that the Commons Indian Committee would eventually give more "measure of relief" and "remove that feeling of inferiority" among the Indian population.

Rural mail carries should be entitled to compensation allowances for their equipment and to a self-contributory superannuation fund, Members of parliament should also pay into a superannuation fund, he added, when they entered the House. Even if they were not entitled to superannuation, they would have "laid the groundwork for a financial start in their old age."

He urged the government to use the end of the war to correct non-taxable buildings such as schools, jails, asylums, and hospitals.

Must Guide Forces.

Mr. Arsenault maintained that Canada had reached a state where her economy needed to be curbed or guided to some extent by the government. The government and that the threat of another depression made that necessary. He urged a direct taxation essential in the near future.

It was a duty of the people's government and parliament to see that Canadians were not forced again into conditions of social injustices and sufferings of another war. He commended the production of the Provincial governments in the Dominion and wants to a central authority.

"If that were to happen today," he said, "the provinces would be told tomorrow by Ottawa under the present such conditions or we'll deprive you $50,000,000 a year."

Quebec would have to sacrifice piece by piece it traditions, culture and customs if Canada had struggled for 209 years to keep. There already was enough injustice against French Canadiens.

Mr. Moore called for more substantial relief for veterans, and the retention in peacetime of the special powers that such could be used to provide better social services. The government should "cash in" on the profits now being made by business and industry.

U.S. ACTION MAY

Some politicians hold the view that the United States would be willing to grant a new loan on Britain's favorable terms. However, express the belief there will be insistence on many "strings" — perhaps heavy tariff concessions from the United States to Britain's dominions and countries without corresponding reduction in United States duties.

May Seek New Load

Government members have been insistent that the United States should be insistent on seeking further foreign credits. Others, however, say Britain is willing to wager that an approach will be made to one or the other—and that a new loan is the only alternative to a cut in living standards.

There has been speculation that current visit to Ottawa of Sir Graham F. Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada, centred in discussions relating to further Canadian credits to the United Kingdom.

This has been denied at Ottawa Finance Department.

Towers today told The Canadian Press that he is in London solely on a "routine Bank of Canada visit," adding that others he has made to Washington.

Not Immediate Crisis

The dwindling dollar supply is not an immediate crisis.

Withdrawals on Britain's dollar credits speeded up seriously during last few months with big drawings on them since New Year's amounting to $1,750,000,000 on the American credit and about $300,000,000 on the Canadian.

Thus, nearly one third of the total value of both credits has been used in 4-1-2 months.

Now the experts are making current sterling freely convertible after July 15 brings the threat of another heavy load though no one knows yet exactly what the burden will be.

Even the experts estimate the remaining credits will last the better part of a year.

WHAT SORT OF MEDICAL EXAMINATION

Class B neurotics are the genuine moochers who use their "bad nerves" as an alibi or a means of escape from any and all trials and tribulations of life —they shove everything onto the shoulders of their associates, friends or relatives, in short they practice nervous imposition on the world and make it pretty sore for themselves. I can only estimate that about half the neuropsychiatric cases in Class B. (Class A neurotics really have something the matter with one or another organ or function, usually not brain, spinal cord or nerves...) Class B will probably remain a large class until some sort of compulsory medical examination shall catch up with moochers and break up their game.

Now hold everything, moochers. I have heard that chestnut at least a thousand times, usually. You have consulted a good many doctors, both orthodox and quack here at home and "eminent specialists" far away, regular or medical doctors and cult near-doctors whose sales talk is an appendage to the name of communities have occurred in your own diagnosis of your trouble — your "nerves," "neurasthenia," "nervous tension," "nervous exhaustion, "nervous breakdown" — what do you prefer. So what do you want compulsory medical examination?

I mean, by that, unhampered, thorough examination and investigation of the individual by a competent medical man.

A competent physician, be he an "ordinary" family practitioner or "leading specialist" in any line and cannot in any case acquiesce in the statement "nervous" or "nervous exhaustion" accounts for anything.

A proper medical examination or study of such patients covers a wide field of investigation. Only such medical examination but also careful functional study of the individual condition may indicate. It includes what we may call a psychological examination to discover a practical inquiry into the patient's character, personality and general outlook on life, and not any obstruse or occult mookery. The results of this part of the study depends on the sincerity the patient shows and the frankness with which the doctor can deal with the case. For example, if the patient insists on the "nervous" concept or manifests fatalistic or pessimistic in the doctor's effort to make an honest diagnosis, the study is of little avail.

This popular notion of nervousness or nervous exhaustion accounting for ill health and inefficiency is a formidable obstacle in the way honest medical service.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How is "Houston" pronounced? "Hughestoun."

Northerners often go wrong on the pronunciation of "Houston" in the name of the largest city in Texas. The correct pronunciation is "hewss-tun."

That is also the way the name was pronounced by the soldier and statesman after whom the city was named. Frequently persons from other sections of the country, particularly the East, mispronounce it "house-ton."

On April 21, 1836, General Sam Houston (1792-1863) and his Texans defeated the Mexicans under Santa Anna in a decisive battle on the San Jacinto River, near the site of the present city of Houston.

Sam Houston was a descendant of John Houston who came to America from Northern Ireland in 1730 and who, after leaving in Pennsylvania "long enough to marry off a son and two daughters, finally settled in the upper Valley of Virginia. It is supposed that "Houston" originated in the 1153 A.D. when Hugh Padvinan, who had obtained the barony of Kilpeter in Lanarkshire, Scotland, founded "Hugh's Town" or persons bearing them.

The name of "Houston Street" in New York City is locally pronounced "house-tun," and on early New York City maps this name occurs as "Houstoun," the old Scottish spelling.

It is general way it may be said that "Houston" is "hewz-tun" in the Northeast, although there are many exceptions.

A still different pronunciation prevails in Great Britain and is far from uncommon in the United States—"house-tun" or "hou-stun."

It is presumed that a person may pronounce his name any way he desires and the only guide in the pronunciation of personal names is the preference of the

Amalgamations Arranged

At a meeting held in Beulah United Church on Monday evening, which had been arranged by the amalgamations committee of the Belleville Presbytery the congregations of Pulpit United Church on the West Huntingdon pastoral charge received and accepted an invitation to become a fourth appointment of the Ivanhoe charge, beginning July 1st. Devotional services were conducted by the minister, Rev. J. F. Everson, who read a Scripture lesson after which Rev. J. W. Platt and Mr. William J. Johnston offered prayer. Rev. J. E. Lane of Wellington, chairman of the committee, and chairman-elect of the Belleville Presbytery, then took charge and explained the purpose of the meeting, in which he said was due to the extreme shortage of ministers, and in order to straighten some of the charges, efforts were being made to amalgamate. Plainfield, West Huntingdon and Thomasburg circuits. If the suggestions are approved by Presbytery and later by the Conference at Oshawa, substituting for P. S. Carr who was ill.

Mr. Butlers closed the meeting with the benediction.

Mr. Gordon Reid had the misfortune to break his wrist while at work for the Fuller Sand and Gravel Company, a few days ago.

Mrs. Clarence Hall of Plainfield, St. Tucker of Tweed and Arthur Wilson, of West Huntingdon, substituting for P. S. Carr

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Avoid the Indoor Complexion

If you would do right by your complexion, you must do right by your lungs, giving them plenty of fresh air each day. You must keep the blood stream moving. If you have a pale skin, you can guess the reason; the circulatory system is getting lazy.

Now that the rouge pad has been laid aside by many of the up-and-coming lovelies it is up to every girl to grow her own cheek bloom. Health is fashionable—a pleasanter, more sensible state of affairs than in grandma's long-ago time when pallor and fragility were elements of feminine loveliness.

Unless the muscles have a certain amount of activity and unless the lungs are air-washed, a host of beauty ills will come marching along, feet that lag, lips that are pale. Activity is a law of life. So don't indulge yourself in self cushions. Enjoy the zest and splendid appetance that is the reward of exercise for an active life in the open air.

The blood is the living stream which feeds the cells of life. Without exercise, fresh air, nourishing food and restful sleep, these streams cannot function normally. They carry food to every cell of the body to every silky hair on your head.

With active circulation, the tiny capillaries close to the skin surface expand, place the poppy bloom on the cheeks, a glow that no commercial tint can precisely duplicate.

The circulatory system is the heating plant of the body. It must be on the job never lagging. Ten minutes of deep breathing in the open air will bring warmth to the flesh, a sense of well-being to body and spirit.

The blood does repair work. Like a good doctor, it goes the rounds, making first aids. It repairs fibers and tissues that are constantly undergoing a process of dissolution and renewal. While attending to its many calls, it picks up waste substances disposes of them through the skin the lungs, the intestines and the kidneys.

Activity is a law of life.

The red cells of the blood carry oxygen. The deeper and fuller the breathing, the more oxygen is taken into the lungs. Shallow breathers nearly always have pale complexions.

To overcome sluggish circulation, one should have at least one hour of outdoor life every day. Alternating hot and cold showers, followed by a brisk rubdown with a coarse towel, will help. One should drink plenty of water.

Girls who work in shops and offices are likely to be cursed with the colorless complexion. If they can't get out of doors they should set aside at least fifteen minutes each day for calesthenics.

LIFE can Begin AFTER 40, IF...

Around 40 our energy formula, fed, experience has taught us to do our work with less effort. The years should yield the soundest judgment, the most enjoyment and happiness. They can, too, if we feed the kidneys and bladder discharges such as Backache, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Leg Cramps, Loss of Sleep and Energy which so often attack us around 40. For over a century Doan's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women to keep kidneys and bladder active and well. If you are nearing 40, or past it, why not do as they have done and benefit where they benefit today! 1537

It is plain to be seen by the picture above that Spring's back, and looking very sleek and smart. It's still the little touches that transform a basically-correct outfit into a costume; here we show you several transformers. The jewelry is a pair of gilt hoops, set in jeweled bowknot pins, and giant gilt hoop earrings. But it's the trick of placing one pin in the popular manikin haircut, and the other at the swallow-tail, which we ask you to notice. The kid right-button gloves are charcoal color, and eyelet embroidered; the collar and handbag is black satin with a turnkey closing.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Lovelorn Matrimonial Slavery

There are various kinds of matrimonial slavery.

There's the kind in which a husband and wife both work almost excessively hard to create and maintain the kind of home they want for themselves and their children. In this case, they're slaving with a purpose, for their future, and they know it's worthwhile.

Moreover, because they're teamed together in the labor, it does not seem so hard. Each is pulling his share of the load.

But when it comes to a woman working herself into a nervous wreck for, a mean wretch of a husband, or a husband joylessly keeping his nose to the grindstone to support a wife who makes his life miserable, then I see no point in such slavery whatever. I am not one who thinks any marriage should be broken up lightly, but I certainly do think that there is a limit to the mistreatment any wife or husband should take. And I believe, too, that the sooner any abused husband or wife straightens up and stands erect on his or her feet and makes it perfectly clear that there is no more bending double to form an unreasonable burden on the back, the sooner a change will come in their marital situation, if any change is ever to come. For to take a kicking around indefinitely is most certainly to forfeit respect, and to command respect from any partner, marital or business, is the first requisite of proper treatment.

The kind of utterly useless, not to say criminal, + slavery about which I am talking is that described by a wife who signs herself "A Slave for a Man".

She says, in part: "I have been married for fifteen years, and have four children who mean a lot to me and I work day and night for them. Yet my husband says I don't do anything.

"You see, I work away from home five days a week, and I have a woman to take care of my youngest child. The others are in school. It gets the best of care, and I do all the rest of my work for my family—housework, washing, ironing, and make all the children's clothes.

"Yet my husband says I just go to work to see other men, though I have never given him any reason to think such a thing. If he sees me even speak to a man, he gets very jealous, and if I am gone to the store a few minutes longer than he thinks I should be, he says I am with another man.

"Some people tell me they don't know how I stand it, and ask me why don't I quit work. I tell them we would starve if I did, for I did quit for awhile and I had to go back. He wouldn't give me any money for the children's clothes or for myself, and would buy only half enough food for the family. If we want to go to church, or to a school event, he makes a fuss with me and is mean to the children. All this is really getting the best of me, working all the time and no pleasure, so please give me some advice."

Rather than quit work, as this woman's friends suggest, my advice would be that she quit her husband and see what comes of it. As long as she goes on making herself "a slave for a man," as she herself puts it, he's obviously going to let her do it, and abuse her while she does.

She has demonstrated her ability to earn money. No doubt she even pays for the woman who stays with her youngest child while she is at work. If she can do all she does while sharing the same roof with a mean-tempered man, she can continue to do it, and do it much more easily, under a roof of her own.

Naturally, if a woman has anything to gain by putting up with this type of husband, that's another story. There are women who remain so helplessly in love with stingy, jealous, thoroughly selfish men that they would rather be with them, however unhappy they were, than leave them. And there are women who are forced to put up with marital misery because they would be unable, on their own, to support themselves and their children.

But none of this appears to be the case in this instance. On the contrary, every indication points to the probability that his woman would be far better off by herself.

So my advice would be for her to start thinking about how to effect a legal separation from her husband, and I recommend that she consult a lawyer who can guide her wisely.

Fashion Flashes

REAL BEAUTY marks some of the fine ball dresses. Black taffeta is used for a dress with a very wide, full skirt, caught up high at one side to reveal a petticoat of starched white eyelet. A midget bolero of the eyelet meets the top of the very low, strapless bodice.

DEMURE patterns mark a change from the splashy florals usually employed. Pure silk in palest gray—printed with a bold black stripe broken here and there by little stylized pink roses —adds up to a fresh note in print. Talking points of the dress itself include a very wide black satin cummerbund belt at a new waist high, a longer skirt and longer sleeves.

FINE NOTE with a separate skirt, a tailored suit, or with good slacks is the shirt of silk with the low-plunging neckline, linked and fastened with big jewel-tone studs and links.

REFRESHING little hats add joy to city streets. Panama straw in pale chartreuse makes the deep-in-back, off-the-face brim of a very pretty hat. The brim is banded in green taffeta and the open-work back is sewn with tiny, pale yellow buttercups.

NEW WEAPON AGAINST CANCER

In his laboratory at Rochester, N.Y., Dr. David W. Stewart shows Mrs. Ruth Packer a jar containing the new high-concentrate Carbon 13. Availability of the higher concentration, nearly twice as rich as was hitherto obtainable, will enable chemists to see and follow more accurately chemical reactions in the body, aiding them to understand better what happens when cancer starts and grows.

No Indication Sugar Rationing Will End Soon

Ottawa, May 22 (CP)—Canadian sugar storage bins may be starting to bulge but sources in close touch with sugar administration here said last night it was no indication that sugar rationing would end soon.

"In fact," one source declared, "it would be safe to say that the abandoning of sugar rationing is out of the question for a long time."

The spokesman explained the bulging sugar bins by saying that Canada now was getting some of her portion of the Cuban sugar crop. Under the international allocation of sugar the actual shipments to Canada by a number of factors she took the sugar when she could get it and stored it for future use.

Canada's international allocation of sugar will allow her an approximate per capita of about 80 pounds this year, about nine pounds better than last year but still 10 pounds or more below the pre-war per capita consumption.

The world sugar situation remained tight the source added.

Strikes Forbidden For Next 2 Years By Steel Union

By JAMES F. HACKETT

Atlantic City, N.J. May 22 — (AP)—President Philip Murray yesterday issued an order to the 3,000 locals of the United Steelworkers (CIO) forbidding strikes for the next two years.

Murray, also president of the steelworkers, said in a letter to local union leaders that recently signed two-year contracts "for most of the members of our union plants" constitute one of the most notable achievements in the annals of our nation collective bargaining history."

Murray said in a letter it is "imperative we understand thoroughly that:

"1. We must meticulously respect provisions of the collective bargaining contract.

"2. That grievances or circumstances must there be work stoppages during the life of the agreement.

"3. We must resort to the orderly methods of adjudicating out differences by taking recourse to the grievance procedure of the wage agreement up to and including arbitration."

The letter was approved by the steelworkers' 41-man board of directors at their biennial meeting.

Tourists Will Be Protected Against Operators

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—Tourists coming to Ontario will be protected against exploitation by unscrupulous camp operators by new regulations drawn up by the Department of Travel and Publicity it was announced here yesterday.

A hotel, resort or lodge catering to tobrists which advertises "modern conveniences must include among its facilities such things as water-closets, electric lighting and long-distance telephone service, under the regulations.

The new order is aimed particularly at the minute per centage of operators who have lured tourists to their places by misleading advertising and have been the cause of complaint on the part of the visitors, Queen's Park officials said.

Lou Johnston At Eighty-One Still Driving

Brantford, May 22 — (CP) — Old Lou is 81 but he still has a firm grip on the reins. Familiar to sulky fans for 66 years, Lou Johnston is swinging into his 67th season by exercising Frank Plaunt's string of seven horses at Asaphy Ancaster track.

Old Lou doesn't race any more "too ancient" for that, he says—but he claims that Plaunt's Jay Dee Harvest "can trot as fast as Lee Hanover did with the same amount of work." Lee should know — he drove Lee Hanover in the three-year-old Futurity Trot back in 1933 to set a record of 2:13¼ for the event. Lee Hanover later became the only Canadian trotter to step into the two-minute class.

In his lifetime of racing, Lou has met all the hazards of the track and has never been seriously injured. Keen of eye and physically fit, he's particularly proud of his hands — it's control of the reins, he says, that wins races.

Dalton Tells How Churchill Rallied Cabinet

Manchester, England, May 22 (CP)—How Winston Churchill rallied the wartime coalition cabinet with stirring words in the first week of its existence "when all the stars in their courses were fighting against us" was told for the first time last night when Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was given an honorary LL.D. Degree by Manchester University.

Dalton said: "Churchill gathered the ministers around the table and addressed them in words of hope and unconquerable audacity: 'We must fight on to the end no matter what the cost to each and all of us' and concluded with these ringing and immortal words which I've never forgotten and never shall forget:

"We must fight on and if this long island story of ours is to end at last, then I say let it only end when each of us lies choking in his own blood upon the ground."

Russia Likely To Lose Fight On Balkan Issue

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.

Lake Success, May 22 (AP)—British and American sources predicted today that Russia would lose her fight to prevent a United Nations border-watch over the troubled Balkans.

These sources said a majority of the U.N. Security Council members were against a Soviet resolution demanding sharp curtailment of powers for an interim commission investigating warfare along Greece's northern borders.

The United States Deputy delegate, Herschel V. Johnson, charged Tuesday that Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria were attempting to obstruct efforts of the Security Council to settle strife in the Balkans.

The three Slav countries had declared they would not co-operate with the Council's interim inquiry commission and would refuse its members access to their countries.

Johnson contended that the Soviet satellites would establish a "dangerous precedent" if they persisted in "defiance" of the United Nations.

Under the proposed Soviet move the interim investigators would be limited to specific would-be border assignments. They would be moved from Salonika to the frontier region southward to Athens. Adoption of the resolution also would put a strict limit on the life of the group.

The Interim Commission was ordered into the border area to stand watch until the regular U.N. Balkan commission could get its report to the council for action. The commission is at present in Geneva drafting its findings.

Club Commodore Smart Rendezvous

Pictured above are the "James Boys" of the Commodores orchestra, Stan. Wiggins, Frank Howard and Jimmy Elliott, three clever trumpeters who supply the brass rhythms for the popular dance band which opens its new "Club Commodore" at the Exhibition Grounds on Friday night.

The "Club Commodore" in a brand new setting is now rated as the smartest dance rendezvous in Eastern Ontario and no time and labor have been spared to make it not only one of the best dance spots, but one that for natural environment also ranks with any in the district.

The "Club" is distinctly different. In a natural setting of shady trees, lush grass carpeted lawns, it has an atmosphere that offers restful yet enjoyable surroundings.

Many physical changes have been made this year. The dance floor has been enlarged while other improvements have modernized the entire club. "Club Commodore" is definitely a high class asset to entertainment spots of the city and district, and will attract crowds from all parts of the area.

The official opening tomorrow night will be marked with special ceremonies which will be broadcast over the local radio station. Mayor Frank Follwell and Parks Board Chairman Cleo Colling will be on hand to air the opening. Then of course there is the smart Commodores orchestra itself. There is no need to dwell much on the reputation of this well-known musical aggregation. Its fame is wide-spread and its services in demand. It is rated as one of the smartest dance bands in Eastern Ontario and the boys are all out to see that this reputation is maintained.

Francis De Carrol will do the vocals at the opening Friday night.

28 Acquitted At Their Mass Murder Trial

Greenville, S.C., May 22 (AP)—Twenty-eight white men were acquitted at their mass murder trial last night of charges that they lynched a 28-year-old negro.

The State had demanded conviction, but not death, against the alleged murderers of Willie Earle, who was taken from Pickens County jail before dawn Feb. 17 and lynched in reprisal for the alleged stabbing of a white taxi driver.

Within 24 hours police had incriminating statements from self-acknowledged members of the mob. Eventually, 26 defendants signed unsworn statements, admitting to police that they had helped take the negro to an old slaughter pen where he was blindfolded, slashed and shot to death.

A County grand jury indicted 31 men for murder, conspiracy to commit murder, and of being accessories both before and after the fact. All were brought to trial but three won directed verdicts of acquittal.

The defence offered no witnesses or testimony and no defendant took the stand. Returning to the alleged stabbing, of which the Negro was accused, Defence Counsel John B. C. Culbertson had shouted:

"Willie Earle is dead, and I wish more like him were dead."

They had deliberated five hours and 15 minutes.

Yield of Wheat Cut Drastically By Dry Weather

Spokane, Wash., May 22 (AP)—The wheat crop of hundreds of thousands of acres in the Pacific northwest area of the United States reached a critical stage today as a result of a dry, early spring.

Grain dealers reported that while rains in the next few days could make fair to good crops, yields already had been cut on thousands of acres.

Hardest hit are the western part of Washington State's big bend country and north-central Oregon.

In some parts of the Big Bend, grain dealers predicted that unless the weather changed suddenly for the better, the current drought will mean a return to "normal" yields. In those areas, normally short on rainfall crops of bumper size have been raised the last few years, taxing elevator facilities and forcing grain men to store millions of bushels of wheat in great mounds on the ground.

Estimates of damage already done to the wheat crop on some marginal lands, regardless of future rains, ranged up to 50 per cent.

Drew Urges Industries In U.K. to Establish Branches in Canada

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 22 —(CP)— Ontario's Premier Drew Wednesday urged British industries to establish branch factories in Canada and take local advantage of a rapidly expanding domestic market.

"Many have already done so with great success," he told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

"I hope many more will follow. I think there is special and obvious strategic reasons why certain heavy industries should be making such things as aircraft precision instruments and automobile components and certain research establishments should consider the long-term advisability of establishing substantial branch plants in Canada.

"We've built a great and friendly partnership within the Commonwealth . . . unique in political and economic history. Trade and commerce must be the vital link on which that great partnership will grow and prosper more and more as time goes on."

Stating that retail purchases in Canada amounted to $5,000,000,000 during 1946, the Premier said:

"That's a market open to manufacturers of the United Kingdom either from the factories here or from branches established in Canada.

"If British goods are to sell they must be right in style and design, well packaged, at a competitive price, if ready and deliverable with speed and certainty."

Not Purely Agricultural.

He said Canada no longer is a purely agricultural country. She wants expanding business in manufactured goods with the British Isles.

"There is no room for jealousy between us," he said.

"You benefit from our strength and we benefit from yours. We want the Canada of tomorrow to be an ever-closer partner of Great Britain. There are many ways in which we can integrate our sales and production so that we don't come together with the full shock of purely competitive activity."

Drew arose amid laughter when the scarlet-coated toastmaster introduced him as "Prime Minister of Australia."

"Maybe there's something significant in that introduction," he said.

"I think it would be a good thing if every part of the Commonwealth were so close to others that it would not be surprising if one sometimes forgot which country he belonged to in appreciation of his partnership in a greater association."

Good Market In "Exportation" Of U.S. Cars

New York, May 22 — (AP)—A "flourishing market" in the exportation of United States automobiles at prices exceeding manufacturers' list quotations by from $300 to $1,000 was reported by operators along "automobile row."

Some rich markets have dried up, however, and operators predicted that the situation will be practically normal by fall.

Difficulties over rigid foreign exchange controls in some countries, plus the mounting production of cars, will make the transactions "too risky to be profitable much longer," they contended.

Automobile manufacturers export new cars at fixed prices, they said, and most of them are maintaining voluntary quotas, averaging around six per cent of total output.

The "bonus export market" works this way, they explained:

An individual gets a new car at list price from an accredited dealer. Many times this car represents a duplicated order, the individual already having taken delivery on a car from another dealer.

Without even accepting delivery on the new car, the individual sells it for a bonus ranging from $300 on small models to $1,000 on large models, to used car dealer or to an exporter, who picks up the car from the dealer, crates it and puts it aboard ship.

ABBEY'S EFFERVESCENT SALT

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 22 —(CP)— The Dominions Office, like the Dominions it serves, is to paddle its own canoe.

The office, with headquarters in sooty Downing Street across from Prime Minister's residence, has been responsible for Dominions' affairs since the day of its existence in 1925. The old association with the Colonial Office continued insofar that they continued to share the services of some experts, of typing pool, library and the like.

One Must Go.

In the last 22 years both departments have so expanded that the old building can no more hold them than the East Block at Ottawa can accommodate the government offices of the Dominion Government.

London observers said it was a sign of the times that the Colonial Office, although technically the parent of the Dominions Office and the first settler, is the department which will leave Downing Street and seek quarters elsewhere until a new building is made ready. The Dominions Office remains in complete possession, in the most important street on government-occupied Whitehall.

The final division between the departments came a year ago when the Colonial Office departed.

How It Started.

The Dominions Office started in 1925 under a typically British arrangement for creation of a new office for which legislative authority had to be granted. It was recognized the Dominions needed some special department to deal with their affairs in London and that the word "colonial" rankled.

The Colonial Office, praised and blamed by pioneers in Canada and every other Dominion, has existed for nearly 100 years.

Oppose U.S. Aid To Turkey, Greece

London, May 22 — (AP)—Five constituency labor party organizations called Wednesday on the annual party conference to condemn American aid to Greece and Turkey as "a menace to world peace" and urged an immediate end of action as a possible violation of the United Nations charter.

The resolution must filter through the standing orders committee of the conference before it reached the floor and may never be discussed unless it is gathered considerably more open support before next week's five-day conference ends.

President Truman's decision on the $400,000,000 aid program, the resolution said, "was taken without consulting the British government and in disregard of the obligations of the United Nations Charter."

It called on the conference, whose decisions are considered binding on the labor government, to declare that "the methods and purposes of this policy constitute a menace to world peace and are the negation of the democratic principles for the preservation of which the grave sacrifices of the last war were made."

"American policy in Turkey," it said, "should be subject for investigation under article 34 of the (U.N.) charter as tending to produce international friction."

The resolution was made public by Konni Zilliacus, leader of the extreme leftist group of Laborite members of parliament. Zilliacus, long- time member of the League of Nations Secretariat, was a British intelligence agent in Russia in the First World War.

Changchun Now Fully Encircled

Nanking, May 22 — (AP)—Besieged Changchun, capital of Manchuria, is completely encircled by Chinese forces, Nationalist headquarters said.

Government troops, however, were credited with re-entering Mukden, 80 miles to the southwest. Fighting was reported in the streets.

In Changchun itself, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's forces began digging trenches and setting up machine-gun nests. They made their junction as a possible fight inside the city.

Information Director Hollington Tong placed the total Communist strength against Changchun at 90,000 troops, including 20,000 Korean Communists.

He said the Koreans had been fighting in Manchuria for some time. Sidestepping a question on whether any had come from North Korea since the Soviet occupation, he said the Korean unit included remnants of the Japanese Army and recruits from southern Manchuria.

Red support from still another quarter was reported as China's new premier, Gen. Chang Chun, told the people's political consultative body he would only be obtained bilaterally.

Chang asserted the Communists had no "sincere desire" for ending hostilities. He reiterated that the country's economic situation would become steadily worse as long as the Communists continued to disrupt communications. All the governments could do under these circumstances, he added, was retrench.

METEORITE HITS EARTH

London, May 22 — (Reuters)— A meteorite weighing about 1,000 tons collided with the earth Feb. 12, according to the first report of the Soviet scientific expedition which recently went to Siberia to investigate the phenomenon, Moscow radio reported.

The meteorite, with a speed of about 99 miles a second, caused heavy damage when it fell, as well as air waves recorded as far away as the Pacific coast.

More than 800 splinters, some of which penetrated deep into the earth, have been found.

Rising Waters Flood Homes Along Mattagami

Timmins, May 22 (CP) —The adage "what goes up must come down" is the only consolation held by the 150 families and farmers in Mount Joy township who have been severely afflicted by the still rising flood waters of the Mattagami River here. No one will predict when the waters will recede. Monday's rains caused a rise of five inches overnight which means more homes have been flooded and more families forced to evacuate to higher ground. Rains Wednesday are expected to raise the waters height.

Worst possible flood result according to lands and forests rangers would be log booms up the Mattagami breaking and tumbling down on the populated low lying area. More boatloads of hay for cattle and horses on farms downstream are leaving today.

Mount Joy improvement area officials are searching for a big scow that will carry five tons of hay and grain in one load. Red Cross and a local emergency committee are distributing drinking water and dry fuel wood from a tent headquarters close to the edge of the floodwater.

At Cochrane there was no knowledge there of other damflooding.

Two bridges on Mattawishquia River at efiaret were washed out last week. The Frederick house and Buskegau Rivers were so high and swift that pulp logs and debris threatened bridges on the Trans - Canada Highway which have held so far.

Dionne Quints Will be 13 On May 28th

New York, May 21 — (CP)—As the Dionne quintuplets pass their 13th birthday May 28 the chances are better than ever that they all will live to celebrate their 50th anniversary together, insurance company statisticians (Metropolitan Life) calculated today. The final survivor of the group may expect to live 86.

The chances are about 95 in 100 that all five girls will reach their majority, a report said, about 65 in 100 that they all will attain age 45 and more than 20 in 100 that they all will live to celebrate their 65th birthday.

Russia May Renew Demand Over A-Weapons

By JOHN A. PARRIS, Jr.
Lake Success, May 22 — (AP) —Russia was expected to renew her demand that the United Nations security council outlaw immediately the use of atomic weapons.

This move was indicated by Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko when he told the American-Russian Institute in New York Monday that atomic weapons were outlawed the Soviet Union would support international control and inspection.

The United States and Great Britain are insisting that before there is prohibition of atomic weapons there must be a system of international atomic control.

A new attempt to reconcile American and Russian views on this issue faced the working committee of the Atomic Energy Commission when it met behind closed doors Wednesday for the first time in three weeks.

Meanwhile, a Big Five subcommittee of the commission on conventional armaments was called into closed session in an effort to iron out a program of work. Here again there is disagreement between the United States and Russia. The United States is insisting that emphasis be given to control and safeguard in any arms reduction plan.

The security council will resume today the question of maintaining an international watch on the troubled Balkan frontier areas.

The United States charged Tuesday that Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria were attempting to obstruct efforts of the security council to settle strife in the Balkans.

Meanwhile the U. N. sub-commission on freedom of information and of the press decided that the proposed world conference on freedom of information should be held in Europe in March or April, 1948.

SURPLUS HORSES FOOD SOURCE FOR EUROPE'S HUNGRY

Saskatchewan Co-Operative Ships Millions of Tins of Horse Meat Through U.N.R.R.A.

Swift Current, Sask. —(CP)— Sixty thousand more prairie horses, pushed into discard by farm mechanization, have already filled some hunger pangs of Europe and perhaps 100,000 more may go as canned meat in the next two years.

The Saskatchewan Horse Co-Operative Marketing Association formed in 1944 when a meeting of 200 farmers in southwestern Saskatchewan were told there were 450,000 surplus horses on the prairies—has shipped 17,000,000 tins of horse meat to Europe through United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association. The Belgian government has bought 3,000 tons of pickled meat and U.N.R.R.A. has an order for 8,000,000 more tins of meat.

Only $900 was raised by passing the hat at the first meeting at Val Marie but now the association, with plants at Swift Current, Sask., and Edmonton, has assets of about $1,000,000 and has produced more than $3,000,000 worth of goods in the form of the canned meat and by-products sold to fur farms, tanneries, upholsterers, glue factories and medical laboratories.

Agriculture officials had warned that the surplus horses were using pasture which could take 500,000 head of cattle. Farmers, at first unwilling to part with the horses they now found useless, finally began to sell them at $5 and $10 a head and now up to $30.

The association, which has pared a $150,000 Saskatchewan government loan down to $47,000 now has 14,500 members all of whom have been repaid their original investment with interest. Members' equity is more than $600,000 which includes net proceeds up to December last year.

Some 400 men and women are at work in the two plants of the co-operative, finishing off the U.N.R.R.A. contracts and preparing for other private contracts with European countries now being negotiated by a company official overseas.

Besides the horse meat contracts, the association has plans for a new processing plant and research laboratory as an auxiliary to the meat department. There, more by-products would be processed leading eventually to sale of pet foods and bone meal.

The association, which started as a farmers' found that they could not receive reasonable prices for their horses, then were unable to switch to cattle processing when the supply of surplus horses dried up. It is expected there are enough prairie beasts to last at least another two years.

Strike Showdown May be Delayed For Six Months

Washington, May 22 (AP)— Five big unions prepared today to bargain out their demands on American railroads under procedures which will delay any strike showdown for perhaps six months.

A. F. Whitney, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, told reporters:

1. The railroad labor organizations feel they have a legal right to call a "quickie" strike any time after Sunday, but do not plan to do anything of the sort.

2. He believes his union and four others will wind up without agree to "start from scratch" under the time-consuming Railway Labor Act in their new negotiations for changes in 44 working rules.

He thinks this should result in "a settlement or a breakdown of negotiations by: Nov. 1."

Whitney's statement last night jibed with the stand of Alvaney Johnston, who said the same thing in Cleveland regarding his Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Twenty other rail unions will follow these legal procedures as a matter of course.

They had been some doubt in the case of the trainmen and engineers, growing out of their 48-hour strike a year ago this week.

At that time the two union had gone through all the steps required under the law, had taken strike votes, and gone on strike May 23.

The strike was broken by President Truman when he threatened to use the army to enforce his terms, which were: A pay raise of 18 1-2 cents an hour, but no changes in working rules for one year.

The year ends Sunday, May 25. The trainmen and engineers have never cancelled the strike votes, and they face the position that when the year was up, they had a right to pick up where they left off.

Six Prairie Hogs Sea Bound to N.Z.

Nokomis, Sask. — (CP)— Six purebred Duroc Jersey hogs, purebreds this central Saskatchewan district, are enjoying an ocean voyage to New Zealand where they will settle on the farm of their new owner.

The four females and two males, total weight 2,430 pounds, and all one year old, were sold by Sam Stolt and Robert Edwards, of this district, 60 miles north of Regina, to a New Zealand farmer.

The hogs left by rail for Vancouver where they will board the S. S. Wairuna for a seven-week voyage. They will spend 30 days in quarantine at a New Zealand port before they start a 450-mile journey to their new home.

More than 1,500 pounds of feed was shipped with the hogs.

COMMUTED TO LIFE

Rome, May 22 — (AP) — The death sentence imposed on Maria Pasquinelli, 34-year-old Italian woman convicted of killing British Brig. R. W. M. De Winton at Pola Feb. 10, was commuted to life imprisonment at hard labor Wednesday.

Miss Pasquinelli testified at her trial in Trieste she killed De Winton as a protest against the terms of the Italian peace treaty. She said she wanted no mercy.

The Allied military government in Trieste said Wednesday it had received petitions bearing "well over 250,000 names" asking clemency.

Madeline Parent Used to Spending Nights in Jail

By BERT ALLEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 22 (CP)—Visiting a few nights in a jail cell is nothing new for Madeleine Parent, fiery "glamor-girl" of Quebec Labor.

The dark-haired, 28-year-old organizer of the United Textile Workers of America today settled down for a two-week sojourn in the St. Jerome jail after she was refused bail yesterday when she appeared in that Laurentian foothills town on charges in connection with her activities in a strike at the Ayers Textile Mill in Lachute, Que. Preliminary hearing was set for June 3.

It was the fourth time she had been arrested since the Lachute strike began six weeks ago, and this time Judge Aime Chasse refused bail because of the "grave nature" of the alleged offences—seditious conspiracy and intimidation of workers. He termed her conduct "a challenge to the law."

Miss Parent first hit the headlines last summer when she helped direct strikers at Dominion Textile Company mills at Valleyfield, Que., and Montreal. Arrested last September on charges arising from the Valleyfield strike, she was convicted in December and sentenced to 30 days in jail. She was freed later when the Court of Appeals reversed the verdict.

Born in Montreal

Born in Montreal of French-Canadian parents, she graduated from McGill University in 1940 after receiving her early education at Ville Marie convent here. She became interested in labor work soon after graduation when she took a position with the Workers' Educational Association, and later assisted in educational work with the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

She joined the U.T.W.A. as organizer in 1943, and helped establish locals in several textile plants throughout the province.

She speaks both French and English with equal ease and often carries on a conversation in both languages at the same time. Quiet and businesslike when not addressing a union meeting, she is a ball of fire on the speaking platform.

Standing about five-foot-three, Miss Parent is worshipped by the union rank and file, both men and women alike.

Seven years ago she married Val Bjarnason of Vancouver. Her husband served overseas as a captain in the Canadian armored corps, and was mentioned in despatches for gallantry in action at Caen. He joined the organizing staff of the U.T.W.A. after his discharge and now is Ontario District Organizer for the Union.

TO GO ON TRIAL

Cornwall, Ont. May 22—(CP)—William Earl (Bowser) Lams, 40-year-old Harrison's Corners farmer, will go on trial for his life for a second time at a special sitting of the Supreme Court which opens here June 10.

Lams, who for 71 days eluded police following discovery of the bodies of his wife and daughter at their lonely farm home near here last August, was freed by a Supreme Court jury last February of a charge of murdering his wife. Now he will be tried for the murder of his nine-year-old daughter, Mary Elizabeth.

FATAL SHOOTING FOLLOWS QUARREL

New York, May 22 — (AP) — A pretty 31-year-old mother of two children was shot five times and killed in a crowded area of Brooklyn Thursday by an unidentified woman who escaped, police said. They immediately threw a cordon around the area of the shooting.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Margaret Tannazzo. Police said she was the mother of two young children and that a divorce from her husband was pending. The shooting followed a quarrel on the street.

AT THE McCARTHY
David Niven copes with the problem of choosing a lawyer from all decades of history to defend his right to be alive in the exciting Technicolor production, "Stairway to Heaven," a United Artists-International release coming Friday to the McCarthy Theatre. And his only plea for living is that he has fallen in love, his only evidence, the tears of his beloved which he has caught on a rose.
The film concerns Niven as an RAF pilot who should have died in a jump without a parachute from a burning bomber, but didn't — and thus is able to carry on his romance with Kim Hunter. Partly as the result of the jump his brain acts in such a manner that he has momentary hallucinations, at which times he argues his right to live. The camera focuses on the Other World as one man sees it, through his imagination, his knowledge and his powers of eye and humor.
Escalator to Other World.
In an amusing scene with Marius Goring who as the French Conductor is sent to bring him to the other world, Niven sits on an escalator which stretches through space from this world to the other. The striking color of the green pantaloons, buckled shoes and lace jabot of the 18th Century Frenchman provides a sharp contrast to the pastel shades of modern pajamas — all photographed in chromatic Technicolor.
The escalator is flanked with white statues of the great men of all ages, including Socrates, Plato, Beethoven, Richelieu and Lincoln. It is from these, with promptings from Goring, that Niven seeks inspiration. But with every great brain in the world's history, the airman cannot find one who understands the human problems of life and love today.
The death of Roger Livesey presents a solution to the dilemma. Niven selects him, a contemporary, to represent him in the heavenly law suit. Using the tear-drop of his beloved on a rose as evidence, he wins the toss.
Co-starred with Niven in this J. Arthur Rank presentation, Raymond Massey, as the prose-

PROBABLY 16 WILL START IN KING'S PLATE

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 22. (CP)—Clearing skies and warmer weather today cheered the hearts of owners, trainers and jockeys busy figuring the probable starting lineup for Saturday's 58th running of the classic King's Plate.

The weather and the Plate starting lineup were the two topics of conversation as the Ontario Jockey Club's Spring meeting proceeded to its climax.

As far as the plate is concerned, the main points remaining to be decided were first, whether the O.J.C. would allow a track-filled field of starters and second, what shape the track itself would be in.

All indications are that a field of at least 16 horses will be named for the Plate, possibly 18, when entries are officially listed Friday. If the weather breaks again and it comes up slop and rain, the limit-field condition would be settled automatically by withdrawal of several contenders.

Start Outside Stalls

The limit field at Old Woodbine Park in Toronto's east end ordinarily is 12 horses, with that number of stalls in the starting gate's chute starting gates. The King's Plate field however long has been figured at more than that and the tracks is expected will start additional horses outside the stalls.

The racing strip itself would probably accommodate 17 or 18 horses comfortably, although those on the outside would have to get going in a hurry if they aren't to be hopelessly shut off behind the field. An owner of one King's Plate hopeful told The Canadian Press last night that he still had not learned officially whether they'd start horses outside of the gate—but he added that if they did, no doubt his horse would be on the outside.

And the horses on the outside are going to have to travel a sizable distance farther than the inside horses when the starter's bugle sounds the "off" and the field starts winging on the mile and an eighth course in chase of Dr. King's 50 guineas and the $16,000 added. This year's King's Plate should be worth between $16,000 and $17,000 altogether.

Probable Starters

Most of the Plate contenders had their last serious workouts yesterday but a few worked again this morning over a heavy track. Charles Hemstead's Hemdoli and Mrs. G. H. Irvin's Squidge were still listed but appeared doubtful starters. Leaving out Squidge and Hemdoli and the 16 probable starters in the plate today appeared as follows:

Leonforte — Braeside Stable, Toronto.
Burbop—Bur-Fit Stable, Toronto.
Yellowknife—W. R! W. Cowie, Toronto.
Wrack—Don Earl Stable, Toronto.

Rookie Award Winner Will Be Honored

(By The Canadian Press)

The Legion's senior baseball team in Kitchener will honor Howie Meeker, N.H.L. rookie award winner, and Bobby Schmurr, former valuable player in the U.S. Hockey League, when Waterloo Tigers play there June 9.

En garde! The Dominion fencing championships will be held for the first time in Vancouver this year, starting June 19.

Kingarvie, last year's King's Plate winner, captured the King Edward Gold Cup Handicap at Woodbine Park in Toronto yesterday and won $2,145 for owner R. E. McLaughlin of Oshawa.

Boston Olympics and New York Rovers of the Eastern U.S. hockey league have sent out feelers about possibility of joining the Quebec Hockey League, Secretary George Slater says the chances of the loop becoming international this year are slim.

The Federal government plans a change in legislation so that race track operators will be unable to use the mails or wires for the purpose of operating parimutuel betting machines. At present the act provides licence for tracks holding Federal charters from the Crown.

A plane trip from England proved the last journey for an English champion male pekingese valued at $5,000. It marched by a buyer in Pennsylvania and died in his arms on arrival at New York. The pekingese, Yu Sen Tu Yu, was described as the first post-war champion of his breed and second champion of all breeds, the de of death was cardiac failure.

A world record for muskellunge was claimed yesterday by Joe Hanser of Milwaukee, who exhibited a 50-inch Muskie he said weighed 64 pounds at the time he caught it with rod and reel in Halfway Lake, Wis. The present record is held by Percy Dalton of Detroit, who hooked one weighing 62 1-2 pounds in the St. Clair River.

Austin Knickerbocker, sold to the Philadelphia Athletics last season for $10,000 by Toronto Maple Leafs, has been sent back to the Leafs as a 24-hour recall basis. He was sent last week to Birmingham, Ala., but Leaf officials reminded A's manager Connie Mack that they had first call on the young player's services should the A's farm system be abandoned and now Austin is in Toronto and the Leafs' new farm, reports George Bennington to Birmingham.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Appears to be plenty of conjecture and controversy over Bobby Hanley's status in baseball circles here. Grapevine reports are that he has had trouble with his allegiance to the Latts squad, while the latter's front office officials state the tall pitcher is their baby and he'll be seen in a jumper uniform this summer. He didn't do himself any damage when he pitched a scoreless game against the Latts other night unless our optics deceived us.

* * *

According to our underground operator, more than one team in the Belleville Baseball Association is dangling juicy offerings under the proboscis of the youthful right-hander this week, however, it is highly probable that when the umps shriek "Play Ball!" Bobby will be flinging them in for the kids' squad.

* * *

Young Art Wright shows a little more than passing promise as a hurler, according to information from the Junior camp. Don Semark, smart young baseball mentor who can whip the ball with the speed of a bullet and then take a fling at the chucking chores. Don was an outstanding player in that hectic, 14 inning game here last week-end against the Ottawa-pardon — Hull Wrightville squad. He made a couple of catches in the outfield that made him look like a major leaguer.

* * *

Roughly thirty young hopefuls turned out with the junkers at the practice the other night, and Coach St. Louis had the heartless task of eliminating their throwing arms, with "Buck" Reeves and Bobby Ash launches behind the plate working out the flinging battery.

* * *

The Canadian National Railway Veterans softball squad which junkets to Peterborough come Saturday in search of a pot of smashed gold which will dangle at the end of Dieter's mashbird tournament, looked impressive in their exhibition game against the American Optical they other gloaming.

* * *

Manager Harold Bawden brother John working on the mound for the first three innings and the veteran spuds have lost none of his speed and cunning. The good right flipper was whistling the apple across the plate with the same fire as of yore and had the Optical sluggers whiffing the air aplenty.

* * *

In fact all the CNR Vet hurling staff was in fine fettle. Marty Hallcorn got credit for the win after relieving volleys and broadsides that had plenty of zip. Al Alexander who essayed the pitching role for the Optical was also in good form, although he was touched for plenty of hits and suffered through Optical errors.

* * *

The Veterans' infield looked good enough for a championship with Wrighton at first, Timmy Williams at second, Vern Gorrer at short, and Red Carson at the hot corner. In the outfield were the reliable (always gets on) Barrage, a newcomer by the name of Doty and three plenty of outer garden promise by the name of Doug Harcourt, member of the Entomological staff here, and Roger Mallory. Temple was doing the receiving with Mallery kicking in with a relief chore. Williamson and other players contributed to the roster. The team on the whole appears to have plenty of hitting power besides a standard hurling staff.

* * *

"Ah'll sush take this Brothuh Jawathan apaht to see what makes him tick some Friday evening," mused Hy Lee the 300-pound Ozark giant, talking over his forthcoming bout with the powerful Mormon wrestler which headlines the card at the Memorial Arena here Friday night. "Ah've never said about this folks and it appears that he is the sum punkins down around Utah. But that state is a powerful long way from brash, and his reputation won't do him no good."

* * *

The tall, muscular hillbilly grimacer, who is only 23 years of age and who used to pull coconuts up by the roots when he was teething, reached down from his straphanging height to pluck a rosebush with which to pick his teeth. "Ah feels like the yere paht of the woods," he grinned, crunching a handful of thorns without pilaking an eyelash. "Reckon Ah might wanna ease back for a while. The gals are mighty purty, and the people fine, although they don't understand ma remahks' lectics at times."

* * *

What makes the honorable Brother might have something to say about that. The Mormon wrestler, who hides a handsome face behind an outcropping of chin shrubbery, is nobody's fool when he is in just action. He won't be easy for Tiger Ozark Lee Sharpe, and that means surefire action from start to finish. Popular Ben Sharpe clashes with Strangler Bob Wagner in the semi-final and that rates main-bout billing if ever a bout did. Then, too, Pat Flanagan will be back to open the ceremonies with Irish Tom Collins. Curtain at 9 o'clock.

* * *

Tularch (George McCullagh) and Leonforte (Jim Coleman) look like the pick of the bangtails to go to the post in the 88th running of the King's Plate on Saturday. Both won smashing victories in the Plate Trials last week-end. Jim's horse racing like any other sport, is not over until the fat lady sings, but anything can happen. The race will be aired over CFRB starting at 4 p.m.

* * *

The coming season looks like one for the books in Toronto as the Belleville Lows Bowling Club will be there. In fact, the sport has had a decided upsurge in interest all over the district. This is evidenced in the fact that the District League has been upped to ten teams this year, with other additions looking to come. The district league schedule will be ready in a day or so, and as you have probably noticed, the tournament date for the season were published yesterday.

* * *

Weather permitting the greens of the club will be opened on Monday, May 26, officials announced today. In the meantime bowling "rookies" will be allowed to use the greens tonight and tomorrow night for instructional purposes, incidentally, the Wednesday night league starts the season next Wednesday, May 28, afternoon, with the invitation bridge and tea in the club rooms.

* * *

Interest in the Men's Rinks Tournament and the famous Corbin Gold Cup has become international. Entries are already rolling in for the Civic Holiday blue ribbon bowling classic, which this year falls, on August 4. Borden farm far-off Florida have entered as well as those from Buffalo, Niagara, Montreal, Quebec, etc. Looks like a packed entry list again this year.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 22 — (CP) — Walter (Red) Barber, the popular sports broadcaster, drew a well-deserved round of applause when addressed an Episcopal congregation appealing for funds to rebuild St. Barnabas House 86-year-old mission that serves the needy of the city's lower east side with homeless women and children. . . . Barber, chairman of the $500,000 drive to rebuild St. Barnabas, used baseball terminology to describe the mission's needs. Calling for the application of "hustle," "a ten pitching staff" and "Spring training, or going to church on Sunday, is not enough. We must play the game every day, and when the season is over we must prepare for the next one."

Odds and Ends

Alex Jany, the French freestyle champion, consistently beaten during his North American tour, found American pools shorter and more shallow than those he had been used to in France. . . . he he remains high in his praise for North American swimmers. "I went there with considerable doubt as to the versatility of some of their records," he said. "But now I know they are true" . . . the San Francisco entry in the all-American pro-football conference has signed up Wallace Wade, coach of Vanderbilt, first American boy of Japanese parentage to break into the big league pro gridiron. . . . a 175-pound halfback he was a triple-threat star on a Hawaiian all-star team last year. . . . the scores in the Washington (D.C.) Celebrity Golfers' Tournament didn't mean much to the celebrity-conscious crowd. Many onlookers gaze on the personages they had heard or read about, and rarely had a vague idea of what golf was all about. . . one woman remarked as she watched Jack Dempsey use an iron off the tee: "Look, he's using a different kind of bat from the others."

Brooklyn Using More Hurlers Than Leo Durocher's Record-Breaking Number Last Season

In 28 Games So Far 81 Pitchers Have Made Trip to Mound

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Leo Durocher from Brooklyn is gone but his motto "Spare not the pitchers," lingers on.

Last year Durocher set a record for changing chuckers when he used 380 in 157 games while managing the Dodgers to second place in the National League pennant race.

Observers were of the opinion that such extravagant use of pitchers would never be repeated unless it was by the irrepressible Durocher again. But now mild-mannered, conservative Burt Shotton holds the Dodger reins and out does Durocher in the art of juggling hurlers.

In the Dodgers' 28 games to date, of which they've won 15 Shotton has used 81 pitchers an average of 2.89 a game.

Shotton practically gave the pitching staff a vacation yesterday when he called upon only two hurlers to subdue the submerged St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in 10 innings. Featherder Joe Hatten opened up for Brooklyn and was replaced by Fireman Hugh Casey, who failed to gain his third victory of the season.

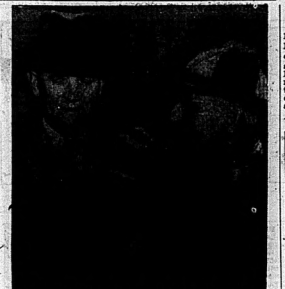
Chicago Cubs recaptured first place by shading Philadelphia Phils 2-1 in Wrigley Field. Rookie righthander Doyle Lade, aided by ace reliefer Emil Kush, shackled the Phils with six hits.

Frank Shea, rookie righthander of New York Yanks, gained his first major league shutout and his fourth triumph by outpitching the mighty lefty, Hal Newhouser, of Detroit Tigers 5-0 before 46,944 Yankee stadium fans.

Joe Dimaggio started Newhouser on the road to his fifth defeat against three wins when he doubled with the bases loaded in the first inning to drive in three runs. The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the Yankees and whittled Detroit's first-place Americats League margin to a half game.

Philadelphia Athletics came to life in the eighth with a five-run rallie against rookie Pete Gebrian and two successors to defeat Chicago White Sox 5-3.

Bobo Newsom gained his first win of the season and his 195th of his big league career when he pitched Washington Senators to a 7-3 night game victory over St. Louis Browns. Newsom, after six scoreless innings, faltered in the seventh and needed help from Tom Ferrick. The win ended a four-game losing slump for the Nats.



LOU JOHNSON, 81-year-old driver of trotters and pacers, shows his strong hands to W. A. Lawrason, Toronto, secretary of the Canadian Trotting Association. The Brantford veteran has started his 67th season and wears the colors of Frank Plaunt's stable.

Hammering Hank Sauer Enjoying His Best Year

(By The Associated Press)

"Hammering Hank" Sauer, veteran first baseman—outfielder of Syracuse Chiefs, is enjoying one of his finest years at the plate but his mates are not utilizing his heavy stickwork to the fullest advantage.

The big slugger currently is slapping International League pitching at a .390 clip and has socked eight homers and driven in 21 runs, but the Chiefs are having a hard time holding their fourth-place slot

At Jersey City last night, Sauer twice hit for the circuit but the Mayor Williams O'Dwyer, have agreed to renew the intra-city rivalry initiated last year. The teams will again play a best-of-three series for the Mayor O'Dwyer Trophy.

All games will be staged at night, the first to take place at the Polo Grounds June 12 and the second at Yankee Stadium August 18. If a third is necessary it will be played August 26 at the Polo grounds.

London, May 22 (CP)—Robert Webber of London, manufacturer of footballs for nearly 50 years, would be understood that Charlton Athletic-Burnley Football Association cup final ball didn't burst. It was a burst bladder, he says.

"It was a million-to-one chance happened 30 minutes from time and, apart from Charlton's cup victory, this was one of the topics of conversation among the 100,000 fans.

"I think it is safe to assume that the bladder punctured, rather than the ball burst," said Webber. "People talk of balls bursting but, as with automobile tires, it is usually a case of a puncture when the pressure goes.

"It might be the fault of a nail picked up (probably from one of the player's shoes, eh!) or any one of half-a-dozen other causes."

Many spectators thought the strong sun had something to do with it, but Webber disagreed. "It was just one of those things, and the sun had nothing to do with it."

Paul Irwin, London Sunday Express sports columnist, is a brave man.

He took a lot of constructive criticism, some of it anonymous, from the customers when he picked Len Woodcock to win over Joe Baksi in their heavyweight bout at Harringay Arena. Everyone remembers what happened to Irwin and now Paul leads with another right-

"I...am ready to take Woodcock to revenge he is decision if the boys ever meet again."

He said it sounds crazy, "but crazier things have happened, including Max Schmeling's defeat in 120 seconds after he made a red ruin of Joe Louis in their first fight.

"A blow out of the blue starts off Louis on the slide when Hitler's favorite gladiator put him away in 12 rounds. And I say a punch coming from nowhere—one Brown would have licked cut his glove most nights—began Baksi's victory at Harringay."

Irwin says Woodcock is young enough—and good enough—to wipe out recent memories" if he comes back confidently when his (fractured) jaw mends.

But a lot of the populace are wondering if Bruce will ever fight again.

Tommy Croomba, London West Ham motorcycle speedway rider, didn't know it at the time but he placed second in a recent race. He was dragged several yards when his machine tangled with another. The race was re-run and after the finish he was taken to hospital suffering from concussion.

The next day he was told of the accident and his race.

Vancouver, May 22 — (CP) — Relaxation at Canada's "Blue laws," long sought in Eastern Canada, is advocated by Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell in his daily Before and After column.

He asks if games could not be played from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays without interfering with church work. He says that everywhere outside of the cities, baseball and other games are featured on the Sabbath afternoon.

"Even in Toronto The Good there is considerable support for a change in the present and, I think, outdated blue laws."

Ken quotes Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve as follows: "Wonder when we will smarten up and have Sunday ball here? Just because a guy can't afford a car, a golf membership or a summer cottage, his sport is cut off in this town on his one good holiday."

"Of course," McConnell writes, "Reeve is right."

There is Sunday golf, swimming, fishing and hunting permitted in B.C.

But if anybody wants a ball game, the roof falls in and presumably citizens with long faces will go around lamenting the ruination of Canadians."

He laments the fate of people who have no gardens to work in, no cars to drive in, and no fishing tackle or hunting gear from which to get pleasure.

"The street cars run and they can board the trams, complete with their families and reach the scene of a ball game or whatever sport may be carded."

McConnell says that youth would profit by the lifting of the restrictions on Sunday sport. "Youth of the land, out in the open enjoying their sports either by playing the games themselves or watching others perform, must benefit tremendously."

Safecrackers Get Over $800 At Peterborough

Peterboro, May 16 (CP) —Safe crackers early today obtained more than $800 when they blew open a safe at Campbell's dairy in west-end Peterborough.

At 4 a.m. police arrested two men loading material into an automobile but, thinking the men were dairy employees, did not call police until later.

William Owens, Peterborough mayor and the dairy's general manager, said the cash was for payment of a trucker who collects cream daily from farmers.

CHAPTER 22

"Just like that!" Dru said furiously. "Oh, it's all very simple isn't it? Now that you've found a way to make some money, you don't have to marry me. You've made up your mind you're a big boy now and you can support yourself. Or maybe you've met a woman with more money than I've got."

That got under Hill's skin more than anything she could have said to him. He shot out at her angrily.

"I had no intention of being your stepdo. I'm hardly the type for it. Hillyer is going to work."

"Your wife supported you, didn't she?" Dru yelled. "With her music school. While you played golf and ran around having a good time. You can't deny that! Deny it! Deny it!"

Hill turned livid! "Don't forget my parents left an estate. I could afford to play for a few years on that. I'm not trying to excuse myself for not having more ambition. But all that has changed. I'm going to make up for it. Hillyer is going at work."

"In a pig's eye!" Dru yelled childishly. "I've seen a fine picture of you working your fingers to the bone!"

Hill got mad. "Dru," he said as patiently as he could, "will you please go to bed and let me get to work! There's no use in discussing this thing any further. You know how I feel."

Dru whirled, and before Hill realized what she was about to do, she picked up an ash tray from the table and threw it at his head. It glanced off the side of his ear, nearly grazing it. Hill backed away, shouting at the frantic woman.

Stop it, you little fool; Stop it!"

But Drusilla Bayne had no intention of stopping. Next she grabbed a vase from the table and it landed at his feet to crash into a hundred little pieces. For the next few minutes everything was bedlam. Fortunately, Hill's apartment was sound proof and no one outside heard the commotion.

Dru ran around the room like a maniac, throwing everything she could lay her hands on. Hill managed to get behind the hall door without serious mishap. He breathed easier, but his heart pounded furiously as Drusilla proceeded to methodically wreck the place.

Hill was afraid to try to stop her, because he did not want to be accused of beating her. There was no doubt if he laid a hand on her she would accuse him of trying to murder her in his apartment, for the benefit of the newspaper headlines.

When Drusilla could find nothing else to throw, she grabbed up her hat and coat and ran from the room swearing that Hill would see from her later. He came from behind the door, trying to find wreckage finally. Even the plans on his desk were torn to shreds.

A little fearfully Hill bought newspapers the next day fully expecting to find a wild story about Dru by Drusilla to the press. Up to late afternoon there was nothing.

But the morning tabloids carried pictures of the "Blonde Bombshell" and the band leader, in the front pages. They eloped to Virginia by airplane, to be married. Hill was weak in relief as she realized how easily he had escaped from Drusilla Bayne. She had married Jack to save her face, which was all very fortunate for Hill.

It didn't matter that his apartment was a shambles. The damaged things were all his, and he could well afford to pay that price for his release. Whistling almost cheerfully Hill packed up and moved across the street from April's apartment in Douglaston where he could be near Kenny.

Spring was in the air the day, a few weeks later, when April was brought back home, Dr. Mason had decided it was best to keep the truth from her, and she had been told the doctors felt that there was no hope that she would ever walk again.

Cherry and Gay were with April in the ambulance when it drove up in front of the apartment. Hill watched from his room across the street, as two men and a white capped nurse took the stretcher from the ambulance. Finally he turned away because the sight was too much for him to bear.

Hyacinthe stood in the doorway, wiping his tears with the big white apron she always wore. Kenny ran down the steps yelling joyfully:

"Mommy! Mommy!" Oh, here comes my Mommy!"

April was wrapped in blankets, so that only the white drawn face could scarcely be seen.

"Oh, Kenny!" she cried as the men who carried the stretcher. "I wasn't sure Kenny darling, Mommy will kiss you in just a little minute."

Cherry and Gay were both weeping tears mixed with both joy and grief. The homecoming was clouded with the tragic thought that some day April must know she would be chained to a wheel chair.

They carried April's stretcher into the bedroom and the men left the nurse, supervised the two men who lifted her gently and placed her in one of the twin beds in her own blue and gold room.

April smiled, "This is heavenly. I'd forgotten how comfortable a bed can be!"

Kenny climbed up and kissed his mother and she held him close and April's tears dampened his rugged little face. Hyacinthe wiped her eyes on the check and the old colored woman's face was comical in it's mixed picture of happiness and sorrow.

"It's a happies' day of mah whole life," Hyacinthe cried. "De lawd done answered mah prayers an' brought mah baby home to her ole mammy. Bless dy lawd!"

Miss Sayers decided her patient had had enough excitement for the time being and so she said firmly but kindly:

"I'm afraid you'll have to run along for a little while now and let Mrs. Hillyer rest."

Kenny's chin quivered. "Me—too nurse. I—I'm her little boy."

Miss Sayers smiled at Kenny gently, relenting.

"If you are a very quiet boy, I'll let you sit beside your mommy's bed and hold her hand a little while. Maybe you can put her to sleep. But you mustn't talk."

Kenny grinned happily; "Oh, thank you. I'll be very quiet. I'll be your 'distant, won't I?"

Miss Sayers smiled. "You certainly will. You can help me a lot. Now you sit here."

April put him her hand, closing her eyes tightly.

"I know Kenny can rest now, darling, with you here to take care of her. We'll talk about lots of things later. I've so many things to ask you."

"Sh-h, quiet Mommy," Kenny whispered. "You mustn't talk. Sh-h close your eyes."

Much to Miss Sayers surprise she very nearly did fall asleep with Kenny's hand in hers. From her breathing and the look of contentment on her face, Miss Sayers knew it was the most restful nap April had enjoyed since the accident. Even though she slept for an hour, Kenny refused to budge from her side. His small arm was numb from the one position when April opened her eyes.

"Why, darling!" she said surprised, "have I really been asleep?"

"For six or seven hours," Kenny stood up, stretching."

"He wouldn't get up." Miss Sayers smiled. "You'd better run along and take the kinks out of your legs and arms, honey," the nurse advised, "an' I'll shout your supper time!"

Kenny ran from the room with alacrity. Having had quite enough of sitting in one spot. Even if it was beside his beloved mother's bed.

Gay came in a little later.

"Why don't you take a little rest?" she suggested to Miss Sayers. "Or go for a walk? I'd —like to talk a little while with your patient, if I may."

"I'd love a little air," the nurse got up from her chair. "And I want to talk with the maid about Mrs. Hillyer's diet."

When Miss Sayers had gone out and closed the door, Gay bent over April and—kissing her cheek.

"Oh, darling!" she choked. "You don't know how it means to me to see you out of the hospital."

"You can't know what it means to me," April sighed. "Imagine, being home again."

Gay sat down. "Curt wanted so much to have you taken directly to Pennington," she said. "He's worried about whether you'll have everything you need here. Why don't you marry him now, April? He's heart broken because you won't."

April shook her head firmly. "No, Gay, I can't do that! I'll never marry until I can walk. Do you think I would be such a burden to Curt? It wouldn't be fair to him. Oh, can't you understand?"

Gay turned her face away. "Oh, but I think you're wrong, dear. All he asks is the right to take care of you."

"He's an angel," April's eyes filled with tears. "I said, Hill." You wouldn't; I know you wouldn't!" Gay's voice trembled. "I wouldn't if it were anybody but Curt; she said, stifled. "He's so different from any other man, darling. He has such a great heart."

"That's just it," April stirred restlessly. "I don't want any man to marry me because he pities me. I couldn't bear it. Please make him understand."

Gay got up and walked to the window, looking out on the bare trees that would soon burst forth with leaves and flowers.

"—I'll try to make Curt understand," she said very quietly, her own heart breaking.

Hell put in an appearance after dinner. Kenny was getting his bath and Miss Sayers left the room, leaving April and Hill alone.

"How nice to see you," April smiled a welcome. "Sit down here beside the bed and tell me all about things. How's the golf school coming along?"

"Couldn't be better," Hill assured her cheerfully. "We've signed fifty members for the club, and thirty seven of them want golf lessons."

"Marvelous!" April clapped her hands. "Oh, I'm glad, Hill!"

"Not half as glad as I am," he smiled. "It's grand to see you looking so chipper. How are you feeling?"

"Fine," April smiled. "Just a little tired of being in bed. I'm half tempted to take this darn cast off and go for a walk. If they don't take it off pretty soon, I'll be grown to it."

Hill caught his breath painfully. "You must be patient," he reminded her. "If you get too reckless you'll have to lay you down. By the way, I'm a neighbor of yours."

"What do you mean?"

"I live across the street," Hill told her. "I took a room there a few weeks ago, so I could be nearer Kenny."

"Oh, that was nice," April treated a smile on the coverlet of her bed. "It was very thoughtful of you, Hill. I feel so better knowing you're near enough to keep an eye on him while I'm tied down."

Hill smiled crookedly: "Will you? I can keep him in the air out at the club as soon as I think it's all right."

"Of course it's all right," April said with a catch in her voice. "Anything would make me happier. Hill than for you to share Kenny with me. That's the way I always wanted it. You know that."

Hill smiled whitely. "Swell. well then that's settled. It'll be almost like a camp for him out there this summer. He can run wild with his golf clubs."

Production Lines At Ford Plants Still Rolling

Detroit, May 22 — (AP)—Production lines at three big factories of the Ford Motor Company, being watched for any signs of faltering, rolled on today under the handicap of a foremen's strike.

As the walkout of approximately 3,800 organized supervisory men headed into a second day, the ultimate effect on production remained speculative.

It was conceded, however, that serious results were inevitable if the strike persisted into any considerable number of days.

Immediately affected were Ford's three Detroit area plants employing 78,000 production workers who, with the employees of General Motors and Chrysler, produce the bulk of the automobiles for the United States.

Members of the Foremen's Association of America, independent union, walked out at the Ford Rouge, Highland Park and Lincoln plants yesterday. Their complaint, in general, was over accumulated grievances, but not basic wages.

At the same time the company refused to budge from its position that the foremen were members of management and therefore not entitled to strike.

The Ford — F.A.A. contract, until terminated recently by mutual consent, had been in force since 1944 although the company challenged the desirability of union-ization of supervisory men.

Henry Ford II, company president, had sought to ward off a strike with an offer to renew the contract. The F.A.A. rejected the proposal.

LINCOLN COUNTY HAYE INCREASED TWO MILLS

St. Catharines, May 22 —(CP) — The Lincoln county council yesterday set its mill rate for the year at 16.147 mills, an increase of two mills over last year and an increase of four smills over 1945. Mill rate Lincoln county needs $310,800 which is up $40,000 over 1946.

Council also endorsed a resolution which would permit old age pensioners to earn up to $300 a year.

GONE WITH GOLD RUSH

The golden bear of California, a variety of the grizzly, has long been extinct.

"Ring" Sneaking Communists From Mexico into U.S.

Washington, May 22 —(AP)— Representative John McDowell (Rep.-Pa.) said today a House of Representatives un-American Activities sub-committee has uncovered evidence that a "ring" is sneaking Communists into the United States.

McDowell told the subcommittee also found "Communism deeply entrenched in Hollywood and the movies."

Just back from California, he told reporters he returned by way of the Mexican border to check on "tips and leads" regarding the ring.

"There is absolutely no question that there is such a ring," he said.

He gave no details as to where the ring operates along the border or how many people it is getting across.

McDowell and chairman J. Parnell Thomas (Rep.-N.J.) were members of a sub-committee which went to the coast for hearings on Communism in Hollywood.

"It was a highly successful trip," McDowell said. "Communism has gotten into films. We are prepared to name the films and who got it in and how.

"It was put over cleverly. The producers are not to blame. The wool was pulled over their eyes.

POUR WATER ON PAVEMENT ON WHICH "GAS" SPILLED

Montreal, May 22 —(CP)— Bystanders on the Catherine Street-St. Antoine Streets intersection last night saw firemen pouring several tons of water on the pavement — but not smoke or fire.

A fire department hose was summoned after an automobile gas tank split and spilled its contents over the street. The automobile had been back-knifed between two other vehicles.

Traffic was halted and pedestrians steered clear of the area, fearing a lighted cigaret or spark would set off an explosion.

FISH FOR KITTY

A wildcat common in eastern India subsists entirely upon fish which it catches in rivers.

By SAM GORDON

The Bridge Expert

It is not uncommon to hear a good bridge player say: "I had it to do over again, I could make this hand." Nor is it uncommon for him to discover more than one way it could be made.

You can solve makeable bridge problem in play. All you have to do is follow The Eight-Seven's seven principles of play. They are in a list showing their order of preference.

A player may ignore the order of preference of plays. When he does, he may find a different way of making the same contract. But it could be in this deal we have been discussing.

You read here how more than one master made six hearts. They did it with three trump rounds, two top diamonds, spade ace, a finesse of dummy spade ten, unblocking ace, diamond king, three spades, dummy was in the lead with spade queen.

By this time dummy had club king and jack with two diamonds. A trump and three diamonds to the ace were in south. East held three diamonds and a club, and must hold three diamonds to be a threat.

Now dummy leads the club and south ruffs. This leaves east with only diamonds and small diamond from south and in dummy gives a trick to ♠ten which must become back with a diamond.

If it is the ♠seven, south ace takes and dummy jack has the last. If east discards the ten, dummy jack wins and south ace has the last.

There seems to be more than one way to peel an onion.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

As you read this, an excited little gal in London, England, is revelling in the acclaim of the crowds. She sat at Lilly Pons who tonight attends the British premiere of her latest picture, "Renegie Hall."

With her conductor husband, Andre Kostelanetz, she has been in England since Pearce one the past weeks waiting to lend her charm to the premiere which will be held in the Plaza Theatre. "Carnegie Hall" will appear in the Plaza for a month after which then move to the Pavillion, a cinema house near to Leicester Square.

The georgeous singer will remain in Europe for the Paris opening of the picture scheduled for the Olympe Elysee Theatre sometime in July.

Another Child Star.

William Saroyan is something like olives — you either like his work plenty or you like it not at all. His "The Time of Your Life" is slated for filming and nine-year-old Marlene Aames will play a leading part in the William Cagney production. You may remember her as the kid sister in the "Best Years of Our Lives." Jimmy Cagney will play the lead and Bill Bendix a strong supporting role.

Small Print.

Movie audiences probably pay as much attention to the matter on the cast list of most pictures as they do the fine print on the back of a street-car transfer.

However, if it wasn't for the people who do the music, effects, lighting, and technical skill in the movies, they would be as dead as a flounder. So it is nice to note that one of the small print boys, Morris Stoloff, who directs Columbia's music department, has received some just acclaim. He has been invited to conduct the orchestra of the Venice Theatre at the International Exhibition of Motion Picture Technique, Aug. 14.

Incidentally, Stoloff won't make the trip but a score written by him for the "Lesion Story" has been forwarded to the exhibition and selections from it will be heard under the direction of one of Italy's most renowned conductors.

Woodstock, May 22 —(CP)— The three little pigs that left Charles Bink's pig pen weren't going to market, they were wandering along a street seeing the sights, according to three youths who were charged with stealing the pigs. Magistrate G. Groom reserved judgment.

25,630 TROUT

London, Ont., May 22 —(CP)— Placing of 35,000 trout in 14 Middlesex county streams has been completed, and Ganns Warden Bert Smalley warns that for every trout under seven inches in length taken from the streams by anglers a $25 fine will be imposed.

"Have New Strength and Energy Since Taking Syntona," Says This Man

"Appetite Improved; Free of Headaches and Constipation, Rid of Fatigue, Worn-out Feeling — Enjoys New Vigor. Praises it Highly.

If you feel tired, worn out and nervous; if bowels are constipated and you suffer with indigestion, gas, headaches or dizzy spells; if you have backache or sore, aching joints and muscles, try a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and the chances are that you, too, may find this medicine to be just what you need to make you feel like yourself again.

"I was not feeling well for the past few months," said Mr. George W. Jackson, 89 King Street, London, Ont., in a recent interview.

"My appetite was so poor, I never cared whether I ate or not. Although I usually felt fatigued and worn out all during the day. I just couldn't get to sleep after going to bed at night. Try as I would, I'd just lie awake and feel tired all the more. I was really terrified at times when I'd suffer frequent throbbing headaches, my tongue was always coated, and I was constantly troubled with constipation.

"One day at the drug store, I happened to see Syntona on display. And when I read of all the herbs and roots contained in Syntona, I thought to myself that I'd certainly give it a trial because this medicine proved to be just what I needed. Since I've been taking Syntona my appetite has picked up and I am really enjoying my meals again. My tongue has cleared up, I'm free from headaches and my bowels now move regularly. Best of all, I get a good night's rest and my sleep is restful sleep at night. As a result I have more strength and energy and I feel that my entire system has been built up and improved.

Syntona is sold in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Ratepayers to Vote On Closing Of Gas Plant in City

Council Proposes to Close Plant on December 31st

Property owners in the city of Belleville will be asked to vote on June 30th to go to the polls to vote on the question of closing the local gas plant.

This was the decision of council members at their regular committee meeting Thursday evening when they authorized the city solicitor to prepare the necessary by-law regarding the closing of the gas plant and, after taking the vote of the ratepayers, Council at a special meeting held some weeks ago voted to close the gas plant as of December 31st, 1947, but the matter first called for a vote of the ratepayers.

Council rescinded a previous recommendation passed at the council meeting for remuneration to be paid to the city dog catcher for destroying stray dogs, and appointed a committee of Aldermen Clarke, Latimer and Chambers to look into the matter thoroughly and report to council. Council had previously recommended that the dog catcher be paid $1 each for destroying stray dogs.

Tender Accepted

The Diamond Construction Company tender for $1,300 was accepted for the reconstruction of a portion of the sidewalk on Bridge Street on a petition signed by seven ratepayers. Finally the residents calling for sewer construction on Mitchell Ave., between numbers 41 to 46 were referred for checking of signatures.

A recommendation for the Department of Public Works to repair the roadway from Bridge Street to a point south of Dublin Lock was referred to the city engineer for action. A recommendation that the Dublin Street extension roadway be put into condition was referred to the city engineer's department.

The city comptroller was authorized to attend the convention of the Association of Municipal Engineers to be held at Sudbury June 16, 17, 18.

Astronomer Says Many Sun Spots Cause of Rain

London, Ont., May 23 (CP)—Dr. W. G. Milgrove, University of Western Ontario astronomer, says he is not optimistic about a summer of generally fair weather.

It is a matter of sun spots he said, as he observed the reflector board at the observatory Thursday. He counted between 250 and 300 spots and the highest count previously was 200 in February 1946.

"Sun spots," he explained, "are the cause of inclement weather."

The more sun spots the hotter the sun, which causes a disproportion of heat and water bodies and brings more precipitation.

There is a chance, however, that the spots may not continue to increase in a position to hit at this district's longitude and latitude and so London could escape the direct effect of the spots.

Govt. May Face First Vote of Non-Confidence

Liberal Members Asked To Remain in Ottawa To Register Vote On C.C.F. Motion

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 23 (CP)— The government may face today the first vote of non-confidence motions moved during the debate on the budget brought down April 29.

Liberal members said last night they had been instructed to remain in Ottawa on the possibility of a vote will be taken on the C.C.F. motion of non-confidence.

This motion declared the House to express regret that the budget had failed to relieve those Canadians who do not earn enough to pay income tax and did not make basic exemptions for income tax payers had not been increased.

The motion was in the form of a sub-amendment to the original Conservative motion which said the budget had provided no encouragement to agriculture and encouragement to agriculture and mining and given no indication that the government planned to reconvene the Dominion-Provincial conference.

J. H. Ferguson (PC—Simcoe North) urged the government to end its labor machinery to "purge" Canada's Trade Unions of "Communistic influence."

He said the Communist party had changed its name but its underlying strategy remained unchanged. It was "straight for bloody revolution." Its "contamination" of labor and trade unions had led to Canada's downfall.

Mr. Ferguson referred specifically to the charges by Pat Sullivan, former Seaman's union leader that Communists had gained control of that organization and said that if this were proved it was time for true "surely we can make laws speedily and efficiently to deal with a situation." The seamen had a right to protection.

The government should use its labor relations machinery to see that the men who represent the seamen in arbitrary disputes are elected by properly conducted elections and a secret ballot and that every member of the union has been given an opportunity to vote.

Critical of Labor

"Let it be known to all labor unions that the government of the people of Canada with the proof before them, believes in full employment and will not permit a few to hold up the country to ransom," he declared.

Difficulty Getting Right Man to Run U.S. Program In Greece May Delay Project

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 23 —(AP)— President Truman's difficulty in finding a top-notch man to run the New United States Aid program in Greece threatens some delay in getting the operation under way.

The State Department already is reported acquiring a $100,000,000 reconstruction corporation loan to finance the start of the $400,000,000 undertaking to buttress Greece and Turkey against any extension of Soviet power over those countries.

But officials made it clear that despite the availability of money and the authority granted by Congress in the bill which Truman signed yesterday, nothing really substantial can be accomplished until an administrator is appointed and takes over his duties.

The declared objective for Greece is a double harness undertaking with Britain. And while fast action is due to two problems bothering American officials.

One of these concerns payments made by Britain to Greece from funds left over after March 31—the deadline British authorities set for withdrawing their forces and aid to Greece because of economic difficulties at home.

The other problem concerns the presence of British troops in Greece.

On the first hand Washington and London are negotiating for a financial settlement, with British officials reported insisting they should be reimbursed in full for their $250,000,000 payments to the Greek Army after March 31. The Americans are said to contend that Britain should be willing to bear those expenses as a contribution to the authorization for the American program became legally effective.

American officials expressed the belief some compromise settlement will be reached.

Concerning the presence of British troops in Greece, London spokesmen have said for months that except a training force would be withdrawn this summer.

Top American policy makers are known to have opposed this withdrawal. Their view is that British troops have been a stabilizing influence in Greece, especially along the border troubles with Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. Some feel they should there in some force as long as needed for that purpose.

RIVERS BURSTING BANKS AT MANY ONT., QUE. POINTS

General Forecast of Rain Promises No Relief For Flooded Communities

(By The Canadian Press)

A general forecast of rain today and tomorrow, hitting flood-harassed communities in Ontario and Quebec, offered little hope to Lake Liddeard in Northern Ontario perhaps the most severely threatened.

Swollen by recent rains and, in the south, by late-arriving spring freshets, rivers were bursting their banks at many points in the two provinces.

In the north, large areas were flooded as the result of New Liskeard by the floodwaters of Lake Temiskaming. Four years ago the record flood of the Quinze Dam at the north end of Lake Timiskaming was under weight of river waters from the north, the business section of Haileybury would be inundated with heavy losses.

Around Timmins farmers were getting emergency supplies as a result of the record floods covered a wide area. The Mississippi River in flood in Dunlop causing in northwestern Ontario.

The Grand and the Nith rivers were in flood in western Ontario with back of the Waterloo County under water. A new residential section of Galt was turned into a series of miniature lakes by the flooding Mill creek.

In eastern Ontario, the Ottawa and Gatineau rivers were in flood with the Ottawa at 25 feet above normal and numerous summer cottages damaged by floods from the Gatineau.

In northern Quebec the Harricana at Amos was flooding roadways and farming areas and farmers are using boats to move along a highway stretch that was under several feet of water. A great log boom broke loose at Harricana and crews were being flown by air in an attempt to keep the logs before they are swept into James Bay.

Damage Caused

Damage was also caused to the Yamaska River in Quebec City yesterday by high water of the Richelieu River. Similar trouble prevailed sections of Levis on the south shore of the province where about 50 persons were driven from their homes.

At the precise hour, British time, at which Fregit had acted his two empire telepathy-correspondents in Wales of the moment they had written for him, he scribbled on a piece of paper and declared that the envelopes be opened. The mailed number was then telephoned to a second newspaperman, Harold Williams of the Press Association who wrote them down in shorthand.

Fregit mentioned that this was done and threw down his own sheet of paper which read: "The number will be sent by the word "bagpipe" spelled "backpipe."

The second Associated Press man sent directly to Mr. Randal was sent directly to Mr. Harrison from the Canadian Press office in London and Mr. Dunn's from the Reuters Limited Associated Press office in London. Mr. Harrison said the letters were not opened until after Fregit had received his message in the theatre.

BLAME YUGOSLAVS FOR SUPPORT OF GUERRILLA WAR

Albania and Bulgaria Blameworthy To a Lesser Degree Result of Study

By ERNEST FISCHER

Geneva, May 23 (AP)—The 11-power Balkans investigation commission today formally signed a report to the United Nations Security Council recommending that support of armed bands violating Balkan frontiers should be considered a threat to world peace, subject to action by the U.N.

American and Russian sources said there was no formal vote on this conclusion, but that nine states favored it. Russia and Poland were opposed.

The informants also said that the commission approved 6 to 5 a decision blaming Yugoslavia, primarily, for the support of guerrilla warfare in northern Greece. They declared that Albania and Bulgaria were blameworthy to a lesser degree. Rebels within Greece were termed a contributing factor.

Along with the 231-page final report, terminating their four-month investigation of Greek frontier incidents, the commission submitted a 50-page supplement to the Security Council more than 10,000 pages of documents and exhibits relating to the investigation.

The majority proposals were these:

1. That the governments of Greece, Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia refrain from any hostile action against each neighboring state, from any support of elements in the neighboring countries aiming at the overthrow of lawful governments; or, should such support exist, to put a stop to the appropriate organ at the United Nations.

Should Form Commission

2. That the countries concerned establish frontier conventions.

3. That the Security Council should establish, a commission or commissioner in the Balkans, to consist of at least two years to report to the council every three months on the functions of the commission; to investigate further violations and complaints and to settle controversies on frontier violation and on the repatriation of frontier conventions.

The report said the commission believed the refugees and those who fled their countries "are a very important contributing factor to the present situation," and that Yugoslav propaganda served to inflame passions which already are too high."

The commission said also that the refusal of some countries to admit the commission into them now defined had complicated the situation.

The commission left to Greece the problem of amnesty for political prisoners there.

Police Find No Evidence of Foul Play; No Suspects

Kettlewell Released From Hospital Returns Home

Orillia, May 22 — (CP)—Possibility of suicide in the drowning of pretty Christina Kettlewell was investigated by police today after they said there was no evidence of foul play in the death of the pretty 22-year-old bride and the mysterious burning of her isolated honeymoon cottage.

Officers said both Jack Kettlewell, her 25-year-old husband, eight days, and Ronald Harris, his best friend who dragged him from the flaming cottage a few hours after the girl's body was found, had co-operated with them fully.

Kettlewell, recovered from a head injury and what hospital authorities said were apparent effects of a drug which left him in a dazed condition when he awoke, was released from hospital Thursday night and returned to his Minico, Ont., home.

Funeral services for the girl will be held in Minico Monday.

A senior police official said the suicide possibility was one of those angles of the case would be thoroughly checked as investigation led to the lonely site of Barrie's burned cottage by the Severn River, where the girl's body was found.

Harris went over the scene with police yesterday and later typed a 3,000-word statement before disappearing to return to Toronto. He said he had no idea of the cause of the fire.

Meanwhile in Toronto Chief Inspector Albert Ward emphasized that there was no suggestion of foul play and "there are no suspects in the case."

London, May 23 — (CP)—The National Newsletter, published weekly by a group of Conservative members of parliament, predicts that the United States will make more dollars available to Britain "a further large sum in dollars, perhaps £1,000,000,000 ($4,000,000,000)."

"It may be interest-free and very long-term," the Newsletter said. "On the other side of the account the British government will make available a similar sterling credit which can be used by the British export industry and for purchases in the Colonial Empire."

The publication said "Knowledgeable men in the Government and in the Treasury" predict that more States' own salvation that more dollars should be transfused into the British economy" and added that the years to come will be seen that the present economic interdependence of Britain and the United States has created a situation of ten very helpful in the growth of a de facto world government."

The Netherlands Army Intervenes When Sudanese Seize Buildings

—Batavia, Java, May 23 —(AP) —The Netherlands army announced today that the Sudanese people's Party had seized control of administration buildings of the Indonesian Republican Government in Bulzenzorg and said that the army had intervened to protect the interests of law and order.

A military spokesman in the announcement said, have been placed under the military command "for their personal protection" and Dutch guards stationed around the home of Al Republican authorities.

In Batavia, a Republican spokesman immediately declared that the Dutch had "put on the whole show themselves" and said "there was no Sudanese movement involved as far as we there know."

Indonesian authorities previously accused the Dutch of sponsoring the Sudanese Separatist movement in a setting to break up the Indonesian republic.

The Netherlands is seeking establishment of an autonomous state embracing a million of Java's 48 million population of about 12,000,000 people. The Dutch have permitted the Sudanese People's party to operate openly under the provisio that it confine itself to peaceful means.

Bulzenzorg is about 35 miles south of Batavia and is in the Dutch military occupation zone. The Netherlands recently allowed the republican civil administration to continue functioning in two dolls.

Cricket Hordes Defy Gulls, Oil, Poisoned Mash

Ordnance, Ore., May 22 (AP) —The old Oregon trail highway was the drowning of a six-mile stretch west of here today as millions of the migrating insects moved closer to rich farmlands, deep-water of farmers and seagulls.

The seagulls, virtually unknown in this dry wheat country until they descended in large flocks yesterday, were attacking the northwest flank of the crickets.

Their numbers were insufficient, however, to halt the hordes combatted by methods they believe poisoned mash into their 12-mile front and by frantic digging efforts of farmers in irrigation ditches.

Roads were turned slippery as the crickets cross over from sagebrush areas to the fields of grain and alfalfa fields. They now are only nine miles from the kitchen farm areas in eastern Oregon.

Toronto, May 22. (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor, representing 275,000 workers across Canada, today opened a national campaign for wage increases of from 17 to 25 cents an hour.

A statement issued after the talks said affiliated unions of the Congress would retain full freedom to decide on their wage and contract demands and to conduct their negotiations as may be best suited to their needs. However, it urged that C.C.L. unions would consult with the wages committee before wage agreements are completed.

Wage demands were advanced for the campaign on prices, wages and profits and some 1,100 locals of the union council and provincial labor federations were asked to meet with them and coordinate their wage campaigns immediately, the statement added.

O.S.D. Children Entertained By A.Y.P.A. Group

Last Monday evening in Christ Church Hall a number of crippled children from the Ontario School for the Deaf were entertained by Christ Church A.Y.P.A. The young children attend Christ Church every Monday evening.

The first part of the evening was spent playing games and dancing, supervised by Miss Margaret Kellar and her committee. Two solos by children of the school to a long table artistically decorated with an Easter colors of blue and gold. Matching candles and a bouquet of spring wild flowers completed the decoration. Party favors were given to each child on the occasion. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, fruit, candy and hot chocolate were served by candlelight. This phase of the party was in charge of Miss Shirley Johnson and her committee.

Guests at the party were Rev. and Mrs. J. Kent Bickford and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Button.

Everyone enjoyed the party thoroughly and a group of very happy children returned to the school. Much credit and appreciation are due President George Sinclair, Jr., and the members of Christ Church Sr. A.Y.P.A. for this kind gesture to the children of the O.S.D.

Bd. of Education Has No Authority To Call Special School Holidays

Indication that school children in the city are considerably perturbed over their fate of having no school holiday for the observance of Victoria Day, was seen by local city councillors at their regular committee meeting on Thursday evening when they were presented with a petition bearing the names of approximately 500 pupils.

In the petition the pupils and students asked that Mayor Frank Follwell proclaim Monday as a holiday or rather that a school holiday could be observed.

Council took no action with respect to the petition with the exception of referring it to the press and also to the Belleville Board of Education.

The Board of Education lost no time in making it clear just how the Board stood in regard to the calling of special school holidays quoting sections of the school act to show that the Board has no authority in such matters.

Act Quoted

Section 80 of the Public Schools Act reads: "It shall be the duty of the board of each municipality to see that the same are conducted according to this act and the regulations, and they shall have power, (b) to keep open each school during the whole period of the school year, except when it is closed as provided in this act.

Section 7 (3) (amended 1941) "Every Saturday, every public holiday, the 24th of May, the 11th of November, the day annually appointed to be celebrated officially as the birthday of the reigning sovereign, the week following Easter Day, and every day proclaimed a holiday by the authorities of the municipality in which the teacher is employed . . . shall be a school holiday."

C. of C. Directors Request Council to Enter Agreement With Wartime Housing Ltd.

After a lengthy discussion on the local housing problem, Chamber of Commerce directors at their regular meeting on Wednesday passed a resolution requesting the City Council to acquire or annex additional areas from surrounding townships for building purposes and that some such land should be near newly-acquired industrial areas.

The directorate further recommended that the city council sign an agreement with the Wartime Housing before June 1st, 1947, for erection of low rental houses.

The recommendations were moved and seconded by Directors Fred Deacon and Jameson Bone. Both resolutions were handed to City Council last night.

During the discussion, Chairman of the Board Gus Freeman said the Chamber directorate did not favor Wartime Housing at any one time but it did favor Emergency Housing whenever there is a desperate need for housing in the area and he felt the chamber was open to any solution.

Condemned 10 years Ago

Alderman Angus Duffy, a guest at the meeting, said the local housing situation here was such that something had to be done. "A certain property in the city," he said "had been built for ten years and was condemned over 100 people. This building was condemned 10 years ago.

Aside from this angle," Alderman Duffy said, "the city can expect to get more new industries unless it can provide housing. It is absolutely hard to get a manufacturer is going to build or expand his business here."

Duffy further pointed out that the average wage scale in the city was $35-$40 weekly and houses should be provided within this wage range.

"If we don't, he went on, "that 85 per cent of war veterans here will leave Queen's for which to live, and I believe the only answer is Wartime Housing Limited. No use in letting this matter slide for we are raising a generation under terrible living conditions."

Land Principal Problem

During the discussion it was pointed out that the securing of proper land sites was one of the problems which would confront the city. Wartime Housing demanded improved services such as water, sewerage, sidewalks and improved roads. It was added that Wartime Housing did not exactly favour township building as it meant a two-way agreement among city, township and city organization.

Mr. Albert Albert College and other sites in the city were mentioned as possible locations for the new house, but were deemed unapproprate for several reasons. Director Fred Deacon, deplored the fact that the general public knew so little sufficient information regarding industries and acquisition of properties here. He urged that the Industrial Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and let the City Council, the actual body see what can be done with lands adjacent to new industrial sites.

Want to Think Back

"It is all right for people to talk about the veterans needs and do nothing about it, but they want to think back five or six years when they said we needed them to go overseas and fight," he said.

He thought there should be more co-operation between the Industrial Commission and other city bodies and the public. If private enterprise wants to build these houses all well and good, but it it cannot then let some public service do it, in any event let's get something done."

C. C. Sprys representative of the Wartime Housing outlined the program of construction and agreement as laid down by his organization, "Minimum size of lots is 4,800 square feet," he said, "and twenty-five houses is regarded as a minimum."

Must be Improved Land.

The municipality supplies Wartime Housing with fully improved lots at a cost of $1 each, Mr. Spry told the directors. Added to this, they also enter into an agreement with Canada Wartime Housing will, during the life of the mortgage, pay annually in lieu of taxes on each house erected either $100 per house or come with two bedrooms or $125 with three bedrooms plus $1 per year per house for local improvements.

The houses shall be rented to ex-servicemen or their families for as long as there is a demand for rental houses or this type of house and only after these families have been taken care of shall the houses be sold to families; the rentals charged to ex-servicemen $22 to $30 per month according to the size of the house, Sell to Municipality.

In view of the fact that municipality supplies fully-improved property and are prepared to accept the forementioned amounts in lieu of taxes, Wartime Housing agrees to sell the houses as a whole as a unit initially for $1,000 each at the end of a stated period, determined by the cost of construction—At an estimated average cost of $4,000 per house the estimated period will be 15 years, and the term of the agreement will be reduced or reduced by one year for each full $300 by which the completed average cost is more or less than the estimated cost of $4,000. In other words if the actual completed cost should be $4,400 the period of agreement will be 17 years.

Two-bedroom houses with kitchen, living room and storage space rent for $22; three-bedroom houses at $27.50, and four-bedroom houses $30 monthly. The houses are said to be fully insulated, placed on cement foundations and while considered semi-permanent, will be built without basements, are so constructed that they will be serviceable as any frame house and should have a normal life of fifty years.

The directors endorsed the recommendation of the Retail Merchants Division requesting it to request the City Council and Provincial governments, interested in government building, sign in the city.

Board Requests Cheese Subsidy To be Retroactive to May 1st

Members of the Belleville Cheese Board will petition the Ontario Government to make the cheese subsidy of two cents per pound retroactive to May 1st, instead of going into effect on June 1st as has been announced through the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

This was the decision reached by cheese board members at their initial meeting of the season at Belleville on Thursday evening when factory salesmen claimed that under the existing setup farmers would have to take less for their May cheese than in April or June. It was pointed out that the fluid milk subsidy was taken off April 30th, while the two cents per pound bonus would not come into effect until June 1.

A copy of the Belleville resolution will be forwarded to the Minister of Agriculture, and to the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association.

The order calling for compulsory boarding of cheese also came up for discussion when it was pointed out that several factories had bargained with buyers prior to the opening of the board. A motion to adjourn the board for two weeks and for each factory to sell its cheese where it pleased, was defeated and the cheese was boarded. Price was 25 cents for white and 25 1/16 cents for colored cheese.

A total of 1143 cheese were offered on the board with 9 buyers present.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 23 —(CP)— A burst of buying in golds about mid-day on the Toronto Stock Exchange sent prices on an upward spiral for the third successive day with gains of 10 cents and more common on the mining board. Industrials strengthened on several point gains but Western oils continued dull and slightly down.

Volume for the first three hours was 804,000 shares.

Following a quiet opening the pace quickened in the second hour of trading when volume expanded rapidly and prices in the golds and base metals moved up sharply.

La Luz dropped 50 cents at $3.25 on a trade of 100 shares.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 23 (AP)—Individual movements predicted in today's stock market but bidding was exceptionally timid and assorted trades dozed in moderately lower territory.

Dealings reverted to sluggishness after a fairly active opening. Trends stiffened here and there before midday and gains of fractions to a point or so held the majority. Rear-end motors were ahead most. Steels, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, American Telephone, N.Y.Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville.

McIntyre moved up 1 1-4 points while Distillers Seagram lost 1-4. Canadian issues were at mid-day. Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines each added 1-4 and Hiram Walker eased 1-8.

On the curb Giant Yellowknife gained 1-2 and Lake Shore 3-8.

Lots of Fireworks But Youngsters Puzzled Over What Day to Use Them

There are lots of old-fashioned "fireworks" available for the youth of the city to celebrate Victoria Day, whenever they do, but the rambunctious sky-rocket is definitely out. They are not being made any more, according to city dealers.

And while on the subject, the schoolboy population is busy these days scratching youthful heads trying to figure out on which day he will blow off his holiday steam.

There is no holiday for him on Monday. Normal life will be apparent in the city on Saturday. Sunday he goes to Sunday School and generally deports himself as he should on the Sabbath.

Generally speaking, there are long wistful faces on public school campuses these days. The "dullas" feel they always had a holiday on the "24th" and they can't figure out why they have been deprived of it this year.

"Gee whiz, mister" one group said to a reporter today," why can't we have a holiday. My pop" said one, "works in a store and he's going fishing on Monday. We have to go to school. It ain't fair. Think I'll go along with pop anyway. It'll be worth a lickin."

So it looks as if the youth of the city will celebrate the holiday Saturday night, at least as far as the firecrackers are concerned and what are left over, if any, will burn on Monday, after school.

Diesel Engine Hauls CNR Train

A 4,500 horsepower railway diesel motor passed through here today, drawing Canadian National passenger train No. 14, but only railway employees and residents living near the tracks, saw the large three-unit engine which operated today on a trial run between Sarnia and Montreal.

Steam locomotives have powered main line C.N.R. trains through here since 1905 but this was the first time that such a large diesel motor, used on many United States trains, had been seen in Belleville.

Congress Not Enthusiastic Over Schemes to Relax Immigration Laws

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH

Washington, May 23 (AP)—Congress is showing little enthusiasm for various proposals to liberalize immigration barriers despite pressure from Europe's displaced persons and the administration's anxiety to do something for them.

Four bills are before the legislators on Capitol Hill and it is possible some concession will be made to permit entry of a small part of the 1,200,000 or more stateless displaced persons left by the war.

But there is no disposition to return in any degree to the wide-open system under which almost 30,000,000 immigrants were admitted from 1800 to 1924.

Immigration enabled the United States to become the world's most powerful state in a comparatively short time but those now in control of the country believe—as they have for more than 20 years—that it has served its purpose.

Since 1924 the annual quota of immigrants that may enter has been set at 153,879 per year—and more than half that quota is restricted to the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State.

During the war years the intake was never more than 10 per cent of the annual quota and 6,524.

A GARDEN SMALL

I'm looking for a garden small,
Where tulips bloom;
Where walled in with hollyhocks
Is room.

The roses smile and nod,
Each petals, oh so delicate
Kissed there by the hand of God.

I'm looking for a garden small
Where friends may meet,
May sit and talk and rest awhile
On the garden seat.

Where irises by the stone walk
Nod their heads of gold and blue,
And in the small rock garden
Are buds of every hue.

I'm looking for a garden small
Where lovely things abound,
Where flowers of every color
Can there be found.

And the lilac in the corner
With her lovely purple hood,
Makes the loveliest of homes
For mother robin and her brood.

I'm looking for a garden small
With a friendly atmosphere,
Where flowers smile and birdies sing
And God seems very near.

Where I can lounge and read a book
And rest awhile and wait,
I'm looking for a garden small
Where I can meditate.

Two Are Injured In Head-On Crash

Ottawa, May 23 — (CP)—Two men were injured and two others escaped with a shaking up last night in a head-on collision on the Montreal highway, just outside suburban Eastview. Damage to the two automobiles totalled $1,250.

Lionel Joanisse, 19, and Orvilda St. Jacques, 29, both of Auckland, Ont., 30 miles east of here, passengers in a car driven by Dollard Payer, also of Rockland, received cuts about the face and body.

Payer's car was proceeding west along the highway when it collided with another car driven by Romeo Rinfret, of Eastview who was driving east. Both drivers escaped injury.

Duty to Prevent Accidents

The beginning of the dangerous season upswing in Ontario's traffic accidents is usually looked upon as the time of the Victoria Day holiday, the 24th of May. The Hon. George H. Doucett, Minister of Highways of Ontario, has therefore issued a pre-holiday warning to both motorists and pedestrians.

He points out that on last Victoria Day, during a period from Friday to Sunday inclusive, no fewer than 136 road accidents killed or injured 112 persons and boosted the May total to 1,000 killed and 966 injured. Each succeeding month in 1946 steadily added to the number of fatalities until the worst provincial record was set since 1941, when 801 met fatal death.

The Minister shows that both motor vehicle and pedestrian traffic increases rapidly during the holiday periods and gives the following information, based on Highway Department statistics:

Three persons were killed on the last 24th. of May—three deaths in 24 hours compared with the year's average of a death every seventeen hours, so it can be said that a fatal road accident is working on an eight-hour shift.

In such holiday periods, travel increases in rural areas, where on account of high speeds the percentage of fatal and serious accidents is much greater than in urban traffic.

Ontario's traffic accident toll is already mounting rapidly—there were 4,540 accidents in the first two months of this year. Now the number of licensed drivers is at record high and new driver applications in the province are averaging over 300 a day.

The conclusion of the Minister should sink into the mind of every driver on the roads and highways and into the mind of every pedestrian, that "the accident news in the press and on the radio should serve as a grim reminder to us all that it is up to each of us to do his or her part in halting the terrible loss of life and suffering due to traffic accidents.

"The statistics always show that the human element is the main cause. Our average traffic accidents occur in daylight on a good road with a vehicle in apparently good driving condition, operated by a driver with five or more years' experience and in the age group 25 to 40 years. This points to the importance of safe habits and a safety attitude by drivers and pedestrians at all times."

Last week told a tragic story of 14 traffic deaths. This the Minister calls "the handwriting on the wall" warning all drivers and pedestrians that the traffic accident toll is mounting. Nothing short of a united and continuous safety effort by all of us will keep the death and injury losses from mounting still higher."

These are grim facts. It places the stress on the human element as the chief factor in traffic accidents.

Any effort made to observe all the rules of traffic and to drive with care is worth while. Every effort must be made to observe caution and care at all times and especially in periods about holiday observances.

Victoria University

Victoria University, Toronto, is at present engaged in a $2,000,000 campaign to provide funds for the expansion of library facilities, new women's residence and an addition to the endowment fund.

Victoria University is a privately endowed educational institution on a religious foundation and has two faculties, one in arts called Victoria College and that in theology, Emmanuel College, which is the largest theological institution of the United Church of Canada and trains more than thirty per cent of all ministers ordained in the church. A large proportion of the missionaries of the United Church is trained in Emmanuel.

The library was designed to meet the needs of five hundred students, but there are now more than 2,500 students to use these facilities, and it is expected the post-war enrollment in the college will remain at about 1,500. An addition is planned to provide stack rooms for books in theology and arts, space for church archives and reading rooms for arts students.

Victoria pioneered in women's residences with Annesley Hall when 70 women were enrolled. Now there are more than 900. Temporary residences have been used and additional residences are wanted for girls coming from families outside Toronto.

Decline in the interest rates in recent years has meant shrinkage in income from investment. A substantial increase in capital funds is therefore sought as the only means of restoring revenue for the efficient operation of the university. Victoria receives no government grants.

Victoria College was first founded in Cobourg in 1836 under the name of Upper Canada Academy, the name was changed to Victoria in 1841. It was moved to Toronto in 1891.

Empire Day's Lessons

Empire Day was marked in the schools as a day to "set aside for special thought" about the British Empire and for thanksgiving that we are members of that great and widespread family."

The words are those of the Minister of Education in Ontario. Premier George A. Drew, whose Department had prepared a program to inspire Young Canada with the greatness of the gift which the British Empire has made to democracy and civilization.

The theme of the celebration in Ontario schools was "The British Commonwealth is a living growing family, not a dead thing. Its members are co-operating and developing world self-government. Yet they are bound together by ties sturdy in strength though frail in appearance."

Such a subject opens a vast panorama for the boys and girls, as the facts about Britain and world democracy throw a flood of light on world history.

The program was inspirational and inspiring and was calculated to teach the great lessons of history and of British democracy with its ideal of service to the principle of freedom and democracy. The last note was in the words of His Majesty the King, "I think of all my peoples, as one great family, for that is how we are learning to live. We all belong to each other. It is in serving each other and in sacrificing for each other's common good that we are finding our true life."

That same thought can be applied to the world in the nations' need of one another and in serving each other and in sacrificing for the common good. This the British Commonwealth has done for the world.

Beneath Thy Feet

It takes very little to gladden the heart: a gentle word, a pleasant memory, a favorite song. Even a patch of grass brings cheer, and particularly grass after rain. It has a delightful, almost luminous quality, and seems to transmit vitality.

Countless poems have been written about the beauty of trees and flowers, but little has been said of grass. Yet grass is the background that gives loveliness to these things. Like a quiet-toned carpet, it blends unobtrusively with its surroundings, lending them harmony. Even in itself, it is beautiful, whether the velvet of well-kept lawns, the tawny wool of plain country or the lush verdure of tropical lands.

Particularly grass implies humility. Growing in dark forgotten places, bending under the tread of feet, patiently, offering its unfailing gifts of food, beauty and comfort, it is a silent reminder that the meek shall inherit the earth.—Montreal Gazette.

B. C. Divorces and Marriages

Divorces in British Columbia last year reached an all-time high—2,004, nearly 700 more than the year before—according to statistics released in Victoria. But for every divorce there were almost six marriages, a total of 11,618, up 28 percent from the previous year.

Most cheering figure for B. C. though, was the birth rate. It was the highest ever —21.98 per thousand population. At the same time the death rate dropped, giving the province a natural increase of almost 12,000 in the year.—Maclean's Magazine.

In the communistic lot,
The committee is the spot.
If you'd have no cause to fret,
On the politburo get.
If a car you want to own,
And a radio and a phone;
Keep your little ones in shoes;
If you like to read the news;
If at night you want to sleep
In a home that's yours to keep;
If you do not want to slave
From the cradle to the grave;
If you'd like to have your wife
Know a comfortable life; -
Plant a garden out of doors,
Knowing all you grow is yours;
If you would not be required
Still to work when you are tired.
And to what you think give breath—
Unafraid of jail or death,
And the tyrant ruling set—
On the politburo get.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who was Blue Jeans Williams? James Douglas Williams (1806-1880), Indiana Congressman and Governor, was known as "Blue Jeans Williams" because he was a farmer and habitually wore his jeans blue overalls.

The homey, old-fashioned-sounding word "jeans" smacks of a native American origin, but etymologists derive it from the "Genoa" (Old French "Janne" and Modern French "Genes") the Italian city, where a twilled fabric so called was manufactured and exported at an early date.

In England this fabric was called "jean" or "jean cloth." In America jean cloth was so widely used in overalls for farmers and working men that "jeans" became synonymous with "overalls." The term survives in the expression "to dig down into one's jeans."

Jeans were generally colored blue because indigo dye was cheap.

Although Blue Jeans Williams had little schooling, he was far from being a "hayseed" or "hick." He owned 4,000 acres of land and ran a sawmill, gristmill and pork-packing establishment in connection with his farms. Between 1843 and 1873 he served five terms in the State House of Representatives and three in the State Senate, where his chief interests were agriculture, education and government economy. In 1874 he was elected to the U. S. House of Representatives. Even in Congress he continued to wear blue jeans made of cloth woven from the wool of his own sheep.

In 1876 the Democrats nominated him for Governor. The campaign was a notable one in Hoosier politics. It was the year of the memorable Hayes-Tilden contest and Indiana was a "pivotal State" in the presidential race. Blue Jeans Williams was a picturesque candidate. He was six feet four inches tall, had large hands and feet, was awkward and ungainly in gait, was dressed in pioneer style, had a pleasing voice and kindly manner, and spoke plainly and bluntly. Lew Wallace, author of "Ben Hur," wrote that Blue Jeans wore a "tall stovepipe hat that was threadbare and dyed the color of subdued tobacco juice" by wind, rain and mud.

The Democratic candidate had been critical of the Lincoln administration and the Republicans branded him a "Copperhead." His opponent was Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis lawyer, whom the Democrats called "the man in kid gloves."

Blue Jeans won, resigned from Congress and was Governor until his death. Harrison achieved even greater prominence in the colorful campaign of 1888, was nominated and elected President in 1888.

Non-Striking And Striking Students Fight in Shanghai

Shanghai, May 22 —(AP)—Several persons were reported injured, some seriously, in fights today between striking and non-striking students at Shanghai universities.

The trouble began at National Chinan University, when members at the Youth's Army 202nd battalion rushed to the campus in an attempt to rescue former division mates, now students, who were among the non-strikers.

Police intervened as the strikers and non-strikers tangled. Six students were arrested and 20 former Youth Army members were reported injured seriously.

Police tried unsuccessfully to break up a student meeting at Shanghai Medical College of National Chiaotung University. The meeting was called to consider a possible earlier date for a nation-wide "end the civil war" demonstration, now set for June 2.

The students are striking for increased food allowances and in protest to changes to curriculum.

"Sooner or later I'd have learned how uncertain life can be, but the war sure speeded up the process. For the rest of my days I intend to be prepared for risks and uncertainties. I buy life insurance for that purpose.

Marian Congress Called to Unite People of the World in Prayers To Virgin for Lasting Peace

BY DENT HODGSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 23 (CP)—Although it has been hailed as the greatest religious event in Canadian history, a great many people—even Roman Catholics—are apt, as to the meaning of the Marian Congress to be held here June 18-22.

The name, "Marian," spokesmen for the Congress point out, simply refers to the Virgin Mary.

More specifically, the Congress, which is attracting visitors from almost every country in the world, is being called to unite people of the world in prayers to the Virgin Mary for a lasting peace.

The idea of Roman Catholic Congresses is said to have originated in Germany, in the time of Bismarck, when that Prussian leader was laying plans to curtail the power of the church. A meeting was held and plans laid which ultimately defeated his scheme.

Similar Congresses were held subsequently to deal with specific problems facing the church, and each had its devotional side which gradually came to the fore and supplanted administrative problems. Today, a Congress is understood as simply a gathering of a number of people to join in prayer, generally for some specific purpose.

In a Eucharistic Congress the theme is the Eucharist, the sacrament of the body and blood of Jesus. The Marian Congress takes its name from Mary, the Mother of Jesus, and the theme is the life of the Virgin Mary.

Main events of the meeting here in June, which is expected to attract more than 200,000 persons to swell the Capital's population or less than that number, will be masses—the ordinary service of the church—conducted on a grand scale with processions, pageants and presentations, all built around the central theme.

The forthcoming Congress started as a comparatively modest affair, called by Archbishop Alexandre Cachon of Ottawa to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the founding of the diocese. The idea grew into a Marian Congress, in which so many persons have expressed interest that its scale will be the largest ever seen in the Dominion.

Need Space for Church Literature

An overflow estimated at 100,000 volumes from Victoria University Library in Toronto, one of the greatest collections of literature in Canada, lacks suitable storage space and is stacked in a barn and in campus basements. Shown above are Dorothy Smith, a student, Claire Wickware and Dorothy Smith, searching through the thousands of uncatalogued volumes, many of which date from the earliest days of church activity in Canada. Some of the "irreplaceable" volumes have been exposed to flooded basements while others are disintegrating rapidly from the yellowed pages of pipes beneath which they are stored. Victoria trains one-third of the future ministers of the United Church and 40 per cent of the art students attending the University of Toronto. On May 10th, Victoria begins an appeal to members of the United Church, the alumni and friends across Canada for $2,000,000 to provide funds for adequate storage for the library, women's residences and to bolster the endowment fund.

Orangemen Protest Use of Lumber To Build Platform

North Bay, May 23 (CP)— A protest against use of lumber and nails to construct a platform and seats for the three-day Marian Congress in Ottawa highlighted yesterday's session of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West Annual convention.

The resolution of protest was the Lodge had "learned with amazement a million feet of lumber and hundreds of kegs of nails said to be needed desperately for the building of veterans' houses are being used to construct an immense platform and for the erecting of seats for a three-day religious spectacle at Landowne Park, Ottawa, known as the Marian Congress."

Immediate action to stop the building was asked of the Dominion government.

Another resolution warned Protestant leaders and others "against the danger of aligning themselves with the Church of Rome in its relentless attacks on Confederation." Delegates also protested against allocation of public school funds for the support of separate schools.

Others resolutions asked control of immigration to ensure a majority of British settlers, asked for freedom of religious worship and propaganda" for Jehovah's Witnesses and urged that the Union Jack be contained in any new Canadian flag.

Similar protests against the use of construction materials in the building in connection with the Marian Congress have been voiced in Ottawa, but have met with no response from civic or Federal officials there.

Congress officials, commenting on the charges, have stated that the materials going into the building of special edifices for the Congress are being built in such a way that they may be used for other construction when they are dismantled following the religious gathering June 18-22.

500 S. Slavs to Sail For Homeland

Montreal, May 23 (CP)—Edward Yardas, secretary of the council of Canadian South Slavs which has organized a movement of 500 Yugoslavs to their homeland, said today that the returning persons would renounce their Canadian citizenship if that were necessary to ensure them travelling home.

With the vanguard of the first returning group settled here in temporary tourist-camp quarters, Yardas said about 500 would sail May 28 on the Yugoslav ship Radnij, he revealed he has applications for the return of 2,000 but only 1,500 will make the trip this year and the other 500 must wait until 1948.

"Most of these people do not intend to return to Canada," said Yardas. "They would simply renounce their Canadian citizenship if there was any passport difficulties."

The travellers have Canadian passports which showed to newspaper men in an interview, show there was no foundation to charges they were Communists or changes which have resulted in questions being asked in the House of Commons about the exodus. The government has promised a statement on the Yugoslavs' trip soon

Europe's Bicycles Differ According To the People Who Are Using Them

BY JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 23 —(CP)— Bicycles are a symbol not only of a nation's suffering and endeavor in Europe.

The Swiss, for example, swoop about their hills on the brightest, most efficient and most intricate machines one could find. Next door, in France, the bicycles are old and decrepit, plain beasts of burden, representative of many manufacturers and designs.

The Danes favor machines devoid of gadgets, but they have developed bicycle-loading to a fine art.

A handsome bike with glittering wheels is ruthlessly transformed into a miniature truck with the front wheel taken off and replaced by a wagon five feet long, rolling on a little wheel at one end.

The French seem to have no particular fancy for styles although most of their bicycles are free-wheeling, with easily replaceable rim brakes.

Swiss bicycles are better-looking than the British, whose de luxe machines are guaranteed for a lifetime and do everything but climb hills under their own power.

As soon as snow clears from the highest Alpine passes, the Swiss cyclists appear, touring the country. Father may balance a small child on the cross-bar or carrier seat, or even in improvised sidecars, while mother pedals alongside.

It's the same in England.

Indian Women Accomplish Much for Their Country Says Educationist of Empire

DR. PREMNATH DASS

Speaker on Indian women at an interesting meeting held in Christ church women in St. Andrew's.

tions Assembly. Women in India are going from prison to prison, although there are only five out of every one hundred who can read and write, which means 5,000,000 (out of the 250,000,000) who can vote. But there is every opportunity to serve their country."

Mrs. Dass said she was very interested to learn that, in spite of freedom of speech and education for women in Canada, there is the same apathy and lack of interest in Canadian legislatures.

Change Marriage Act

"In India," she continued, "an all-Indian Women's Conference changed the child marriage act from 14 years for girls, and 18 years for boys. There are forty-two women in the Indian legislature and they are bringing about better conditions for women and labor laws forbidding women to work in mines and with shorter hours and better conditions for those working in factories. Child labor has been abolished and the Indian woman say there must be social justice for all.

"A new day is dawning in India in spite of strife and civil war. The women are struggling to bring the rights of religion and freedom to all. Now there should be no more outcasts in India; and it is women who have helped to make this difference. All this influence and vision came to India through the Christian missionary enterprise. Any nation can be great, only when there are equal rights and privileges for all."

The impact and influence of Christianity on the people, (and in all justness it has) and the women of the Christian church who have given impetus to all the services introduced by the church) has come through the missionary enterprise by medicine, medicine and social service. Although ignorant and poor, they are serving their Master in any humble capacity. This same hospitality which is now being carried by missionaries to India, is being passed on in service to others. It is thus that we can serve our God. Poor as is the Indian Christian church, it now strives to support missionary projects at home and abroad. The church in India is trying to carry on the heritage received from Western churches, and thus to show the way to devotion, sacrifice and service.

Mrs. Dass was introduced by Mrs. S. E. Morton of St. Thomas who presided over the June meeting; and Mrs W. Finkle of Bridge St. Church a W.M.S. expressed appreciation on behalf of all the ladies present.

Woman Who Lost Legs and Arm Hopes to Help Amputation Cases

Hazel Dell, Sa.k., May 23 (CP)—A 35-year-old housewife and school teacher, who lost both legs and an arm when she was nine years old, today is offering to have her farm home to help in rehabilitation of Canada's legless or armless veterans.

Mrs. George Taylor of this district 120 miles northeast of Regina hopes to have her offer before the proper authorities before she gives up her teaching position at the end of June.

"What I have done for myself I can do for others," the attractive mother of two children said. "There was a time when I was pithy and conscious of my amputations but not today.

"I feel I can restore confidence in any of the boys who were overseas who have suffered amputations."

Taylor, born Kate Gulka, who does her own housework lost her legs and right arm as well as a thumb and one finger on her left hand while on her way to school at Yorkton, Sask., in 1921. A freight train started up while she was crossing the tracks beneath the cars.

When she left hospital three months later she continued her education, completing it at normal school at Saskatoon. Her artificial limbs were changed as she grew.

She began to teach at the small turnout school near Hazel Dell in 1931 and two years later married George Taylor, a district farmer. They have a son Robert, 12, and a daughter Lorraine, 10.

Mrs. Taylor, who knits, peels her own potatoes, and does her husband's hair went back to teaching after a class of deaf and dumb pupils in 1935 when a teacher was needed in the district and the family's finances needed bolstering.

The couple find that the farm is not producing as they had hoped and they are leaving the district. Mrs. Taylor hopes to find employment as a disabled veterans' instructor.

As Russia is the most important grain-producing country in Europe or Asia, the U.S.S.R.'s 1941 crop is of wide interest.

Problems of Modern India, Suggestions for Solution Presented by Indian Speakers

RALLIA RAM

Addressed large audience in Bridge Street Church Tuesday evening on the "Problems of India."

spoken on the campus; the five major religions of India represented; and about fifty-five per cent are Christian. Parents prefer the college for their daughters rather than the Hindu or Moslem schools, and two out of three have to be turned away because of lack of accommodation. But the main purpose of Christian education is to change the life here. We have much to offer Indians, and I hope that our missionaries 'come they will come humbly, remembering their purpose, for the work is a glorious one."

Mr. Eastman in Charge

Rev. H. O. Eastman, pastor of the church, was in charge of the service. Other members of the clergy who participated were Rev. Mr. Harbach, who read the Scripture lesson; Rev. Mr. Horne, who led in prayer; Rev. Mr. Sparling who introduced Dr. Dass and Rev. Mr. Amos who introduced Mr. Ram.

A choral number was contributed by the choir of Christian Youth Fellowship group.

Two Distinguished Christian

Two distinguished Christian leaders from India addressed a large congregation in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Thursday evening when Mrs. Premnath Dass and Mr. B. L. Rallia Ram presented the problems of modern India and suggestions and solutions regarding their solution. Mrs. Dass, who is the mother of five children and a well educated mother, is a woman of culture and attainments having attained the degrees of Master of Arts at Columbia University, Doctor of Philosophy at Boston; and Doctor of Laws at Philadelphia. Her daughter, a graduate of medicine, is arriving from India soon to take up training at Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore.

Dr. Dass, who was President of the Isabella Thoburn College for Women at Lucknow, is a second generation of Christians. Her grandparents the graphic story of her father, who was converted to the Christian religion. The principle of his caste best him and almon hanging him from a tree, service arrived to save him, and from being a Hindu he became a Christian, refused to see him again, although he was her only child.

Christian Effort.

"The caste exists in India today," said Dr. Dass, through Christian efforts of the church in India, the Caste System, coming from Asia and now you give it to India, and you Christians have to teach in Asia."

"The Christian missionaries felt they could not reach the homes, as no self-respecting woman of India would see a male doctor, and especially a foreigner. Pondicherry was the first Christian missionary wrote to his sister Isabella Thoburn, missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and encouraged her to come to India. She consecrated her life to this work, and felt that the greatest need was for the higher education for young women. But the Mosaic law of caste said that women couldn't accept this. 'What!' they said, 'you want to educate girls? Do you will want to educate our girls? Do you will want to educate our girls? Do you will want to educate our

INDIANS WANT GREATER POWERS SELF-GOVERNMENT

Also Request Full Control of Lands Allotted Them Under Their Treaty

Ottawa, May 22 (CP)—Indians from the Six Nations Reserve on the Grand River near Brantford, Ont., placed before the Joint Parliamentary Committee on Indian Affairs today a brief calling for greater powers of self-government and full control of the lands allotted to them under their treaty.

Claiming special status under the treaty as "allies" of the crown rather than subjects, the Six Nations Indians contended that certain rights and privileges not granted to "subjects" should be accorded them.

Reginald Hill, member of the band and a school teacher on the reserve, headed the delegation. Other members included Joseph Hill, William Pine, Sam Lickers, Hilton Hill, James Martin and Chief Counsellor Enos Maracle.

The party was accompanied by 30-odd Indians from the reserve, three of them colorfully garbed in deerskin tunics, moccasins and feathered hats.

Brief Summarized

Summarized, the brief made the following points:—

1. "Lands: Full control of their lands and exemption from land taxation.

2. Trust fund: Power for the council to spend up to $1,000 in single expenditures from the trust fund; withdrawal of government's power to spend money from the fund without consent of the council.

3. Self-government: A degree of autonomy "insofar as it may be reasonable and just to the people of the Six Nations and to the Dominion government."

4. Enfranchisement: The abolition of denominational schools; increased teacher's salaries; civil service status for teachers; school nurses and improved sanitary conditions; increased educational supplies.

5. Social Welfare: Establishment of a social service division of the Indian Affairs Branch.

6. Enfranchisement: The right to vote without having to surrender rights as Indians.

7. Band membership: Full and final authority for Indian councils to decide who made still calls to decide who may become a member of any band.

Other sections of the 11-page brief dealt with detailed recommendations for amendments to certain clauses of the Indian Act. Later today and tomorrow, delegates will be cross-examined on their brief by members of the committee.

Conditions Shows Improvement

Timmins, May 22 (CP)—Condition of the six victims of Tuesday's fire tragedy in a bunkhouse shack 45 miles northeast of here shows "some improvement" attending physicians said today.

It will be some time before the six, three adults and three young children, are out of danger.

"Their condition will still be very critical for at least another week or 10 days," one source said. Treatment is being administered for second and third degree burns.

Most seriously burned is Mrs. Stanley Cripps, English war bride. The others are her husband and three small children and William Dyer and her infant son were the only ones who escaped the fire.

Revoke Order Cancelling Bread Coupons for May

Paris, May 22 — (Reuters) — Twin currents of unrest swept through France today in the wake of demonstrations by crowds at Lyon who forced a government official to countermand an order cancelling all bread coupons for May.

One element of discontent was spearheaded by working classes, chronically short of bread and meat; the other by small traders, organized resistance for the first time in modern history against what they term red tape, official "snooping" and high taxation.

Yesterday the unrest took the form of a lengthy demonstration by 3,000 persons who forced Prefect Marcel Gregoire of the Rhone department to broadcast over the Lyon radio station an announcement countermanding the order cancelling the validity of bread coupons.

The cancellation was ordered to counteract reports of forged coupons following recent drastic cuts in the bread ration. People were told to use other food ration coupons for bread, but many bakery workmen in Lyon downed tools and marched to the prefecture shouting: "No work without bread!"

From other parts of France came similar reports of attacks on government officials responsible for controlling prices fixed by the government and of other local incidents arising from food shortages.

Meanwhile, the government's basic problem is that while the cost of living has shown some signs of becoming stable, since a price-cut policy was started last January, the shortage of basic food items has undermined the entire system.

The price of cloth, for example, has risen. But this is of little use to people with small incomes if they cannot get enough to buy or have to spend all their money on food in the black market.

Says Modern City One of Castles On Hill, Vice Below

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—"The modern city is a city of castles on the hill, slums below the tracks and dens of vice and iniquity in the shadow of the churches," George Mooney of Montreal told 15 Toronto organizations at a town planning forum last night.

"We have been travelling at a terrific pace since the middle of the 18th century," he said, "and our cities are haphazardly set. They belong to an age that has long since passed by.

"By 2000 A.D. we will have to contend with a daily traffic movement of 200,000 cars on its horse and buggy streets. Everywhere there is evidence in Canadian cities of decay, of dry rot. Business centres which were the pride of their eras have been demolished, leaving unsightly, untidy gaps, and areas of grandeur that remain turn out to be false fronts behind those fronts are hidden shambles and slums."

School Student Sent for Trial On Serious Charge

Milton, Ont., May 22—(CP)—High 17-year-old Georgetown school student, Victor Ostrander, was committed for trial on a charge of attempted rape here Wednesday after a 14-year-old girl school mate testified he had dragged her over a hill, shouting "I'm a sex maniac and I'll kill you."

She said accused told her he had been "waiting a long time for this chance" and had added "I don't know whether to drag you to a tree and let you bleed to death or let you go."

The girl said Ostrander had hit her over the head with a stick, cutting the left ear, "I asked him why he should pick on me and he said 'Anyone would,' " she testified.

Ostrander, in a written statement to police, said: "I have known the girl since she was 11 years old. I broke my leg in a fall and waited for her. I hid until she came near me, then pulled her to the side over a hill. When she started to talk loud, I struck her with a stick. After I tried to assault her I said I was going to commit suicide. I thought of jumping off the railroad bridge into the river, then cutting my neck with the knife, or hanging myself.

"Finally I jumped into the water and crawled out."

INK SPLASHES WALLS WOMAN IS FINED

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—Dorothy Lyle threw an inkwell in a cafeteria here yesterday, splashing the black fluid over two walls, and was fined $20 today and required to give a $300 bond to keep the peace for one year.

Accused said she had waited all day in various offices in the City Hall trying to find someone who would swear out a warrant for arrest of a man who had assaulted her.

"I was in great pain," she said. "Did throwing the inkwell ease the pain," asked the magistrate.

"No. I meant to write a note and the inkwell slipped."

New Light Thrown On Disappearance Of W.O. Barrett

London, May 22 — (Reuters) — New light on the case of Warrant Officer Reginald Barrett of the R.A.F. whose disappearance since arrest by the Russians in Soviet-occupied Hungary in 1945 has been the subject of foreign Office enquiries, was thrown today by ex-rifleman George S. Godden of London. He told of changing identity in a German prisoner-of-war camp and masquerading as Barrett for more than three years.

Godden said in an interview that while in a camp near the Czechoslovak border, one of the British administration staff told him that an R.A.F. warrant officer wanted to change identities so that he could escape. Godden agreed to exchange identities, and met Barrett, who had then been in the camp some four months.

The British Foreign Office spokesman told Barratt's wife yesterday that her husband had been working as a British agent in Hungary, and had been arrested by the Soviet authorities as a Hungarian civilian worker. Foreign Secretary Bevin has been in touch with Foreign Minister Molotov, who received "unsatisfactory" replies as to Barratt's whereabouts.

Martial Law Is Declared In Shanghai

Shanghai, May 23 — (AP) — Martial law was declared in Shanghai and Peiping today in an attempt to halt demonstrations in which students in both cities defied authorities in demanding an end to the civil war.

More than 40,000 students in Shanghai began a new two-day strike in protest against the beating of students by police during a demonstration in Nanking Tuesday.

Mayor K. C. Wu earlier invoked martial law and threatened severe punishment to any persons instigating student or labor strikes, disseminating propaganda in schools, occupying school property or preventing anyone from attending classes.

Eleven law college students were reported arrested, but students went ahead with plans for huge demonstrations tomorrow. The government at Nanking also has issued a ban against demonstrations.

At Peiping, martial law was declared for 24 hours after rioting at Chaoyang College in which one youth was reported shot and killed and 11 others wounded. Six high school students suffered bayonet wounds in another clash with police.

Pedestrian and vehicular traffic was frozen while the city of 1,500,000 went under military control.

While Peiping's mayor lifted martial law this morning, he said it will be imposed again if developments warranted.

President Truman Stays at Bedside Of His Aged Mother

Grandview, Mo., May 23—(AP) —The "weak" condition of President Truman's mother raised the possibility today that he may remain in Missouri indefinitely unless there is a decisive change for the better.

While 94-year-old Mrs. Martha E. Truman was reported holding her own, there has been no perceptible improvement in the last 24 hours. She was "still very weak."

Meanwhile the "White House" was functioning at the elderly Mrs. Truman's home and now that hotel headquarters in nearby Kansas City.

In the hotel suite, an emergency switchboard functioned to keep the president in immediate communication with Washington as well as with his world capital.

BOY KILLED AS LUMBER PILE COLLAPSES

Brantford, May 23 — (CP) — Nine-year-old Walter Ostapiuk, playing on a pile of lumber, was killed last night when the pile collapsed, pinning him beneath 50 planks. A chum, Kenneth Hunter, nine, who was on the pile at the time, jumped clear and escaped injury. An eyewitness said Walter had just laid down on one of the planks and said, "Look — now I'm asleep," when the accident occurred.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE bridge ND&MeMe By SAM GORDON The Ribbiest

Shoo-fly pie and apple pan dowdy has only one thing in common with bridge. They never get enough of the wonderful stuff. Maybe you can stand looking at cards you have seen before.

You saw me do handsprings telling you how six hearts were made with cute plays. It was when south and north held this pair:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A K 2	♠Q 10 7
♥A K Q 4 3 2	♥7 6 5
♦A K 3 4	♦7 6 2
♣None	♣K Q 5

You may be curious to know how the bidding could go to reach the heart slam. This is how it would be with Horse Sense:

South	North
2 ♥	3 NT
4 NT	5 C
6 ♥	Pass

In answer to an opening of two in a suit, partner responds with two no-trump. If he has no sure trick. With a sure trick, partner at once follows the order in T-A-N: takeout, assist, no-trump. The north K Q of clubs is a sure trick. So, he must not answer with two no-trump. Having no biddable suit, he does not have a takeout. Without adequate support for a once-bid suit, he has no assist.

With no takeout and no assist, his only honest reply is no-trump. With a sure trick he must not bid two no-trump. This leaves him with only one honest reply; three no-trump.

How does south know partner has hearts? If north has no suit that is biddable, he must have cards in every suit. From this it is evident that he must have some hearts.

What does five clubs show in answer to four no-trump? It is the convention signal for showing a hand that contains no ace. From this it is evident that his sure trick is K Q.

This warns south to avoid going to grand slam. Limited to a small slam, he bids six hearts. And this is where we came in.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The addicts to Western films are as rabid as followers of the latest five-year plan and they will have an opportunity to indulge in their favorite type of hypnotism when "The Westerners" comes to their town. Gary Cooper is the strong and fairly silent lead in the film that features a lot of "Texas" scenery and he is the lucky fellow who gets the girl.

Walter Brennan plays Judge Bean, a rascally custodian of his home-made law and he does it to perfection. The story concerns the war between the cattle men and the homesteaders back in the days when a fence created as much consternation as the iron curtain.

Cooper, in his own unsophisticated and entirely pleasing way, shows both factions where they are wrong and manages to breathe sweetness and light across about 10,000 acres of Texas grazing land. If your love for horses goes beyond the winner of the King's Plate, don't miss "The Westerner."

Movie Sermon.

A new short in production by Warner Brothers will be entitled, "So You Want to Gamble" and will point out — with a comedy touch — the odds on making quick money by chance. It will be a satire on the wise guys who think they can solve a system and get rich quick by gambling. There are still those who believe they can do it, which is one perfect example of why the human race is so doggone interesting.

Canuck In Film.

Paul Dupuis, as handsome a guy as you can find anywhere and formerly a Canadian war correspondent, will be featured in "Against the Wind" to be filmed in Belgium. He will be cast with Simone Signoret, a delicious French dish.

Dupuis recently completed a lead in "Whispering City," first Canadian full-length production and is under contract to the Rank interests in London. His first important film was "Johnny Frenchman" in which he did a very creditable job. We talked to him in London a couple of years ago and he wasn't taking the movie business too seriously, at the time. Bet he is now!

Expected 16 of Best Three-Year-Olds Will Face the Starter

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 23 (CP)—The official entries later today were expected to show a field of 16 horses for the 68th running of the classic King's Plate Saturday.

These, the cream of the Canadian-bred three-year-olds, were all that were left from the total of 44 nominated back in December, 1945. They reached the starting post after campaigning last year as two-year-olds and training and running again this year as three-year-olds.

With their entry as starters today, and after their appearance at the starting gate Saturday, they were only one mile and an eighth away from the dream victory of all Canadian horse owners and trainers—a place on the honored roll of King's Plate winnersthat starts with Jame's White's Don Juan, who won in 1880 when the race was run over the mile and a half distance at a track long since engulfed by building developments in west Toronto.

The long history of the Plate the many great Canadian-breds of the winners' roll, outstanding events in the 88-year record of the Plate such as the personal attendance of King George and Queen Elizabeth in 1939, faded in the background today as racegoers concentrated on that ancient question: Who's going to win."

Only Accommodates 12

The size of the field and the weather prospects were also immediate considerations. The automatic starting-gate at the old Woodbine Park race track accommodates no more than 12 horses. Any surplus over that total will be forced to break outside the gate, which is leading to some heart-burning among the owners worrying over the draw for post positions. Obviously, horses on the outside of a field of that size are going to have more strike against them before they start racing.

One of the owners, in fact, was worried enough to put into the public prints today a plea that the Ontario Jockey Club should provide a starting stall for every horse whose owner has paid the fees "or, in the extremity, they should run the race in two divisions."

They ran the Plate trial in two divisions, a total of 23 horses entering the trial last Saturday when C. George McCullagh's Tularch was an impressive winner of one division, and Jimmy Coleman's Leonforte was winner of the other section. But you can't have two King's Plate winners.

Wants Extra Starting Stalls

The owner who protested the possibility of horses being assigned to individual assistant starters outside the starting stalls was Coleman himself. Jimmy has meticulously refrained from any talk of his horse in the sports column he conducts in the Toronto Globe and Mail, the paper of which Mr. McCullagh is the publisher, But Coleman was worried enough about the size of the field to use the column in a plea for extra starting stalls.

The public generally won't worry how many horses start. There'll be a crowd of 30,000 at the track Saturday.

As for the weather, it could possibly be clear and warm, unlike last year when intermittent rain made the 'rack sloppy as Col. Sam McLaughlin's Great colt Kingarvie who ran away with the race. Scattered showers is the forecast for tonight but clearing later.

And as for the winner: the favorite very likely will be Tularch, with Kanlee and Yellowknife getting considerable play and Leonforte naturally having to be included as winner of one of the two trials. But they all have a chance, which is what makes horse races. This corner is taking horse races. This corner is taking Kanlee.

Couple of Golfers Hold Spotlight In Sport World

(By The Canadian Press)

A couple of golfers held the sport spotlight today — one a South African visiting the United States, the other an American in Scotland.

Bobby Locke, South Africa's open golf champion in Philadelphia for the Philadelphia Inquirer Tournament has one big complaint about life in the United States — and that is after four weeks of it being there. There aren't enough hours in the day to sleep, he says. Probably American hospitality has him down.

At Carnoustie, Scotland, Marvin (Bud) ward of Spokane, Wash., has assured himself a huge gate every during the British amateur golf championships next week. Ward has arranged to have 8,000 Washington State apples to give to his gallery — and apples are a scarce fruit in Britain today.

Many ball games have been rained out but at Quebec City yesterday the Quebec Alouettes and Three Rivers Royals were flooded out. Rising waters of the St. Charles River covered part of Victoria Park, home grounds of the Alouettes.

United States outdoors writers will soon be able to tell of the glories of Northern Ontario. Five internationally-known American writers departed from Montreal for the north yesterday, guests of the Ontario government on a 10-day fishing and hunting trip.

Babe Ruth, recovering from a neck operation is taking it easy at Miami Beach, playing golf and fishing. He also indulges in a spot of gin rummy and expects to leave for New York and home within a couple of days.

The rugby league match at London yesterday, Hull Kingston Rovers took a 6-2 beating from Dewsburry.

Just back from a western exhibition tour, Toronto Maple Leafs' goaltender, Walter (Turk) Broda, signed his contract for next season today. Broda also received $1,000 bonus for his share in the Leafs' victory over Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup finals.

In the tennis court world, there was word from Paris that Jean Borotra, the famed Bounding Basque of the mid-20s, is going to try for the French Davis Cup tam this year. Borotra is 49, but they say his doubles game which made him a sportlight is as good as ever.

A famed singles sculler, Edwin Hedley, died yesterday in Philadelphia. The 83-year-old Vesper sculler once held the Canadian singles title and was a member of the U. S. eight-oared crew which won the 1900 Olympic title at Paris.

HIGBE MAKING RICKEY ANOTHER DAVID HARUM

Pitcher Traded to Pirates by Brooklyn Still Looking for First Victory

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Kirby Higbe is making Branch Rickey look good. While the Dodger Mahatma eyes a $200,000 deposit in a Brooklyn Trust Company, Pittsburgh still scans the skies for old Hig's first Pirate victory.

Higbe has made four starts since he was sold to Pittsburgh. A tie-game against St. Louis is his best showing.

Although Rickey was widely criticized for ruining the Brooks' pitching staff when he peddled Higbe, the failure of last year's Dodger ace in an enemy uniform has quilted the dissenters. Granted Brooklyn pitching is in ragged condition; but old Hig doesn't appear to be the missing link.

Hig and Howie Pollet hooked up last night in a fight 1-1 duel for six innings a Sportsman's Park until the Cards unloaded four of their eight hits in a three-run seventh inning for a 4-1 decision. It was Pollet's first home win of the year.

Cards' Manager Eddie Dyer, who has taken his bums in the first month of the season after a storybook freshman season in which he won the pennant and Le Word Championship, showed signs of the cellar strain in an argument with Umpire Art Gore. Dyer thought Whitey Kurowski was safe at first base in a close decision by Gore in the sixth inning. He said his piece so vigorously that Gore banished him from the premises for the first time this season.

The Cards' "big inning" consisted of singles by Joe Garagiola, Red Schoendienst, Terry Moore and Stan Musial and a passed ball, adding up to three runs.

The St. Louis night game, witnessed by 14,035 fans, was the only game played in the majors.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 23 — (CP) — All that's keeping former lightweight and welterweight champion Sammy Ross from returning to the ring — as a referee — is the approval of the Hawaiian Territorial Boxing Commission . . . Ross has been asked to be the third man in the ring for the Manuel Ortiz-David Kui Kong world bantamweight champion ship match in Honolulu May 30 . . . "I certainly would like to make it." Ross wrote promoter Augie Curtis who made the offer . . . "It's all up to the commission," Curtis said. "I will fly Ross out from New York if it says OK. In fact, we'll pay the commission referee his usual one per cent share and he won't have to work."

Double-barrel Blast

Avery Brundage, who served as chairman of the Olympic Games in Berlin in 1936, and organized the "Keep America out of the war!" committee in 1940, seems to have been converted "from a pacifist into a rabid warmonger since then," says Dan (N. Y. Mirror) Parker . . . Brundage's "ignoble" action forcing Barbara Ann Scott, world's woman figure skating champion, to return the automobile the city of Ottawa gave her would be enough "to provoke a war between the States and our best friend north of the border. save for the fact that everyone 'in the United States is on Barbara's side except meddlesome Avery," Parker adds. "If Brundage wants to stir up war with Canada, he'll have to fight it alone."

Neuchalant Torgeson

Rookie Earl Torgeson of Boston's pressing Braves is probably one of the most nonchalant players in baseball and perhaps that's why he was able to come back from a poor start this season and move up with the leaders in home runs and runs batted in . . . Last winter Torgeson received his first big league contract after the Braves paid Seattle $100,000 for him. A few weeks later he was asked if he had signed. He said "No" . . . "Didn't they give you enough money?" Torgie was asked. "Oh sure," he replied. "It's just that I put the contract somewhere and now I can't find it."

Bluey Arrives For By-line Ball

Toronto, May 23 (CP) — A travel weary kangaroo, who didn't look that way at all, stepped from a Trans-Canada Airline plane here last night to be greeted by Toronto's Mayor Robert Saunders, and all the newspaper men of the Toronto area who weren't on duty.

The kangaroo, of course, was "Bluey," a goodwill emissary from the men of the Sydney, Australia, press club and he, with Barbara Ann Scott, will be guests of honor at the annual by-line ball to be held here June 1. Bluey was flown by Australian National Airways across the Pacific and by Trans-Canada Air Lines from Vancouver to Toronto.

Miss Isobel Oliver, of Belmont, Ont., a stewardess on the T.C.A. plane said "Bluey" had behaved himself on the trip and was an ideal passenger. He had dined on carrots and lettuce and had done some sight seeing at Lethbridge, Regina and North Bay.

TORONTO LEAFS LOSE TO WINGS FOR 9TH STRAIGHT

Rochester Wins in Ninth on Two Singles and Fielder's Choice

(By The Associated Press)

A lot of credit for the surprising showing of Rochester Red Wings can be placed on the lanky shoulders of southpaw Johnny Mitkus.

The Wings, International League doormats for the last few campaigns, are only one game away from the .500 mark today and a game out of 4th first division.

Mitkus has gained five victories to against three setbacks while taking part in 12 games.

The 190-pound, six-foot two-inch hurler turned back the last place Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-2 Thursday night, limiting the Leafs to seven scattered hits in outpitching the veteran Luke Hamlin and Harry Kimberlin.

The Wings got by Chuck Brewninth on singles by Lou Limmer and a ster, Charley Marshall and a fielder's choice on Mikan's grounder.

The loss was the Leafs' ninth straight.

In the only other game, Buffalo Bisons outslugged the defending champion Montreal Royals 10-9. The Royals jumped on Ted Gray for four runs in the first frame but the Bisons stormed back and scored twice in the second and five times in the third to win going away.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 23 — (CP) — The action of the Quebec Lacrosse Association in re-instating Angus Thomas, swashbuckling gutted stick star, who was suspended for life almost six years ago, has started the traditionally-tempestuous league on its 1947 season on a startling note.

The defence ace of the Caughnawaga Indians was barred from the game in 1941 by the Canadian Lacrosse Association after he slugged a referee with his stick during a heated argument. Now, the Quebec body, agreeing with Father Michael Jacobs who manages and coaches the Indians, that Thomas deserves another chance has lifted the suspension as far as its league is concerned.

But the action of the Q. L. A. has met with opposition from two clubs — Cornwall Seniors and Quebec Montagnais — because, as reported by Art (Cornwall Standard - Freeholder) Cameron, the re-instatement was not sanctioned by the C.L.A., the governing body, of the game and the group who originally suspended Thomas.

Time and time again, Art wrote, the C.L.A. has refused to re-instate Thomas and at first Cornwall officials said they would not allow their team to play against the Indians if Thomas was in the lineup.

But after Jacobs said they would refuse to play without him the Cornwall officials relented and agreed 'to field their team but only under protest.

This all has led Cameron' to write:

"We would like to know what goes on in the ranks of the Quebec Lacrosse Association and we would also like to know who president Dick Brayley is carrying to Eid. According to local club officials, it was he who re-instated Thomas. If so, we'd like to know who gave him permission to approve of Thomas playing and who informed him that other teams would agree with his decision?

"Does Mr. Brayley realize that the entire Quebec Senior Lacrosse League can be barred from Mann Cup competition for allowing a player, suspended by the Canadian Lacrosse Association, to perform for any team while his suspension is still in effect?

"It appears that the entire gutted stick setup in Canada is due for a face lifting. If the Quebec Lacrosse Association can reinstate a player without the consent of the parent body and the Ontario Lacrosse Association can suddenly decide against the reinstate rule, also apparently without the consent of the C.L.A., and if one man can suddenly make decisions affecting an entire league, without consulting officials of all teams in that league, we would like to point out that the rules governing sport must be disgustingly antiquated. Or are there such things as rules any more?"

Ottawa All-Stars Enjoying Selves In Great Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN

London, May 23 — (CP) —Ottawa All-stars, a powerful 13-game "house" hockey series are thoroughly enjoying themselves in England. They're having so much fun that it is probable that at least five of the Ontarians — all juniors — will perform in Britain next year.

This series is sponsored by Wembley Stadium and is believed to be the first of annual summer jaunts to Britain by Canadian teams. Save the northwest London arena officials previews of players they might want for Britain's National League teams.

The All Stars practice two hours daily and the youngsters are going all-out to catch on with the Wembley Monarchs or the Wembley Lions next year. All 19 years old, they are goalie Harry Bennett of Ironside, Que., left-wings Lowell Craig of Merrickville, Ont., and Alf Lafortune who played with the Inkerman (Ont.) Rockets last year, defencemen Don Thompson of Prescott, Ont., and right-wing Ralph Hurley, also of the Inkerman Rockets last season.

Another player likely to perform or coach in Britain is 23-year-old Jake Brunning of Ottawa, who played in Britain before the war. Brunning probably will remain here while the others will return July 15 at the end of their tour — coming back to Britain in time for the opening of the 1947-48 season in September.

GOVT. MAY FACE

He mentioned last year's spy inquiry and said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King first had suggested that Igor Gouzenko, the Russian cipher clerk, who touched off the inquiry, be sent back to the Soviet Embassy with his incriminating documents because Canada should not "pry into Soviet affairs."

Mr. Ferguson added:

"Until recently one, Ruth MacLean, worked in the office of the Prime Minister of Canada. She is the wife of Bert Hughes, an ex-employee of the Film Board at Ottawa, and Hughes is an openly-confessed Communist and supporter of that bestial organization.

Against Russia

"The Russian communistic government is holding forth at international conferences with voluble statements about peace and security. I believe the Soviet government is simultaneously preparing secretly for a third world war, creating in all democratic countries, and certainly including Canada, a fifth column in the organizing of this fifth column, diplomatic officials of the Soviet governments have taken part."

Dominion-Provincial relations were brought into the two-week-old budget debate by several speakers yesterday.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglington) said that Dominion should vacate such minor fields as those on amusements, pari-mutuels and electricity. He said that the use of such fields was one of the few things which stood in the way of agreements with all the provinces.

Will Not Hasten Pact

The fact that Liberal members were calling Premier Duplessis of Quebec and Premier Drew of Ontario "hard names" would not hasten agreement, he said.

Mr. Fleming also said the government was offering the people $150,000,000 in income tax reductions with one hand and was taking away $226,000,000 in the form of increased cost-of-living with the other.

Frederic Dorion (Ind.—Charlevoix - Saguenay) argued that under the British North America Act the provinces had a priority in direct taxe fields. He said every council judgments made it clear that the B.N.A. act meant that the provinces were to satisfy their needs in the direct taxation fields. When those needs were satisfied the Dominion could move into the fields.

Gerard Cournoyer (L — Richelieu-Vercheres) was in accord with Mr. Dorion and said the judgments referred to were bankruptcy cases.

He quoted the same judgments as Mr. Dorion and said they showed that the Dominion and the provinces had the same rights in the direct taxation fields. Where equal operation was not possible the Dominion had a priority.

Duncan McCuaig (CCF—Maple Creek) urged that farmers be allowed to make an income tax reduction for the work of their wives and children and for such things as well digging and repairs to farm machinery.

St. Thomas, May 22 — (CP) — This district today is summing up the damage caused by yesterday's heavy downpour of rain. Kettle creek rose three feet, flooding low areas around the city and causing some worry at the water works plant. Farm lands were inundated.

Homedale, city's new residential sub-division now under construction, was transformed into a series of miniature lakes and landings had to be placed around the new Timken Company plant to divert water pouring over property from a nearby golf course.

Foreign Flags over OTTAWA

TELL OF CANADA'S IMPORTANCE IN THE MODERN WORLD

20 years ago there was none . . . ten years ago only four . . . TODAY there are 24 Ambassadors, High Commissioners and Ministers representing their governments at Canada's capital. Striking evidence, that, of Canada's new place among modern nations!

We emerged from the war a far greater country than we ever were in pre-war days. Peacetime accomplishments are maintaining that new greatness today.

In the 10's we had a High Commissioner in London, and an Agent-General in France—but we had little say in our foreign affairs. Canada negotiated with foreign powers through the British Foreign Office, with Empire countries through the British Colonial Office.

In World War I Canada won the right to a separate signature to the Treaty of Versailles. That made 1919 an important date for us. Then, in 1931, we and the other Dominions gained recognition as equal partners with the United Kingdom.

World War II...Canada's achievements in battle overseas and in production at home won us World Recognition as a modern power. The great majority of the embassies at Ottawa were established during the war years.

Only Fair Hulls Being Netted by Lake Fishermen

Point Traverse — Mr. and Mrs. John Foster Dulles have returned to New York City after spending a ten-day holiday at their summer home on the Main Duck Island 12 miles off of here.

Mr. Dulles is Republican adviser on foreign affairs, and recently returned to the United States from the Foreign Ministers' Conference at Moscow.

Mr. Dulles' personal jeep was brought here on Saturday and placed aboard the fishing craft L. Joyce from where it was taken to the Ducks for Mr. Dulles' use. Fair Hauls.

Lifts of whitefish and herring taken from local waters are only fair, according to commercial fishermen. Salmon Point fishermen state that they are netting fair hauls of deep water ciscoe. Only one boat is at present operating out of the Main Duck Island fishery, and catches of lake fish are very light.

Ducks Dive Deeply.

Just to what depth can ducks dive? This is what local fishermen are debating about.

Great numbers of non-edible ducks known as scots and scoters were found entangled in fishermen's nets resting rate from a depth of 125 feet of water.

It is believed by the fishermen that these ducks known as divers, become entangled in their fishing gear when seeking food off the bottom of the lake at that great depth.

One fisherman claims to have relieved his nets from a 200-foot depth of water to find one of these ducks enmeshed in the web of his gear.

Circus Day is Coming Soon

"Circus Day—the Nation's Holiday—will soon be here."

Children of all ages will welcome the announcement that the great Sparks railroad Circus will soon be here—the first big show of the 1947 tour.

As old favorite here for many years, the exhibition at the Belleville will be Monday, June 2nd., with two performances scheduled—afternoon and night, and the location of the show grounds Station and Cemetery Streets.

Sparks Circus, has for more than half a century delighted circus patrons and this year is larger and greater than ever before in all its history. Founded way back in the year of 1890, it began as a small circus, hauled by horses and wagons, gradually grew in magnitude until it became a large railroad show, and is presented in three rings under a mammoth flame and water proof "Big Top" and transported on its own special train of double length all-steel railroad cars.

This year's program is entirely new and is presented by a galaxy of international arenic and circus stars, trained elephants, horses, dogs, ponies, goats and with a complete menagerie of wild animals. Among this year's new feature acts will be the initial appearance of the celebrated Joe Hodgini troupe of European bareback riding troupe; the famous Acevedo troupe of high wire artists, jugglers and acrobats from Mexico; John White's troupe of leaping greyhounds, and trained pony drill, and other noted stars of circusdom.

Levels of Rivers In Quebec Rise As High as 10 Feet

(By The Canadian Press)

Flood waters continued to rise in two Quebec province districts, closing roads to traffic and causing inconvenience to scores of families as they poured into basements of private homes.

Rivers and lakes in the northwestern Quebec district around Amos and in the St. Maurice River valley around Shawinigan Falls rose many feet above their normal levels following several days of warm weather.

More than 1,000 feet of the Amos-Val D'Or highway, near Sullivan, were under four feet of water which overflowed from Lac De Montigny at the head of the Harricana River.

At Belcourt, on the Senneterre-Amos Road, water from the Taschereau River spread across the highway, interfering with traffic. Similar conditions were reported on the Amos-Macamic road where the Lois River overflowed.

A boom on the Harricana River at Amos broke, letting loose thousands of logs. It was planned to fly men down the river towards James Bay in an attempt to save the lumber.

In the Shawinigan area, the St. Maurice was 10 feet above its normal level and the road from Shawinigan Bay to St. Boniface was closed, covered by two feet of water in several places. Basements of several houses were flooded. Many workers were using boats to get to their jobs.

Three Bandits Rob Rectory At Hamilton

Hamilton, May 22 — (CP) — Three bandits wearing dark sunglasses and armed with revolvers held up the housekeeper of St Patrick's Roman Catholic rectory here last night while the priests were at service in the church and escaped with nearly $200 in cash and a gold cross and chain.

The house-keeper, Alice Turcotte, told police the thugs took various amounts of money in their search of the house into which they forced their way after she had told them the priests were in church. She was able to give police good descriptions of the three men, all of whom she estimated to be about 30 years of age.

Compressed Air Blast Furnace Increases Output

New York, May 22 (AP) — A compressed air blast furnace, something new in the history of steel, that increases the output of pig iron by 20 per cent was announced yesterday to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The furnace was described by J. H. Slater of Republic Steel Corporation. The new invention is the work of the Arthur D. Little Company of Cambridge, Mass.

Republic has been operating two furnaces in the new way for nine months.

Air is blown into the new blast furnace in such quantity that the pressure inside is raised by 10 pounds a square inch to nearly double that of normal air pressure.

Republic will soon have a furnace in which the air blown in each day is greater in weight than the total iron ore, coke and limestone.

The result in the furnaces already equipped is not only a 20-per-cent increase in output of pig iron but also a 12-per-cent reduction in the amount of coke burned. There are other advantages too.

The roaring hot, hard air blown into the furnace does not have time to travel as fast as when ordinary air is used in a blast furnace. Therefore less of the iron ore is blown out of the top of the furnace to be wasted, a serious problem of present type blast furnaces.

"Caesar" came, saw and conquered, but not without the aid and abbetance of Mrs. Ralph Simmons, who happens to be the grandmother of the little loud-voiced dissenter. She thought that it would be well if little Bobby walked home from the beach as the exercise would do him good. Caesar thereupon with smug satisfaction took his throne in Bobby's carriage. Later the squall blew over and three-way forgiveness put life once more placid base.

YESTERDAY AND TODAY

IN THE LIVES OF FAMOUS FOLK

LORD BEAVERBROOK

At an early age, William Maxwell Aitken decided that he wanted to become a millionaire. It was almost as simple as that for the Canadian-born lad who became publisher of three large London dailies, English baron, cabinet member, and man of great wealth. Born in Maple, Ont., May 25, 1879, Max Aitken was the son of a poor Presbyterian minister. After a stint as a drug store hand, he sold sewing machines and bonds until he found a backer in an elderly Halifax banker and became a promoter. Then he engineered mergers of banks, utilities steel and cement companies, until, by 1907, he liquidated his holdings for five million dollars and set off for London with his bride of one year. Once in London, Aitken learned how to open all sorts of doors, front and back. Eventually, in 1910, he found the door open to parliament where he did some more "merging" and the Lloyd George war cabinet. This service won him a peerage, with Aitken selecting "Beaverbrook," the name of a small town near his birthplace, as being more suitable than Maple. In 1917 Aitken bought the London Daily Express, now the largest paper in the world. This and his two other London papers, the Sunday Express and the Standard, have made him Britain's outstanding publisher. "Empire free trade," involving isolationism, was the cornerstone of Beaverbrook's newspaper policy. During the Czech crisis in 1938 his newspaper proclaimed: "The Daily Express declares that Britain will not be involved in a European war this year or next year, either," and praised Chamberlain as a champ. However, in 1940, Beaverbrook was made minister of aircraft production in the British cabinet. John Gunther calls him "one of the most provocative, original and lively public men in England." Lord Beaverbrook's wife died in 1927, leaving him a daughter and two sons, one of whom is the active director of the Daily Express today. At present Lord Beaverbrook is visiting New Brunswick.

JAP WOMEN IN POLICE DEPARTMENT

The ill wind of war blew good to the women of Japan. Formerly little better than chattels, they have now the right to vote and to seek positions formerly a male monopoly. These smart policewomen are in the Yokosuka police department, where their principal duties are as traffic control officers and matrons. Women were taken into the police departments of Japan as a result of a recommendation made by Lewis J. Valentine, former police commissioner of New York, who was called to Nippon by Gen. MacArthur to reorganize the civil police.

KIN REUNITED AFTER 26-YEAR SEARCH

A father and daughter met in a Milwaukee, Wisconsin, railroad station after a search lasting 26 years. When James Gombarick, now of Milwaukee, was divorced from his first wife at Lakewood, Ohio, in 1919, no provision was made for the custody of their daughter, Bernice, then 20 months old. The wife and her family moved away and the father lost sight of his daughter. He kept up the search and in 1945, on a return visit to Lakewood, saw a letter to the police there written by his daughter from Richmond, Calif., looking for him. seemed he might have suffered more than anyone else because of her accident that night on Queensborough Bridge.

Then April remembered that Hill's life had been completely changed too, and the burden on her head lifted a little. Only Hill seemed to have gained something from her tragedy. He had realized it was time for him to settle down to serious work, and he was devoting long hard hours to the golf school and the building of a secure future for himself.

April had not yet learned that he was doing it for her. Because Hill had been giving money for the household to Cherry, swearing her to secrecy, April must not know.

Cherry however was still unbending in her attitude toward her brother-in-law. She took the money without thanking him, her attitude being that it was about time he started paying for things, and not to expect her to think him noble because he was doing his duty at last.

Several times since her return home April's thoughts had turned to money. She had no idea whether or what her hospital bills had been, or she would have been alarmed.

Miss Sayers had left after two weeks in the apartment, and Hyacinthe had taken over caring for her. The old colored women was excellent in caring for the sick, and April thoroughly enjoyed the way Hyacinthe spoiled her. Then too, there was the matter of economy. A trained nurse was a big expense.

On this particular Spring day April's thoughts turned again to expenses and the idea occurred to her that both Cherry and Gay had been evasive when she tried to find out how much her illness was costing.

Once Gay had told her the hospital had said she wasn't to think about her bill until she was back on the air again. After all she was a highly paid radio star, and they certainly weren't worried about her credit standing. April had been ill enough to believe Gay at that time, but as she began to think more clearly she realized Gay had perhaps not been telling the truth.

Suddenly a thought flashed through April's mind. Could it be possible that Curt had paid the bills? And where was all the money coming from to run the house? It wasn't possible the money they had in the bank at the time of her accident could still be holding out. Because they had been in business together, Gay and April had a joint account. Gay paid all the bills because she was an excellent executive. She had taken care of the salaries and expense of the riding school, as well as the house.

April realized suddenly that it couldn't be possible that Gay could have managed without down, there was no income at all except her salary as Penny's companion. Cherry was not working, so she couldn't have helped with the household expenses.

April was sure Curt had been taking care of them all. Her eyes filled with exasperated tears. What a fool she had been not to realize it before! That is just what Curt would do, because he loved her. He would feel he had to relieve her of all worry.

And now what was she to do She wouldn't marry Curt, until she could walk again. And how long would it be before she would be able to get back to her career, so that she could pay him back?

They had all accepted too much from Curt as it was. He had been her angel in every possible way. But to allow him to pay hospital bills and funeral expenses, that was something her ingrained Southern pride could not bear. Even if she did plan to marry Curt when she was well, that was accepting charity.

When Curt came to see April that evening, he noted with anxiety that her cheeks were flushed and hot when he bent to kiss her. She seemed highly nervous. He sat down beside her bed, taking her hand.

"How you had many visitors today, darling?" he smiled his charming smile. "You look as though you might have had a little excitement! Your cheeks are pinker than usual. Maybe it's just that you're getting well so fast."

April turned and raised on her pillows so she could see his face.

"No, it isn't visitors, dear. I've just been doing a lot of thinking."

"That's bad," he smiled again. "Don't think, dear, and let the world go by. Now what have you been thinking, sweet? About us?"

April stirred restlessly. "I've been thinking about how foolish I've been not to have seen through a lot of things. I haven't even had sense enough to realize where the money has been coming from to pay all the bills. Oh, Curt!"

Curt stiffened, and his grip tightened on her little warm thin hand. He asked uncertainly,

"Just where do you think the money has been coming from, my dear?"

"From you, of course. Where else would it come from?"

Curt shook his head, bending to kiss her brow. "So that's what you're all flushed and strung up about. Well, my darling I'd like to take the credit very much. But I'm afraid I can't. I haven't had a penny of your bills, much to my regret. Although I can't see why you'd let it upset you, even if I had."

April said relieved! "Oh, then Gay told the truth. The hospital is going to let me pay the bills when I get back on the air."

Curt let he was duty bound to tell. April the truth. It was the only way to relieve her mind. She'd have to know soon, so it might as well be then.

He said with difficulty: Trying to smile: "All your bills are paid, my dear. So you don't have to worry about getting up and going forth to toil."

"That can't ne possible," April was bewildered. "Why who could have paid them if you didn't? Gay didn't have the money."

"Hillyer paid them," Curt said. April gasped: "Hill! Oh, no!"

Curt nodded. "He assumed full responsibility for all of your expenses. It's no, more than fair that you should hear the truth. Hillyer deserves all the credit."

April sank back among her pillows, completely overcome with amazement.

"He didn't want you to know," Curt went on. "Gay was sworn to secrecy. But I hadn't promised not too tell you, so I feel I'm doing the right thing in relieving your mind." Or does it relieve your mind, dear? You don't object to his philanthropy now?"

April had grown very pale. "Hill!" she hand Curt held trembled. I can't believe it!"

"I must confess," Curt explained. "I did go to Dr. Malcolm and tell him I would assume the financial responsibility. I told him we were going to be married. But the secret of the matter was taken entirely out of hands.

"Hillyer came to the hospital and threatened mayhem if I didn't get out and let him take things over. That same day he deposited fifteen thousand dollars with Dr. Malcolm to make sure you had everything you needed to help you recover."

"Fifteen thousand dollars!" April gasped. "Where did Hill get fifteen thousand dollars?"

"You're not supposed to be told this," Curt said, "but Hillyer sold his interest in Penny's Place to a lawyer who gave him the cash at once. That is where he got the money."

"Sold Hillcrest!" April cried. "Why, I can't believe it. It's the only possession he had in the world that meant anything to him. He had always sworn Hillcrest must remain in the family to be handed down to Kenny, no matter what happened. It was a religion with him that no gentleman would sell his ancestral home to raise money."

Curt smiled crookedly: "Well you know the truth. You know now what it meant to him to see you here, and he would again."

April covered her face with her hands. "Oh," she said in a small voice. "Oh poor Hill! I'm so sorry."

"I've never seen any man more broken up," Curt said. "And there is something else you should know, in fairness to Hillyer. He gave you the blood transfusions that saved your life. Several of them. My blood wasn't the type."

April was crying softly. Curt leaned forward, stroking her hair:

"Don't cry, darling," he begged her, his own face white. "I wouldn't have told you this if I hadn't wanted to be fair, and it I hadn't felt you should know the truth now. After all, Hillyer is taking care of you and his son entirely, and I feel he has hid his light under a bushel long enough. He's working day and night Gay tells me, trying to keep things going."

After awhile April dried her tears and lay back on her pillows, trying to control her emotions.

"I'm sorry," she apologized to Curt, "that I went to pieces this way. But it is pretty much of a shock to learn that Hill has done all things for me."

"If you have ever had any doubt that divorcing him was the way to open his eyes," Curt looked away, "you can be sure now that you did the right thing. When he thought he had lost you, he woke up. What man wouldn't, my darling, if he thought he was losing you?"

April said wonderingly: "He loves me, doesn't he? If he didn't he wouldn't have done all this."

"I'm afraid he does love you," Curt watched her face closely, afraid of what he might see there. "Now that it is too late. You're going to marry me soon, aren't you April? Remember, I love you too."

CANADIAN OPEN GOLF TOURNEY ON JULY 16-19

Invitations Extended to Canadian and United States Professionals

By JIM KEARNEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 23 (CP)—One hundred and eighty Canadian and 60 United States professionals will receive invitations next week to join the campaign against par in the 1947 Canadian Open Golf Championship at the Toronto Scarboro Club, July 16-19.

And if Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and Stan Leonard are among the 150 players expected to snap at the bait of $10,000 in prize money the Royal Canadian Golf Association will have an almost complete directory of who's who in North American golf for the neat ticket of all their tournaments.

Without benefit of official entry forms two national champions have already said they will play. They are defending champion George Fazio of Los Angeles and U.S. Open champion Lloyd Mangrum.

If Hogan, Snead and Leonard, who had three national titles between them, and their names

Scarboro's par 71 will be in danger of drowning by a concentration of golfers' ibis beneath it.

Hogan, the Hershey, Pa., lightweight, leading money-winner of 1946 and United States P.G.A. champion is still rated Byron Nelson's successor as Mr. Golf, although currently trailing Texan Jimmy Demaret in 1947 earnings by a margin.

Snead is British Open champion, and is the only one of the Canadian show this year. The White Springs, Va., golfer whose southern drawl has earned him as his booming tee shots, "will be returning to the scene of his major triumph.

He won the Canadian title at Scarboro in 1940 after a playoff with Harold (Jug) McSpaden, and defended successfully the following year. And before that he took it all in 1938.

Snead is a Canadian professional champion. As such, and also performed in the 1946 Open at Beaconsfield, Que., he is considered the Dominion's main hope to bring the championship back to Canada for the first time since Maitland Steinkrauss.

The stocky power hitter from Vancouver's Shaughnessy Club shot a 72-hole score of 279 last year to wind up just one stroke behind co-leaders Fazio and Dick Metz.

MEETS WITH COMPLICATIONS

Havre De Grace, Md., May 23— (AP)—The Maryland Racing Commission's efforts to set up harness racing in the state this season met with complications today in the form of a bill in the state legislature.

The Pimlico harness trotting permits confined to tracks which have no racing permits, and President A. B. Hitchley said his group would boycott the meeting if state circuit if that condition were not met.

Rallia Ram Tells Y's Men of Work Of YMCA in India

Members of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. were guests at the regular Y's Men's dinner meeting on Thursday evening when Mr. Rallia Ram, President of the National Christian Association of India, and General Secretary of the All Indian Council of Christians, was guest speaker.

The speaker dealt with the work of the Y.M.C.A. in India, which counts members of all faiths. The Church of India is young, and with the present Hindu-Moslem strife, the Y.M.C.A. is a refuge for all peoples. The membership of the Y.M.C.A. in India is 80 per cent non-Christian, and the students there are 95 non-Christian. The speaker asked for sympathy and support in India's present strife, and gave a number of personal experiences with the part the Y.M.C.A. is playing in this strife.

The speaker was introduced by Don Amos and thanked by Jack Sowden.

President Don Williams presided over the meeting; Archie Boyd was Sgt. at Arms, and Bud Trill sang leading John Deacon, president of the Board of Directors, rendered two solos, and Alex Denton presided at the piano. Introduction of guests was made by Oscar Ward.

It was decided that the Y's men would sponsor a team in the inter-service club baseball league, and Austin Watkins and Gerry Hyde were given permission to obtain necessary equipment.

Centennial of Phone Inventor's Death Will be Observed at His Old Home

By DAVE McINTOSH

Baddeck, N.S May 23 (CP)—When the Telephone Pioneers of America make their pilgrimage to the grave of Alexander Graham Bell, June 30 next, on the 100th anniversary of the inventor's birth, they will tramp up the steep slope of Beinn Bhreagh for one of the most scenic views on earth.

Beinn Bhreagh, which is pronounced Ben Brenn by the natives and means beautiful mountain, is a 700-foot headland that juts out into the Bras D'Or lakes opposite the village of Baddeck in the heart of Cape Breton Island. During the winter chill north winds which sweep down Great Bras D'Or from the Atlantic bend the white and silver birch, red spruce and fir, maple and poplar that cover the lonely headland.

I asked Johnny Asaph the other day to take me to the top. Johnny drives a taxi in Baddeck.

"My cab broke down but I'll take you up in the old hack if you want to chance it."

We got in and speeded off at 20 miles an hour. The road hugs the shore to Beinn Bhreagh and we followed the contour of the lake going northeast first and then turning sharply south almost in the direction we had come.

Bell's old home, a great, rambling, brown wooden building stands at the extreme point of land. Some of his relatives spend the summer there. We got out and looked through the locked glass doors. There were sheets over most of the furniture. Overlooking the lake on the side of the house opposite the entrance were enormous windows and in the centre, a giant fireplace. In the back porch were paintpots and the driveway had been freshly raked.

The face of the headstone on Bell's grave looks toward the west. The gravestone is simply a chunk of granite. On it is smoothed-out is a bronze plaque fixed in the corners of the letters. Bell and his, wife were buried side by side and the plaque reads: "Alexander Graham Bell, inventor, teacher, shorn in Edinburgh March 3, 1847 died a citizen of the U.S.A. August 2, 1922." and beside that these words: "Mable G. Hubbard Bell, his beloved wife, born Cambridge Mass., Nov. 25, 1857, died Washington, D.C., January 3, 1923."

A few yards from the grave we found the remains of Bell's flying machine. Inside, on the walls were scrawled hundreds of names and initials and homes-towns of lesser people.

Some money was also donated by a number of the township citizens.

HOW HE CAUSED TRAIN WRECK

Authorities who doubted his "confession" gave a little more weight to the word of five-year-old Marion Delgado after this demonstration. Young Marion told how he placed a 25-pound slab of concrete across the tracks of the Western Pacific Railroad at Peoria, Calif., resulting in a wreck in which four trainmen were hurt. But it took this demonstration with a similar slab to convince them. The engine, overturned in the wreck, can be seen in the background.

Miners Vote Almost 5 to 1 In Favor of Strike Settlement Formula Proposed by Union

Glace Bay, N.S., May 24 (CP)—With approval of a strike settlement plan from its membership, the executive body of the United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) District 26 today prepared for a meeting tomorrow from which an offer expected to come a return-to-work order.

A union order for a return to the pits—idle for 86 days—appeared likely in spite of the fact that no agreement had been reached with the independent operators who employ about 10 per cent of the 13,000 Maritime coal miners.

More than 8,000 miners turned out yesterday to cast their ballots for or against a strike settlement formula consisted of a meeting of the U.M.W. and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation chiefs at Montreal a week before.

Almost complete returns—two thirds of a total of 30 locals still had not been heard from—showed that 6,675 had approved the agreement while 1,647 had turned it down. About 1,000 less took part in the vote that participated in the Union's strike vote before the walkout began Feb. 15.

While the over-all percentage was almost 5-1 in favor of the agreement, it was about 4-1 in the Glace Bay area, heart of the Maritime coal fields. Less than half of the more than 10,000 miners in the area cast ballots and of these, 4,614 approved and 1,114 did not.

Favored Overwhelmingly

The vote was approximately 4-1 in the Springhill area of Nova Scotia but in the Stellarton area and in New Brunswick it favored the agreement overwhelmingly.

The formula, previously endorsed by the Dominion District Board of the U.M.W., provides for a wage increase of $1 a day immediately upon a return to work and another 40 cents after Dec. 1 if production has been raised to company-set levels by that date.

District President Freeman Jenkins said today a Sunday meeting would settle whether failure to reach a settlement with the Minto area of New Brunswick would prolong the strike further.

Mr. Jenkins placed the union demands before the Minto operators Thursday and they said New Brunswick would expect to receive the same increase as union men in Nova Scotia.

He made the statement on the possibility that the entire membership might remain out until the Minto operators had agreed to a contract similar to that covering Nova Scotia mines.

TOMMY CHURCH COMES TO DEFENCE OF BRITISH EMPIRE

Member for Broadview Claims Empire Being Given Away and Nothing Being Done

Ottawa, May 24 (CP)—Tommy Church, the alight, outspoken Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Broadview, yesterday in the Commons waged a one-man fight for the defence of the British Empire.

Rising on Empire Day, he first sought, albeit unsuccessfully, to have the House adjourn to regard the business to discuss a "definite matter of urgent public importance," namely:

1. The "proposed dissolution and scuttling" of the British Empire by giving up of Empire defence and military bases in the Mediterranean, Suez and the Middle East to the United States and withdrawing the Empire defences of these bases to East Africa.

2. The "abandonment" of Suez Canal and India and the situation in Palestine.

Prime Minister Mackenzie Pauteux said he was sorry but he could not accept the motion since the Church could discuss those matters during the budget debate, debate, during which a member could speak on anything he felt was of urgent importance.

"But," protested Mr. Church, "they're giving it away every day, and we do nothing about it."

BACK BENCHERS HOLD FIELD DAY IN PARLIAMENT

Block Possibility Of Vote on Two Motions Of Non-Confidence By Opposition

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 24 (CP)—Back benchers had a field day yesterday as the two-week old budget debate continued in the Commons, with speeches recommending income tax changes.

The speakers, blocking the possibility of an early vote on opposition motions of non-confidence in the government, dealt on topics of employment, fox farming, debt financing, Old Age pensions and income tax exemptions.

For instance, John Probe (CCF—Regina-City) said that income tax exemptions could have been increased to the extent of another $70,000,000 in view of the fact that the government was budgeting for a surplus during 1947-48.

Beside Mr. Probe speakers in the debate included W. Chester St. Laurent (L—Saint-Henri); J. Sinnot (L—Springfield); F. D. Shaw (SC—Cape Breton South); J. Blair (PC—Lambton - Kent); Harold Timmins (PC—Toronto Northcliffe) and Mrs. Ann Shipley

Diesel Locomotive Passes Through City on Demonstration Run

History was made on the Belleville division of the Canadian National Railways on Friday when for the first time in local railroading annals a heavy passenger train was hauled by a Diesel locomotive.

Observed by a considerable number of railroad employes and other interested persons, the locomotive passed through the city Friday afternoon hauling No. 16 on its regular run from Toronto to Montreal. The Diesel will be demonstrated on Canadian National tracks in Eastern Canada for eleven days before returning to Chicago. By that time the locomotive will have travelled 7,446 miles on Canadian track.

Speaking to newspapermen following departure of the train to Montreal, Wm. C. Doherty, superintendent of the Belleville division, stated that the Diesel "did everything a steam locomotive would have done on the run in from Toronto."

13-Car Train

Hauling a heavy train of 13 cars the locomotive maintained the regular schedule and was only a few minutes late arriving here. These few minutes were accounted for by the train being late out of Toronto.

Designed and built by the Electro-Motive division of General Motors at their plant at La Grange, Illinois, the Diesel locomotive is completely streamlined and unlike different appearance from the conventional steam locomotive normally used on local trains. The Diesel is rated at 1,200 units of 1,200 horsepower each.

The locomotive can be equipped to give a full rated performance over a range from that of the heaviest dragged freight locomotive for mountain terrain to that of a heavy duty passenger locomotive capable of pulling long Pullman trains at top speeds. While in Canada the locomotive will see some service on freight runs.

Long Distance Without Refuelling

One of the features of the Diesel locomotive when used for passenger service is the long distance over which it can operate without refuelling. According to Superintendent Doherty the locomotive left Chicago and did not refuel until it reached Montreal, a distance of 851 miles. Each of the locomotive's three units carried 1,200 gallons of fuel oil; 200 gallons of lubricating oil and 200 gallons are connected to generators which in turn drive the wheels.

Total length of the three-unit locomotive is 150 feet with a maximum height of 15 feet.

Although a full crew of instructors travelled with the locomotive, crewmen on the Canadian National Railways operated the train in and out of Belleville. At the throttle for the Toronto-Belleville run was engineer Bill Gardiner with Bob Glassford as fireman while out of Belleville engineer Charles Doran handled the controls with Gordon McNeill as fireman.

For the next ten days the locomotive will be seen frequently on both passenger and freight service through Belleville. It hauled No. 19 from Kingston to Toronto early this morning and this afternoon again hauled No. 16 back to Montreal.

Nipawin to Repeat Automobile 'Spiel'

Nipawin, Sask., (CP) — The Nipawin Curling Club, understood to be the pioneers of the Saskatchewan Association, is planning another "automobile bonspiel" to start in the northeastern Saskatchewan town next January 7.

As this year, there will be four new automobiles awarded the winning rink but there also will be a prize for the runner-up which heretofore received only glory and sympathy. A fifth event will be added in that there four and confined to rinks which get knocked out early in the spiel.

Already Nipawin offical say they have 13 entries, including that of Howard Erwin of Winnipeg who won the 1947 event with his last rock on the 12th.

Snow-blocked roads kept hundreds of potential curling enthusiasts from attending the first spiel and the entry list was 27 short of the number estimated necessary to break even on the event but the club nevertheless banked $2,000 from its venture. It will be used to pay for the new rink.

W.E. Tate Given Promotion To Trammaster

Train despatcher here for the past seven years, William E. Tate, 246 Charles Street, has been transferred to Stratford as trammaster. It has been announced through the publicity department of the Canadian National Railways.

At Brantford Mr. Tate succeeds Trainmaster Cecil L. Warren, former assistant superintendent at Belleville, who has been promoted to the position of superintendent at Palmerston in the Stratford division.

Born in the village of Hastings, Mr. Tate entered the service of the Canadian National Railways as a clerk in 1918. After learning telegraphy he acted as spare telegraph operator from 1922 until 1926 when he was appointed as relief train dispatcher at Lindsay. He became a "regular" despatcher at Lindsay in 1923 and worked there until his transfer to Belleville in September, 1940.

Sponsor Contest To Better Quality Of Malting Barley

Sponsored with the idea of improving the quality of malting barley being grown in Eastern Canada this year, the Select Ten National Barley Contest must be in to John D. MacLeod, Crop Editor, 48 Wesley Building, Toronto, by June 2nd, it has been announced by A. G. Dalrymple, agricultural representative for Hastings County.

Purpose of the contest must have at least five acres of either O.A.C. No. 21, Mandscheuri or Menaury, (Ottawa 60).

Owing to the cancellation of the season entries for the High Yield Soy Bean contest will not be held in this district this year, it has been announced by Agriculturists. Seed is not presently available for soy beans but there is very little barley seed available.

Due to the laziness of the season the Department of Agriculture states it might be advisable for farmers of the district to sow a few soy beans in order, that they may have a concentrate available for their own use and at the same time increase the fertility of their own farms by using legumes.

Further information regarding the contests may be received at any time from the Department of Agriculture, Stirling.

The driver home was by a circuitous route, she said, and in the central district the car slowed down and the other three men jumped in. She said Thomas Holmes placed his hand on her face so she was unable to scream when she tried to leave the car. The women then were driven to a small garage where, the witness said, they were ordered to undress. She stated that when she protested, Quail struck her in the face with a blow of the fist. In the meantime, she added, her friend was criminally assaulted by Reich.

It was after this, she said, that one of the men smeared paint on her face and on her friend's face, and when a taxi had been secured her naked into the car where she allegedly was raped by Reich. The woman said she implored Thomas Holmes to do something, but, she said, he just sat near by, laughing and smoking.

"Eventually, both of us were shoved into the auto," the evidence continued, "and something like a canvas bag was placed over our heads. While the car was in motion I prayed to God that nothing would happen to us. I then heard the men mention something about the location of a canal, and then I prayed louder, and asked God to be the men for God's sake be merciful as we had children."

Educational Notes

As a measure to promote educational publicity and to assist in the stimulation of community interest in education and to give the public correct information regarding education both in Belleville and throughout the district, the Belleville Teachers' Council each week will contribute a column to appear in The Ontario Intelligencer under the heading "Educational Notes."

The Belleville Teachers' Council is the organization representing teachers of the four public schools and the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School.

Commercial in the Collegiate and Vocational School—

The Commercial Department of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School was organized some thirty years ago. Since that time changes and improvements have been made in the organization and the subjects which are taught—from a two-year course at its inception to a grouped four-year course in 1947-48 which should prove beneficial to the future student. In addition, there is a one-year special course instituted in the year 1930. A Secondary School Graduation Diploma is awarded to any student successfully completing Grade XII, whether Academic, Industrial, Home Economics or Commercial.

A present proposed change in the Commercial Department is being contemplated so that students who enter the Secondary School, having in mind a business career may proceed at once with their studies by entering Grade IX Commercial. In order that student desiring this course may not be handicapped should they later decide to transfer to the General Course, it will be made an optional subject.

* * *

A second departure from the present set-up is to defer study of shorthand until Grade XI There is a feeling abroad that by this time a pupil should be capable of making a selection as to what type of business career he or she may wish to follow. Should that selection be of a secretarial nature, the knowledge of English required in the interval would greatly facilitate the study of shorthand. The elimination of this subject in Grade X would allow room for a more rounded education by adding the subject of typewriting. Shorthand in Grade XI should a student wish to concentrate on an secretaryy career he or she may do so by a planned course with-out the study of shorthand but possibly including advanced record keeping, business machines, and salesmanship.

The Special Commercial One-Year Course should be one of the most popular in the entire school. Successful students of Grade XI General are admitted but the most desirable are those completing Grades XII and XIII. The aim of this one year is to give an intensive course in skilled subjects; such as bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, business law, business correspondence, and office practice.

Upon the completion of a successful year, a special commercial certificate is granted. The purpose of this course is to train office assistants to master principles and methods which are essential in any business or profession. Here again, students are permitted to concentrate on an accountancy or secretarial future or may combine both.

* * *

The trend of all commercial education is (1) To develop the pupil as an individual. (2) To try to present a corporate life in which the student can share and through which he can learn to participate in the fuller life of the community of which he and the school are parts (3) To stress an educated person rather than a trained person in a few subjects—grammar, spelling, English composition, English literature, and mathematics are foundation subjects in all commercial work (4) To strive to have the student develop desirable traits of personality; such as, honesty, accuracy, ability to follow instructions, dependability including regularity and punctuality, co-operation, initiative, and good grooming. All these are highly desirable and most of them absolutely necessary.

* * *

Many students look upon Commercial Education as merely a training for an office position This is very much shorter outlook. The students of today are the business people of tomorrow. There is an opportunity to become acquainted with business methods and common forms of business enterprise and the social values connected with each; for example, fundamental relationships among employer and employee, supplier and customer; common forms of business organization as exemplified by single proprietor, partnership, corporation.

The Commercial Department strives to keep in contact with the desires, trends, changing emphasis of the business world and is aided in this endeavour by personal interviews, office surveys etc. Suggestions and constructive criticisms will be welcomed and will be incorporated as far as possible in the Commercial Program.

HER MAJESTY QUEEN MARY

The Queen Mother will be 80 years old on May 26th.

The much loved Queen Mother, with her sympathetic and gracious personality has endeared herself to the hearts of her people. Everyone will join in wishing Her Majesty many happy returns of the day.

Still a Gracious Old Lady.

Mary, The Queen Mother, and What She Is Like at 80

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer)

London, May 24 — Queen Mary celebrates her 80th. birthday on Monday next, May 26th. What is she like?

Everyone who meets her will agree that the thing about her that impresses them most is her simplicity and dignity. She has the happy gift of putting people completely at their ease and yet never ceasing to be royal.

She is essentially easy to talk to, having a very genuine interest in everything that is said to her. She is also very well-informed about affairs of the day.

One of her favorite pastimes is reading. Her favorite books are usually historical. She has a wide knowledge of history.

Another favorite hobby is collecting antique furniture, silver and especially china and porcelain.

She has the point of knowing the origin of every piece in her possession, and, due to her good taste, Marlborough House is very beautifully furnished.

Royal Appearance.

In appearance Queen Mary is remarkably upright. She is tall, with snowwhite hair which curls naturally. She uses make-up, but discreetly, and she dislikes all scented nail varnish.

She is fond of jewellery and wears it magnificently. Her taste always follow the same style. Powder blue is her favorite color. Her shoes are low heeled and square.

Her voice is deep and rather guttural, and her complexion very good.

She is noted for her energy and astonishing vitality. It is said, she walked 14 miles at an exhibition without showing the slightest signs of fatigue.

Even now, she walks beautifully and never stoops.

She is not at all deaf, and her health is excellent, an occasional slight attack of gout being her only ailment.

On the whole, she is serious by nature, although she has a marked sense of humor.

She enjoys the theatre, and is extremely fond of classical concerts and opera.

Enjoys Movies.

She also likes films, and often goes to the ones Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret have at the palace.

To her grandchildren she is "Granny" and they all love her.

She likes London life better than life in the country, and does quite a lot of gardening planning at Marlborough House.

During the war she stayed at the Duke and Duchess of Beaufort's beautiful place, Badminton Park, in Gloucestershire.

She had her own suite there, and often used to have meals with her host and hostess.

A keen and excellent knitter, she organized a working party at Badminton which provided more than 400 articles for the fighting forces.

She knitted personally 106 scarves, all of which were sent as gifts to her regiment, the Queen's Royal.

Fond of Food.

She is fond of her food. Her favorite dishes are roast beef and boiled eggs. She prefers coffee to tea, and does not take many alcoholic drinks.

Perhaps one of the most markedsigns of Queen Mary's ability to move with the times is her acceptance of today's mode of living.

Although she brought up her own children strictly and their freedom was limited, she thoroughly agrees with Princess Elizabeth dancing at London restaurants and enjoying herself like any other girl of her age.

In other ways, though, she prefers to be "old-fashioned," especially in her choice of cars. While the rest of the Royal family have more-streamlined black models, she still keeps to the high crimson Daimlers fashionable many years ago.

She has an exceptionally good memory, and rarely forgets a face in conversation.

When people are presented to her for the second time she is frequently surprised that she is able to recall their previous meeting.

Devout Christian.

Religion plays an important part in her life. Very often the congregation of a small Belgravia church have her with them on a Sunday morning.

On these occasions she is attended by one Lady-in-Waiting.

The Duke of Windsor accompanied her to the church the Sunday he was in England last year.

Languages have always come easily to her. When she was still a girl she could speak German, French, and Italian fluently, especially Italian.

She believes that being royal is as much a full-time job as any other profession or occupation. From her earliest youth she trained herself for the position she was one day to fill.

Hers has been a hard and, in some ways, unenviable life—a life where unselfishness had to play a great part.

Like many elderly people, she is sometimes a little impatient, but those who know this are also well aware that beneath an occasionally frowning manner she has one of the kindest and most sympathetic natures they could ever hope to find.

That is why her friends and countless devoted subjects wish her long life, good health and happiness.

WILL NOT ISSUE ABRIDGED EDITION OF ESPIONAGE STORY

London, May 24 — (CP) —The British government does not intend to issue an abridged version of the Canadian Royal Commission report on espionage although wide circulation was advocated in the Commons to inform British people about "a plot against a sister state of the Empire."

Glenvil Hall, financial secretary to the treasury, said the government would leave publication of an abridged edition to a private firm, but it was anxious to meet the demand for actual copies of the report and more were being received than could be made by the government stationery office.

Twenty-Fourth of May

Victoria Day, set in the lovely month of May, has continued to be observed nearly half a century beyond the life of the Queen whose name has been given to this day. No greater tribute could be paid to the Monarch who reigned from 1837 until 1901 in the longest reign in British history. In her time the British peoples saw the bounds of the "Land of Hope and Glory," the "Mother of the Free" more widely set. The Victorian era was a time of great expansion in every phase of the national life, and expansion in science and knowledge and literature and art. The passage of forty-six years has not altered Canada's recognition of that day and the day continues to be observed.

May Twenty-Fourth has always had significance to Canadians who have never wavered in their desire to keep this time a date in the calendar because of the role it played in Canada and the Motherland and the rest of the Commonwealth. It is more firmly established than ever and like a tree grows more deeply rooted with the passage of time.

Canada was not so great when she began to observe this anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria as she is today but the spirit of more than a century ago is the spirit of the present day. Canadians look upon Victoria Day as a day of significance of the relations between the younger nation and the Mother Nation. By this rule Canada has lived, she has felt the kindly presence and guidance of Britain and this has made Canada feel the strength which comes from so benign a relationship. Canada has grown in national stature and the influence of the Commonwealth are growing in stature and importance in the world and at the same time Britain's influence has grown because of her spirit of freedom and democracy.

In the Empire Canada has grown and has seen the Commonwealth grow and influence the nations outside the bounds of the Commonwealth. Canada is a nation in the Empire, she is in the Commonwealth and the Commonwealth is a world of nations within the world. They influence grows, making the bounds of freedom wider yet.

The great traditions and ideals gathered during the years are being passed on to each generation as it comes forward and to the nations of the world and they feel their kindly influence for the good of humanity.

To An Unknown Child

There has been unveiled in Prague a memorial "To an unknown child." Of how many young victims of the Nazi aggression this could stand as a tribute and at the same time as a condemnation of would-be conquerors whose crimes have grieved the world of the flower of childhood and sent countless humbers to cruel deaths or consigned them to misery worse than death.

This memorial is intended to keep in lasting memory the children of Czechoslovakia whose brief career was cut short when Hitlerism ran rampant through that country, callous to the sufferings of young and old and bent on the crushing of the spirit of all who were before them. It was innocence and purity against the ruthless invader, against the very spirit of evil for that was what German tyranny meant.

Here is one of the world's greatest losses. These children, who suffered by the aggressor, were the generation that would have filled their portion of the world but because their innocence was in the way they were done to death, or survive as some who have known poverty and misery in their tender years which with the sufferings they endured will sear their souls.

The unidentified children honored by this memorial are representative of their generation anywhere in the world who felt the blight and the curse of tyranny. This great army of known and unknown children of Europe whose ending and whose misery are an irreparable loss the effects of which will be felt down from generation to generation, is something the world can never recover for life once destroyed cannot be revived. That great host of dead and the greater army of those who endured a life of misery and suffering from disease and under terrific handicaps will stand in judgment against those who wilfully made war.

Beneath the plaque in the Cathedral of the Victorious Virgin in Prague is a small urn holding the finger-bone of an infant who died on the inhuman march to a camp of concentration. It is a symbol of the spirit which Hitlerism could not destroy.

Two children, unveiling the memorial, were Czechs who had been taken from their family and transported to Poland in 1943. Their father and their grandfather were arrested and murdered in the German reprisals following the slaying of the "Butcher of Bohemia and Moravia."

In thinking of these innocent victims, one recalls the words of the Master of Life, who said "who shall offend one of these little ones which believe in Me, it were better that a millstone were hanged about his neck and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."

They are the judges of the inhuman men who killed without mercy and behaved as no humans could have been expected to behave. "Better that a millstone" is an overwhelming judgment against the offenders against innocent childhood.

Lighter-Than-Air Craft

Vice Admiral Charles E. Rosendahl, retired, pleads again the cause of the large rigid airship, of which he has so long been an ardent advocate. This time he suggests the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House Congress authorize steamship lines to develop ocean-flying services with lighter-than-air craft, and thus permit them advantages of speed which they cannot now enjoy, but preserve, at the same time, the autonomy of airplane transport from infringement by other forms of carrier.

Possession by the United States of a practical monopoly of non-inflammable helium should be a strong incentive, in the Admiral's opinion, to further development of large airships. Their role in which he threatens the well-being of ultra-fast airplane transport. The fact that they are displacement vessels and do not require power for sustenance at once opens a horizon of range by payloads and long cruising ranges beyond the economical horizon of winged aircraft at present. Admiral Rosendahl is persuasive when he emphasizes the gap between the speed of the steamer and the speed of the airplane which could be filled by the rigid airship.—New York Times.

"Come the World Against Her . . ."

Mr. Bevin, Britain's rugged Foreign Secretary, said last week:

"I wish to say that the Government does not accept the view that we have ceased to be a great power or the contention that we have ceased to play that role. . . . We have our historic role to play.

"It has never occurred to His Majesty's Government, nor I believe to the British people, to apply for a receiving order in bankruptcy."

We don't think that, outside of those who would like to see the British light go out. It has occurred to anyone else. Britain has a Labor Government, or, as some prefer to call it, a Socialist Government. The members of that Government are Britons first, Laborites or Socialists afterwards. Mr. Bevin is of the mould of that other Laborite, Philip Snowden, who once, when Britain was endangered, quoted Swinburne's stirring lines:

"All our past acclaims our future: Shake, speare's voice and Nelson's hand,
Milton's faith and Wordsworth's trust in this our chosen and chainless land,
Bear as witness: Come the world against her,
England yet shall stand."

Prominently posted on the wall of a business establishment is this bit of advice:

"Work faithfully for eight hours a day and don't worry; then in time you may become boss and work 18 hours a day and have all the worries."—Kitchener Record.

JUST FOLKS

TRANSFORMATION

Now he washes neck and hands.
At the mirror long he stands,
And he wishes with a frown
Straighter creases in his pants.
But, it's not to please his mother
Or his father or his brother,
Or his grandpas or his grandmas,
Or his uncles or his aunts.

Not so very long ago
In a heap his clothes he'd throw,
And he wished his mother's pleading
To be properly attired.
But, today his shock of hair
Shows the touch of tender care,
And a curious wish for neatness
He has suddenly acquired.

But I chuckle, looking on,
And remember days by-gone
When that self-same transformation
In a moment came to me.
And I say, the youngster teasing,
"It's not mother you are pleasing
Or your father or your uncle;
It's some girl you're off to see."

EARL OF HAREWOOD

After the war, Lord Lascelles bought Harewood Chesterfield House in London's West End, now the site of a block of flats, and packed in with art treasures therefrom his late grand-uncle. Soon subsequently he opened a racing establishment and paid 10,000 guineas for one horse.

Bought Peace at Home

Soon afterwards he met Princess Mary, 24, only daughter of King George V and Queen Mary. A months engagement they were married in February, 1922, at the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace. From the blaze of publicity given that wedding, the couple sought peace at Harewood House where one year later a son and heir, George Henry Hubert Lascelles, was born.

Some 18 months later, the Princess Royal bore another son, Gerald David Lascelles.

It is said that Lord Harewood was not even present at the time when Prince of Wales (now the Duke of Windsor) who was once reputed to have said:

"Every day I get commoner and commoner and every day Lascelles gets royaller and royaller."

The Earl was keenly devoted to horses and Freemasonry. He alternated between the tennis court, bridge and bespoke and was reckoned the best card player in the Royal circle. While hunting in 1931 he was thrown and injured. Caused Anxiety

Sometimes the Earl's outspokenness caused grave anxiety in court social and political circles. He once opened a British Legion graphic exhibition at Bradford, Yorks., with the remark:

"There are three main categories of photographers—scientific, amateur and those who take photographs for profit. From the last I have suffered a good deal and Princess Mary has suffered a great deal more. I would like to call that kind of photographer a menace."

On another occasion, referring to hunting in Ireland, he said:

"Over there is an atmosphere of genuine sport entirely free of the snobbery one sometimes gets in England."

In April, 1936, shortly after Edward VIII concluded with Parliament over the settlement in London of Leopold von Hoesch, the German ambassador in Britain, Lord Harewood told the Royal Field Artillery at Doncaster Barracks:

"If you examine the methods of Herr Hitler in his own country you will find that he is as difficult to draw any parallel with from the other walk of life rather than that of the gangster. . . .

"When you are talking with a highwayman or a gangster, you will do so much more comfortably if you are armed with a bullet-proof shirt."

TOMMY CHURCH

Speaker Unmoved

The speaker was unmoved.

Not that Edith's stop bouncy, little Tommy Church.

Mr. Church, Attorney-General and Minister of Education prescribes the exact form of the oath of affirmation. Article 11, Section 2, says: "Before he (the President) enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The Constitution does not say when, where or by whom this oath shall be administered. From the beginning it was presumed that any person entitled to write news oaths might administer the presidential oath. Some state and State officers the unquestioned right to administer oaths to Federal officials.

By courtesy and custom the oath is administered to the President by the highest judicial official available. Thus the Chief Justice of the United States when Washington was inaugurated in New York City, April 30, 1789, and Robert R. Livingston, chancellor of the State of New York, administered the oath. When Washington was inaugurated his second time Chief Justice John Marshall was not in Philadelphia and the oath was administered by Chief Justice William Cushing of the Supreme Court. Oliver Ellsworth, the second Chief Justice, swore in John Adams March 4, 1797, and since then every President beginning a regular term has been sworn in by the Chief Justice.

John Marshall and Roger Brooke Taney, the Chief Justices during the 63 years from 1801 to 1864, administered the presidential oath 11 times. Marshall administered it nine times to Jefferson twice, Madison twice, Monroe twice, John Quincy Adams, Jackson twice. Taney administered it seven times, but never to the same person twice—to Van Buren, William H. Harrison, Polk, Taylor, Pierce, Buchanan and Lincoln. The other Chief Justices and the Presidents they swore in have been as follows:

Salmon P. Chase—Lincoln once and Grant twice; Morrison R. Waite—Hayes; Melville W. Fuller—Cleveland once; Melville Weston Fuller — Benjamin Harrison, Cleveland once, McKinley twice, Theodore Roosevelt and Taft; Edward Douglass White — Wilson twice, and Harding; William Howard Taft, the only person who has both received and administered the presidential oath—Coolidge, and Hoover; Charles Evans Hughes — Franklin D. Roosevelt three times; Harlan F. Stone — Franklin D. Roosevelt once, Truman once.

Of the seven Presidents who have filled out unexpired terms of their predecessors, all were sworn in by Chief Justices — John by Chase, Andrew by Waite, and Truman by Stone.

Chase, administering the oath to Hoover March 4, 1929, Chief Justice Taft said: "To will and hereby to maintain and defend" instead of "preserve, protect and defend" as in the Article and in Waldeh N.Y., who had listened to the inauguration of Franklin, called the Chief Justice's attention to the error. Some time elapsed she was right and the Chief Justice graciously acknowledged his error. Unlike most official and judicial oaths, the presidential oath does not close with "So help me God." When Franklin D. Roosevelt was sworn in January 20, 1941, Chief Justice Hughes added "So help me God" to the oath and Roosevelt repeated the words after him.

LORDOSIS, PAUNCH AND BACKACHE

The middle aged individual developing lordosis, paunch and backache or pain in the back may find dramatic relief from:

Guess what. No. No. Oh, no. It is from exercise. No don't blame me, Flabby. This is not my suggestion, although I think it is an excellent one. It is a statement I quote from an article on Remedial Exercises published by Dr. Guy H. Fisk in Canadian Medical Association Journal.

In case you are not sure just what lordosis means it is exaggeration of the natural backward curve (level of shoulderblades) and forward curve (middle of the back) of the spine, commonly called hollow back or swayback, and often associated with round back or round shoulders, though not always. In some cases of lordosis the upper part of the back and the shoulders are straight but the lower part curves.

Part and parcel of lordosis, in the fat or the skinny, is protuberance of the belly.

Fundamental cause of the deformity is weakness, mainly due to neglect of education, physical education, especially in childhood and early youth in the growing period.

Too often parents, themselves physically unpracticed, fail to see that children get proper physical training in school, and unfortunately for our future nationalities, the politicians who control the public school system too often regard physical education with contempt and encourage such boards and faculties to take a similar view, of it, so that ignorant parents are misled and abetted by ignorant or incompetent teachers and principals, backed by ignorant (physically untrained, that is) school boards and political hacks in the way to the top.

Weakness is the fundamental cause of lordosis, swayback, hollow back, protuberant belly round back, round shoulders, whether the deformity is evident in childhood, in the teens or in adult life. General weakness, and especially weakness of abdominal lumbar muscles—lumbar muscle bundles in front of spine but behind the abdominal cavity—and belly muscles—muscle layers in the front wall of the abdominal cavity—weakness due to wasting or atrophy from disease. A well-nourished child or youth who gets proper physical education or training simply does not have such weakness.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Toots, Man!

Am suffering from neuritis in back, shoulders and arms. Have heard that 1 oz. of prickly ash berries in 1 pint of whiskey is

(A.W.L.)

Answer — Before you take to drink you should consult a physician. "Neuritis" is an extremely unlikely explanation of your trouble.

Hernia

In response to my request you sent the pamphlet on Hernia and many thanks for it here, it took months to get my husband to consult him, as meanwhile his hernia became worse. Now, after treatments he is cured. My husband is a Dr. Brady fan now Dr. . . . is certainly skillful in the injection treatment. No treatment gave any more discomfort than an ordinary hypodermic injection would. (Mrs. A.K.)

Answer — I am glad to send the pamphlet to any reader who asks for it. Inclose stamped envelope bearing your address. If your physician is not prepared to give the injection treatment I'll send the name who is. Avoid 1 snow of one in your vicinity.

Cream of Tartar

Is cream of tartar oxidized in the body like the citric acid in oranges and other citrus fruits, or is it harmful like vinegar? A team of tartar sold in the like sikes made from apples or is it made from something else?

(A.)

Answer — It is not oxidized in the body, but is often a good remedy to take as a mild diuretic (increases urine flow) and to acidify alkaline urine. It is made from deposits from the casks deposited in the casks when wine is fermenting.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Must the Chief Justice swear in the President?

The President is the only Federal official for whom the Constitution prescribes the exact form of the oath of affirmation. Article II, Section 1, says: "Before he (the President) enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The Constitution does not say when, where or by whom this oath shall be administered. From the beginning it was presumed that any person entitled to write news oaths might administer the presidential oath. Some state and State officers the unquestioned right to administer oaths to Federal officials.

By courtesy and custom the oath is administered to the President by the highest judicial official available. Thus the Chief Justice of the United States when Washington was inaugurated in New York City, April 30, 1789, and Robert R. Livingston, chancellor of the State of New York, administered the oath. When Washington was inaugurated his second time Chief Justice John Marshall was not in Philadelphia and the oath was administered by Chief Justice William Cushing of the Supreme Court. Oliver Ellsworth, the second Chief Justice, swore in John Adams March 4, 1797, and since then every President beginning a regular term has been sworn in by the Chief Justice.

John Marshall and Roger Brooke Taney, the Chief Justices during the 63 years from 1801 to 1864, administered the presidential oath 11 times. Marshall administered it nine times to Jefferson twice, Madison twice, Monroe twice, John Quincy Adams, Jackson twice. Taney administered it seven times, but never to the same person twice—to Van Buren, William H. Harrison, Polk, Taylor, Pierce, Buchanan and Lincoln. The other Chief Justices and the Presidents they swore in have been as follows:

Salmon P. Chase—Lincoln once and Grant twice; Morrison R. Waite—Hayes; Melville W. Fuller—Cleveland once; Melville Weston Fuller — Benjamin Harrison, Cleveland once, McKinley twice, Theodore Roosevelt and Taft; Edward Douglass White — Wilson twice, and Harding; William Howard Taft, the only person who has both received and administered the presidential oath—Coolidge, and Hoover; Charles Evans Hughes — Franklin D. Roosevelt three times; Harlan F. Stone — Franklin D. Roosevelt once, Truman once.

Of the seven Presidents who have filled out unexpired terms of their predecessors, all were sworn in by Chief Justices — John by Chase, Andrew by Waite, and Truman by Stone.

Chase, administering the oath to Hoover March 4, 1929, Chief Justice Taft said: "To will and hereby to maintain and defend" instead of "preserve, protect and defend" as in the Article and in Waldeh N.Y., who had listened to the inauguration of Franklin, called the Chief Justice's attention to the error. Some time elapsed she was right and the Chief Justice graciously acknowledged his error. Unlike most official and judicial oaths, the presidential oath does not close with "So help me God." When Franklin D. Roosevelt was sworn in January 20, 1941, Chief Justice Hughes added "So help me God" to the oath and Roosevelt repeated the words after him.

MAKES NO NOISE — ALMOST

This is the strange five-bladed army airplane described as the first "silent" airplane and one of a whole family under development in recent years. Some 200 experts saw the plane fly at 300 feet and heard only slightly more noise than that of a car. Propellers of the new airplane are driven by jet engines rather than conventional ones but propels the ship at a higher speed. An engine muffler contributes to the silence.

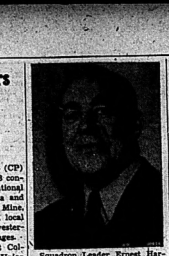
Nickel Workers And Company Fail to Agree

Port Colborne, May 24 — (CP) —Negotiations for a 1947-48 contract between the International Nickel Company of Canada and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, local 637, (C.I.O.) collapsed late yesterday over the question of wages.

John Sheddon, the Port Colborne Refinery Workers Union president, said a strike vote has been called by the union committee for Tuesday. It will affect 1,400 International Nickel Company employees.

The union had demanded a 20-cents-an-hour wage increase, a 40-hour week with pay for 48 hours, equalization of all recognized trades as to rates of pay, a union shop and three weeks holi-



Squadron Leader Ernest Harston served for six years with the Royal Canadian Air Force and is also a veteran of World War II. He is the field secretary of the Ontario Division. While serving in World War II his duties took him over the whole continent of Africa, Egypt, the Soudan, Cyprus, Syria, Jordan, Palestine, Malta, Sicily and Italy, Iraq, Iran and India.

Born in England he received his early education at Queens College, Manchester and is a graduate of the University of Toronto.

Squadron Leader Harston, who began his duties with the Ontario Division, January, 1946, has warmly admired Red Cross as he has seen it operate on the battlefront, in hospitals, on trains and among the prisoners of war. He is equally enthusiastic for its peacetime mission.

Squadron Leader Harston will be the special speaker at a meeting of the Bridge Street United Church Men's Association on Wednesday evening.

day with pay for employees who had served 25 years or more.

Mr. Sheddon said that the union, in an effort to effect a settlement, had dropped the 40-hour week demand, had reduced the pay increase demand to 15 cents and dropped the request for a union shop and three weeks' holiday pay.

R. L. Beattie, vice-president and General manager of the company, said in a statement that by way of wage increases and a reduction in hours maintaining take-home pay, the union demanded an amount equivalent to a 37 cents-an-hour wage increase.

The statement added that yesterday the company made its final offer, an increase of 80 cents a day to all hourly-paid employees, and increases in certain individual wage rates. It also offered to pay what amounts at the present to two-thirds of hospital costs of employees and their families under the Ontario Hospitalization Association's Blue Cross plan.

Safecrackers Get Over $800 At Peterborough

Peterboro, May 16 (CP) —Safe crackers early today obtained more than $800 when they blew open a safe at Campbell's dairy in west-end Peterborough.

At 4 a.m. a baker noticed two men loading material into an automobile but, thinking the men were dairy employees, did not call police until later.

William Twenn, Peterborough mayor and the dairy's general manager, said the cash was for payment of a trucker who collects cream daily from farmers.

Aerial Search For Lost Plane

Manila, May 24 — (AP) — A vast aerial search for a lost luxury air liner with at least 11 Philippine government officials and crew members aboard was resumed today after a report that its wreckage had been sighted proved to be false.

Maj.-Gen. Rafael Jalandoni, Philippine army chief of staff who is directing the search, sent a message to President Manuel A. Roxas that wreckage spotted Thursday on a Mindanao mountain was that of an old army plane.

The report spurred hope that some survivors might yet be found in Mindanao's jungles, where presumably the plane vanished five days ago on a brief flight from Mindanao to Negros Island to the northwest.

Historic Areas Across Holland Visited by Drew

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Eindhoven, Holland, May 24 (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario drove across Holland yesterday, seeing historic areas where Canadian and British troops fought the last eight months of the war. He wound up his tour by visiting a huge electrical and radio works (Phillips) which has a Toronto branch and world-wide connections.

After breakfast, the visiting premier left The Hague for Utrecht, whence he drove to Doorn to see the estate on which former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany was interned from 1919 until his death in 1941. Then, accompanied by Maj. J. F. Armstrong, agent-general for Ontario in London, he drove to Wageningen where Col.-Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz surrendered his 25th German army to the 1st Canadian Corps under Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, now Chief of the Canadian General Staff.

At Wageningen he entered the battered World Hotel and visited the room in which Blaskowitz and Foulkes signed the armistice documents.

Lunch was taken at Arnhem, ruined after the British 1st Airborne Division's heroic stand in September, 1944.

At Nijmegen, the premier placed a wreath on the stately central cross, about which 2,500 Canadians lie buried.

At Eindhoven electrical and radio plant he talked with its founder, 74-year-old A. F. Philips, and G. M. R. Loupari, managing director.

Tomorrow Premier Drew flies to Berlin by way of Hamburg. He returns to London Sunday after a brief visit to Brussels.

Tourist Camps Must be Licensed

Toronto, May 24 — (CP)—Municipal licensing of all tourist camps in Ontario is made mandatory under regulations announced yesterday by Hon. Arthur Welsh, minister of travel in the Ontario government. It was estimated that upwards of 1,000 camps operated for profit will come under the regulations.

The license fee is $5 and there is a charge of $2.50 for yearly renewal. This money goes to the clerk of the municipality issuing the licence.

The regulations, which detail the type of maintenance, minimum facilities and amount of space required for each cabin or tent, are only a start towards bringing all camps in the province up to a high standard, the minister explained.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

SCARLET TANAGER

When a vivid scarlet bird with black wings and tail flew into our wild black cherry tree there was absolutely no doubt in our minds as to its identity. The nearest to an all-red bird we have is the rosy Summer Tanager, and it is a most infrequent visitor. There are birds with red on heads or throat, pink patches, magenta coloring, cardinal with a black face, pinky-red bodies with black and white wings. But here was the breath-taking sight of pure vermilion in bright sunshine. Offset by jet black. It could be none other than the male Scarlet Tanager.

Maybe his wife was with him, dressed in dull greenish-yellow with a lighter wash on breast and underparts. We did not see her; our eyes were fastened on her gorgeous mate. When he flew over the pasture to the woods behind we watched until he disappeared into the mass of green foliage. Mrs. Scarlet Tanager probably hovered nearby, unnoticed, but sympathetic to our appreciation of her beautiful husband.

But our mid-June exclamations were as nothing to our early-August shouts, which grew in volume as one bird after another made its appearance in the bushes two yards from our back door.

"Look! A green bird larger than a Sparrow, but not so plump, and with a less stubby bill."

"There's one yellowish underneath—and with patches of scarlet, and black wings and tail. See that one with light wing-bars! Another mottled. Here's one with brownish wings scalloped in dull olive. There must be two dozen, all alike, but different!"

"Some look almost as if they might be female Baltimore Orioles. But the bills are wrong —they have a downward curve and are not long and slender enough."

"They must be Scarlet Tanagers moulting, even though they have started on their journey South."

Sure enough. The flock was composed of adult females in green costumes, adult males in various stages of change from scarlet spring suits to drab summer wear, other clothes, and a lot of immature birds. These last looked like their mothers, except that young males have pale yellow margins on some wing feathers which give the effect of light wing-bars

Tanagers are slow-moving, so that it was comparatively easy to follow them with field-glasses—though often they were too close for anything but our unaided eyes.

To The Citizens of Belleville and District:

I consider it an honor and a privilege to recommend to you the appeal of the Belleville Branch, Canadian Legion, as set forth in the accompanying letter.

In my executive capacity I have had a chance to observe the work done by the Legion and I have found them to be loyal and trustworthy guardians of the ex-service man and woman. There are numerous discharged men and women as well as widows and orphans today who owe their present pensions, gratuities, etc., to the fight that the Legion made on their behalf and obtained for them the compensation that was rightfully theirs.

The proposed building will be a big help for the local Legion Branch to carry on their splendid work and it will also fill a much needed want in the community life of Belleville and district.

I ask you to be as liberal as possible in your donations to this important project.

Signed

V.O.N. NEWS

In these days when hospital authorities are endeavoring to curtail the period of convalescence in hospital in order to ensure accommodations for the acutely ill and emergency cases, patients who may be cared for adequately in the homes after operations or special medical treatment are being discharged from hospital as soon as possible.

Perhaps such cases require part time nursing care for dressings or other professional aid. It is the Victorian Order Nurse who will answer calls of this nature, care for the sick and instruct members of the family in the day long care of the person who is ill. By phoning 171 a nurse will be available for such visits at the earliest time ready to leave the hospital.

Says Master Chefs Needed in Canada

Montreal, (CP)—A suggestion that Canadian hotels import/outstanding European chefs, preferably French, into every province to supervise the training of a "generation of master chefs" in Canada has been advanced by Georges A. Wilson, president of the Hotel Association of Canada as necessary if high culinary experts in the culinary field was to be developed to assure the future of the Canadian hotel business, said Mr. Wilson.

"In Europe there is great knowledge and skill in the art of preparing fine foods is at a pinnacle, there were few if any chefs capable of undertaking the training of a younger generation of master chefs.

"We must bring to each province in Canada outstanding European experts in the culinary art, and it is an art practised in Europe in even the smallest hotels," he said.

"And then we must develop to a greater extent the training system and schools for native-born Canadians in the mastery of food preparation."

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, (CP)—Not only is a cheese dish a tasty item on the supper menu, but it is one of the most nutritious foods that can be served.

Canadian cheese is a food of quality and should have a more prominent place on meals, because like milk, cheese is an almost perfect food, home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, say. Both cheese and milk are good for children as well as adults.

Because of its high protein content cheese is in the same class at meat, fish, poultry and eggs, and since it is usual to depend upon the latter foods to supply the protein for the meal, the principal use of cheese should be in that role.

Canadian cheddar, the principal type made in Canada, is a hard cheese. Process cheese sold extensively in packages is also made from a cheddar base which is ground and heated to pasteurization temperature and then poured into moulds or packages and allowed to cool. Many controlled process assures uniformity of flavor, texture and body of the cheese.

Any uncooked mixture of cheese, eggs, and milk, or seasoned, should be "oven-poached" in a moderate oven. Scalloped or other cheese dishes made with cooked foods should be baked in a moderate oven only sufficient time to heat the mixture thoroughly.

For a cheese sauce the cream sauce should be thickened and constantly until the sauce is smooth. Ordinarily would make 1-1/2 cups of sauce which may be served on hot toast's a rarebit, or as a sauce for vegetables, hard-boiled eggs, macaroni, noodles and so on.

Shepherd Souffle

Put meat and onion through grinder. Parsley three minutes with the two tablespoons fat. Arrange bits of bread in frying-dish. Break bread into small pieces. Cut cheese, beaten egg yolks and hot milk. Add remaining fat, parsley, salt and paprika. Let stand 20 minutes or until ready to bake and then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Must Watch Figure To Cut Ice Digits

Edmonton, (CP)—You don't glide on the ice with the greatest of ease without possessing a slim figure, says Jane Zelser, one of the stars of the current Ice Capades show.

The petite, brown-eyed Miss Zelser is careful of her diet and maintains an even balance between 98 and 105 pounds, a helpful practice when her husband, Dick Merriam, hits her in the air during the many complicated angles of their team performance.

Jane, a Canadian skater at 14, practised figure skating requires from four to six hours of heavy practice daily to keep in top form.

Escorts Should Be Told About Decision To Omit Corsages

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In your column the other day you mentioned that in some schools the junior and senior classes were voting to ban the sending of corsages by the boys who are invited to the prom or senior dance. Our class has just voted this too, realizing that many boys find this expense of corsages too much, with such other expenses they are expected to pay, such as transportation expense, and often quite a sum for after-the-dance snack. Now the girls in our class are wondering if they should inform the boys they are inviting, or just let the boys do as they please. What is your advice?

Betty.

Not to let the boys know of this decision of your class would be decidedly unfair, from all the points of view. Some boys might hear about it, for some mightn't . . . and it would be most embarrassing and humiliating for the boys who had been told not to send corsages to arrive at the dance and find that some boys had sent corsages. So each girl, when she invites the boy, should tell him that the class has voted that corsages are to be omitted. And this will mean to him, of course, that the decision is an official one, not a personal one!

The Bride's Mother Chooses Her Accessories

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the bride's mother, and to the wedding I am wearing a powder-blue dress and an all-white hat. One of my friends advises me to wear long white gloves, black stockings and black bag; another advises white gloves, black shoes, and black bag; and still a third says to wear gray gloves, gray shoes, and a gray bag. Would you approve of any of these, and have you another suggestion?

M. S.

If in your all-flower hat one shade predominates, a shade that is particularly harmonious with your powder-blue dress, you might create a lovely costume-effect by having your gloves, shoes, and bag pick up that same shade. Or your slippers may be dyed to the shade of your dress (really the most effective plan), and you might wear soft doeskin gloves in white or off-white and carry a small white or off-white envelope-purse. (I think gray gloves, gray shoes, and a gray bag would be the least effective combination.)

She's To Be Introduced To The Family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been invited to meet the family of a co-worker of mine, and would like your help on two questions:

1. How are the introductions made? Who is presented to whom? And ,how do I acknowledge the introductions?

2. Would it be correct for me to take a gift of candy to the children?

Anita B.

If if you are going to her home, your co-worker should introduce you to the members of her family. First, to her mother. "Mother, this is Miss Brown," or perhaps with the friendly informality of "Mother, this is Anita Brown." Then, "Miss Brown, my father." (Your co-worker would introduce you to her mother; therefore your name is mentioned last. But since a man is introduced to a woman, your name is mentioned first when she introduces her father to you.) Then the children would be introduced to you, perhaps not with the repetition of your name: ". . . and this is my sister, Grace" ". . . and my brother, Tom."

Say your most gracious "How do you do" to acknowledge each introduction, with the addition of a few words, if appropriate, after your introduction to the mother. You add some gracious remark—for example, "How do you do, Mrs. Robinson. I'm so happy to meet you at last. Peggy has told me such grand things about you and her family."

2. Yes, delightfully correct . . . and you'll be popular with the children!

Beautiful girls, and many of them, are to be seen performing under the mammoth "Big Top" of the world famous Sparks three ring railroad circus when the big show exhibits here, afternoon and night at 2.30 p.m. and 8.30 p.m. on Monday, June 2nd on the show grounds at Station and Cooper streets.

Having a clean wholesome life in the great outdoors, these beauties are versatile of talent and energy, the "Aerial Ballet" high in midair in the dome of the "Big Top". Many of them are accomplished equestriennes, others are daring trapeze artists, serialists, wire walkers, chant trainers, and all appear in the glittering, glorious, scintillating opening spectacle "Americana", attractively gowned in gorgeous costumes, the prelude to two hours of entertainment under the billowing canvas of the "Big Top" as the main tent is termed by the showfolk.

Sparks Circus, this year, for the first time since the beginning of World War II is transported on its own train of 60 car length railroad cars with palatial sleeping coaches as the traveling homes for performers and other show people while on tour. A complete menagerie is another feature of this year's Sparks Circus.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Young Man "Gets Fresh" When He's Near Him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 19 who has known and loved a fellow of 24 for about a year. The last three months we have been going steady exclusively.

This fellow has told me he loves me, and I have told him the same. He insists he as if I am his girl, but there is one thing that has just started that I refuse to take. All of a sudden he has a tendency to get fresh. We fight over this, but we always manage to make up. He always asks me, "Is there any harm in it?" and I can never think of a reason to give him why I feel the way I do about it.

I love him, and don't want to lose him, but if this is going to continue, I refuse to go out with him.

"B.S.N."

Dear @B.S.N.":

It seems to me that if this young man of 24 were very serious in his feelings for you and you in yours for him, there would be an engagement between you after all this time. The fact that, instead of asking you to marry him at this point, he suddenly "gets fresh," would lead me to believe that he has nothing in mind beyond an intensive flirtation.

I don't see why you have such trouble thinking up a reason to give him for not wishing to have cheapen yourself by letting him paw you. You could just tell him, once for all, couldn't you, that you don't like that sort of thing and let that be the end of it? He's the type who will break off with a girl he's been going with for a year just because she does not allow him to take liberties with her. I think he sooner you do as you suggest, and refuse to have anything to do with him, the better off you'll be.

Don't Cheat Yourself Of The Present By Daydreaming About The Past

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 18, and not in the habit of asking advice. I generally keep my problems secret and figure a way out myself. But I need help in this one.

I was born and raised in a little town out west. There I met a girl out there with whom I went to school and am secretly in love with. She knows nothing of it. She was only 13 at the time, and her parents thought she was too young to go with boys, so I never had the privilege of taking her out.

Two years ago I moved away, and I wrote her a couple of letters, just friendly ones, but got no reply. It might be at least a year or two more before I can go back there, but anyway it's plain to me she doesn't care much for me, or she would have answered my letters. Please tell me what I can do in the meantime to get her interested in me.

"Bill J."

Dear "Bill J.":

What I'd really advise you to do is to look around the town in which you now live and see if there aren't some girls there you'd like to know. There are girls worth knowing everywhere, and it's far more sensible to make friends where you are than to pass up good times and interesting new friendships for idle daydreams about the past.

That isn't the way you feel about it right now, I know, and that isn't the way you are going to are looking for. But you'd be smart to take it. Drop the home town girl a letter now and then if you want to; send her a simple little present now and again, on her birthday, or on appropriate holidays, and let the matter rest. But don't be silly enough to cheat yourself out of present opportunities for friendships by "putting all your eggs in one basket."

They Like A Girl Who Makes Sacrifice Of Them

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two girls in our early teens, and our problem involves another girl who we like very much. She is very popular and has a nice personality.

Whenever we go with her, we have a lot of fun, but we know she only goes with us when she hasn't got her other friends to go with. She cancels our backs she lies about us and does everything in her power against us, but when she is with us she is an altogether different person. When we see her in the movies with other friends, she acts as if she never saw us before in her life.

In spite of all she does to us, we still like her very much. I guess it's because she's so much fun to be with. Our question is, should we continue our friendship or should we slight her? Please tell us what you think of her.

"Two Perturbed Girls"

Dear Girls:

Why on earth should you want to bother with a two-faced character like this, when there are so many nice people in the world to have for friends? Apparently this girl has a certain magnetic personality that attracts others and makes them enjoy her company, and if you find the occasional attention she highmightily awards you when she hasn't any company she likes better worth hanging pinned around for at other times, that's your own business. But it seems to me you ought to have more self-respect than to let her make suckers of you.

Your Problem Seems a Little Confusing, "Chick."

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I wonder if you could tell me how my friends and I can go about asking a group of fellows to join our crowd. I mean, to get together socially so often for dancing and having fun in other ways. We include these boys at every party we have. Still, we don't know of any way in which to approach them.

Can you tell me where I could obtain a book concerning party games?

"Chick"

Dear "Chick":

Your letter has me rather confused. If you are already including these boys at your party every time, I'm at a loss to see why you have already "approached" them very definitely, and I don't quite know what further it is you want. Do you mean that all the invitations come from you girls, and the boys never respond by inviting you along and out on dates generally, in return?

If that is the case, and the entertaining is all on one side, then the boys don't have very good manners, do they? But that isn't anything you can do much about, I'm afraid. If they don't known enough to return the hospitality you girls extend to them, by inviting up some kind of party of their own, all I can do is entertain that you can hardly suggest it. Perhaps you might stop inviting them to your parties for awhile, and see if they don't catch on to you naturally expect some reciprocity in the matter. It would be worth trying, I think.

As for a book on party games, practically every bookstore has one in stock, and I suggest you drop in at yours and consult the librarian. . . .

His Girl Can't Make Up Her Mind

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and very much in love with a girl of 17. She was engaged to a man, but broke off with him because of me. She wasn't engaged to him before I knew her, so you see I didn't cut in on him.

Well, after I was discharged from the service, we got along very well until this other boy was discharged. Then my troubles started. She told me at home, I couldn't make up her mind which one she liked. So the only thing she could do was to show affection to both of us, but I will say I did. So I decided to leave her for one night and see what happened.

But these days before I planned to go away, she asked me not to go, saying that she still loved me, and not the other. I knew by this remark that she meant what she said. She told the other boy that night she was through with him, and I thought all was well again.

We have had many arguments, and she does things that make it look as if I may be the one half the trouble is my fault. Do you think you can help me?

"Confused"

Dear "Confused":

I think the trouble here is that this girl is much too young yet to make any decision of the kind you two boys are urging on her. I'm sure that neither of you should expect her to do so. Between you, you have her badly confused, bewildering her very thoroughly about her own feelings.

Of course you're afraid that if you stop pressing her, the other boy will beat you out. But I doubt very much if any engagement between her, and anyone else at this time would last very long, as she quite obviously is not ready to make up her mind. And if you. . . . In the meantime, stopped mixing her up further by trying to persuade her in your favor, and just acted like a good friend to her, it might very likely be that she would turn to you in the end. In any event, you are not going to get anywhere right now by continuing to argue and plead. You'll have much more chance of advancing your own cause if you drop promoting it for awhile.

Fashion Flashes

OUR CHOICE for the most striking evening gown this spring goes to a strapless affair, a grand gown made of yards and yards of vivid red silk chiffon. Ingenuous drapings of the folds gives a ruffled look to the bodice. The draped line slants across the front, holding the middle and flowing into a back panel that is really a tiny train. It's a matching cost of red faille.

HELP in dressing up a simple black or navy basic dress is offered by a one-inch belt of washable white piqued calfskin with a self-covered buckle, and a double-side side peplums of Swiss cotton lace. Good.

The Kibitzer

Ozperts have pet ideas they like to inject into their bidding. Mostly do they crop out on hands that are just on the borderline between one kind of bid and another.

A deal that could start an argument in any bunch had this pair of hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A 3	♠K Q J 8 6 2
♥K J 9 7 6 5	♥A 8 2
♦K Q J 6	♦4 3
♣K	♣Q 8 3

South is the dealer. He has a total of eight tricks. A count of five are his high cards; two aces, two kings, a queen. Count three tricks for three short cards in clubs and one short in hearts.

If he should open his bid of only one, he may be sorry. Partner may have the lucky cards that could help south make game.

If he starts with a two bid, he may be sorry. Partner may take him seriously. Then what? The north must help go to a game that may not make. With something, north may get to a losing slam.

As you must readily see, something can be said on both sides. But the selection that sticks closest to the rule is the correct bid. In this case the most accurate bid is one heart.

The bidding should go like this:

South	North
1 H	2 S
3 H	3 S
4 D	4 H
4 NT	5 H
6 H or 6 S

In answer to four no-trump, five hearts is Kibitzer convention signal for showing one ace and one king. This tells that a grand slam is not there. From the sports seen and shown, south knows either might be right.

As Mottle says: Without a choice you could do woise.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Any argument you might have against the immigration of Europeans would be quickly dispelled if you chanced to see Hedy Lamarr in "Dishonored Lady." We shudder to think how dull a resident otherwise would have been if Hedy had stayed at home because in our book she is the most beautiful creature that ever faced a camera.

There are those who say she gets by on her looks, and that she can't act. But in "Dishonored Lady," she does enough excellent acting to satisfy the most.

The story concerns a successful New York business woman, unhappy at heart, who seeks pleasure in concert. She runs the gamut of a dozen eligible males, realizes there is no future in it, and contemplates suicide.

On the advance of a friendly psychiatrist, she takes a new identity and lights a big fire for struggling young pianist, David Cousins (Dennis O'Keefe.) Of course, her past catches up with her and she becomes involved in a murder that not only tests her character but also the good doctor.

Something Light.

If you are able, catch M.G.M.'s "The Cockeyed Miracle." Frank Morgan and Keenan Wynn, as two wrathful, aided by a lot of movie trickery, stick around after death to see what happens to Morgan's family. It is refreshingly funny and makes death appear as much fun as living.

Leave It To The Irish.

"Vice Versa," a new English flic soon to be seen here will unfurl for your aching eyes, a little Irish gal, age 16, who is heading for cinematic history. Her name is Laura Kerry, and she is the sister of Kathleen Ryan, currently in "Odd Man Out." Both girls received training at the famous "Abbey Playhouse" in Dublin, a school that has produced many actors than Underwood has stenographers.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 24 — (CP) — For jazz lovers, it was a great day when Louis Armstrong came to town and blew that trumpet of his with vim and virtuosity at Town Hall in a concert that ranged over some of the top numbers of the last 30 years.

Town Hall was packed with devotees last Saturday night who heard the 46-year-old king of the horn players play and sing "Southland," "St. James Infirmary Blues," "Hockin' Chair," and other old and new standards. Then it was the last of a series of four midnight jazz concerts and the man whose Bing Crosby has described as the Reverend Catchmouth was ably assisted by Jack Teagarden on trombone, Dick Carey at the piano, Sidney Catlett on drums and others.

Armstrong, who learned to play the trumpet in a New Orleans home for waifs, and Teagarden, himself a top-flight Jazz artist, did vocal duets on "Hockin' Chair" and "St. James Infirmary" and Catlett drew a big hand with a magnificent drum solo that embodied all the furious restlessness that jazz symbolizes.

Congrew Comedy

John Gielgud and his British company return to New York next week in a production of William Congreve's comedy, "Love for Love." The supporting cast in the 17th century classic will include Cyril Ritchard, Robert Flemyng and Pamela Brown . . . Gielgur, by the way, has just signed a contract to play "Love for Love" in the Grand Theatre in London, Ont., on a three-day run starting Aug. 7. The Grand is the home of the London Little Theatre, considered one of Canada's best, and it was there that the Gielgud Company gave their North American premiere of George Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Names in Bright Lights

Margaret Sullavan next week steps briefly back into the role of Sally Middleton which she created in "The Voice of the Turtle" when it opened here in December, 1943. Miss Sullavan is en route to London where Elliott Nugent's romantic comedy is scheduled to open this summer. Along with Audrey Christie and Wendell Corey, the other members of the cast for the London production, she is giving five performances in the New York version of "The Turtle" by way of the rehearsal for the Trans-Atlantic venture.

Five-Run Uprising in the Fifth by Rochester Defeats Toronto 8-6

(By The Associated Press)

Hank Sauer, a free-swinging slugger from Pittsburgh, with an average crowding close to the .400 mark, is the most important reason for Syracuse's surge into the thick of the International League race.

In the Chiefs' last four games, the ex-Cincinnati has collected five home runs, his latest coming in the 10th inning of last night's game with Newark to give Syracuse a 4-3 win.

However he is waging a losing race in the league home run derby for Baltimore's Howie Moss has hit 14, counting two against Jersey City in last night's 10-2 Oriole romp. Sauer has nine.

Moss led the Baltimore club's 13-hit attack on Bill Zemetich and Bob Hooper of the league-leading Jersey City Giants. The loss cut the Giants' margin over runner-up Montreal Royals to one game.

AT THE CAPITOL — When "Two Guys From Milwaukee" (Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson) meet up with two lasses from New York (Joan Leslie and Janis Paige) anything's likely to happen—and does—in Warners' rollicking new comedy of that name starting Sunday midnight after 12:05 a.m. On the same program Rex Beach's saga "The Spoilers," starring Marlene Dietrich, Randolph Scott and John Wayne.

GUS LESNEVICH DEFEATS BATTINA IN FIRST ROUND

Flattens Former 175-Pound King in Fifty-Nine Seconds of Bout

New York, May 24 (AP).—Jimmy Grippo is a magician and a fight manager, and on occasion he has combined the two to hypnotize Nello Battina for some of his fights. But at his best, Jimmy never did a mesmerizing job on Battina like Gus Lesnevich did with a right hand last night in Madison Square Garden.

The world light-heavyweight champion applied the sleep-maker on the ex-champ in exactly 59 seconds of the first round of their scheduled 10-rounder. And while Nello may not have been hypnotized in the accepted sense, no one is ever going to say he wasn't asleep.

When he finally recovered he revealed that his hopes of getting a shot at Joe Louis this fall, a shot he seems to have been prominently mentioned, were as scrambled as his thoughts had been.

And the large questions today had as much to do with what made Lesnevich, outweighed more than 10 pounds, a comfortable winner as Battina's as they had to do with what made Battina a meek kitten, particularly since Nello was a 5 to 6½ betting favorite, although Lesnevich was 3 to 1 high as 5 to 12.

Even though Bellina scaled 180¾ to Gus' 175¾, after two left jabs, the first right dropped him for nine. Another right put him down again, and this time he barely got to his feet.

After the third right, topping off a whole shot-gun full of loud thumps, Referee Arthur Donovan didn't even bother to count.

Oddly enough, Gus is probably the only walloper of heft who is not aiming at Joe's heavyweight throne. Instead, he's figuring on two over-weight bouts this summer, the 175-pound championship title defence in September, possibly against Lloyd Charles, the long-armed Cincinnati Negro, in Cincinnati or New York, or again Freddie Mills, the British Empire champion, in London.

18 HORSES NAMED OVERNIGHT FOR KING'S PLATE

Watch Wrack, Kanlee, Tularch and Leonforte Picked as Horses to Beat

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 24.—(CP)—Threatening skies, but a record number of entries in years, an unknown track condition — all added up today to make certain that the 58th renewal of the King's Plate at old Woodbine Park this afternoon would be one of the darndest events in the long history of the classic. And that was the only certainty.

The 1947 Plate has the largest entry, 18 horses named overnight, since a field of 22 started in 1933 when the Seagram Stables's King O'Connor was the victor. It has at least six horses who should win on form, and for every one of the other starters there are supporters who insist they can't lose.

Depending on the weather and at scratch time this morning, anywhere from 14 to 18 horses are going to be required to break from an open barrier outside the automatic starting gate's 12 stalls. Even if it does not, there will be a clean break from the assistant starters, they're going to have to hustle to get them off as they are not to be hopelessly shut off before the field has settled whipping on the nine furlong route.

Favorites on Outside.

And, unless track conditions prompt sufficient withdrawals to move them into the starting gate, five of the favorites are among those horses placed outside the starting gate, way out to the rails from the rail. These two are George McCullagh's Tularch, impressive winner over six of the Plate Trials at six furlongs a week ago, and Harry Lahmann's Kanlee, which was an also-ran in the Trials but running perhaps better than any other at the end.

Among the favorites also are Hendrie Thomson's Wrack, Kanlee there is James Coleman's Leonforte, winner of the second Plate Trial and a colt that likes mud, but may not be a starter for the full distance. A fourth top choice is the Don Earl Stables's Watch Wrack, all winter reckoned a big threat but only last week picked to turn form after a hoof crack was fixed.

That's four who can win on the record. Here's also J. J. F. Seagram's Tregaron, and the Oshawa Parkwood Stables' Moldy Peach's another 12 in the list and none of them can be eliminated.

The weather was not good. Rain overcast threatened again all through the night and the official forecast for today was cloudy, showers, and thunder. The unfavorable weather forecast, at least was not expected to keep the crowd down to around 30,000 or so. Brilliant sunshine and warm weather might have seen 40,000 jammed into the East End enclosure.

GIANTS STILL BIG NOISE OF BASEBALL SEASON

Those Who Figured Team Needed New Manager Conspicuous by Silence

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Manager Mel Ott's experts are the speechless these days as his New York Giants power along at the top of the National League on the booming home run smashes of big Johnny Mize.

Second guessers who figured the Giants needed a new manager have been conspicuous by their silence since the club swept eight out of its last nine road games.

By and large the current Giants are the same fellows who fizzled in the league cellar last September. Outside of rookie Bob Thomson in centrefield, Clint Hartung, new of the pitching staff, and Larry Jansen, the same old names clutter up the box scores. But there has been a big change in reference in their play.

Instead of showing signs of going to the jumbled National League race, Mize and Walker Cooper, two ex-St. Louis Cardinals, are playing the kind of ball expected of them. Herding at the front is the Kiel.

With Hartung earning a place as a regular starter and Monty Kennedy bloasoming out as the most promising left-hander in the league, the club's pitching has struck an even keel for the first time in months.

Mize continues to wear out the Boston Braves pitchers who have been victimized by five of his 11 home run blasts. Si Johnson became the latest victim when he was struck for a grand slam homer in the fifth during a six-run Giants' uprising in yesterday's 8-1 romp.

George (Red) Munger gave Cards' manager Eddie Dyer a pleasant evening when he shut out Pittsburgh with six hits 2-0 for his first win since April 16. Preacher Roe who gave up both Card runs in the first inning, was the victim.

Brooks Ease Out Win

Brooklyn eased out a 9-4 night game edge over Philadelphia on a streak of wildness by Ben Chapman. The Phillies' pitcher scored twice in the seventh without a hit. Rex Barney earned his first decision on relief.

Cleveland turned out the largest crowd of the major league season, 61,227 paid, for the Indians' opening night game with St. Louis despite all the debate about the muddy condition of the field. Al-Smith and Feller pitched eight innings before yielding for a pinch hitter, the Indians lost 5-3 in the 12 in a Brownie rally, sparked by Bob Dillinger who had four hits in six at bats.

Detroit increased its first-place margin to a game and a half by whipping Chicago, 8-2, in the opener of a double-header stand. Al Benton, making his first start-ing appearance of the season, scattered seven White Sox hits to gain his second win of the week.

Allie Reynolds of New York Yankees tossed his second two-hitter against Boston Red Sox, winning easily 9-0 when his mates clouted Harry Dorish and Mel Parnell for 12 hits including Charley Keller's 4th homer.

Philadelphia's A's remained unbeaten at night, 8-1, behind Pennsylvanian Phil Marchildon's 3-hit chucking. It was the Ontario pitcher's fourth win against one defeat.

Chicago and Cincinnati in the National were rained out.

OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Well there is plenty of sport to occupy your eyes wherever you look. Lots, too. By the time you read this we, personally will be on the way to Peterborough where the Canadian National Railways baseball squad is in camp and that pet 'n gold Stanley of the Lifford City rainbow.

* * *

But in town there is lots of sport. Take the baseball fans who have just formed an intercounty league composed of squads from Belleville, Stirling, Madoc and Belleville are in for a good season it appears. By the way, the Belleville branch of the League are holding a practice at the Belleville Collegiate Institute campus next Monday evening at 8 p.m. And all you Legion players are requested to be there.

* * *

For you track and field people, here's a tidbit for you, especially the high school studes. This afternoon the preliminary events of the Ontario Track and Field Sports Day are being held. Right now and top picks for the event are a whale of a time galloping around the cinders at the one mile run for junior, intermediate and senior. Distances from the rail. These two are George McCullagh's Tularch, impressive winner over six of the Plate Trials at six furlongs a week ago, and Harry Lahmann's Kanlee, which was an also-ran in the Trials but running perhaps better than any other at the end.

Among the favorites also are Hendrie Thomson's Wrack, Kanlee there is James Coleman's Leonforte, winner of the second Plate Trial and a colt that likes mud, but may not be a starter for the full distance. Jimmy Demaret of Texas won the Masters and immediately filed his entry for the Canadian open. Jim Ferrier, former Australian golf champion and British amateur winner in 1936, placed third and also indicated he would be in the band for the Canadian event. Frank Stranahan, colorful Cleveland amateur, wound up in second place in the Masters and promptly wired the Royal Canadian golf Association with his entry.

The R.C.G.A. has yet to hear from Byron Nelson, winner of the Seagram gold cup two years ago, who wound up in a second place tie with Ferrier at Augusta. However, Nelson has announced that he will stay out of tournament play this summer and there is little likelihood that he will change his mind.

* * *

Even if Nelson doesn't make it, the tournament will seem assured of having at least two previous winners on hand. Gene Kenes of Hollywood, Fla., who took the gold cup and top prize of $2,000 in the whale of a time galloping around the cinders at the one mile run for junior, intermediate and senior events. Distances from the rail. These two are George McCullagh's Tularch, impressive winner over six of the Plate Trials at six furlongs a week ago, and Harry Lahmann's Kanlee, which was an also-ran in the Trials but running perhaps better than any other at the end.

CHAPTER 24

April cried, her heart breaking; "Oh, Curt what can I say to make it right between him. Oh, darling, I'm so sorry! But it's no use. I could never marry anyone else. Never! Oh, Curt forgive me."

After Curt had gone April cried heartbrokenly for awhile, because of the gallant way in which he had kissed her gently on the top of the head and begged her not to think of him. The only thing that mattered was that she got you? I thought I told Gay and Cherry they weren't to say anything. It must have been Hyacinthe."

April shook her head. "It was Curt De Witt who told me this afternoon, when I tried to give him the credit. He told me everything."

"Oh," Hill said shortly. "He did! Well I'm sorry. He might have minded his own business."

April smiled at Hill's outburst. "Well" she looked at him out of wide gray eyes questioningly, "what did you do it Hill? Why did you sell Hillcrest, the only thing you cared for in the world and give the money to the hospital?"

Hill's blue eyes clouded: "You can ask that, April? What could matter more to me when you were lying in the hospital? When I thought you were dying? Oh, my darling! Don't you understand?"

April's heart leaped: "You were sorry for me. It was pity, wasn't it?"

"Pity!" Hill buried his face in her pillow. "Oh, Mommy please be a little more kind!"

April's arms cradled his head, and she said with a little sob: "Oh, darling, that's what I wanted you to say. That you love me. Oh, Hill, I've died to hear you say you loved me, just once more!"

Hill's lips sought hers hungrily, and he kissed her over and over, again, his tears mingling with hers as he held her close to his fast beating heart. After a long time April pulled away, sinking back on to her pillows, exhausted with the sweet pain of Hill's crushing arms and lips.

"Darling," she told her pentiently, "I'm sorry, I lost my head. I've tired you. Forgive me."

April said happily; "Oh, Hill, as if you had to apologize for kissing me, when I've wanted you to so terribly."

"Did you, sweet?" he smiled at her in the old way she loved. "Have you missed me too?"

She closed her eyes: "Oh, Hill it if I'd known, I'd think I was like to try to live without you. I would never have broken up our home. But it's all for the best— now."

"All for the best?" Hill's grip on her hand tightened. "What do you mean, darling?"

"Now that I'm as I am, I would never want to be free," she said with a little sob. "I couldn't tie you down to a cripple."

"Oh, God," Hill choked, "don't say that, April! Do you think it matters to me? Oh, sweetheart, not the way I love you! All I ask in this life is that you marry me again and let me take care of you, darling."

April cried, her heart breaking: "Oh, Hill, don't say that of me! I want to marry you and chain you for the rest of your life to an invalid. Suppose we do walk again. Oh, no, no! I love you too much."

Hill said, his face ashen: "It matters not enough. You'll marry me. I can't "live without you; without knowing you are my wife and that I want to be here where I can take care of you. Where I can be with you, soon. You're mine, I can't live without you any longer."

April covered her face with her hands: "I can't, I can't," she cried. "I can't bear it. Hill! Please wait. Don't ask me to marry you now. Only if we do walk again. I promise you the day I walk, we'll be married."

Hill remembered suddenly that he had urged April not to hope, she might suspect that the doctors had little hope for her complete recovery. He said, his heart turned to lead:

"All right, sweetheart. We'll leave it that way for the time being. On the day you walk, you have a date to go to the marriage, license bureau with me."

He bent, kissing her lightly on the lips, making a great effort to sound unworried. April's little chin set stubbornly:

"I'll walk! You'll see! They're not going to keep me in this cast one longer. I need it, Hill. You know just knowing you love me and that we are going to be married again will cure me! What more could I need? Oh, Daddy, I wish Kenny weren't asleep! I'll tell him the first thing when he wakes up in the morning."

Hill chuckled: "I suppose you're going to have an awful time trying to explain how you and he are to become sons."

April smiled wearily. Hill dreaded leaving her, but he got up:

"You must rest now, lady. You've had enough excitement for one evening. I'd better get back home to my igloo and get to work. I've a lot of correspondence to get out."

"Silly, isn't it?" April sighed. "Every living thing in the universe the street, when you ought to be here beside me. But you'll be back some day soon. Good night, Daddy."

Hill walked out, tears blinding his eyes. He went into his son's room for a few minutes, kneeling beside his bed to kiss a bright little cheek. Kenny Phillips prayed as he had never prayed before in his life, that God would grant a miracle that would give him back his wife and child.

He went back to his small room with mixed feelings of relief and sorrow. He knew deeply that April still loved him was a great load off his heavy heart. But he still had a long way to travel long the road to happiness.

As long as the distance from his room and the apartment stretched between he and his family they were still a million miles apart even though his heart was in the house across the street.

April was lying unable to sleep when Cherry opened the door softly and tiptoed in. April opened her eyes:

"Hello, honey," she smiled. "Where have you been?"

Pat and I went to the movies," Cherry adjusted her pillows, and bent to kiss her cheek. "How do you feel?"

April sighed: "Oh, lots better. Little tired, but very happy."

"Happy?" Cherry sat down beside her. "Why especially happy? Did something nice happen?"

April nodded swiftly, closing her eyes: "Hill just left a little while ago."

Cherry sat up in her chair. "What's so wonderful about that?" she asked suspiciously.

"He loves me," April opened her eyes, watching her sister. "And we're going to be married again when I am well."

Cherry gasped: "Oh, no! Oh, April what about Curt? Have you broken your engagement to him?"

"He was here this afternoon," April explained. "Curt did done. I knew then how much Hill loved me. How could I marry Curt, honey, when I love Hill?"

"Darn it!" Cherry exclaimed childishly, "I knew that was going to happen! I knew for her tried so hard to hate the guy, too."

"Hate who?" April asked.

"Hill!" Cherry's face broke into a little smile. "You wouldn't expect me to hate him, would you? Oh, darlin' I don't know whether to laugh or cry."

"You used to be very fond of Hill," April reminded her sister.

"I wouldn't say that. Him until he made me lose all faith in love and marriage." Cherry sighed. "I haven't believed much in anything since. I used to think your romance was the most wonderful thing I'd ever seen in my life— Like a lovely fairy tale."

April smiled. "Now my pet, you can just write another chapter. Because some of these days the Kent Hillcrest's are going to be married again, and live happily ever after—the end."

Cherry's lovely mouth broke in a little girl laugh: "Well, I guess I'll have to get out and tell Pat I've changed my mind about being in love with him. I guess I can take a chance on him."

Pat had been reading a newspaper while he waited for Cherry to come back from April's room. Cherry paused in the doorway, her heart beating very fast, then she went to him swiftly and sat down on the arm of his chair. She was a little nervous with the suddenness of her decision.

Pat dropped his paper to the floor, and gathered her in his arms. Then he kissed her and clung to him with a new passion that surprised the young attorney. When Cherry finally pulled away he looked at her quizzically.

Cherry dropped her pretty eyes, twisting a button on his coat, her cheeks a little pink. She said with sudden adorable shyness.

"Mister Hastings, if you're not too busy tomorrow, will you marry me?"

Amazement crossed Pat's lean, brown face, then his arms tightened around Cherry.

"Cherry Lind, if this is a new game you're playing with me, it isn't funny."

Cherry put her lovely lips close to his, whispering in a whisper:

"I love you so, Pat. Will you marry me right away. Please?"

Pat kissed her again and he knew that it was no doubt that the problem child had grown up. His arms trembled as he held her close, knowing at last that she was all his.

"You—mean it," he said huskily looking deep into her eyes. "My darling, you do mean it."

Cherry nodded swiftly, her eyes shining, then said practically:

"Let's elope—tonight. We can't get married in church after waiting several days. Let's elope to Virginia, and surprise mother and your folks."

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit this morning, and pop said, My, dear, you have congradulated me.

What about, what for? ma said, and pop said, my face. Look as close as you like, and you won't find a cut, a scratch, or a nick, although you always insisting that you've never known me to shave myself without cutting my face to tatters. So look at me and marvel, my dear. My head is unbowed and also unbloody, he said.

Well of all the perposterous things to brag about, ma said. The most inexperienced child should be able to use a safety razor without cutting himself every second day. You might as well boast about eating with a fork without punching holes in your chin for land sakes, she said, and pop said, You may be right, my dear. Yes; by golies, you've made me see the light. It may take a little time, but I'm sure you'll be the first to give me credit after I've mastered it, he said.

Now what are you talking about, mastered what? ma said, and pop said, An old fashion strate razor with 8 inches of gleeming naked steel. I'll bring one home with me tonight, and in a month or 2 I bet I'll be able to use it with my eyes shut and my nose still on my face. It may not be so easy for a week or so, and I may even have to stay home from the office the ferst few days, but with my luck I shouldn't actually have to call in a doctor, he said.

William Potts you must be crazy and out of your mind, ma said. I want your sollem word that you'll never bring any such weapon into this house, she said, and pop said, Okay, if I have your sollem word that I'm very clever for not giving myself a single pick with my safety razor this morning.

Oh, you're the greatest man in the world's entire histery without a single exception, ma said.

Which he is.

HEARD SHOT

San Pedro, Calif., May 23 — (AP) — Rollin Starkey, 29, a carpenter, meant exactly what he said when, officers said, he telephoned policer.

"I'm going to kill myself because three days ago I killed my wife."

The desk sergeant heard a shot over the telephone. When police arrived at Starkey's home they found him, shot in the head.

Hours later, officers found the body of blond Betty Starkey, 30, in a resort cabin. A noose improvised from nylon stockings was found and officers said she apparently was strangled.

Two Fishermen Killed and Third Missing After Blast

Prince Rupert, B. C., May 24 (CP)—Two fishermen were killed, a third is missing and three others were injured severely yesterday in an explosion and fire that destroyed the halibut boat Lorna H and partially burned the Home Oil Company wharf along which the vessel was moored.

Cause of the blast has not been determined. Owners estimated the damage at more than $10,000.

The dead:

Stan Orvick, whose body was recovered from Prince Rupert Bay late yesterday.

Robert Houston, crewman, who died of injuries soon after the explosion.

Missing is Sig Grunser, crewman.

Capt. Hans Knutsen, master and owner of the craft, David Houston, brother of Robert, and John Wick were burned severely and are being treated in a hospital here.

Hometowns of the men were not available immediately.

The blast ripped along a feed line at the oil company wharf, sending the flames temporarily out of control. Firemen quenched the blaze after it had badly damaged the pier and destroyed a small office.

"Stairway to Heaven Is" Top Film Entertainment

(Review)

Skillfully combining a fine balance of realism with make-believe, Universal - International's release of "Stairway to Heaven" was an exciting experience for those who saw it in its opening yesterday at the McCarthy Theatre. This J. Arthur Rank production achieves its realism through Chromatic Technicolor which is expertly photographed in a black crayon effect, a new process called dye-monochrome.

Co-starring David Niven, Raymond Massey and Roger Livesey with Kim Hunter in the romantic lead and Marius Goring also featured, "Stairway to Heaven" is built around a fascinating romantic story. Niven, as the RAF pilot of a severely damaged and burning bomber returning to England, falls in love over the command radio with Kim Hunter, an American WAC base radio operator just before jumping several thousand feet without a parachute. Miraculously, he finds himself alive and washed ashore, regaining consciousness just as Miss Hunter is returning to her quarters from the base.

Momentary Hallucinations

Partly as a result of the jump, Niven becomes subject to momentary hallucinations at which times he imagines great activity taking place in heaven to claim him and balance the books there. But, because he has fallen in love, he demands the right to live. A trial is arranged in heaven, but an attorney must be found to plead his case. He has the choice of all the great men in history.

Is the meantime, on earth, Roger Livesey, a famous neurologist and doctor friend of Miss Hunter's diagnoses Niven's condition and makes arrangements for corrective surgery with local army medical authorities. While attempting to rush the pilot to the hospital, Livesey is killed and is thus able to become the attorney to plead the airman's case in heaven.

Undergoes Surgery

The trial takes place just as Niven is undergoing surgery. Raymond Massey, because he was the first American killed by the British in the American revolution, is the prosecuting attorney. Livesey proves eternal love with the aid of Miss Hunter's teardrop, deposited on a rose. Niven wins the right to live. The surgery is successful.

In his portrayal of the airman, Niven has never been seen to better advantage. Kim Hunter, opposite him as the WAC, does a fine piece of acting. As the American revolutionary and heavenly prosecutor, Massey is convincing in his delivery of satiristic realism. One of the finest supporting characterizations ever filmed is that of Livesey as the doctor. And Marius Goring, a noble of the French Revolution and the heavenly conductor, handles a difficult assignment with finesse.

Wife Entitled To Nullity Decree Ruling of Court

London, May 24 —(Reuters)— The Court of Appeal ruled yesterday that a wife whose husband had undergone an operation to make him sterile was entitled to a decree of nullity ending a 12-year-old marriage.

Lord Justice Somervell, giving judgment, said that John Stanley Jeffcoat had wrongly told the doctor who was to perform the operation a few weeks before the marriage was to take place, that there was insanity in his future wife's family. The doctor wanted a statement signed by both parties that they understood the effect of the operation.

Mrs. Jeffcoat at first refused to sign as she wanted children, but she later agreed provided he promised not to have the operation until after the marriage. Jeffcoat promised, but had the operation six weeks before the marriage and refused to let her adopt children, the Lord Justice continued.

The decree had been refused by a lower court on the ground that it would have been inequitable and contrary to public policy.

Airman Objects to Song On Political and Economic Grounds

London, May 24 — (Reuters)— "Richard's" frustrated pal would find all doorways in Britain, and microphones as well, permanently out of bounds to him, if at least one Briton had his way.

Airman R. Seal objects to the clamorous song "Open the Door Richard," an importation from the United States, on political and economic grounds.

In a letter to the left wing weekly review Tribune, published Thursday, Seal directed a plea to "socialist-minded" dance band leaders here to restrict their renderings of "Richard's" repetitive refrain.

Terrorists Blast Railway Station In Arab Town

Freight Train is Mined In Renewal of Violence

Jerusalem, May 27 — (AP) — The railway station at the all-Arab town of Ramleh was blasted by a heavy explosion as a freight train was mined at Benyamina today in new outbreaks of violence. Unofficial reports said one person was missing.

The Stern group, a Jewish underground organization, issued a statement saying it had carried out both attacks in reprisal for British violation of United Nations instructions to suspend belligerent activities during the U.N. investigation of the Palestine problem. The communique said the deportation of 1,000 unidentified Jewish immigrants to Haifa last week was such a violation.

An official announcement said the bombs at Ramleh station, 23 miles northwest of Jerusalem, were planted by four men disguised in police uniforms, who left a passenger train carrying explosives in baskets.

There was no information as to casualties, but unofficial Palestine reports said the stationmaster's wife, an Arab woman, was missing. Four other persons also were said to have been in the station at the time of the blast.

The station, a small wooden building on the main railway line to Jaffa, was demolished.

It was the first underground violence since May 4, when the so-called Stern Gang severed rail lines in half a dozen places and killed two British officers with explosives. Unofficial Palestine informants attributed today's blast to the same underground group.

However, the British government sources who issued the announcement said the two incidents may not have been connected with the bombing.

A Government Information Office said Mrs. Mohammed Ali, wife of the station master, was injured in the explosion, which destroyed the station waiting room on the main rail line to Jaffa. The blast shattered windows in Ramleh and was heard 20 miles away in Tel Aviv.

Glace Bay, N.S., May 27 (CP) — Miners began filing back to work today in nearly a dozen Nova Scotia collieries, strike-bound for 14 weeks, and officials of the mines and union got together to discuss moves to "rehabilitate" the industry and step up production.

Let other pits full maintenance crews were sent to work to prepare collieries for resumption of operations tomorrow or Thursday, when the rest of the working forces will return.

Today the first regular workday since mines walked out on Feb. 15 dumanding a wage increase of 40 cents a day and a satisfactory pension scheme and a miners welfare levy.

AFRICA CAMPAIGNS AGAINST GOLD SMUGGLING

Johannesburg, South Africa, May 27 — (Reuters) — South Africa has launched a campaign against smuggling of gold.

Maj. G. E. Diedericks, head of a new department which will spearhead the campaign, said few realize that no gold law exists in the area protected.

"Thus, should we succeed in effectively stopping the flow of gold the smuggling ring, they would simply divert their gold channels through the Cape Province to Capetown, where no action could be taken," he said.

Seeing-Eye Dog Dies, One of Most Famous In North America

Montreal, May 27 — (CP) — Saturday night while William D. Perrett, blind for 23 years, and his family were celebrating the 25th wedding anniversary of his seeing-eye German Shepherd dog—Duchess—arise from the floor and nuzzled each member of the family. Sunday Duchess was dead.

So ended the life of one of the most famous seeing-eye dogs in North America.

Perrett lost his sight through a fall 25 years ago and a few years later received Duchess at Morristown, N.J., training a seeing-eye dog school at Morristown, N.J.

The pair became known not only in Perrett's home district of Notre Dame de Grace, but in Toronto and other Ontario centers as well.

Perrett said Duchess knew she was going to die when she nudged everyone on Saturday night.

Perrett said one dog per year is allowed for Montreal from the Morristown kennels and he expressed doubt he would get another dog for some time.

Heavy Rains Cause Soil Damage And Crop Delay

Windsor, May 27 (CP)—Heavy rains of the last several weeks have added to soil damage and crop delay on farms in the south-ern part of Essex County which earlier this Spring suffered heavily from the Thames River flood.

All Fairview Creek, Lloyd Taylor reported today he has lost $8,000 worth of sugar beets uprooted in the ground.

Seed onions are likely to be a light crop as hundreds of acres are already under water or becoming blighted in the ground. On the farm of Michael Serra near Belle River, a 10-acre onion crop is several weeks behind normal and Serra predicted much of the crop would be lost, even if the weather turns warm.

Separated Since Nazis Hit Warsaw In 1939 Family Reunited at Montreal

Montreal, May 27 (CP)—Half a dozen red roses lay scattered on the concourse of Central Station late last night.

Several feet away a weeping man, woman and two children were seeing each other for the first time since the fateful Sept. 5, 1939—stood looking at each other with disbelief.

T. J. Norton of Toronto was seeing his wife, his son Jones, 13, and his daughter Eva, 10, for the first time since he left for work in Warsaw six years ago. Monday night German warplanes unleashed their devastating attack and never returned home.

Norton's story is a real one, but the one he uses because he still has relatives in Warsaw — for the sake of face. He lives in Toronto yesterday to come here and meet Pat and Mike Sharpe, Railways boat train from Halifax. The rose were to be a welcome token.

His family left Poland last summer and reached London after living for a time in the British occupation zone of Germany. Finally their passage to Canada was arranged.

Norton himself was ordered out of the city following the first Mosquito bomber parts.

MOTORIST PAYS FINE FOR HITTING POLICE CRUISER

That you cannot sideswipe a police cruiser and expect to escape the long arm of the law, was proved to the hilt recently when night by Jack Dracup, city, who did just that in Bleecker Ave. In attempting to pass the police cruiser on Coleman Street near the Moira Street intersection, Dracup brushed the cruiser a bit too close with result that the rear door and fender on the cruiser came to grief. Dracup was promptly charged with careless driving and paid the minimum fine into the city coffers.

Application Will be Made For 50 Wartime Houses In City by Housing Committee

Engineer of Wartime Housing Limited Will Be Invited To Look Over Available Sites

Discussion on the proposal for the city to make application to Wartime Housing Ltd. for the construction of 50 housing units in Belleville took up the greater part of the time at the meeting of the city council Monday evening which saw the absence of five regular council members.

Absent from the council chamber were Acting Mayor Alfred Ingram; H.W. Clarke called the meeting to order; Mayor Murray Farley; Followell and Alderman Followell, Latimer, Harvey and Potter. The first three named men are in New York with members of the Ontario Hydro Board.

Although the press and cons of the proposal for housing in this district were discussed by council members, as well as delegation of local citizens who urged action on the matter, the meeting of the city council to definite action being taken by council as a whole. During the discussion, Alderman Allin left the chamber leaving only a quorum and the meeting had to be adjourned.

To Make Application

Result of the situation was that the special housing committee decided to make application to Wartime Housing Ltd. for the construction of 50 units in Belleville. Urgency of the matter dictated that the application had to be in by June 1st, and since time was limited the council accept no more contracts this year.

In fairness to the taxpayers of the city this housing question should be settled by the present council," stated Alderman Allin in support of a motion by Alderman Duffy for the city to make application for the construction.

"Here we are rushing the matter through like the airport deal which was brought in at the last moment. If the wartime housing we are possibly letting the city go for millions of dollars in subsidized housing."

Exception Taken

Alderman Lasenby took exception to Mr. Allin's remarks, stating that the housing matter was completely open and above board.

Alderman Allin stated he was just as interested in the veterans being properly housed as Alderman Lasenby but did not favor saddling the city as a whole with a type of expensive housing development between a veteran who as tenant of a house in Belleville rent would pay only $34 yearly in taxes, while a veteran who bought his own home built his own home would pay possibly $190 taxes for a house of the same cost.

"What is not realized is that approximately 85 per cent of the veterans in Belleville are not interested in being housed," declared Alderman Duffy. "Money was not considered when it was a matter of providing the veteran with a bonus and a farm for the next generation to consider. Lack of adequate housing is one of the causes of juvenile delinquency."

I can't see why the municipality should be saddled with subsidized housing," returned Alderman Allin. "It should be the government who pays the extra cost. And I would want to see a definite plan before the city went into this thing."

Will Invite Engineers

In opening the discussion on the matter at the meeting Mayor Alderman Armstrong told how the housing committee had visited the various sites in their representative who had favored the Victoria Street and Crystal Park as viously had considered cost of developing this area to be prohibitive. As an alternative to the Yeomans Street site, council had suggested a park on Dundas Street property part of the city which the Alderman stated could be economically serviced. Council passed a recommendation that Wartime Housing engineers be invited to the city to more thoroughly view the suggested building site.

Mr. Armstrong told council that difficulty was being experienced in getting contractors to build houses ahead with the construction of integrated Housing units in the College Street area that Alderman Lasenby urged that some of this property be turned over to veterans so that they may build their own homes. "Veterans now have full priority on materials for their homes," he urged.

Assessor's Action

Secretary of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Miss Ida Badgley, was present at the meeting and urged that council take immediate action in getting Wartime Housing in the city, while Arthur Ellis, secretary-treasurer of the local Trades and Labor council, also called for action in the matter.

Parking meters were discussed briefly with Ald. Allin bringing a recommendation calling for cancellation of the city's contract with Kirkpark meters on the grounds that they had not made delivery within the 60 day period guaranteed. The recommendation also asked for a refund on all types of meters be asked.

"We could have meters made in Peterborough installed five or six weeks ago," stated the Alderman.

Alderman Tice claimed the meter contract was illegal with the meter binding and the corporation would be liable for damages if cancelled without cause. Clerks stated the contract indicated June 6 was the delivery date.

A recommendation to cancel the meter contract was defeated by Alderman Lasenby and Lazenby voting for the recommendation and McKeown, Harvey, Tice Armstrong, Clarke, Duffy and Vanner against.

Can't Pass By-law

The city solicitor advised council by letter that there was no legislation permitting the city to pass by-law forbidding the keeping of honey bees within the city limits and as a result council meeting this had been asked.

A communication from Dr. Bert Howard asking that the city provide sanitary toilet and first aid equipment necessary for making speed boat races at the west corner in the city, was turned over to the publicity committee.

A letter from the education, through Administrator L. A. Kells, asked the city for the use of other accommodation for the families who are using living ground dwelling rooms as living quarters. It was asked that this rooms be available before May 24st. The same request was made by City Engineer Charles Mott with regard to families using parts of the city barn. Both requests were referred over to the housing committee.

Council took action on a request from the Belleville Flying Club that the city dock be suspended in the filling of Pinnacle's field as a flying field. Tenders for labor and materials amounting to $4,707 were submitted by the Clerk.

Take No Action

Alderman Clarke explained that a motion had been passed in council requesting the committee to the Flying Club for moneys spent on the Pinnion property but only two members were decided to the city. Alderman Tice also stated that the city was under no obligation to reimburse the flying club.

No further action will be taken on the request for a subway under the railroad on the Front Street crossing, it was decided, as the transport committee had been appointed to investigate the possibilities of constructing a subway at a point but after conference with the railroad authorities it was found that it would be too costly.

Council refused to accept the Diamond Construction Company tender for the supply of crushed rock to the city.

Under inquiries Alderman Allin asked how many council members had gone to New York with the Industrial Commission. He was told by Alderman Tice, a member of the commission, that Mayor Farley, Followell, Alderman Latimer and Followell and Robert Bryden had gone to New York. The party would interview 51 different companies who will locate factory on her way to Greece. The plane halted 45 minutes to refuel.

WANT ANIMALS TO ROAM

Vancouver, May 27 — (CP) — Irked by critics who think many of the animals should be free to roam the wide open spaces, the Parks Board last night debated whether the Stanley Park Zoo was worth its $8,000 to $9,000 a year upkeep.

Replying to critics of the park's beautification chairman Reeve Holland said, "Put those bears in the 2,500,000 Lynn mountains and they'd still spend all their time in front of the gate where people feed them peanuts."

B.C.I. Cadets Give Exceptional Performance at Inspection

Brig. Genet, Inspecting Officer, With R.S. Angus Duffy in Charge of Training

In one of the smartest parades seen on the campus in years over six hundred Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School cadets, 350 boys and 250 girls, swung in precision formations before the keen scrutiny of inspecting and other officers this morning.

Under brilliant May sunshine and before the admiring eyes of several hundred proud parents, relatives and spectators, both corps evidenced weeks of vigorous training under Regimental Sgt. Major Angus Duffy, formerly of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in their smart appearance, marching movements and general deportment in the many phases of foot drill they displayed.

Both corps were inspected by Brigadier Genet, retired commanding officer of the First Division Signal Corps, now of Rosmore and Captain R. C. Graves, Cadet Training Officer of the Eastern Area, Kingston. With the inspection party were Lieut.-Col. Milton Davison commanding officer of the 9th Anti-Tank Regt. RCA (Argyll Light Infantry) Lieut. — Christie, training officer of the Hastings Regiment, Lieut. Commander J. Crist, RCN, Trenton, Lieut. Addison Lloyd, officer commanding the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps, Principal G.E. Ostrie and Alex Nathan representing the Board of Education.

Smartly Attired

As the boys' corps smartly attired in the conventional uniform of the Royal Canadian Army Cadets with the school flashes swung by the reviewing stand, Brigadier Genet took the salute.

In company formation, and a column of route under the command of Cadet Lieut.-Col. Pat Shiels, the corps swung smartly past the stand to the music of the fine band of the school under Cadet Captain Don Lazgman.

Swords flashed in the morning sunlight as the officers of the corps came to the salute. Eyes turned smartly to the right. Arms swung shoulder high in precision-like movement. The crowd cheered as in near-perfect unison the corps marched proudly past the saluting base.

Colors Flutter Briskly

The colors fluttered briskly in the breeze as the corps moved in battalion formation in the "General Salute." Bayonet glistened off drawn swords as they swung up and down in salute.

Following the boys' corps came that of the girls. Immaculately attired in smart blue skirts and forage caps with white blouses, equalled their male counterparts in marching and deportment. Officers' circled wrapped skirts. The girls' battalion marched in column of platoons and in column of route. The girls' bands furnished a rich touch of color against the dark blue of the boys' khaki clad boys' corps. The cadettes represent a well-selected ovation as they swung smartly past the reviewing stand.

Physical Training

Following the inspections and marching formations, the boys' corps gave a mass display of physical training. This was followed by a similar demonstration on the part of the school quartet of girls. Then followed a precision drill by the boys' corps under command of the boy cadets.

Other displays given were signals, first aid, map reading and small arms training. Prizes were awarded to the best company (boys) and the best company (girls). Individual awards included those to the best cadet in each company and the best cadet in the band. These will be announced tomorrow.

Officers of the boys corps are Lieut.-Col. Pat Shiels, commanding officer; Major Jim Airth, second-in-command; Major Ron Hutton, commanding "A" Company; Major Bill Wesley "Bar" Company; Major Don Dudley "C" Company and Major Jack Milligan, "D" Company. Regimental Sergeant-Major is Jack Runnion.

Commanding officer of the girls' corps is Lieut. Col. Nora Ellis; second in command, Miss Jean Flintoft; adjutant, Major Ruth Meade; and Majors Joan Houston, Shirley Mott, and Dorothy Flintoft.

Following the show at the campus the corps marched through the downtown district behind the school band. Also in attendance was a company of the Quinte Sea Cadets.

Amount of U.S. Currency Canadians May Hold or Take Out Country Reduced to $10

By H. DENT HODGSON

Ottawa, May 27 (CP)—Moving to protect Canada's supply of United States dollars, Finance Minister Abbott announced on Monday a tightening of foreign exchange control regulations reducing from $100 to $10 the amount of United States currency any Canadian may hold or take out of Canada without a travel permit.

In effect, the announcement was an order to Canadian residents to turn in to their banks any amounts of United States money they hold in excess of $10. It brought the regulations back almost to their wartime status when it was illegal to hold any amount of foreign exchange.

Purpose of the move, Mr. Abbott said, is to preclude any hoarding of United States funds for unlawful purposes and to ensure that money earned through the United States tourist traffic is turned over to the board so as to be "available to meet the needs of Canadian economy."

Officials stressed however, that the restriction will not alter the policy of making "any reasonable amount" of United States money available to Canadians for legitimate travel purposes. Such funds are still available through the banks or the board itself.

The change announced today comes into effect after a short initial period allowed to give holders of United States funds time to turn them in.

Canadians crossing the border casually may take with them $25, of which not more than $10 may be in United States money, without obtaining a permit.

If greater amounts are needed, a travel permit must be obtained through a bank, which is authorized to exchange up to $1000 a year provided it is satisfied the money is to be used for legitimate travel needs.

Under the new official said, are authorized to use their discretion in issuing permits, but there should be no difficulty in exchanging Canadian for American dollars, provided the person concerned can show the need is "legitimate and reasonable."

"For example, in a case where a man asked a bank for $500 to spend a few days in New York" the official added, "the bank would be justified in referring the request to the board." However, there were no particular rules what constituted a traveller's daily financial needs, current rates are this involved a good difficulty in exchanging Canadian dollars during visits to the United States, the official said Americans had never been anxious to acquire Canadian dollars. Merchants in that country were inclined to be distrustful of them.

In addition, the merchants had to sell any Canadian dollars acquired on the open market, which would bring only 92 5-8 cents at current rates and this involved a certain amount of trouble.

But there was no reason for a Canadian to change Canadian dollars across the border, except in emergencies. They could always be exchanged at par at a Canadian bank.

Mr. Abbott emphasized in his statement that the new regulations would not affect the freedom of American tourists to bring funds into Canada or to take home any money not spent during their stay in the Dominion.

Prior to September, 1946, Canadians were required to turn over all United States funds to the board. Since then, they have been permitted to hold or carry across the border $100 without a permit.

World Amity Best Attained By News Exchange

Chicago, May 27 — (AP) — International amity can best be attained by international news exchange through the press and its news agencies instead of through "the discredited methods" of government propaganda, Kent Cooper said last night.

Cooper, who described propaganda as a tool of dictators, was a guest of the 25th anniversary celebration of the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern University. He explained he was not speaking solely as an individual and not as the executive director of the Associated Press.

He criticized vigorously a United States Department plan, now before Congress, for an agency to distribute news abroad, saying it embraced an old world practice that has been "discredited and proved dangerous."

"I hope our government will remember that propaganda can act as an abrasive that can do more harm than good, that it is a beastrom of international self-seeking where wars are brewed."

He said there would be no successful method of establishing international friendship "that does not provide for complete news exchange between all countries free from the taint of government handling. The news of one country should not go to the world in the form of propaganda to create prejudice, or to gain advantage only to inform.

"If they are not hampered, the American news agencies can do far more to bring credit upon America, through honesty in news than any government effort can ever hope to do," Cooper declared.

"LET US SHOW OUR GRATITUDE"

Heavy Rain Spoils Holiday For Many in this District

The elements sighed and gazed at sullen rain-filled skies. "Twas ever thus," they chanted. "In the old days a sunny day on the 24th was as rare as honesty in politics and it looks as though times haven't changed a bit."

And that is the way it was. People who decided to take the holiday on Saturday were in luck, if they lived around the Peterborough district. Rain fell on Saturday morning but the weather cleared in the afternoon.

But Monday was another story. In a different story. Rain deluged down practically all day Sunday and in many parts of the district, especially to the east severe damage was done to field crops.

Monday was a repetition. Rain started to fall shortly after noon and continued through the rest of the day. All sports events in the city and district were cancelled and the majority of people in the city spent the holiday indoors, or those who went cottaging and camping were forced to find a shelter . . . forbidding skies and wishing they were home.

Many city fishermen who took advantage of the long weekend trekked to distant haunts on Saturday afternoon, but in the main were disappointed as the rain was general throughout the county. However, some braved the weather on the chance that the fish were biting and were not disappointed. Some nice pickerel catches were reported in the Trent River district.

Highway traffic was fairly heavy, but not anticipated by authorities. Sunday was anything but conducive to driving and many potential out-of town visitors stayed in the comfort of their homes.

Queen Mary's Birthday

Queen Mary who celebrated her eightieth birthday on Monday has been in the minds of millions the world over. As Duchess of York, then as Queen, and now as Queen Mother, she has endeared herself to the peoples of British connection everywhere. She has had a gracious role to play in her long life, as the wife of the Duke of York, then as Queen, and now as having no small share in the education of Her Royal Highness, Princess Elizabeth, who resembles her in many respects, and who has shown her training especially during the Royal Family's tour of South Africa.

The older generation of Canada recalls the occasion of her visit to Canada shortly after the turn of the century, when she and her husband, the Duke of York, won the hearts of the Canadian people.

Queen Mary's place in the affections of the people is firmly grounded in the love and honor they show her.

She has in the heart of all the people by her devotion to the highest ideals of the British people and by her love of the traditional virtues of the British race. In this youthful and vigorous birthday she at the same time characteristically British in her love of the common virtues.

As she enters upon another year the British peoples wish for her many more birthdays. It is with the greatest happiness that they wherever they are have learned that she enjoys the best of health even at her entry upon her eighty-first year. They pray that she will long be spared to enjoy more anniversaries.

Recovery in U. K. Exports

A slight but encouraging rise in Britain's export trade is revealed by official statistics. These statistics cover United Kingdom overseas trade in April, show that the total value of exports that month was $330,800,000. This is only a little above the March figure but when the seasonal factors are taken into account the rate of exports in April proves to be roughly the same as in January. This is definitely an encouraging sign for, whereas exports in January were not affected by the fuel crisis, it was anticipated that the loss of production during the crisis weeks, already sharply reflected in the March returns, would affect the April returns, if exports still were to reverse. This latest recovery in Britain's export trade is shown clearly by comparison with figures for the first three months of this year. Taking 26 days (excluding Sundays) as a normal working month, they are: January, $352,000,000; February, $330,000,000 and April, $358,000,000. The biggest item among Britain's exports in April was once again machinery. Although it had achieved record figures in March, it was even higher in April and accounted for 1/5 of all exports of manufactured goods. The Soviet Union replaced British India as the United Kingdom's chief customer for machinery.

A-Power and Practical Use

The Mid-American Exposition at Cleveland was opened by an atom splitting stunt when Warren B. Austin, chief American delegate to the United Nations pressed a telegraph key in his New York office and set up the electric current in the atomic machine at Public Hall, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When will atomic energy be turned to practical constructive uses? That is the paramount thought. When will homes be heated and motorcars move by its energy?

Such questions of course direct attention to the use of atomic power for the future and deepens public interest in the knowledge of atomic energy.

It has been pointed out that new materials, new instruments and new processes must be devised before the theoretical knowledge of the present can be put to everyday use.

The Plain Dealer points out that "despite optimistic predictions in atomic development, industries of many types must turn their attention to production problems before miraculous results can be expected. Atomic energy at present is in the situation common with other brand new projects. Growth will of necessity be slow and tedious. We can be sure also that some discoveries will be accidental, when directed research programs will in some instances fail to accomplish their purpose."

Unruly Weather

Holiday weather for those who celebrated on Thursday and those who marked Victoria Day on Monday was anything but favorable. Monday's showers prevented the day from being one of complete enjoyment. By this time people are getting accustomed to backward weather and have become inclined not to expect too much from May which so far, just as April, has fallen short of the ideal and typical spring months.

"Noble and Puissant"

It's hard for Britain to "turn over a new leaf" when 20,000,000 books and 5,000 printing presses were destroyed through the blitzes, and both paper and labor are critically short. In London alone there is a shortage of 1,000,000 textbooks. Most of the classics are not to be had. The prewar foreign trade is being captured by American publishers. British culture, it is feared, is being stifled at home and abroad.

It was John Milton who wrote at another crisis of his country's history:

> Many a man lives a burden to the earth; but a good book is the precious life-blood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life.

The dictators know that books are their enemies. The free flow of information and ideas is the first requisite of democracy. And because democracy flourishes in Britain, it will find a way to leave its vivid signature on these times, despite all shortages.

Envisaging an England dedicated to a free press, Milton wrote in 1644:

> Methinks I see in my mind a noble and puissant nation rousing herself like a strong man after sleep, and shaking her invincible locks.

His vision still survives today.

—C. S. Monitor.

Not Always So

The prevailing feeling of hopelessness about the future of our civilization grows out of the belief, all to genera lin our times, that mankind is no more than a puppet, his movements controlled by the universal forces over which he has no control.

We have become almost fatalists in our acceptance of the inevitability of doom. We sense ourselves being swept along in the stream of history, unable to save ourselves from being swept out into a sea of oblivion.

A people which has solved the puzzle of atomic energy and loosed nature's greatest force has little or no faith in its ability to take charge of its problems and deliberately turn the discovery to its benefit instead of its destruction.

That Americans should be of this frame of mind is especially remarkable since they are the people who only a few decades ago had the courage and the self-confidence to defy what seemed to be the verdict of history that men cannot determine their own future.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

After feeding rabbits on hay that had, and had not, been exposed to rain, a group of Cornell University agricultural researchers reported that rain reduced the feeding value by dissolving out sugars, proteins and minerals. Their conclusion was not novel: Make hay while the sun shines, says Newsweek.

JUST FOLKS

CAUSE FOR CONDOLENCE

The other day, with eyes ashine,
He shouted: "Made a seventy-nine!"
Men at the mirror stopped their combs,
Ceased spilling tonic on their domes;
Some trouserless and shirtless, too,
Came out to share the glad ado,
And broke with cheers the usual gloom
That marks a golf club locker room.
They hailed, as only golfers can,
Another happy "seventy" man.

But I was saddened by the scene.
I knew the heartache it would mean.
Time was in by-gone happier years
I, too, had heard the self-same cheers.
I, too, had joined that happy clan
And thought myself a "seventy" man.
Remembering that, I shook my head.
"You have my sympathy," I said.
"The joy of golf with you I've played
If but in eighty you had made.

"Henceforth whene'er at golf you play
You'll seldom know a happy day.
You'll hate the ordinary drive.
You won't enjoy an empty eighty-five.
The gentlemanly ninety scare
Will torture be forevermore.
Henceforth you'll curse and groan and hiss
O'er every two-foot putt you miss.
'Twill take you years of grief to ban
The thought that you're a 'seventy' man."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did drinking healths originate?

Some authorities suppose that drinking healths originated from the practice of exchanging drinks to show they were friendly.

Others think the custom arose from the use of sacrificial wine or similar religious usages. The Hebrews made drink offerings, and the Greeks and Romans poured out libations for the gods.

Somehow drinking simultaneously with ceremony came to denote wishes for good health and pledges of friendship.

Centuries ago a piece of toast was put in the tankard or wine-cup before drinking to improve the flavor.

In Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" Sir John Falstaff tells Bardolph, "Go fetch me a quart of sack; put a toast in't."

For some season the person to whom a health was drunk came to be known as "the toast."

Mechanical Marker Assists Teachers

Edmonton, (AP) — Alberta students can no longer put all the blame on the teacher for their poor marks.

The provincial education department has examination brains now is using a mechanical marker for certain types of exam papers. The machine won't detect grammatical errors nor will it correct a paper, but it will score papers to which arithmetic answers are required—but it does mark objective tests, where one question is asked, several alternative answers given and the student is required to mark the correct answers.

The machine works on the principle that the pencil marks form an electrical circuit which registers on the dial. The operator marks the dial number on her sheet and the student has his mark.

EXCESSIVE SMOKING AND PHYSICAL DEGENERATION

I quote a typical medical view, from Bastedo's Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics, a recognized authority of the book:

"Vaso constriction" (constriction of arterioles, the smallest vessels visible under the microscope) "is a frequent accompaniment of a smoke, and this suggests that in the course of time organic arterial changes might result. But tobacco has not been shown to be a cause or even a contributing factor in general arteriosclerosis or high blood pressure . . . coronary sclerosis and angina pectoris evidence of an etiological" (causal) "relationship is also lacking. . ."

There, I believe, the author follows the quaint and although indistinguish "functional" from "organic" disease. And although he evidently suspects that in the course of time organic changes might occur from such frequent or habitual interference with the function of arterioles, still he can't follow through with the logic that tobacco has not been shown to be a cause or even a contributing factor.

Just where does vasoconstriction from the carbon monoxide in smoking come in here as a mere functional impairment and not calculating as a factor in deplorable damage to the cells, tissues and organs which are supplied oxygen) is so reduced?

Then, why not use the usual tiniers to attempt this arbitrary distinction of "functional" from "organic" disease? The "functional" of their era was based on changes in structure, changes the pathologist could demonstrate anatomically regardless of symptoms, complaint or history of the patient, or changes the physician let and I think that is the physical examination. Some of the "well known" terms were quite definite about it and dismissed with a shrug anything not thus demonstantiated, for the science of physiology, the study of functional changes lagged far behind.

With addition to the physician's armamentarium of the instruments of precision as the microscope, the spectrophotometer, the hemoglobinometer, the fluoroscope and numerous others for measuring the functional efficiency of this and that organ or tissue, diagnosis has become far more exact.

Many functional disease in the early, functional stage, before gross structural changes have occurred, became practicable.

The "vasoconstriction" caused by the carbon monoxide anoxia of excessive smoking (which reduces blood supply (oxygen) to the functioning cells, not merely in the extremities but throughout the body, may have no permanent ill effect if it doesn't happen constantly or too often. Whether any permanent or irreparable damage is done depends, of course, on whether the anoxia or deprivation of oxygen is severe enough to asphyxiate or destroy some of the vital cells. If functioning cells are destroyed, that constitutes physical degeneration, which means the dead cells are replaced by scar tissue or by cells of a lower type that cannot carry on the function of the cells destroyed.

That's the way it is, folks. And that's why I and one who has not attained full adult growth and development (22 to 25 years of age) should not smoke at all, and no one with the least bit of regard for health, efficiency, good looks and longevity, should ever smoke when under tension, strain or excitement, never before a meal, and never while doing anything that calls for careful calculation, or for concentration. The time when a smoke is the most likely to do harm, and the time when one derives the greatest enjoyment from smoking is after the work of the day is finished, after the job is over, after the meal.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Whish!

I have been taking your Iodin Ration as directed in your pamphlet and I think I have developed a lot of good in the seven or eight weeks I've been at it. In a statement I saw in the letters to the editor department of a Toronto paper telling of some dreadful ailments that developed from the use of iodized salt.

Answer—O.K. by me if you think the evidence warrants. I predicts such dire consequences from the use of iodized salt. I have not vouchesafe to medical and health authorities.

It's Queer About Landlords!

(Ottawa Journal Editorial)

It's an odd thing about landlords. A landlord is a chap who owns a building accommodation which he rents to others who, for one reason or another, depend upon landlords to provide their housing. In fact, the overwhelming part of the population prefers to pay rent rather than to pay off a mortgage the role of the landlord in our society is no light one.

Now, landlords are pretty much like other people. They have no discernible horns and hoofs. No sooner does one's landlord given to beating his aged grandmother, for some landlords have grandmothers, than a new landlord appears on the scene. Nor are landlords any more blood and are in the business in a large way, from big corporations to private men and women who have saved a few thousand dollars in order to invest in the expectation of an income from rents sufficient to support them in old age.

But a curious tradition has grown up that a landlord, any landlord, is a synonym for a heartless monster. We think that his favorite amusement is throwing widow with seven children. Thus it is no departure from custom to read in a contemporary that "millions of tenants" would not be "thrown on the mercy of landlords," that while a landlord may have a conscience yet "appeals to his higher nature" would be heard over the jingle of ready money". That is the picture: the greedy, grasping monster plaguing over his ill-gotten gains and the helpless victim at his mercy. In one sense the good, helpless tenant who must be protected against oppression. But in a untrue as most generalities. The real picture is most often the other one, often is exactly the opposite.

The whole set-up is, in fact, in-creditable. A war veteran uses the money he has saved from overseas pay and bonus to buy a house for the use of his family. He would be lucky to possession because the tenant must come first. An owner sees the house and lot as a means to make money out of sub-leases, and has no interest. A 10 per cent increase in rents is announced with a great flourish of trumpets. He is met with restrictions in favor of the tenant as to means very little—the tenant, under the two-year special lease, may vacate at any time on 30 days' notice, but the landlord is bound for the full term. And nobody would suggest that ten cent covers the extra cost of maintaining a property in 1947 as compared to 1939. With Rising Prices under cost of fuel if it's a heated place, everything in the way of service and repairs for about costly than six years ago.

There are good landlords and bad, as there are good tenants and bad. But landlords as a class have taken more than their share of abuse and criticism, more than their share of regulation and control, and they must be mighty tired of it all, and resentful.

Building Materials Will be Eased By Fall Says Howe

Oshawa, May 27 — (CP)—Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe predicted here last night that by autumn the shortage of building materials will have eased in Canada, and that in the not too distant future it will be possible to provide sufficient good homes for all Canadians.

Addressing the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Howe said, "I think the time is about here when we can say that materials can be made available for building to the extent required by the Canadian people. Distribution is still faulty but I believe that by autumn we may see the material situation will be eased in Canada."

Turning from housing to production in general, Mr. Howe called for increased production per man-hour throughout the Dominion, which "we have the markets at home and abroad, we have the plants and the equipment and yet our productivity is not what it should be."

Tourist Welcome Wrangle Brewing in Battered U.K.

By STUART UNDERHILL

London, (CP)—Britain is much a battered tourist place these days that its residents are a little puzzled by a disagreement between the Travel Association, which would stimulate hostelries, and the Caterers' Association, which says a "no admittance" sign would be more appropriate.

"Why would anyone want to come here!" said a harassed business man. "We're tired and run down and can't look after them. I should think there'd be more people wanting to get away than to come."

However, the Tourist Association, which has spent a sizable portion on overseas publicity, says that the 250,000 visitors it expects from abroad this summer know what conditions are and will be ready to make allowances. It reprimanded the caterers for suggesting that tourists stay away.

"It is of course right and honest to tell prospective visitors the true conditions existing in this country, but it is misleading, harmful and wild exaggeration to suggest conditions are so terrible that under no circumstances would it be apparently safe for people to visit us from overseas," said Lord Hacking, chairman of the Tourist Association.

The caterers' chief reason for advising visitors "to wait until next year" was, they said, that they lacked equipment to look after them.

Bring Own Crockery

It's a fact that at least one hotel in East Anglia advised its summer visitors to bring their own crockery. Replacement of broken plates, it hoped, might be impossible, with production gobbled up by the "all for export" drive.

Luxury hotels in London are fairly well-equipped but their accommodation is limited.

Views of Britons themselves were summed up in a letter to the Evening Standard which said: "This country is not yet ready to invite tourists to come here. Our scenery no doubt is beautiful —but you cannot eat scenery.

"In London now, with double summer time, everything closes at 10.30 p.m., except night clubs. In most hotels there is no gin or whisky after 8 p.m.

"Secondary cafes can offer dried egg dishes, canned beef, sausage meat and chips; that is about all. It is foolish to suppose that foreign visitors will not expect steaks, butter and bacon."

Another viewpoint was expressed in a letter in the same column:

"Surely anyone with commonsense can see that we ought not to invite tourists now," it said. "We have been overworked and underfed for a long time. If there is any extra food or accommodation going we should have it first."

This may sound like a dog in the manger attitude, but the Automobile Association says that if foreign tourists are occupying hotel rooms, a similar number of Britons won't be able to have holidays.

Driver Averts Disaster in School Sleigh Accident

WINS DOW AWARD

JACK KERR OF HERMON, ONTARIO
is hero of community

The children chattered merrily as they hugged together in this winter version of a school bus, unaware of what was about to happen.

It was 2 below zero. Ten school children left the shelter of the little oil stove in the canvas-top ferry on a logged trail lightly along the snow-banked road. Suddenly there was a sickening lurch. The sleigh tilted violently and rolled over on its side. In an instant the stove had exploded and the canvas top was a mass of flames. Driver Jack Kerr's first task was to control the terrified horses. Then he leaped to the rescue of the children, many of whom were pinned under the burning sleigh.

Working quickly, Kerr pulled the children out, one by one, rolling them in the snow to smother their burning clothes. Then, although burned himself, he managed to put out the fire, right the sleigh and gallop the children to the village. On arrival, he didn't wait a moment to send his own injuries, but immediately went for a doctor. Soon all were receiving proper medical treatment.

The fact that this story has no tragic ending is due entirely to the quick, cool courage of one man. We are proud to pay tribute to Jack Kerr of Hermon, Ontario through the presentation of The Dow Award.

Jack Kerr had—always been a great favourite with the youngsters. But today he is real hero to the whole community. Because of his gallantry and presence of mind, not one life was lost.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of citizens of leading Montreal daily newspapers.

Phosphate Islands Are Rehabilitated

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)—Rapid progress is being made in repopulating the phosphate islets, Nauru and Ocean Island, from damage done during the war.

The islands, which have been administered under joint mandate by Britain Australia and New Zealand since they were taken from Germany after the First World War, are of vital importance to Australia and New Zealand as the main course of fertilizers.

The huge cantilever loading equipment at Nauru which enabled a ship standing out to sea to be filled with phosphate in a single day, was wrecked by shellfire from a German warship in 1940. Further damage to the equipment on both islands was done after their capture by the Japanese.

Now the islands are being brought back into production. Improvised quarrying, processing and loading machinery is being used pending the replacement of the 1,000,000 worth of machinery ruined by the enemy. It is expected that over 200,000 tons of phosphate will be shipped in the year ending June 30, and about 500,000 tons will be shipped in the next year. The quantity will increase in the two subsequent years as reconstruction proceeds.

Reich Top Secrets Sell for Few Pence

London, (Reuters)—Booklets on German industrial secrets, product of many years of research now can be obtained for six pence (12 cents) and 15 shillings ($3) at His Majesty's stationery office in London.

So far 1,750 different reports have been published, covering every field of industry. A small proportion are reprints of U.S. reports.

Each of these documentary pamphlets now being issued at the rate of 20 to 30 a week, are the product of months of work by 12,000 uniformed British experts, who have toured Germany and collected all relevant material in German patent offices and industrial plants. More than 10,000 factories were visited.

The work of compiling this material is carried out by the British intelligence objectives subcommittee. France is working on the same lines but on a minor scale.

Britain and the U.S. are working on reciprocal basis and more than 3,000,000 microfilmed patent documents already have reached Britain from the U.S. agency and after sorting will be made available to British industry.

In the meantime a huge microfilm library already is available at B.I.O.S. offices in London where industrialists have filed orders for over 300,000 photostat copies.

Latest additions to the library are 50 tins of 9.5 millimetre microfilm containing patents applied for during the war.

Hoped Broken Neck Would Regain Love

Whitfield, Kent, England, (CP) —Mrs. Lucy Wright, 45, was bound over for two years after admitting to magistrates she tampered with a tractor driven by her husband in the hope that Bert would break his neck.

Later she explained to a reporter: "I love Bert."

"He means the world to me. Everytime I see him he has a wonderful effect on me; but he won't have anything to do with me. A year ago he left me because of a quarrel and we've lived apart ever since then.

"I tore some leads from the tractor. I imagined Bert being seriously hurt. That horrified me —but most important of all I imagined myself getting him well again, with him finding love for me once more. That's why I did it."

Wright, Lucy's third husband, commented: "Lucy shouldn't tamper with tractors. It makes things difficult."

New Zealand Hit By Power Crisis

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)— The most severe electric power crisis in New Zealand's history recently brought the most populous and industrialized portion of the country, the North Island, to conditions resembling wartime blackout.

Several factors contributed to the power crisis. Chief of them was that the government was unable to advance its hydro-electric development plans quickly enough during the war to keep pace with the growing demand. A series of dry seasons depleted the lakes which fed the main hydro-electric works and coalfield strikes and restrictions of coal supplies from abroad limited the output from auxiliary coal-driven power plants.

Power was totally disconnected from private houses for 4 1-2 hours a day and hot water heaters were kept switched off in private homes for five days a week under penalty of a $40 fine.

Radio broadcasting operating for only 5 1-4 hours daily. Electric radiators were prohibited except in hospitals, surgeries and dentists' rooms.

Shop window lighting, all exterior signs, floodlighting and ornamental interior lighting were prohibited and street lighting was reduced to occasion dim lights. Street-car services were severely restricted.

There was a rush to buy lamps and candles as some of the power cuts come in the evenings.

The government claimed that the crisis arose from causes beyond its control but it met severe criticism, especially from the Opposition.

East-West Widths In Off-Face Hats Given U.K. Okay

By DENISE DALTROFF
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Spring hats in the lower and medium price range, shown by the Millinery Information Centre, are modelled on the prevailing off-the-face and accentuated side width styles with prices varying from 11s 9d. ($2.35) to around £4 ($16).

The Napoleon tricorn was used to style one navy blue fur felt off-the-face hat and was also used to shape the high halo brim of a lime green felt. A large picture hat in pastel blue felt had a watered brim line.

Brims that balance the eye-to-nape line of the head were featured in a cluster of flowers or a bow, or the brim was slit in the front, curled back and caught to the crown. This east-to-west trend was also carried out on a swathed pink jersey turban, the back being stiffened to give it width.

A new version of the Dutch bonnet was made in gold wool felt with a drawstring at the back to give snug fitting for any head size.

For party wear the information centre showed an Edwardian boater in scarlet silk with a completely open crown. It was trimmed with a bunch of scarlet cherries and veiling under the chin.

A heart-shaped box beret brim, a favorite of Princess Margaret's, was combined with a close fitting crown in rinse wool felt.

The ever popular sailor hat worn towards the back of the head, these days, was in navy blue pedal straw with a spray of pastel flowers in the front.

Finds New Remedy To Beat Distemper

Dunblane, Sask., (CP)—Dog-owners in the United States, England, the West Indies and Canada who have given up trying to force a pill down Rover's throat, have turned to 75-year-old Bob Miniely of this tiny prairie town for help.

The retired railway telegrapher produced a distemper cure—one that is rubbed on the dog's nose and inside its ears so that the animal inevitably gets the full dose of medicine.

It all started when one Mr. Miniely's canary sent a pup home for safe keeping. The native of Lambton County, Ont., had promised himself never to keep a dog because of the emptiness he felt when two pets had died of distemper.

The new pup came down with distemper and all local cures were useless. An Englishman, a newcomer to the district, suggested an Old Country remedy —he knew the ingredients but not the quantities to mix.

Mr. Miniely took the list of ingredients and mixed them up to his own prescription. The pup was bounding around within a few days and the remedy spread through the countryside.

In the late 1920s Mr. Miniely found the telegraphing job did not take up all his time and he began to market the product. He had it made up in quantity by an eastern chemical firm to his own formula. Then he bought metal tubes and was in business.

When he retired from railroading in 1936 he took up the distemper product as a full time occupation. During the first two years he sold only 300 tubes. Now he sell that many a week. And he has branched out into other dog remedies.

Church Reopened, Flags Dedicated By Padre Swan

Marmora (Special)—Showers which fell on Sunday morning did not deter a large number of worshippers from attendance at St. Paul's Anglican Church, where Padre Swan, R.C.A.F. Station Trenton of Whitsunday, the official reopening of the church edifice and the dedication of two beautiful flags, the Union Jack and the Canadian Ensign—took place. The flowers on the altar were the gift of Mrs. and Mrs. Carl Whitmore in loving memory of the latter's father, the late F. A. Newell, while other flowers were given for decoration by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rice.

Rector Officiates

Rev. J. M. Brownlie, rector officiated and directed the singing of the processional hymn, called upon Scudmore Leader, Rev. J. Ellis, to read the lesson. Rev. J. Ellis which were the gift of ex-service men of the congregation who served in the two World Wars and were presented through the efforts of Warren Hickey, veteran of the First World War, Squadron Leader Ellis, who served as chaplain at the R.C.A.F., Trenton, also read the lessons and presented eloquently upon the text "If ye then be risen with the spirit of Christ, he is none of His."

Pays Tribute

Paying his tribute to the artistic redecoration of the church, Padre Swan his pleasure in being given the privilege to perform the act of dedication. He told the preacher then referred to the obstacles Canon Greenaway, at that day came as a great refresher to the Padre, and to those who knew should it come to us, he declared. Our minds should dwell upon the Holy Spirit, though it may not be possible to understand all the things of God. Giving thanks to the matter of the spirit of Christ, he asserted that it is always the spirit of real worship. That worship was not confined to the church but to be associated with the consciousness of God.

All Will be Well

Illustrating it by an experience of his own, he emphasized that because God reigns, rules and loves, all will be well. One thing we perhaps have failed to pass on to our young people is the consciousness of God. The disciples became aware of God on being Whitsunday. The second point brought out by Squadron Leader Swan, was that the spirit of Christ is the spirit of service. Corporate worship should be normal. You cannot be a real Christian and refuse to become a real friend wherever.

The spirit of service should go together with the spirit of worship. Happiness is by-product of service. Real enthusiasm is a Divine quality. Further quoting from a sermon preached by the Padre to emphasize the fruits of a service rendered to the Lord Christ. The choir rendered "Lean Me Lord" in the course of the service.

Church Redecorated

At evensong another bright service was held with the rector officiating. The cause for rejoicing on the part of St. Paul's congregation, then and present, may be gauged from the following description of the renovations and redecoration of the church by a Toronto firm has been a work of ecclesiastical art. The symbolism employed has been of type to win appreciation from the devout Anglican. Summer visitors will be returning to augment the congregation can be counted upon to express their admiration. A new lighting scheme already in operation will be completed when pendant lanterns arrive. The redecoration was made possible by the indefatigable efforts of the Ladies' Guild.

Buyers' Strike In Cape Breton Planned by Labor

Sydney, N.S., May 27—(CP)—More and more alarmed over "skyrocketing" prices, the "swallowing up" of wage increases by the federal government's decontrol policy and one of the worst unemployment situations in Canada, Cape Breton labor today was laying the groundwork for an Island-wide buyers' strike next month.

Decision to launch such a strike came out of Sunday's meeting of the Cape Breton Labor Council, which represents more than 30,000 Canadian Congress of Labor members in the district. Immediate support was pledged by the Cape Breton Trades and Labor Congress.

Angry speeches were made Sunday against "big business," a federal government that had lifted price ceilings and a provincial government that "was writing one-way tickets" for workers to central Canada.

John R. MacDonald, chairman of the Cape Breton Labor Council who was elected liaison officer of the campaign, said: "It doesn't make a bit of difference how much of a wage increase we receive if prices are to be driven up so that they absorb the increase and allow but a bare existence for the workers."

The campaign, scheduled to start June 15 or soon after, will include establishment of women's institutes as spearhead of the drive to lower cost of living prices.

Plans were being laid for the council to work in conjunction with the retail merchants' Association to prevent loss of perishable goods.

Strike action will be aimed at butter, lard, bread, jams, marmalade, syrup, coffee, tea, meats and clothing.

Donald MacDonald, regional director of the C.C.L., charged the federal government had shirked its responsibilities by giving way to the pressure of "profit-mad business barons." During the war controls were enforced but when co-operation of the workers was no longer required ceilings had been lifted.

Does "Dealer" Get Pony as Gift or Pay?

Montreal, May 27 — (CP) — The freighter Gracia left a Scottish port with 24 Shetland ponies aboard and when she docked here yesterday there was an extra colt frisking about.

The colt was foaled shortly before the vessel docked and was promptly named "Gracie" by crew members.

Now the question is does the Whitby, Ont., dealer who is to receive the ponies get Gracie as an unexpected gift, or does he pay extra.

The ponies are to be tamed and used to give children rides in various Canadian amusement parks.

STEEL COMPANY BUYS A TOWN . . . AND MOVES IT 9 MILES

The housing shortage caused U. S. Steel to buy the wartime boomtown of Dragerton, Utah, so that employees in its Horse Canyon mine might keep their homes. A total of 121 houses, purchased from War Assets Administration for $1,500,000, have been moved from the 377-acre town site.

The new site is nine miles away. This is the boarding house at Dragerton. When the town's population peak was 5,000 during the war, this boarding house housed 204 men. It will perform a like service at its new home.

Unearth Bones In Parish Church To Lay Ghost

Borley, Essex, England, May 27 (CP)—Three men digging within the altar rails of the centuries-old Borley parish church have unearthed remains which may lay forever the Borley ghost—"the nun with the swishing dress".

Holidaymakers watched as Rev. A. C. Hemfing, the rector, James Turner and J. J. Durant assembled some bones in an empty fruit box. Henning said they may be those of a nun said to have haunted Borley rectory for years.

"Some months ago when I was sitting in the rectory with my wife and another person we heard footsteps and a swishing sound as of a long dress," he said, "But we could see nothing."

Turner added the "ghost has been very active since my wife and I settled in a cottage adjoining the rectory a month ago. We've heard a swishing sound several nights running."

Henning said he intended reinterring the bones in the churchyard.

Mr. Coldwell felt that the measure would not entail a surrendering of Canadian sovereignty but rather an "extension" of sovereignty into fields where Canada previously had no voice.

He urged that the Dominion do all it could to bring about a better understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union because the next war, if there was to be one, would be between those two countries.

Provisions Obsolete

Mr. Low expressed disappointment that the United Nations had not devoted more time to study of the causes of war and measures for the elimination of these causes. Too much time was spent on discussing ways of divesting nations of their sovereignty.

Mr. Blackmore contended that United States "still was following trade and economic policies which had "precipitated" the Second World War while the European countries were being asked to surrender sovereignty to the "inquitous" United Nations.

In speaking on the bill dealing with statutes, Mr. Graydon expressed belief Canada's prospects as a nation would be heightened by greater association with the Commonwealth and said Canada may in years be the centre of a "greater and stronger Commonwealth."

External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said the provisions had become obsolete because it now was recognized that the British parliament would not recommend disallowance of any Commonwealth legislation or attempt at legislate for extraneous matters unless requested to do so. However, the government did not plan at this time to seek deletion of similar clauses in the British North America Act relating thereto to disallowance.

Mr. Coldwell felt the bill was in keeping with Canada's constitutional status.

BIG TOURIST SEASON AHEAD!

THE THOMPSONS are busy as bees, getting their place in shape for the tourist season. This year, with three more cabins, electricity and a modernized kitchen, they hope to do even better than before.

They were able to make these additions because last fall Mr. Thompson drove to town to see his bank manager. He knew about the nice little business the Thompsons had built up; a bank loan was quickly arranged.

Now the Thompsons can handle more tourists and increase their income. At the same time Canada will benefit from the extra tourist dollars they take in.

Collapse Overturned

Rampaging waters overturned a number of cottages on Val D'Or Island in the St. Lawrence between Ste. Marthe Du Cap and Champlain while farmers at Maskinonge travelled to their barns in boats. An estimated 200 summer homes around St. Rose in the Montreal area were flooded. Milk and bread deliveries to two Dorval streets were made by boat.

The flood had other consequences besides the thousands of dollars damage being piled up. Killiam M. Croskerty, Ottawa representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, estimated only five per cent of the grain crop in the Ottawa-Gatineau area now is in and said prospects for the crop this year were poor. Normally the crop is seeded during early May.

Tourists Isolated

The town of Maniwaki appeared hardest hit in the Gatineau area, cut off from its highway connection, a number of tourists, including Americans, in that area found themselves isolated temporarily. Many Canadian visitors caught in the area were reported leaving their cars in local garages and returning to Ottawa by train, the only means of transportating in and out of Maniwaki.

Another 75 persons moved from their residences along the Gatineau River in the Maniwaki area Monday. The flood waters entered the boiler room of two local lumber mills to a depth of four feet, halting operations. But the big Mercier Dam north of the town still was holding back tons of flood waters and engineers said there was no danger it would give way.

Residents Use Boats

Residents of low-lying Gatineau Point have been using boats since they first felt the floods three weeks ago. A school has been closed there, civic authorities have moved to find accommodation for flood families as more homes become untenable.

The Hull wharf across from Ottawa is under flood which also has surrounded the lumber stockpile of the Big E. B. Eddy plant. The wood mills which supplies the plant with sulphite has been forced to close, possibly signalling a shutdown of the whole plant.

New Riot Puts Central Bombay Under Curfew

Bombay, May 24 (Reuters)—The central part of Bombay was put under a 24-hour curfew today after one person had been killed and 13 injured since midnight in the new rioting between Hindus and Moslems which flared up yesterday after a six-week lull.

Two of the injuries were due to knife attacks and five to an explosion in the predominantly Hindu area of Girgaum.

Armed police were patrolling the streets after firing 11 rounds to quell disturbances which started in the Mahim area, notorious trouble centre, and quickly spread to other districts.

In Indore, central Indian state, two people were wounded when police opened fire on demonstrators marching on the Maharajah's palace to demand aberance to the constituent assembly's devising India's future constitution. A curfew also was imposed.

Three Indian policemen were killed by two armed outlaws in the Banu district of the north-west frontier province. One outlaw was killed and the other captured.

In Balsan, small hill state, police opened fire on demonstrators who were reported to have stormed the state jail, demanding the release of men arrested under the public safety ordinance.

In the Mardan district of the northwest frontier province three Hindus were shot dead in the village of Navikilli.

Seven Hindu women, arrested today in the walled city of Lahore, capital of the Punjab, for alleged illegal possession of arms, were detained under the Public Safety Act.

Ahmedabad, India, May 24 — (Reuters) — A 2,000-strong crowd today attacked the Baroda state government grain ration shops at Siddhapur, and looted about 150 tons of wheat, a report reaching here said.

Before raiding the shops the crowd marched to the court of local authority and demanded food grains.

New Delhi, May 24 — (Reuters) — Five people were killed and 12 wounded when a party of 40 Sikhs armed with bombs and small arms attacked a cluster of mud huts in the Moslem village of Rasulpura, near the sacred Sikh city of Amritsar, just after midnight.

Villagers were thrown into a panic as the raiders released a hail of rifle fire before fleeing.

Granny's Grammar Grim, Gruelling

Kingston, Ont., (CP)—There are arguments pro and con every day to whether schooling children were given in past generations was "tougher" than it is today. Grandmas and grandpa seem to think so, and so do ma and pa.

If they want some confirmation of their argument, a little volume found in an attic the other day will back them up—at least so far as grammar is concerned. Published in 1838—where they part of the "good old days!"—the grammar is dedicated to the youngest classes of learners."

For the more erudite, the book's title in full is "Abridgement of Murray's English Grammar with an Appendix Containing exercises in Orthography, in Parsing, in Syntax and in Punctuation, designed for the younger classes of learners." Did we hear someone say they were playing hookey today?

Author Lindley Murray's idea must have been that children of the day were capable of a full "Sunday" vocabulary. There is no simplified language—and no doubt dictionaries were used often, oftener and oftenest.

Rote learning was approved with lessons labelled like "Promiscuous Exercises in Etymological Parsing" suggested for memory work. Hyper-syllabic rules abound—for instance: "The conjunction disjunctive has an effect contrary to that of the conjunctive copulative; for as the verb, noun or pronoun, is referred to the preceding terms to take separately, it must be in the singular number." Anyone dispute that?

The volume has one saving grace —it is only 80 pages long.

"TERRIBLE IVAN" NOT SO RUTHLESS SAYS BIOGRAPHER

"Misunderstood" Monarch's Life is Best Seller at Foreign Ministers' Moscow Meet

By WES GALLAGHER

Berlin, (AP)—The best seller of the recent foreign ministers' conference in Moscow was a book depicting Czar Ivan the Terrible as a misunderstood monarch.

The book, printed in English as well as Russian, was avidly read by all visiting delegations for two reasons:

First, it is apparently an officially-inspired continuation of the wartime policy of reviving Russian nationalism and playing down instead of expanding international Communism and reviling the memory of Russian royalty.

Second, many delegates could draw parallels between Ivan's diplomacy and that of the Soviet Union today.

The book is by Soviet historian V. N. Wipper and is called "Ivan Cromy."

It shows that reluctance to allow Russian women to join their foreign husbands went back to the 16th century. At that time the Danish government wrote the Moscovite foreign office asking that the Danish ambassador's Russian wife be allowed to accompany him out of Russia. The Danish government received the following reply:

"It is not the custom in our domains for us to give free men in bondage, and this applies not only to the people of our domains but also to those of others who reside in our domains, that women in bondage should go with all the women in bondage, to your master Sidor."

Present Day Parallels

Western diplomats found this matter showed little change from those being delivered today, leading an American official to comment that the new Communist slogan was "workers of the world unite—but don't get married."

It is a chapter of Ivan the Terrible's diplomacy, modern diplomats found many present day parallels.

Ivan was constantly admonishing envoys not accustomed to back "live booty," particularly artisans and technical men. One of the recent points of dispute between the Soviets and the West has been the taking of labor from Germany by force.

The Russian chancellor under Ivan wrote to the Danes in the 16th century, "the Moscow sovereign was not accustomed to yield any lands they have subjugated to any one.

Some found a parallel in this stand and the present day one on the eastern border of Germany.

Wipper wrote that Ivan's diplomats "astonished foreign courts by diplomatic skill" and went on to relate the advice a British company gave its agents going to Russia:

The Moscow ambassador was extremely distrustful, and was always on the alert, as he believed that everyone was plotting to cheat him, and, consequently, advised them to be careful in their dealings with him and other Russians, to enter into definite transactions and draw up written contracts, for they are a subtle people, not always truthful, and believe that other men are like them."

Ivan also gave his ambassadors detailed instructions on how to behave in foreign lands with great dignity. Wipper describes with considerable approval how two Russians smiled as Rome walked out of all church services if they were not given the best seats.

Moose Invasion Caused by Ticks

Quesnel, B.C., (CP)—Wood ticks are believed to be responsible for an invasion of moose in Quesnel. A number of moose have been reported roaming the outlying sections and a few have entered the town.

Mrs. C. H. Allison was startled while working in her garden when a bull moose crashed through the brush just behind her and disappeared.

Hunters said there has been an epidemic of wood ticks and the animals are apparently being driven to distraction by the pests.

Canuck Programs Win 'Well Done' Praise in States

By ELSE CHANTLER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It awards for superb production are any criterion, let's stop being shy about Canadian broadcasting—whether it be publicly or privately beamed. Both systems have cricks, some as the result of trying too hard to ape program styles south of the border, some the normal hangovers of past adolescence, some the result of commercial competition in a democratic land.

But cricks or no cricks, fewer cranks and a little more kudos from within and without the industry might have amazing morale results for Canadian talent —those folk who it is said are always on the verge of migration to the green hills of American networks.

And although Canadians may seem reluctant to lay out laurel leaves, broadcasters, editors and educators in the United States are not a bit bashful when it comes to giving this Dominion's radio shows, producers and artists a "well-done" nod.

In fact, the 11th American Exhibition of Educational Programs, sponsored by the 17th Institute for education by Radio, meeting at Ohio State University, has given CBC programs three top awards, one special citation, and three honorable mentions. These by the way, were gained in competition with crack American network productions.

First award in religious programs was given for the series "The Way of the Spirit", written by Rev. Canon J. E. Ward of Toronto and produced in Montreal by Rupert Caplan. . . for the telling of Bible stories with simplicity and reverence. . .'

Scored Bulls-Eye

First prize in the "cue-occasion" broadcast category went to "The Patient and the Visitor", written by Len Peterson, produced by J. Frank Willis, and musically scored by Samuel Hersenhoren. . . 'superb production, paced by a vivid script and a brilliantly written and executed score'. The judges added that it was "realistic, honest and sincere" and "scored a bulls-eye".

Another first was given for "the over-all excellence of children's programs, particularly 'Adventures in Magic' and 'Cuckoo Clock House.' The citation said, "There is refreshing sincerity and naturalness to these programs, proving children's programs can be vividly entertaining without being sensational, informative without being dull."

Honorable mention was won by Andrew Allan's "Stage 47" series "for its courageous and skilful dramas on serious themes, and high quality of writing, acting and production." Other honorable mentions were given "Story Parade" for Juniors', a school broadcast written by Fern Rahmel and produced by Elsie Lumbers in Toronto; and "Adventures in Speech", written by Gertrude E. McCance and produced by Dan E. Cameron of Winnipeg.

Radio station CJOR, Vancouver, won first award for cultural programs in local station classification for "March of Progress", produced by Dick Diespecker.

In special class for school broadcasts, "Animals and Birds of Canada", written by Otto Miller and produced by Kay Stevenson of Toronto, was granted special citation of merit.

You see, maybe it's not necessary to ring Hollywood—but it seems timely to be more proud and less shy about Canadian radio.

Radon Gas Effective In Cancer Treatment

Halifax, (CP)—While Canadians are supporting financially the campaign to curb cancer, a technician trained at Dalhousie University keeps in operation a complex glass apparatus which supplies radon gas, a weapon used in the war against the dread disease.

The radon plant now in use at the Victoria General Hospital here was developed by Dr. A. H. Henderson of the physics department of Dalhousie. His invention is reduced to a function for expenditure the hospital would have had to make for equipment then available.

Halifax was the second city in Canada to obtain radon facilities for fighting cancer, and even today there are only six cities in the Dominion with such equipment.

Radon gas is obtained from radium and provides more flexible method for treating individual cases of cancer. It can be readily subdivided into various strengths to suit the needs of the individual patient.

Usually radium is used in the form of salt of the element, itself a minute portion of which is sealed in platinum needles.

Radon, which produces exactly the same rays as radium is ordinarily used in a small piece of gold tubing called a "seed". Placed in a cancerous tumor the gold-filled seed or seeds, as the case may require, give uniform radiation. Often the seeds are left in place and the patient goes through life without being inconvenienced or even aware that they are there.

The radium is placed in a flask containing distilled acid water and locked in a safe. From the flask glass tubing leads to a complex system of glassware which is kept at a high vacuum. The radium steadily forms radon gas which is pumped off at regular intervals by a glass pump.

The actual amount of gas pumped off each day is no larger than the head of a pin but this is still too great to go into the tiny seeds. The gas contains a relatively high content of impurity from the water and 999 parts out of every 1,000 must be removed.

This is done by chemical means in the glass apparatus and the purified radon is then compressed into the gold tubing to form the seeds.

Vancouver Island Never Heard of It

Duncan, B.C., (CP)—Mrs. K. Savory, Cambridge, England, is wondering what's happened to Canada.

Mrs. Savory put through a long distance call to her mother, Mrs. C. H. Hopkins, of Duncan, and several hours later received word that Montreal advised there was no such place as Vancouver Island.

It required several hours investigation to prove to Montreal it was wrong.

Snow Geese Back In Manitoba Waters

Winnipeg, (CP)—Blue and lesser snow geese passed on Manitoba lakes and rivers this spring on their flights northward—the first time they have done so since R.C.A.F. gunnery and bombing schools became active four years ago.

After the establishment of the R.C.A.F. schools, particularly at Macdonald, the geese rested in the Dakotas and Iowa and then flew non-stop to Hudson Bay. Last year there was a small flight through Alberta, the first such recorded.

With war-time flying activities ceased, naturalists are hoping the geese will resume their normal route.

But B. W. Cartwright, chief naturalist for Ducks Unlimited, is cautious. "The geese are showing extreme restlessness and a divergence from their normal habits. Their whole behavior is in a state of flux and it's difficult to make predictions," he says.

Brecheen Helping St. Louis Cardinals Claw Their Way Out of National Loop Cellar

Hurler Has Won Five of His First Seven Starts This Season

JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Skeptics who have counted St. Louis Cardinals out of National League pennant race hopelessly did not reckon with Harry (The Cat) Brecheen.

The world champions are still in the cellar today six games behind the first place New York Giants, but the revivified Redbirds, from manager Eddie Dyer down, feel confident that the club will claw its way up there pretty soon, especially if the cat continues to display his early-season cunning.

The willowy lefthander who pitched and won three world series games from Boston Red Sox last fall has won five of his first seven starts this season.

His latest victory, a 3-1 triumph over Chicago Cubs last night in St. Louis advanced the Redbirds to within a half game of the seventh-place Cincinnati Reds. It was also the fourth win in the last five starts for the up-and-coming Cards, who got off to a miserable start by losing 11 of their first 13 games.

The largest crowd ever to see a single game—74,757 paying customers—turned itself hoarse as the rejuvenated New York Yankees continued their bombardment of Boston Red Sox pitchers by flattening the American League champions 8-3 in a night game.

Johnny Jon Dimaggio finally did played the form that made him a pre-war great, and Bill Johnson each knocked in four runs. Dimag delivered the big blow, a three-run ninth inning homer off Joe Dobson which, broke a 3-3 deadlock.

The record attendance eclipsed the previous record of 71,052 at the Cleveland-Philadelphia single game at Cleveland July 31, 1932. Only two other fans were larger and both were double-headers. The all-time high is 81,841 which witnessed the Yankee-Red Sox twin bill on May 30, 1938, at the Yankee Stadium.

Detroit Tigers retained their three-game margin by coming out in front of a 7-0 score against the Indians in Detroit. Lefthander Stubby Overmire, making his first start of the season, limited the Indians to six hits in registering the shutout. A home run by Eddie Lake accounter for the only score.

Kirby Higbe won his first game for Pittsburgh since his purchase from Brooklyn Dodgers three weeks ago, when he pitched the Pirates to a 5-4 win over Cincinnati Reds in a night game at Cincinnati.

Bro. Jonathan Rematched With Hy Lee

Brother Jonathan the powerful Mormon wrestler is seldom given to that vain human weakness, temper, but last Friday night the bearded gentleman from Salt Lake City showed that he can be very human when he lost to Hi Lee. Brother Jonathan along with 99 percent of the fans present felt that he had been gypped more than slightly by the Ozark Giant who certainly broke a few rules while gaining that last fall.

The net result of the good Brother's raving to Manager Walt Gerow is that the Mormon and Hi Lee have been re-matched for next Friday night here. The only change in the conditions for the match is that Brother Jonathan has asked for wrestbody, anybody in fact, different than Bunny Dunlop as referee.

Actually the Mormon had the better of the match throughout but Lee ended up the winner through several rather shady moves. In the coming re-match Brother Jonathan is determined that it will be his own brawny right hand that goes up in token of victory. The Brother is roused up as he seldom if ever has been roused before. Looks like a rough night for the Ozark Giant in spite of his size and power.

An all-star card has been lined up to support the feature attraction. In the semi-final Strangler Bob Wagner meets Steve Sharpe the tall aristocratic wrestler from Hamilton. Big Ben and Wagner were supposed to meet here last week but the Hamiltonian pulled a rib muscle in his match in Maple Leaf Gardens and had to rest a couple of days. He's back in training again and raring to go at the Portland Cement-Mixer.

In the third bout Pat Flanagan meets Ken Kenneth the smart New Zealander.

MICKEY GRASSO BELTING WAY TOWARD GIANTS

Jersey City Catcher Slams Three Homers to Defeat Orioles 10-9

Catcher Mickey Grasso of the surprising Jersey City Giants, International League pace-setter is belting his way toward another crack at a major league berth, with the current New York Giants.

He batted only 228 for Jersey City in 1946 and is hitting spectacular .361 at the moment but his long ball hitting has been responsible for a number of wins rolled up by the Giants.

Grasso slammed three home runs last night the last in the ninth inning with two on to lead the Giants to a thrilling 10-9 triumph over Baltimore Orioles at Jersey City.

The victory increased the Giants' margin to a game and a half over Montreal Royals who, along with Toronto Maple Leafs, were idle.

Southpaw Prendergast pitched Syracuse Chiefs to a 4-2 win over Newark Bears for his fifth victory of the season. Hank Sauer cracked his 10th homer with one on in the first inning and the Chiefs scored single runs in each of the next two frames to enable the veteran southpaw to coast home.

In the only other game, Buffalo Bisons murdered Rochester Red Wings 12-5, scoring nine runs in the first three innings.

Moldy Hooks Up With Fast Ones On Saturday

(By The Canadian Press)

Moldy, Col. R. S. McLaughlin's gelding, who won the King's Plate, Canada's premier turf prize, at Toronto's Woodbine Park Saturday, will try for honors again next Saturday when he runs in the Prince of Wales Plate at Thorncliffe Park, also in Toronto.

The horse will compete with some of the same top-ranking three-year-olds he led to the post at the Woodbine classic, including Tularch and Leonforte, both winners in their section of the King's Plate trials.

Mr. Infinity, seven-year-old steeper of the stable of J. Young of Brantford, captured the $1,350 inaugural purse highlight of the opening program at Thorncliffe Park yesterday.

Men, Machines Are Available For Big Race

Indianapolis, May 27— (AP)— Men and machines were available in quantity today for the 31st annual running of the 500-mile Memorial Day automobile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30, but only 15 cars had passed qualifications for the 33 places in the starting lineup.

Forty-two cars were in the garages, at least five more were coming, and the speedway aligned in an added qualification trials this afternoon. Tomorrow is scheduled as the last day for time trials, but extra time has been given in past years and doubtless will be available this year if needed.

The ice is still THIN!

Even though the "Danger" signs of Inflation can be taken down now, they have to be replaced with signs reading, "Proceed With Caution." The ice is still too thin for any Canadian to tell himself, "Now, at last, I can go ahead and buy everything I want."

We can't—yet. But we can proceed to enjoy—in moderation—many of the goods and services which were so long in short supply. These good things are ours at moderate prices now because we were moderate in our demands before.

Today, Canadians can indeed be proud of one of this country's finest possessions, which is, as The House of Seagram has long contended, this nation's policy of moderation in all things—in its thinking, in its buying and in its personal habits.

Men who Think of Tomorrow Practice Moderation Today!

"SMOKY" SMITH HURLS 1-HITTER IN OPENER

Strikes Out 15 to Defeat Kiwanis Juniors 4-0; Art Wright Hurls Fine Game for Losers

Red Culkin's pinch single to centre field in the eighth inning deprived Batawa's famed southpaw "Smoky" Smith from a no-hit game at the Shoemart Park over the weekend, and with his mates going on to score four runs behind him, the Rhoe ladies defeated the Kiwanis Juniors 4-0 to officially open the Belleville Baseball Association season.

For a curtain raiser the game was one of those pastimes that rais mid-season or possibly play off form. With Smith going great guns and holding the kids in the palm of his hand until Culkin's rap, the game developed into a pitching duel with young Art Wright essaying his first full game for the kids deserving a better fate. The youngster was touched for seven hits all told four of them coming in the eighth when the Shoemen clustered their clouts for three runs that tucked the game away.

Three scattered hits, one of them a double by Solmes, with no dambgs done was the best the Bata bats could get off Wright until the disastrous eighth when they gathered the scarlet that spelt defeat for the plucky kids. In the previous inning Smoky" Smith was in great form. Only twenty-nine batters faced him over the nine-inning stretch, fifteen of them going down via the strikeout route. He walked one. Wright struck out three and walked the same number.

Bata struck in the first inseond on an error. He went to third on a single and went to second on an error. He went to third and home on a Fielder's choice as the kids threw the next two Bata batters out.

Then in the 4th was as neat a bit of baseball pastiming as you could wish to see. That is until the eighth. Reeves struck out and Culkin came through with the Kiwanis lone single. Smith, however bore down and retired the side in that innings and the ninth.

The homesters finally got to Wright in the eighth chukker. A double by Cook and three singles by Aquino, Solmes and Smith paved the way for three runs and the game was over. Cook and Solmes hit two base knocks for the winners adding singles for good measure.

ROCKET RICHARD N.H.L. WINNER OF HART TROPHY

Rightwinger for Montreal Canadiens Judged Most Valuable Player in Loop

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 27 — (CP) — Hockey's blazing "Rocket," the fleet-footed and fiery Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens, today capped a brilliant career of record-smashing in the National Hockey League last season with the announcement that he had captured hockey's most valued individual award — the Hart Trophy and the "most valuable player" mantle.

Richard, the husky, stock-haired rightwinger with the tricky goal-scoring skill and the blazing shot, was an overwhelming choice for the prized trophy. He collected 68 of a possible 84 points in voting by hockey writers and broadcasters around the circuit.

Three selectors in each of the six NHL cities voted, with three points counted for first choice, two for second and one for third. Twelve voted the 26-year-old Montreal-born star their first choice, and six placed him second.

His nearest rival was Boston Bruins' great centre star and utility man, Milt Schmidt, who won four first place votes and 38 points all told. Chicago's Max Bentley, Hart Trophy winner last year, got two first-place nods and twelve points.

Ten Named

Ten players were named for the trophy, first presented in the 1923-24 season by Dr. David Hart, father of the late Cecil Hart, onetime Canadiens coach. With the cup, given the player "adjudged to be most valuable to his team," goes also an award of $1,000 from the league.

How they stood:

Maurice Richard, Montreal .. 48
Milt Schmidt, Boston 38
Max Bentley, Chicago 28
Turk Broda, Toronto 7
Chuck Rayner, New York .. 2
Ted Lindsay, Detroit 1
Syl Apps, Toronto 1
Woody Dumart, Boston 1
Ted Kennedy, Toronto 1
Bill Quackenbush, New York .. 1

The French-Canadian flash, who holds the record for most goals in a season — 50 — most goals in playoffs — 12 — and other marks set another precedent as he became the third member of his line to make the select circle. Both Elmer Lach and Toe Blake, wingmates of Richard on Canadiens' famed "punch line," have won the Hart Trophy in previous years — Lach two years ago and Blake in the 1938-39 season.

This past season, with Lach sidelined with a skull fracture and the punch line scrambled with other injuries, Richard proved he still could sink goals regularly, scoring 45, 15 more than his nearest rivals.

Montreal May 27 (CP)—Things aren't too rosy and bright for the Montreal Rolays, last year's International League and Little World Series champions.

Although they're currently holding down second place in the standings behind Jersey City's Little Giants, there is cause for considerable viewing with alarm by the Montreal fans.

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll, casting a war eye at Royal's probabilities and possibilities, is more than somewhat pessimistic. The champs have only three infielders he points out, with Lou Welzl, Al Campanis and Ed Stevens doing the deal around the bases with no assistance.

If Campanis or Welzl should fall apart one of these dismal spring days Dink Prophesies gloomily, the infield would be kaput.

"The reinforcements must come from somewhere, and soon" says Dink eying the roster of nine inner garden scarpsevers the Dodgers are carrying.

Der Bingle Returns

Two years ago groanin' Bing Crosby caused a considerable sensation on Montreal links when he eased his talents tonally and almost as happy golf club over the Islesmere course during the Canadian Professional Golfers Association meet.

The crowds turned out in unprecedented numbers for the centre of the dual culture, and the tournament was a bowling success.

Last week Der Bingle returned, on a private basis and without the fanfare and proceeded to shoot a respectable 74 over the links.

CNR VETERANS LOSE CLOSE GAME TO PETES

'Twas home town day in Peterboro on Saturday with the De Laval muhabaliers trotting down town with the $200 pot o' gold after a half dozen or more teams had fought it out on various diamonds in ye olde Exhibition Park of the Limerock City.

De Lavals nudged the Toronto Dentonias in the finals after winning their third game of the Junior Board of Trade muahball jamboree. Teams taking part were Peterboro De Lavals and Legion, Belleville CNR Vets, Toronto Dentonias and "Cabbagetown" Cobourg, Peterboro Westclox, and Toronto Massey Harris.

Belleville CNR Veterans deserved a better fate. They looked to be one of the best teams in the melee, and went down to defeat after an extra innings, night that is, not ten as you may have heard. The umpiring in this especial fracas could have been better, and the local squad sounded off about it after the game.

In any event Long Jim Hunter went to the mound for the locals and pitched one of the best games of his career. He held the classy Peterboro Westclox to six clouts and should have won going away. Errors and failure to hit in the clutches was the main reason for the Vets' elimination.

The team looked all right however, and ranked as one of the best in the jamboree, if the crowd watching them is any criterion.

The teams:—

Westclox: Scriver, lf; Garvey c; Hawkes 3b; Giardino, ss; Foster, rf; Burns, Conroy, lf; Blewett, cf; Gulfoyle, p; Parsons, p; Sullivan, 2b.

Belleville: Barriage, lf; Henn, 2b; Carsons, 3b; Mallory, rf; Gough, ss; Williams, cf; Whalen, lf; Temple, c; Hunter, p.

BOURGEAUS' WIN FIRST GAME COMMERCIALOOP

Scoring four runs in the second and fourth innings, and adding three more for good measure, Bourgeau's Garage defeated the Sheridan Billiards to officially open the Belleville Commercial Softball League over the week-end. The score was 11-7.

Donald Harris was on the mound for the losers and was nicked for twelve hits over the seven inning route while Pitzgibbon who pitched for the Billiards boys was touched for ten clouts but his mates clustered the hits when they meant runs.

Sheridan grabbed a three-run lead in the second after Garage had scored one in the first They added four more in the fourth on three hits with Garage boys getting a single in the third. The winners came back in the fourth innings with another quartet of markers and added two more in the seventh.

Billiards broke out with a four-run splurge in the fifth but could not overcome the Billiards' lead. Brown, Garage centre fielder pounded out three safeties with Wood getting two. Soule and M. Fitzgibbon got two each for the winners.

Hank Greenberg, Pirates — Made one single in four times at bat as the Pirates downed the Reds 5-1.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Tall Jim Hunter pitching one of the best games of his career, was not a better fate at the Peterborough Junior Board of Trade baseball jamboree on Saturday afternoon. The big fella fell down the stretch in the ninth inning with six clouts and his fast ball was working to perfection. At last he forced the game into an extra session before an error sent home the winning run. The final score was 6-5, and our golden arm eliminated there and then.

Vern Goyer popped up with three safeties and they didn't help the general cause any. The team as a whole could not match any at the jamboree and that goes for the winning Toronto Dentonias. In fact all the teams represented were more or less evenly matched and Coop CNR Veterans looked as good as any of them. It was a heartbreaker to lose and a dilly to win. Belleville had a 4-3 lead at one time and it looked for a couple of innings as though they had the game in the bag after the well-placed hit and errors put a different outlook on the pastime and they trotted off the field defeated but by no means disgraced.

"Smoky" Smith, like the proverbial turkey, is apparently improving with age. At least so his performance against the Kiwanis kids over the week-end would seem to indicate. The good fella arm of the southpaw was in perfect condition and but for a line single to first baseman Ike the was club of Red Culkin, Smith would have entered the baseball hall of fame — again. He had his kids eating out of his hand throughout the game whiffing no less than 14.

On the other hand youthful Art Wright, doing his first complete stint on the pitching mound covered himself with glory if he did weaken in the eighth and after four of the seven clouts garnered off him. Six scores three runs. The kid pitched a fine game and appears to be headed places. The game was outstanding from all phases with the checking stealing the limelight.

Tonight at the Alemite Field weather permitting the youngsters face the strong RCAF Flyers squad, and it is likely Bobby Bunton will face his old foemen in the blue. No word from the Flyers camp, but in all probability the airmen will start Al. Wade tall righthander who had an impressive record last year. Game at 8:30.

Lots of baseball this week-and if the weather doesn't change there will be plenty of postponed games. Tomorrow gloaming Napanee will be the guests of Sweaza here while Latta takes on Bata at the Shoemens' diamond.

All games, track and field upsets and bowling were rained out yesterday, as old Jupe Pluvious took matters over. Sunday it rained heavily as Napanee will tell you. Yesterday morning it threatened to be clear but at 8:30 the Alemite Field had an inch of mud on it. You know the rest.

And here's something out of the ordinary. A running enthusiast of the city who desires to remain anonymous has written this desk offering to put up a handsome silver trophy for a three-mile race between Mayor Frank Pollard and Bert Girling, the event to take place during Old Home Week. Apparently Girling is a distance runner of some repute for Hanner, stated, when hearing of the challenge that I will somewhat like to see in tighter vein he said with a broad smile in his face, "Why, I'd be dead at the end of a half mile." However the trophy does not seem to be quite sincere about the race and the matter stands at that.

The Commercial League squads do not see action again until Friday May 30 when the Whitten's Dairy team takes on Belleville Foundries, Ltd. If the sun decides to shine between now and then. On the same date Bourgeau's Garage, winners of their first game tangle with Dry Beverages.

Life Saving courses will be conducted under the auspices of the YMCA between June 15 and June 30. Ed Shortt announced the other day, qualifying both boys and girls and men and women as far as can be accommodated. Full Life Saving Awards, Elementary, Bronze Medallion and award of Merit Classes will be conducted at the Albert College pool.

There is still a need for volunteer umpires in the Kl-Y softball loop and those interested should leave their names with Ed Shortt. Also we are looking for the schedule of the Belleville Civil Service Club Baseball League.

Tops in track and field will be held at Albert College come Saturday next when the Bay of Quinte District of the COSSA hold forth, with practically all fifteen schools of the district participating. Brighton will hold their meet on Wednesday while this afternoon, if Ole Jupe Pluvius will please lay off, the COSSA is holding forth.

The Canadian Legion District Softball Association appears to be creating a lot of interest among the vets. Already Belleville, Madoc, Tweed and Stirling have entered. Belleville players who desire to turn out with the veterans squad are asked to get in touch with Mr. Nesbitt of the Canadian Legion here. Practices will be published in this column.

Maurice Richard, 'Montreal Canadiens' high-scoring right-winger is the 1946-47 winner of the Dr. David A. Hart Trophy, highest individual honor in hockey. Richard was a popular selection for the trophy, polling 42 points out of a possible 54, and was either the first or second choice of every one of the 18 selectors.

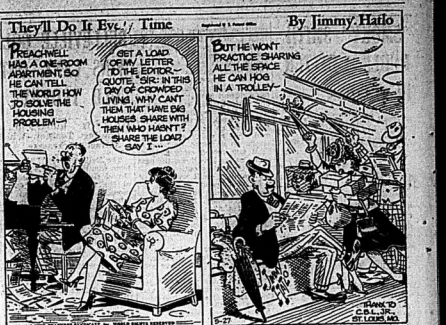
They'll Do It Ev'ry Time

By Jimmy Hatlo



This trophy was presented to the National Hockey League by Dr. David A. Hart in 1923 to be awarded annually to "the player adjudged to be most valuable to his team." Richard also receives $1,000 from the National Hockey League for winning the trophy.

The fleet French-Canadian scoring ace was the first choice of 12 of the 18 hockey writers, while the remaining six named him as their second selection. Each selector had three choices, and points were awarded on a three-two-one basis.

In second place was Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins' centre, who tabulated 28 points by way of four firsts, six seconds, and four thirds. Chicago's Max Bentley finished third in the voting with 13 points. Max had two firsts, two seconds, and two thirds. Two goal-keepers were tied for fourth place with seven points apiece. They were Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs and Charlie Rayner of New York Rangers.

Richard scored 45 points during the 1946-47 season to top all other players in the League in the goal-scoring department. He also had 26 assists during the regular schedule for a scoring total of 71 points, which left him one point back of the N.H.L. scoring champion, Max Bentley, who compiled 29 goals and 43 assists for 72 points. In ten playoff games this spring, Richard scored six goals and assisted in five others for a total of 11 points, and was the leading scorer in the Stanley Cup Series.

The Bay of Quinte Golf's President and Vice President matches, scheduled for tomorrow have been postponed one week due to inclement weather.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

BY SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The laws of bridge are musts. You are not permitted to disobey the laws. At least not if you play the game according to procedure prescribed by the accepted code.

The rules in a bidding system, on the other hand, are optional. They are merely the advices of a prejudiced expert. If you do not care to follow a bidding system, that is your privilege.

For instance, law says you must follow suit when able. There is a legal penalty if you fail to do so. Also, a player who takes a trick in the one suit must lead the next trick. It is the law.

On the other hand, some systems have a rule that a takeout to a new suit forces partner to bid. He doesn't. There is no bridge law that says he must. If he desires, he may pass.

Here is the wail of a letter: "My partner opened with two clubs and I passed with this hand:"

♠ J 7 4 3
♥ 9 8 5 4
♦ 7 6 2
♣ 8 5 4

Continues the letter: "The opponents said it was forcing to game and demanded that we keep bidding to game. We did not care to go any higher, but they insisted.

This pair does not have to reach a game or any higher contract. No bridge law compels them to. Nor can opponents compel them to. To follow a bidding system is optional.

An opening of two in a suit is a forcing-to-game signal most good systems recommend. It is good advice by its authors. It is a good rule to follow. But it is not a law of bridge.

A player opened a two-bid with insufficient values. His partner responded with two no-trump and opener passed. This kind of bridge does not indicate partnership confidence. But it is legal.

The law does not compel you to keep open a forcing bid. But it is a good idea. Partner is likely to knock your block off.

Barrie Says Bride Gave Him a Note For $15,000

Toronto, May 27 — (CP)—The Globe and Mail said today in a newspaper story that Christina Barrie of suburban Mimico told police that Christina Kettlewell gave him a note for $15,000 Tuesday, the day she lost life by drowning near Severn Falls, 100 miles north of here.

Barrie is said to have told police that Christina gave him a note for $15,000 on the day she lost her life," the Globe and Mail said. "His statement to police for having the note was that he had advanced her sums of money from time to time to pay persons who were blackmailing her.

The note now is in the possession of police and the signature is being checked to determine whether it is genuine or a forgery.

"Appeal court criticism during review of the Dick case of police procedure in holding suspects on vagrancy charges or on suspicion is a factor in reluctance of the police to lay any charges until they complete the pattern of the case."

(Mrs. John Dick, sentenced to be hanged for the torso slaying of her husband, was granted a new trial by Ontario Court of Appeal. She was acquitted on retrial and the Crown is appealing the acquittal.)

Olympic Aspirants Briefed On Do's, Don'ts of Amateurism

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 27 — (CP) — Don't be ensnared by money or "material advantages," steer clear of padded expense accounts and above all, beware of dope and artificial stimulants.

Those are some of the P's and Q's of amateurism laid down for aspirants to Canada's 1948 Olympic team as they undergo last-minute briefings before sitting off on the trail they hope will end in London next year.

Mindful of the storm that broke around Barbara Ann Scott's blonde head when the world's figure skating queen accepted an automobile from her native city of Ottawa, the Canadian Olympic Association has issued a bulletin warning amateurs of the professional lobbyers and pitfalls that imperil them.

The circular lists the 10 commandments of the International Olympic Committee, ranging from the one vetoing money or presents of a material character to the rather curious one on "doping of athletes."

That rule warns gravely against use of "drugs or artificial stimulants of any kind."

Other rules explain that an amateur may receive expense money up to $1 (about $3.64 daily, not including cost of transportation, and up to three shillings daily in "pocket money" to pay for laundry, streetcar tickets and the like.

Number 10 in the list apparently answers the questions worrying some amateurs who wonder about shoes for the baby while they are away at the Olympics. The provision permits payment of indemnity to an athlete's wife, mother or father, if he is "sole support of his family," such payment is to be made "as a very special exception, after individual inquiry, and in the form of a payment direct to his employer."

CHAPTER 23

"Okay, Miss Lindi Tomorrow is Saturday and I don't have to go to the office. If we start now we can make it in time to be married Saturday evening. It's a date!"

Cherry giggled her little girl giggle: "Won't everybody be surprised! I don't want any rice or feathers. Just a license and a preacher, and nobody will know a thing about it all over. I'll leave a note for April, She'd love it that way, because she would! I—it's so much I know she wouldn't! It—it's much more romantic don't you think?"

Cherry babbled breathlessly.

Pat kissed her again: "It sounds plenty romantic for me, Sugar. Let's go!"

Cherry jumped from his lap! "I'll throw some things in a bag and be back in a minute."

"I'll have a drop by my room for a bag too." Pat got up, still unable to believe it could be true. "Hurry darling, before you change your mind."

"Never," Cherry called back over her shoulder at the door, "I've hooked for life, Mister Hastings."

In time some again to Douglaston and found April still in bed, but in her head were a song that had not been there on that day's year before when she had flown back from Reno.

With Hill living across the street, coming to see her and sending flowers and telephoning it was almost like living their first young romance over again.

At least it was to April who believed with never a wavering of the deep faith that she would walk again, and that some day not far distant she and Hill would repeat their marriage vows. Her patience was amazing to Gay and Curt and all those who loved her.

Hill devoted every minute possible to sitting beside April. He would hold her blue and gold room, and all the rest of his waking hours on the golf school where he worked feverishly to make it the success he had wanted. Dr. Malcolm was amazed at what Hill had accomplished in such a short time. The club opened the first of May and was filled almost to capacity a month later.

It had been necessary for Hill to find twelve assistants to help him with teaching. It seemed that every golfer in Manhattan wanted the opportunity to say he had been taught his favorite game by Kent Hillyer.

When Hill came to April exhausted at the end of a long day he had her scared with happiness. Every line in his tired face made her proud, because she knew that it meant her beloved was doing it all for her, and for his son and that her burdens were at last on his strong young shoulders.

April would read over her fan mail which still came in from those who missed her voice on the air, with a deep yearing to be back in her career when she was well. She had decided that she would leave it entirely up to Hill as to whether she would be Mrs. Hillyer of Doug just plain Mrs. Hillyer of Douglaston, or April Lind, the radio star.

Kenny was in seventh heaven at his father's golf club. Every day when he was not in school, and often after school in the afternoon Hill would come and get Kenny and take him out to take his golf lessons and play around his golf lessons and play around the course. Malcolm called the child the mascot, and told Kenny he brought luck. Hill had really believed that his son showed signs of being a genius, and in another year expected him to be a sensational golf prodigy if his interest continued to grow.

When Kenny swung a club and yelled "fore" Hill wore a proud, paternal smile that would have made April's heart leap with joy if she could have seen the look of comraderie that existed between father and son. After Kenny sent a ball sailing through the air he would yell:

"Hill! Was that Daddy? Am I going to be a champ like you?"

Hill would pat the small back and tell him if he worked hard he not only would be champion but that the sign over the golf school would read "Kent Hillyer and Son," some day after he finished college.

One evening late in June Dr. Malcolm called to see April and told her he had decided it was time she went into the Channing Hospital for a checkup. If convenient he wanted to send an ambulance for her next morning.

They discussed the case, and make their tests and find out exactly what condition her right leg was in. He wanted her to remain in the hospital for a week. Dr. Malcolm felt it was time to begin a program of April Hillyer exercises for her left certain she would have to be told. That she would not walk again.

The elderly man looked at the young woman lying so patiently among her pillows, and there was a look on her pale face that he could not bear to erase. A happiness in — that was astonishing to the medical man who he took into consideration that her mother had been entirely helpless for six months.

Dr. Malcolm lost his courage which to prepare April for life in a wheel chair instead he patted unsteadily, taking her hand:

"Tell me, my dear, where did you inherit all your patience and fortitude? Were it in your place I'm afraid I'd bite your head off if you came to me and told me that I had to go back into the hospital for a week. You look positively angelic."

April smiled, holding the older man's hand tightly:

"I am happy. Happier than I have ever been in my life—almost. Would you really like to know why?"

"It would most certainly be interesting to a crabby old man," the doctor chuckled, "to have your recipe for being able to take it, child."

"It's because," April confided, "of the way all this has changed my husband's life. Of the way he's settled down to work and take care of us! He's working day and night. I'm so proud of him!"

"I ought to know about that, Dr. Malcolm chuckled again. "Because I happen to be his partner!"

April said astounded:

"You! Why I didn't know that ever happen! No wonder Hill has been so secretive about his backer."

Dr. Malcolm told April briefly of the day Hill came to the hospital with the money to pay her bill and how he found out the former champion was interested in opening a golf school and offered him the latter estate.

A gift of gratitude gathered in April's eyes.

"How nice," she smiled, "to know that you ate responsible for the fact that as soon as I walk again Hill and I are going to be remarried. Doesn't it make you feel like cupid?"

Dr. Malcolm said urgently:

"Why wait until you can walk? That may take a little time. Your husband believes you are his family instead of in a little room across the street, waiting his heart because he isn't with his family. You take my advice, child. Don't be so hard on him."

April shook her head swiftly: "No, I'm not going to be a bride until I can be the sort of wife Hill needs and deserves. So it's up to you to get this cast off my leg, so we can get to the altar. Oh, I know you think I might not walk. But I will. I don't know how I know, but I've never doubted it. I'll walk, you'll see!"

Dr. Malcolm left quickly, because he could not bear the blind faith of the young woman with the wide, happy gray eyes and the small eager face.

That evening things were taking place at Pennyhaven that April was to hear about with great relief and happiness.

Gay had become so much a part of the peaceful, charming life at Pennyhaven that sometimes it seemed to her she must have been there all her life.

Curt came home more frequently to dine, and the domestic rang with the laughter of Penny and her father and the companion who seemed not at all a part member of the family but some one they could not do without.

Penny had gained several pounds and her cheeks were pink with good health and happiness. Gay had decided it was unfair to leave the bread on Penny's teeth any longer if they could be removed and the dentist had taken them off. To their delight the crookedness had been corrected and the small teeth were straight and shining.

But nothing had given Penny quite the happiness that she got from her black, shimmering pink. Gay did not believe the average child of seven should be permitted to have a permanent wave, but since Penny yearned so deeply to get some curls for a party and Gay felt it would do much to help Penny with her shyness by bolstering her ego, she took the child to her hair and had her hair waved.

With the addition of frilly dresses in the colors Penny loved, a new girl took the place of the plain little shy one that had lived at Pennyhaven and hated going away from it even for a few hours. Penny's chin raised a little and she lost the habit of shuffling and chattering pride that told any small well dressed child she met that she dressed she didn't look so bad herself.

It hadn't been easy for Curt De Witt to give up the idea that April and Gay would marry him. It hadn't been for Gay's tact and sympathy and comprehension he might have been a great deal harder. Gradually the hurt began to ease and he told himself that it was all for the best that April was to remarry her husband. Since she loved him, and Hill loved her, a parity marriage to anyone else would cause too much unhappiness all around.

Since Kenny's happiness depended upon them both, the child was much better off without a stepfather. It was Gay who had helped Curt over the most difficult times. Coming home to see Penny or April of Hill and Kenny had given him a new lease on life. He had always regretted that he could not give all his money, he could not give the little girl the one thing she wanted above her happy; some one who would be a real mother to her.

Penny seemed to have found in Gay's companionship everything to fill that end. Gay too thrived on life at Pennyhaven and grew more beautiful than ever as the pleasantly exciting days were on.

One evening when Penny waved goodbye to Gay and her father as they were going to the movies, she was suddenly smitten with a wonderful idea. Suppose her father and Miss Lorraine fell in love! If they did, and got married, that would make Miss Lorraine her mother.

Joint Meeting Of Teachers Held in Picton

A joint meeting of the Women Teachers' Association and the Men Teachers' Association was held in the form of a banquet at the Globe Hotel, Picton, on Thursday evening with about 90 in attendance.

The tables were very festive with vases of snapdragons, and carnations. After a sumptuous repast, the following program was enjoyed.

The President of the Prince Edward County W.T.A., Miss Vera Pyne, expressed a cordial welcome to all, and briefly outlined duties as members of the Professional Association.

Miss Barbara Mikel, Consecon, favored with two piano solos, "Sunrise Serenade" and "Missouri Waltz."

Dr. P. A. Scott, and nurses, Misses Drexler, Small and Dickie from the Public Health Unit, were in attendance. Dr. Scott gave a brief resume of his work. Of the 650 pupils examined in Grades 1 and 7, there were found to be over 1,000 defects, not including dental attention. Only 70 pupils were considered to be in good health.

Mr. A. F. Brown I.P.S., said there are 38 married women and 24 unmarried women teaching in the townships of the county, and expressed his view that if all the married women stopped teaching, the teacher shortage would be drastic. In closing, in regard to the salary question, he gave credit to the Teachers' Associations for helping to raise the salaries. Know what you are worth, and be worth more than you get.

Mr. Stanley Hawthorne, Madoc, favored with a piano solo, "Clare de Lune" and a vocal solo "Sunrise and You."

Guest Speaker

Miss Vera Pyne, introduced the guest speaker, Col. S. J. Watson, Assistant Superintendent of Elementary Education. He is a native of Orillia and began his career as a rural teacher, rising to Principal, Inspector, Master of Normal School, Principal of a Normal School and finally as Assistant Superintendent of Elementary Education. He served in two world wars. He worked with Mr. Thornton Mustard helping to prepare the present course used in the schools, so his interests are centred around curriculum and text books.

Col. Watson said, "that as teachers, it is necessary for us to stand back and take a look at ourselves and ask what we are doing. We must make sure that we are really aware that education is not solely concerned with the imparting of information or the development of skills. It is part of our job to transmit to the pupils—ideas. But if we communicate ideas to the pupils, and have them handle them properly, it is necessary for us to understand how the children think and what their processes of thinking are for they rationalize the world about them just as adults do. A 5-year-old child once said to his father, "why don't you stay home from work until your money's all gone?" This was indicative of a child trying to understand an adult conversation.

Must Become Familiar

"It is our job to become intimately familiar with methods of children's thinking. In the course of teaching, they should be given an opportunity to express their ideas, not be inhibited and repressed. A democratic approach can be developed. Our main job is the development of individuals who will be able to conduct themselves with profit to themselves in a democratic society and a democratic world."

"There is a certainty of change and so pupils have to be taught to meet new situations when they arise. There is the field of co-operation, bargaining, compromise, and exploitation. None of us live quite on any one level, all the time."

"The policy of the Department of Education is not to direct but to co-operate with us. So it is built on democratic principles. Education does not take place in the Department of Education but in our classrooms," he concluded.

Mrs. Meda Hart, 1st Vice President of Prince Edward County W.T.A. expressed a cordial vote of thanks to Col. Watson for his interesting and inspiring address.

Mrs. Ronald Giles then favored with a solo "Bluebird of Happiness" which was very much enjoyed. The program closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Death Sentence Banned in Russia

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, May 27 — (AP) — Principal newspapers of the Soviet Union devoted their front-page editorials today to the abolition of the death sentence in Russia, a move which some Russians took to indicate that neither the U.S.S.R. nor the rest of the world are threatened by war.

For the same crimes that culprits have hitherto received capital punishment, Russia will henceforth mete out 25 years in labor camps. The death penalty has been inflicted chiefly in cases of persons convicted of offences against the national security.

The editorial in Pravda was signed by Deputy Foreign Minister A. Y. Vishinsky, who stressed the belief that there was no universal threat to peace.

"The presidium of the Supreme Soviet," said Vishinsky, "in taking the decision banning the death sentence, took into consideration the international situation."

'COURTESY UNLIMITED'

Niagara Falls, May 27 — (CP) — Niagara Falls will launch its courtesy campaign Saturday with the slogan "Courtesy Unlimited", designed a good-will gesture toward tourists the campaign will last through June.

Freshmen of hemisphere defence seem to lie heavily upon the shoulders of General A. G. L. McNaughton (left) chairman of the Canadian section of the U.S.-Canada Joint Board of Defence, and Pinnello P. LaGuardia, mayor of the U.S.'s second city. They are shown at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. In centre is Major-Gen. Guy V. Henry, senior U.S. member of the board. President Truman yesterday asked Congress to form a joint defence board with the countries of western hemisphere countries and stressed particularly the importance of co-operation between the U.S. and Canada.

Canada's Jobless Decreased By 40,000 in Last Month

Ottawa, May 27 (CP)—Under the impetus of a steady seasonal upswing in employment, Canada's jobless decreased by 40,000 to 142,000 during the last month while unfilled jobs in the Dominion jumped 15,000 to a total of 26,000 open positions at May 15.

In its monthly report on the Canadian manpower picture today the Labor Department said the 15,000 increase in open jobs did not reflect the normal seasonal advance and that "the late spring accounts for the sluggishness". One year ago vacancies totalled 115,000.

The department said the major seasonal industries — agriculture, mining and construction — each faced a heavy program and despite unfavorable weather which held back operations, unemployment registered with the National Employment Service at May 15 totalled 142,000 compared with 183,000 at April 15 and 234,000 a year ago. Unplaced males numbered 109,000, a decline of 37,000 and jobless females totalled 33,000, a drop of 3,000.

The decrease of unemployed was greatest in Ontario and the prairie provinces.

Of the jobs available, 59,000 were for men and 39,000 were for women at May 15 compared with 44,000 and 39,000 respectively at April 15.

The department reported that preparations to combat the farm labor shortage expected this year are well underway with regional harvesting committees planned. The log drive started much later this year because of the late spring but the construction industry was surging ahead with work on its current industrial and commercial contracts.

26,000 In Maritimes

In the Maritime region there were 26,000 unplaced applicants and 4,000 unfilled vacancies at May 15.

In the Quebec region there were 61,000 unplaced applicants and 24,000 unfilled vacancies but industrial activity was rising steadily and showed considerable advance over the level of a year ago.

Ontario has 23,000 unplaced applicants and 47,000 unfilled vacancies at May 15 and the growing labor demand and shortening supply of all types of workers reflected a rising tempo of production in the province. Heavy backlogs of orders in every branch of manufacturing promised capacity production except where material shortages formed bottlenecks. Demand for skilled bricklayers, plasterers and plumbers far exceeds supply.

In the prairie region there were 24,000 unplaced applicants and 16,000 unfilled jobs.

In the Pacific region unemployed totalled 18,000 with 7,000 jobs open.

ALL-CANADIAN COURSE

YOUNG PATIENT HAS ROYAL VISITOR

Bracken Criticizes Ban On Sale Farm Products To American Markets

Ottawa, May 28 (CP)—A suggestion that Canada ease the ban on sale of farm products to the United States as a method of improving her U.S. dollar position was made by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, in the Commons last night.

Speaking in the budget debate, Mr. Bracken criticized the embargo, and said Canada could not afford to continue selling wheat at $1 less than the world price. Europe had always been the chief market for Canada's surplus products, he said, but immediately there was talk of "getting back to less-dollar, or unrestricted, with loans." The U.S. was planning to re-establish Europe as a factor in peace, but it was "not tying one hand between its back as it is asked to tie the other to its side."

"What are we doing, if it is good policy to help Great Britain or other parts of Europe by turning over our wheat at a dollar less than the world price, to the United States which should be doing it, and not us. We aren't asking the United States to do it indefinitely.

"And yet we embargo the sale of our farm products to the United States. If we let our farm products or a larger portion of them were sold to that country they would collect United States dollars now so badly needed—here and they would, in addition, help to a large measure of equity to our agricultural industry.

"As a matter of fact if our farm products were allowed the benefit of world market prices, our United States dollar difficulty would be very considerably less-ened."

'When Can I Start School?' First Question of Newcomer

Toronto, May 28 (CP)— The first thing big-eyed 10-year-old Ziel Freidman wanted to know when she arrived at Union Station here last night after a long journey from a German internment camp in Poland, was "when can I start school?"

One of six Jewish displaced persons who arrived in Halifax a few days ago on the Canadian Pacific liner Beaverbrae, fired two other questions immediately afterwards: "Where is my aunt?" and "is it true there's going to be another war?"

She was handed over to relatives and the first questions she answered minutes later when she was asked to find "a nice little Canadian bed."

Willi Frey Subdued When Time Came

Landsberg, Germany, May 28— (AP) — Willi Frey, 23, who was a guard at Mauthausen concentration camp, told jailers that he was going to sing "Give Me Five Minutes More" and "Open the Door, Richard" as he marched the last mile to the death house this morning.

When the time came to go, however, he was completely subdued. His final words, delivered slowly, haltingly and without bravado were:

"I am praying like Jesus on the cross. I am dying without fault. Father forgive them."

BUDGET DEBATE ENDS WITH GOVT. BEING SUSTAINED

Non-ConfidenceMotions Advanced by C.C.F., Conservatives Lost By Fair Majority

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 28 (CP)—The government survived a united opposition twice in the Commons last night to defeat C.C.F. and Progressive Conservative motions of non-confidence and bring the lengthy budget debate to a weary halt.

The first motion turned aside was that of the C.C.F.—defeated 109 to 91—which criticized the government's failure to provide the basic income tax exemptions recommended by Dr. Clark, who do not earn enough to pay income taxes. It was supported by the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties.

Then the House turned to the Progressive Conservative motion, backed by the C.C.F. and Social Credit groups, and defeated it by virtually the same vote—109 to 90. This criticized the administration's "failure to implement by direct and hidden taxes, to encourage the development of natural resources, as agreed upon at the Dominion-Provincial conference.

Both motions were in the form of amendments to the main motion, later adopted without a formal vote, to go into committee on the resolutions preliminary to the bills which will implement the budget proposals. Under House rules, the Social Credit party was prevented from moving a motion of its own.

Urged to Mop Up

As the long debate drew to a close, John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, launched an attack on Communists and urged the government to "mop up" Communism in Canada.

"Surely it is mainly needed now," he said, "is to let the communists show up in the light of day nevertheless-if-really, that way, so that we are convinced that they are not entitled to their own type of economy, so long as they desire it, but that they are in fact a silent underground activities in this country, and that we propose to send their agents back home wherever we can root them out."

He also announced that his party would support the C. C. F. motion because its proposed basic taxation reductions were "inadequate" and "unfair" and gave relief only to those who were "reasonably well off."

Claims Opposition 'Hard Put'

Finance Minister Abbott, speaking briefly, said the opposition had been "hard put" to find any effective criticism of the budget proposals and added that his answer to criticisms now would be given in committee stage.

Mr. Abbott said Hon. External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said he hoped parliament would approve legislation at this session to conserve fisheries in the seas off Canada's coasts.

Boy Admits Slaying Children Because of Urge to Kill

Lapeer, Mich., May 28 (AP)— The fantastic story of a 16-year-old farm youth who admitted killing four playmates "because I wondered what it would feel like to put a bullet through a human being" was scheduled for court hearing today.

Oliver Terpening, Jr., a slim, stolid youth, is charged with the flower patch murder Monday of 16-year-old Barbara Smith, his farm neighbor at Imlay City, about 20 miles from here.

State Police Commission Don S. Leonard said the boy also admitted killing Stanley Smith, her 14-year-old brother and his best chum, and her sisters Gladys, 12, and Janet 5.

Complete bewilderment over the hand slaying came yesterday from the youth himself, his father, parents of the victims and even the medical examiner who questioned him.

"I don't know: I just don't know why I did it," Leonard quoted Oliver as saying, and Dr. LeMoyne Snyder, State Police crime medical expert who questioned him could add only that the youngster "I wish to God I knew what was wrong with him."

In composed, courteous tones, Oliver told the story of the killings to police officers.

The officer said he related calmly how he shot Stanley with the .22 calibre rifle he had been using to shoot frogs. A few minutes later he shot Janet it on the three girls as they picked flowers, shooting the last girl older because "she was old enough to talk," the officer quoted him as saying.

Oliver faltered and dropped his dark, close-cropped head in his hands when Leonard asked him if he had anything to say in behalf of his 'girl friend,' Barbara, and her brother and two sisters.

"No I never was in love with her again," young Terpening said with tears in his eyes. "I would be afraid to face their family."

William B. Smith, 67-year-old father of the young victims, said he bore no "hatred" for the boy accused of taking his children's lives.

"I never hated any man in my life," he said. "I don't hate Oliver, or his family. That's the way I was always been. But in these United States there must be some justice—justice for my children; justice for other children."

A 19-year-old sister, Ella May found the bodies of the three girls together, and that of Stanley, about 100 feet away.

Leonard and Terpening told of going home anytime at shootings and eating a meal of mashed potatoes and ham that "went down pretty hard."

Taking the family automobile, Terpening drove to Port Huron, where he abandoned it. He then hitch-hiked through Detroit, sleeping in a gas station on a highway near the Ohio State line.

The youth, penniless and dressed in the plaid shirt in which he left home, caught a ride this morning with Norman Dombrowski, an Erie, Mich., farmer.

When Terpening told Dombrowski he was headed for "any place" the farmer drove to the Monroe County Division, office of Justice R. O. Stevens, who summoned constables to arrest the hitchhiking youth.

Terpening was stolid and disinterested in the road to the justice's statement, but later dropped his head into his hands as tears rolled down his cheeks.

The youth was described by his father, Peter, as a "problem child" who quit the 11th grade of Imlay City High School and ran away from home and ran away to Louisiana. His father sent money for his return.

After Stanley was shot, Leonard said, Oliver "walked back and forth" of the head. Barbara looked around and he shot her. Then he shot Barbara, three times I don't know why. Janet was old enough to talk so I shot her."

ANOTHER RISE OF FLOOD WATERS IS PREDICTED

Worst Spring Floods in 71 Years Being Experienced in Gatineau Country

The worst spring floods in 71 years held Quebec's Gatineau country and parts of the Ottawa Valley in their grip Wednesday and spread to new centres, cutting power and industrial production, forcing hundreds from their homes and threatening some settlements with complete isolation.

Waters of the high, major flooding rivers — the Ottawa and the Gatineau — reached a new peak and one of not more than a few inches in the last 24 hours but indications were the peak had not yet been reached. A U.S. Weather Bureauman could predict with more rain from overcast skies.

More than 1,000 persons already have evacuated their homes at the flooded Gatineau River town of Maniwaki, Que., and Mayor J. C. Nadon has appealed for power to remove in anticipation of higher water. The train was three hours late Tuesday night as the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific and fear was expressed it might not be able to get supplies through to the town already almost entirely cut off from the south. Special mills have been forced to close there and 90 employees are idle.

The 60-foot Gatineau River, 25 miles north of Maniwaki and holding 24,000,000 cubic feet more of water, has overflowed and the runoff from it has been increased to 50,000 cubic feet a second. Officials said this might increase the flood waters in the town another foot.

Many Flood Hardships

From all along the Gatineau and Ottawa Rivers come reports of flood hardship. Ten families have evacuated at Farrellton, Que., and some school children were unable to reach classes. Householders are using skiffs to ferry their furniture to safety.

Hundreds of cellars have been flooded, causing damage to furnaces, coal and other supplies.

Many roads are impassable and bridges have been washed out.

Power companies have been hard hit. Gatineau Power Company's plant at Farmers Rapids, Que., has been shut down and the company's Chelsea plant, which supplies Ottawa, is operating at reduced capacity.

Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario has had to shut down its Chenaux plant, which supplies Pembroke, Ont., and the Ontario Paper Company has had to close down its plant at Thorold, Ont.

WOMAN SAYS RING WAS BORROWED FOR CEREMONY

Police Are Reported Probing Disappearance of Ring Said to be Worth $1,000

Toronto, May 28 (CP)—Investigation of Christina Kettleswell's death by drowning nine years ago in Cherrystone Inlet now centres on the strange circumstances surrounding her second-hand marriage to Jack Kettleswell one year later.

And while they were endeavoring to unravel the part of the mystery shrouded case, a woman who claims she was a witness at that wedding has said in an affidavit that a ring had been borrowed for the ceremony from Mrs. Emma Gardner—Christina had neither an engagement ring nor a wedding ring of her own when she married Kettleswell, Mrs. Mimico. Meanwhile police were checking on the whereabouts and appearance of a ring worth $1,000 said to be in the possession of Ronald Barrie, bosom friend of Kettleswell and best man at the wedding.

Barrie also is reported to have purchased a diamond ring from the bride's trousseau.

On the corner of the summer cottage near Orrills and went with the bride and groom. Jack Kettleswell, 29, and Barrie, resort area a few days before the girl's body was found in the seven River a we-k ago yesterday. Both men have been arrested, for a dazed condition by Barrie from the cottage which burned to the ground shortly afterward.

Provincial Provincial Police were said to be checking thoroughly all angles of the strange case but have had nothing to divulge officially. They have a lengthy statement made by Barrie but his contents have not been revealed.

"Nothing to say," was the word from Inspector Albert Ward of the C.I.B. in charge of investigation Bureau here, in charge of the investigation. It is understood the Barrie statement would be released and when he replied to Ward that it wasn't left in the case. Our investigation is not yet been completed."

DIONNE QUINTS ARE CELEBRATING 13TH BIRTHDAY

Appear More-Serious Minded Than Girls Of Own Age, School, Music Chief Interests

Callander, Ont., May 28 (CP)— They're smart but not sportminded, they're neatly dressed but not clothes conscious—that's the Dionne quintuplets in a nutshell as they celebrate their 13th birthday at their palatial home near here today.

As the healthy sisters excitedly opened their gifts they bore little resemblance to the five identifiden infants born in a humble northland farm house across the road on a sunny May morning in 1934, when Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, Marie, Yvonne and Emilie defied medical science because they lived.

Disclosures from the Nuns who teach the quintuplets, cloistered parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, and Dr. Dafoe reveal the Quints indulge in popular games like any girls their age, "except for."

The sisters appear more serious-minded than most girls of their age and school work and music are their chief interests. Mr. Dionne, the one woman the Quints can't swim because they have never had the opportunity to learn. He's considering construction of a private swimming pool on the grounds.

Like to be Neat, Clean

The Quints like to be neat and clean but have no great desire for fine clothes. They're different in the girls "have not much vanity."

The girls have finished their sixth grade in school and in June, 1948, they will write Dafoe's state entrance examinations. Rev. Sister Superior Angela, in charge of their education, gave the Quints a holiday from school today to watch the birthday festivities from their mother and father, Oliva and Elzire.

Tomorrow is another day and the girls are back at their studies, including mathematics and French in the morning and science and English in the afternoon. The Nuns believe that the girls are more exceptional in English as any other French-Canadian children of their age.

All five girls have a keen appreciation of music and are becoming accomplished pianists. They also have exceptional musical ability well and don't seem to mind practising.

Have Not Given Thought

As to their futures, Mr. Dionne thinks the quints "would regard it as a crime" to separate them. I'm afraid it would worry them for the time being," he stated recently. He doesn't think they've given much thought to the matter "but they will be free to choose their own future."

For a time the nuns feared the quints might reason "as a block" but recently each has developed an individual personality which acts differently and react differently.

Cecile has the most initiative, for one thing she has grown up as a "little lady" and is anxious to make a good impression.

Bevin Wins Vote Of Confidence On Foreign Affairs

Resolution on Reviewing Military Plans Rejected

Margate, England, May 28 (CP) —Foreign Secretary Bevin won a vote of confidence from Britain's ruling Labor Party by more than two to one in a preliminary skirmish on foreign affairs at the party's annual conference today.

The delegates voted 2,357,000 to 1,109,000 for rejection of a composite resolution calling for a "review of our military commitments and the distribution and organization of the armed forces to see that they may be reduced considerably below the government's target for March, 1948."

Delegates acted on a representational ballot—voting the full membership of their individual local organizations.)

The government also won a victory on its proposals to reconcile planning and manpower distribution for coping with the country's current economic crisis.

Resolutions supported by the party's National Executive were given almost unanimous approval, while those disapproving of the executive were defeated or withdrawn.

The debate on economic planning was highlighted by addresses of two high government leaders who indicated that Britain did not intend to seek another loan from the United States.

Deputy Minister Herbert Morrison warned against piling up "the burden of debt which only we can close the gap between our exports and imports."

Morrison also expressed hope that Britain soon would conclude a mutually beneficial trade agreement with the Russians.

At the same time he intimated that Britain does not want another American loan.

"We cannot live indefinitely on overdrafts without heading into an economic and financial smash," he declared. "By piling up of these obligations, we added would damage the workers and ourselves," he said.

He said he hoped for a British-Russian trade agreement to promote "better feeling and better understanding between the countries."

"Nowadays we hear a great deal about the differences between ourselves and the "Russians" Morrison said. "But we have a bad thing to remember some of the likenesses between their economic position and ours.

Methods Will Stand Up

"Though our problem is easier, our method will be much shorter, and I believe our Democratic methods will end standing up to the comparison with totalitarian systems."

Benelux is another British-Soviet-trade discussions in Moscow several weeks ago were "promising," Morrison said.

Opening a decote on manpower and economic planning, the Deputy Premier told Britain's workers they would have to work harder without wage increases to save the country from bankruptcy.

Britain's No. 1 Social Problem Is Housing

London, May 28 — (Reuters)— Today, more than two years after the final break in World War II, Britain's No. 1 social problem is housing, millions of men, women and children are still living in inadequate, sub-standard dwellings.

The recent acknowledgement by Health Minister Bevan that the government had to abandon the 1947 target of 240,000 completed houses was a stinging blow to the government. Bevan's reason now believe that another five years will elapse before the first post-war houses of a separate dwelling for every family is achieved.

After that, at least another 4,000,000 houses will have to be built under a long range rehousing and slum demolition plan before Britain's housing problem is well housed.

Before the war, except during the depression period, standards of living and home conditions improvements had been steadily rising. But the war building activity was negligible. Worse than that, it is estimated that 750,000 of the houses were needed to give every family a separate dwelling.

Britain's record building period was from 1927 to 1938, when 3,000,000 houses were built by 1,050,000 men engaged in building and civic engineering. Today approximately 1,350,000 men are engaged and at the end of March, were working on a total of 220,000 permanent and nearly 60,000 temporary homes.

Up to the end of 1946, 170,000 houses had been made ready for occupation by repair and renovation of houses damaged by war and 150,000 had been put into new homes.

Ile De France Being Refitted Again for Service

Saint Nazaire, France, May 28— (Reuters)—Work on the 44,000-ton liner Ile De France is being completed here and will be back in her place again sometime next year in the Le Havre dock. She was served as an Allied troopship for seven years and carried many Canadian troops.

The Ile De France built in 1928 at a cost of 240,000,000 francs, was then the biggest liner in the world.

Requisitioned by French military authorities at the outbreak of war she was at Singapore when the Japanese struck that town with Germany. The French officers and crew of the liner escaped and continue to fight alongside Britain.

In 1946 she was returned to the French authorities but until two months ago was used for transport for French troops and officials.

The reconstruction work involved is so considerable that the ship's entry yesterday from the proprietor of an appliances firm to a motor car dealer from a washing machine, presumably while everyone was out for tea.

Later two men entered the shop and offered a motor for $15. It seemed a good buy and was purchased.

The proprietor found the motor was the one dealer minus two men had disappeared.

For Want of a Face in City Clock Time is Unrecorded for Week; Did Pigeon Crash Upset Mechanism?

"For the want of a nail the shoe was lost; for the want of a shoe the horse was lost," and so on goes the old reader book rhyme.

It is not suggested that story has been re-enacted in connection with the city hall clock failing to register time, but it has been out of order now for more than a week and it is a case of "for want of a face the time was lost."

Clock custodian at the city hall, Mr. George Archer, reports that a lowly pigeon is responsible for the clock's inability to operate. It is believed that a pigeon crashed into the south face of the timepiece, cracking out a chunk of the clockface, putting out of gear the mechanism which controls the hands.

It seems that the clockface was more than background for the hands of the timepiece. As well as background the face serves the very useful purpose of supporting the hands and when a central portion of the face broke out the operating mechanism was permitted to drop out of place and the clock just does not work.

City residents miss the "bong, bong" from the historic rusty clock as it tolled off the hours and half hours. Countless times each day do residents sort of depended on the faithful timepiece to tell them when it was time for lunch or dinner.

To make things as before a new clock face is needed, plus a mass of scaffolding upon which the repairmen may stand while installing it.

Children Dare Train Crews And Endanger Own Lives

It may be sport for the youngsters of Belleville for one inexplicable reason why a locomotive engineer's hair turns prematurely grey.

Canadian Pacific Railway officials at the south station here have been called police asking the assistance of officers in the control of young boys who frequently dare train crewmen by standing on the tracks in front of the approaching train. The boys were stated to make the practice of standing on the tracks as long as possible and then step off the track just as the locomotive reached them. The practice was carried on mostly during the noon hour and after school.

Windows in the C.P.R. station were also smashed by stones over the holiday weekend, presumably by children throwing stones.

Court of Appeal Quashes Term Of Henry Harris

Toronto, May 28 — (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal yesterday allowed the appeal of Henry Harris, Toronto optometrist, and quashed his conviction in the espionage trials in which he had been sentenced to five years in penitentiary.

Harris had been convicted at Ottawa of conspiring to obtain passports for enemy agents and of perjury in connection with the attempt to obtain the passports.

Yesterday's decision means that of the 18 originally accused in the espionage cases following the report of a Royal Commission in February, 1946, nine have been acquitted; six have been sentenced to prison terms; one has been fined; one is awaiting outcome of an appeal, and one is awaiting trial on perjury charges.

Mr. Justice Roy and Mr. Justice Bissonnette recently left Ottawa last night by Governor James Forward on receipt of a court order.

In the Harris case John J. Robinette, K.C., Crown counsel, contended that while the actions of Harris were innocent enough they had to be considered in light of the whole picture, whereas they became suspected. He mentioned Harris' visits to Ottawa with Sam Carr, former organizer of the Labor-Progressive party, who long has been sought on a federal subpoena in connection with the espionage cases.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson remarked: "You must have some real evidence that he did something. Evidence of this kind is not evidence against any individual unless he is already linked in the circle. There has to evidence that he was connected with the obtaining of documents."

'Lucky if We Produce 75% Crop of Grain' Says Hon. T.L. Kennedy

Toronto, May 28 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy said in an interview here today that Ontario would not be able to meet grain commitments for overseas shipments despite an expenditure by the farmers of some $5,000,000.

"We will be lucky if we produce a 75 per cent crop, which means that it will be up to 50 per cent less than our commitments" he said. He recalled that at a provincial conference with Federal authorities, Ontario had agreed to increase grain production by 25 per cent to help meet the demand to feed Europe's starving peoples.

"Never in my time as Minister have I seen the situation so serious," he said. All grain now was needed for feed and across Canada farmers were scraping the bottoms of the bins.

"It is an old farmers' trick to keep grain in the bins," that was not the case this year when they were hoping the crop would be sufficient to cover the bottom of the bins.

He said that the weather was 100 per cent to blame and that the condition was world-wide.

U.S. Stands Firm For No Veto On Atomic Control

Lake Success, May 28 —(AP)—The question of the veto became an issue again in United Nations debate today as the United States prepared to oppose a Russian resolution which would make the Security Council the seat of authority for all organs created for international control of atomic energy.

Frederick E. Osborn, deputy American delegate to the Atomic Energy Commission, planned to argue against the Soviet resolution at a closed meeting of the working committee.

American sources said he based this stand on the ground that the Soviet resolution would make decisions on atomic control subject to veto by vesting final power in the council, where Russia and the other major powers hold the power of veto.

The United States stands firm for "no veto" on atomic control, and Russia for the veto, the proposed atomic control agency would under the spyer of the council. This is one of the major differences dividing the whole program in the U.N.

The Soviet resolution was offered in conjunction with Canada and France, but there are indications that Canada and France might support an amendment sending the whole issue into line with American demands.

On another U.N. front, the subcommission on freedom of information and of the press rejected Russia's attempt to list a struggle against "remnants of Fascism" as one of the strongest among the objectives of the press.

The vote was 7-1, by V. M. Tomakin, Soviet Consul-General of New York, and former Tass editor, termed the proceedings "a mockery" and entered notice he would bring it up again. The group accepted a Philippines amendment which that delegation said was intended to tone down the "anti-Fascist phraseology" of the Russian declaration.

'Ignorance' About Canada in U.S. Appalling-Pearson

Ottawa, May 28 — (CP)—L. B. Pearson, Under-secretary of State for External Affairs, told the Commons External Affairs Committee yesterday the "ignorance" about Canada in the United States was "appalling."

Mr. Pearson, who formerly was Canadian Ambassador to Washington, said the situation was not helped much when the Canadian information service had only four men in the United States — two in New York and two in Washington — as compared with the large information services of other countries.

Giving the committee information about C.I.S. items in the departmental estimate, Mr Pearson said an educational institution or other community in the United States was as "well posted about Canada as we are about the United States." This was to an extent understandable in view of the size of the two countries.

But, said Mr. Pearson, Canada could expect "a little more."

Franz Von Papen Knocked Down By Former SS Man

Hamburg, May 28 (Reuters)—Franz Von Papen, Hitler's former diplomat who is serving an eight year labor camp sentence imposed by a denazification court was knocked down by a former S.S. man in the washing hall at the camp, the British News Service in Germany reported today.

The incident occurred May 21 and was revealed today by Papen's son, who is acting in the trial of Nazi industrialists in Nuremberg.

Papen's son stated that his 67-year-old father was suddenly attacked by the S.S. man, who hit and kicked his father several times causing severe bruises and a serious injury to one eye.

Papen was transferred to the camp hospital in a serious condition with internal injuries, Papen's son said.

Seaway World Aid "Immeasurably" Says Marshall

Washington, May 28 —(AP)—State Secretary Marshall testified today that competition of the St. Lawrence seaway would aid "immeasurably" in United States-Canadian defense of the North American continent.

Marshall appeared with former President Herbert Hoover and others before a Senate Foreign Relations sub-committee considering new legislation providing for the authorization of the $500,000,000 international development.

Marshall said four advantages of the project would:

"1. Enable us to build ocean-going war vessels in the relative security of inland waters;

"2. Create a vital new line to the industrial heart of the United States and Canada;

"3. Create a tremendous source of electric power in an area that does not have enough and would be comparable to that generated by TVA. (Tennessee Valley Authority), and in the Columbia and Colorado river systems;

"4. Provide this power with overall economic advantages."

Marshall, agreeing the idea of tolls to make the seaway self-liquidating, said:

"This is a time of financial retrenchment. Therefore it would good reasoning to include tolls so as to make the seaway self-liquidating."

Rival Jewish Groups Clash

Montreal, May 28 (CP)— Two rival Jewish groups, said to represent supporters of the Hagana Resistance Movement in Palestine and the Extremist Irgun Leumi, clashed at a meeting last night and one fist fight was reported.

The meeting, called by the Montreal United Jewish Refugee Organization which backs Irgun's right against the British administration in Palestine, was interrupted when a small group of men, said to be Hagana supporters, burst into the hall.

Irgun supporters attempted to drive out the group and two men were reported to have come to blows before order was restored.

The Hagana group distributed pamphlets entitled "Hagana — his is the resistance" and criticizing terrorist activities of the Irgunists, charging Jewish lives were being lost because of violence.

Purpose of the meeting was to hear an address by Max Seligman, Palestine lawyer who criticized Montreal Rabbis who, he said, had refused to open their halls to the meeting. He charged they were victims of "British propagandists or the Jewish agency."

Striking Workers Reject Offer

Toronto, May 28 —(CP)—Striking employees of the Moffat Stove Company by secret ballot, last night rejected a company offer to settle their seven-week-old strike. The offer was made after two weeks of negotiating at Queen's Park.

The company countered the union's demands for a 15½-cents-an-hour wage increase with an offer of three cents an hour and arbitration to settle the matter of further increases and other points of the dispute.

Murray Cotterill, public relations director of the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.), said the International union will not attempt to re-open negotiations as soon as possible.

According to the union the majority of the 650 striking employees are now working at other plants.

A company spokesman said "we are certainly surprised at the rejection of their settlement basis, in view of the fact that the terms of settlement appeared satisfactory to the union negotiators."

'Wife Swapping' Reported in B.C.

Victoria, May 28 — (CP)—Reports that "wife-swapping" prevailed in the new Doukhobor settlement at Hillers, 37 miles from Nanaimo near Vancouver Island's exclusive Qualicum Beach summer resort, caused little commotion at the legislative buildings here today.

"Swapping wives may be a moral offence, but it is not a legal offence," one high official of the Attorney General's Department said. "We have not heard of any wife-swapping among the island Doukhobors. If there is such a practice, it would give grounds for divorce — that is all."

The new community, made up of some 80 women, 60 men and 60 children, all live in large communal houses with the men sharing wives on a "rotation basis." They own 340 acres and first broke away from the "Sons of Freedom" sect near Nelson, B.C., last July.

Established by Michael Verigin, 70-year-old lineal descendant of Peter "the lordly" Verigin, it increases to four the number of Separate Doukhobor sects in Canada. The original sect, established in Western Canada in 1899, broke into three groups — Independent or Orthodox, named Doukhobors and the Sons of Freedom — early in the 20th Century over the question of communal ownership advocated by Peter the lordly.

The issue which caused the present break, however, was not polygamy, but education. The Sons of Freedom were against it, so the dissenters moved out as they said they desired to send their children to school "and become real Canadians."

Rev. Dr. James Faulds of Kingston was elected archivist of the conference.

Following the election of officers the 232 delegates were officially welcomed to Brockville by Mayor Percy Reynolds.

Rev. Mr. Beckel in his retiring message told his large audience that "one of the big problems of the United Church today is the lack of ministers to carry on the work of the church efficiently." He said that the church needed 400 ministers and pointed out that 109 pastoral charges of the United Church which were once served by married, ordained ministers were vacant and another 54 had lay supplies.

"Today I feel that every minister ought to become a recruiting officer for the ministry," he said.

Mr. Beckel finally made agreement to the suggestions he made that adjustments in the minister's income tax should be made. He stated that the Protestant clergy were being unwisely treated.

Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph

Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph this month celebrated a major milestone in its long record, the centennial of the Chronicle-Telegraph, itself the continuation of three parent publications. Through its descent from the Quebec Gazette the newspaper is the oldest of its kind surviving on this continent. Founded in 1764 it is in its one hundred and eighty-third year and the former Morning Chronicle now ranks its contemporial in the group of the hundred-year-old newspapers.

The history of the parent publications is an unbroken record of events in Canadian life, beginning a year after the Battle of the Plains of Abraham. The parent papers were bilingual until the first French language papers appeared in the Quebec community. In the first days of the Province of Canada it was an official Gazette of the Government and bore the royal coat-of-arms on the front page.

The Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph with its rich history has a personality all its own which manifest itself in its ideas, its dress and its devotion to the service of the public. It is one of the most influential newspapers and is respected for its editorial opinions.

Its honored place in Canadian journalism cannot be overemphasized.

Newspapers in Quebec City, the ancient capital, have seen vast developments since the first publication was published. Papers everywhere are in this same intimate touch with their time and movements of age after age which they record.

Birth Rates

Canada can still be referred to laughingly or satistically as a man's country," says the Halifax Spectator, noting that there are still more males in the country than females, 236,400 more by latest figures. But the lead is shrinking, Ottawa confirms.

The newspaper points to the opposite condition in the United States, where there are more than 200,000 females in excess of males.

Other interesting facts are revealed about the populations of different countries. It is noted that one authority says that America is growing older, stodgier and more womanly." In thirty-three years it says the United States is likely to see its peak population of 158,000,000. Of Great Britain it is said that she had now about 50,000,000 people and the peak is likely to be touched in the next seven years. Experts say it will decline from that point until on the turn of the century when it is thought the population will be a little over half what it is at present.

But, says the paper, "funny things happen with birth rates." That eases the anxiety any may feel.

Research

Research in this period of development is the natural consequence of the growth of science and of man's ability to take advantage of the advance of invention and science.

In the Ontario Research Commission report just issued it is stated that research is proving to be the basis on which sound progress is being made in the expansion of industry and in the development of natural resources. In this province the responsibility for research is assumed partly by the Government, and partly by industry, the Universities, the Ontario Research Foundation, and other agencies. At present there is a lack of trained personnel and facilities for research and hence any budget will have to be small in the beginning, increasing progressively as conditions permit. Nevertheless continuity in research is essential.

One of the fields to which attention is drawn because of the unusual importance of research is soils research. In this there is felt the need of a co-ordinated long-term programme. There are vital to agriculture.

Soil data are kepy factors. Immediate say what with the problems that press for extension of the knowledge of soils is necessward for solutions.

Soil fertility investigations are basic to other measures for storing the productivity of run-down or depleted arable lands. By means of correlated laboratory studies, pot cultures and field experiments, it is proposed to continue and expand the investigations of lime, fertilizers, manures, crop residues and other soil amendments for fertility, maintenance and crop production. The field of effort in research is unlimited in its opportunity and in the application to human comfort and benefit.

War Criminals Made to Pay

Operators of the concentration camp at Mauthausen have gone to the end of their infamous crimes, twenty-two being executed on Tuesday and twenty-seven more on Wednesday.

Theirs was no light crime, it was the most infamous with a record of extermination which lived up to the Nazi standard for more than 700,000 persons were there inhumanly treated and exterminated.

It is two years since the war with Germany closed, but the Allied memory of Nazi atrocities does not forget the infamous deeds that were done against innocent victims.

World Bank's First Loan

By coincidence the World Bank grants its first loan, one of $250,000,000 to France, on the same day Premier Paul Ramadier's dismissal of the five Communist members of his cabinet, will do more than any strictly political action to cut the ground from under the Moscow party.

The World Bank loan, more than any French desire to tie policy into the new Truman Doctrine, raises a barrier to the hopes of the followers of Maurice Thorez.

France will now be able to make purchases of foodstuffs abroad to supplement home supplies. It will be able to get on with its recovery program. Part of the loan will modernize the steel industry, improve transportation by the purchase of much needed locomotives and freight cars, the purchase and construction of cargo ships and barges, and the construction of commercial airplanes.

From which a lesson is available in the fight against the spread of Communism. The chief weapon in that campaign is economic rehabilitation and the threatened countries, taking from the followers of Marx the main weapon of their attack.

The International Bank was conceived and plans laid for its establishment long before the nature of the post-war reconstruction policy could be determined. It was, however, a known fact that nations whose industrial plants had been destroyed and whose fields had been laid waste and whose farm implements and live stock had been carried away would need financial assistance. A world bank was hit upon as a means whereby private investment credit might be provided this major task of postwar reconstruction. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Good Plan of Chinese Father

When a youngster in Chinatown misbehaves, no one says to him, "You're a naughty child." Instead, they say, "Who is your father? Like father, like son. What sort of man is your father? Why has he not trained you properly?" So the father, knowing he will be blamed, makes every effort to bring up his son properly. It is better, so reason the Chinese, to lose a son of whom you are fond than all the gold in the world. For what good is money if a son disgraces you and you grow old alone and in sorrow? asks Your Life Magazine.

Blast furnaces may cool off altogether as a result of a new cookless steel making method developed in Russia. Shifted continuously between two open hearth chambers at different regimes, the molten ore mass is said to turn into steel quicker and cheaper than in blast furnaces, says United Nations World.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 28th., 1927.

The last and biggest attraction of the season will be at the Griffin Opera House here on the evening of June 7th., when the Boston English Opera Company will present Gounod's beautiful opera "Faust". Prices $1.50, $1.00, 75 cents, 50 cents and 25 cents; boxes $2.00 (Advt.).

At a special meeting of the Board of Albert College to consider the future of the college made necessarily vacant by the demise of Massey Hall by fire, the unanimous decision of the Board was that the college should remain in Belleville on a new site facing the bay, providing the citizens respond sufficiently to warrant action.

40 YEARS AGO

May 28th., 1907

This has been the coldest spring on record, according to officials of the Meteorological Observatory. For continuance of cold weather and the delay in the arrival of summer there is nothing on the records to equal it since the observatory was established sixty five years ago. The mean temperature for the month of May up-to-date has been 44 degrees. The backward weather is having a deterrent effect on crops, flowers and all other natural products of spring.

Mrs. Herbert Mabee left today to join her husband at Calgary, Alberta.

The contractor for the building of the Belleville drill hall, Mr. William Stuart, is pushing forward the preliminary work rapidly. A large amount of building material is on the ground.

Fear was expressed that the frost last night would do great damage in many gardens, but gardeners in this vicinity state that no damage was done to garden stuff. Reports say that considerable damage was done to fruit trees.

50 YEARS AGO

May 28th., 1897

It is estimated that there are about 1,000 bicycles owned in Belleville and that the majority of riders are women and girls.

The first drive of logs has been tallied through the boom.

Flower thieves are at work in town. An example will be made of the first offender caught.

Mr. W. H. Hambly, sort of Lieut. Col. P. H. Hambly, has entered the medical faith of Montreal.

The Juniors of the Y.M.C.A. met last night and organized a bicycle club, to be known as the "Victoria Road Club."

ANOTHER RISE

At Matawa, Ont., Ottawa Valley town 90 miles west of Pembroke, residents of eight streets were forced to flee as the submergent Mattawa River rose to new levels. The latest rise drove them, town and empties into the flooded Ottawa which below Parliament Hill at Ottawa had reached 149.9 feet abov. mean sea level, the highest since 1876 when it rose to 151.9 feet.

At the village of Gatineau Point, Que., west from Ottawa at the confluence of the Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers, residents of tents have been set up by the Canadian Red Cross on the ground by accommodate flood victims. More than 200 houses are surrounded and scores of families have moved. Others are living in upper storeys and commuting by boat.

Meanwhile, officials of power companies along the Ottawa area renewed a plea for a voluntary cut in power consumption of electric power at the peak noon period. They said flood waters had backed up power dams, and they did not expect the situation to ease for a week.

DIONNE QUINTS

Annette is most industrious, a hard-working girl who takes great pains with her studies.

Yvonne is "the deepest in mind" she doesn't say much but she thinks deeply and realized that a "new life is opening up for her."

Marie always the smallest, is still "the youngest in character but she is "the sweetest."

Emile, most boyish of the five (or a long time, is just the opposite now. She is the "most feminine." She's developing and is quite aware of this physical change."

AIM MUTUALLY

"We've got to turn out the goods or bust," he declared. "Today any avoidable strike—whether caused by employers or workers—is sabotage. Any unofficial strike is sabotage with violence to the body of the labor movement itself.

"As for the-rich policy, he told his colleag-es, was not the answer to Britain's economic ills. Such a policy, he said, only "drones". Morrison directed this warning:

"We have no hands and brains to waste, and no resources to fritter away on those who don't contribute to our common effort. Let us put the finger of public scorn at such parasites who make themselves comfortable at the expense of the whole community."

Party Policy

Meanwhile the party's executive prepared to announce to conference delegates that it has accepted as a statement of party policy a pamphlet backing up Foreign Secretary Bevin and telling Russia that the United States could not be a security menace without Britain's concurrence.

The pamphlet, "Cards upon the Table," was published recently by party headquarters and was addressed to Soviet Russia and Stalin. Tomorrow the delegates will hear Bevin's report on his policies and the question of dissension on the part of some delegates will be brought out.

The pamphlet adopted by the executive maintains that the nature of military co-operation between Britain and the United States makes it impossible for either to fight if the other remains neutral. Throughout the article ran the argument that Russia should realize the policy of friendship of Britain had been "impractical and unnecessary."

BUDGET DEBATE

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said: President Truman's request to Congress Monday for legislation for a program of multilateral collaboration with all countries of the Western Hemisphere did not mean an extension of Pan-American collaboration.

Appeasement Futile

In his attack on Communists, Mr. Bracken said Britain and the United States appeasement failed. "Stalin that a policy of appeasement, like charity, covers a multitude of sins. The British and United States government are beginning to understand that a policy built on weakness, instability and appeasement, in dealing with Soviet Russia is futile, and as ineffective, as the same policy proved to be against Hitler and Mussolini gangs," said Mr. Bracken.

Then he added:

"Too many people have forgotten that it was the Bolsheviks who first set the pattern for modern totalitar-ian leaders. Hitler and Mussolini were mere imitators of Lenin and his tactics, and now that these pretenders have been destroyed, Stalin is state after state of Europe, the very sheet-anchor of hope, is being foiled by agents of the Soviet power centred in Moscow.

Guided By One Principle

"The Nazis and the Bolsheviks are allies in that they are guided by only one political principle which governs all their acts—that is the secret police as a paramount position in the state. Every organization and affiliate with similar parties abroad, and employ these methods as the most useful and strategic purposes to the different governments around the world everywhere.

"They assist their fellow travellers in every way and they give them the protection of their secret police whenever they. They direct them to attain their ends by sabotage and espionage, by administrative decree; they have the same ideas about concentration camps and the same primitive instincts that led them to inflict punishment on the families of their exiles. They have the same methods of propaganda.

Only Partial Expose

"Now we have had in this country a partial expose of Moscow-directed activities through our own public service. I did not agree with all the government's actions, but I do not withdraw from public criticism on the theory that their defects are outweighed by virtues. My only regret now is that the government has not done more of that it did not more effectively and that it now is not following through.

He said the government should have the "courage to remove" the Communists in the labor front of the country at the present time. Communist tactics, he avows dispatch to Liberty magazine which stated that the Communist party is now simultaneous pressure in vital spots could cause industrial chaos in wide areas of Canada.

Startling Report

He said that the article stated there had been "unprecedented strikes in the Maritime coal mines, in the Maritime fishing industry, in British Columbia and Ontario logging camps, in the Montreal and Toronto docks, in Ontario and electrical factories, in Windsor automobile plants and in the Seamen's Union.

Mr. Bracken continued:

"This is a startling report going out from the capital city of the Dominion. Whether these statements are true, or they are not. I think the government authorities should do something to correct the situation. If they are true, as I believe they are, the government should be ashamed of itself for allowing it to be important a matter.

"We know how how these Communistic organizations work. Every possible organization to prevent peaceful adjustments in the economy and social affairs of the country. Almost all these the Communists use or try to use to promote strife and not Canadian.

"We know how difficult it is for some workers to resist them. We are promised a Communist Bill of Rights covering a labor relations code. We provide machinery so that Canadian organized labor can protect itself against Communist activities, there is something seriously amiss somewhere. This parliament should see to it that Canadian labor unions, and Canadian co-operatives, are not used by Moscow-trained Reds as the walking horses of the Soviet Union's imperial designs.

"We have in this country a problem of many countries today hanging in the balance. They do not know which way to move. If they give the democratic process a chance they feel that democratic government will not back them up. This is one of the great tests in the history of our history and in the world's history. Canada should make its decision. It must make its decision and let the whole world know what its decision is."

YOU CAN'T DEFINE A MYTH

The response to my offer of a $50 set of the recently published "An Integrated Practice of Medicine" whose author, Harold T. Hyman, M.D., at least makes no bones of admitting there is no cure for the common cold and that U.S. doctors could save their patients millions of dollars on nostrums annually if they frankly admitted it—the response to my offer of this work as a complimentary set of Little Lessons in the Ways of Health by the conductor of this column, for a definition of "the common cold" by a doctor of Medicine, in not to exceed 300 words, which will seem to me to merit printing here in my response has been disappointing. Although I assured colleagues that I shall not divulge the identity of any physician who offers such a definition in his or her written consent, I must infer that when any intelligent doctor understands that there is "the common cold" or "an orthodox cold" or a "specific cold" he realizes it is impossible.

I have received three contributions—only one, however, from a professional stationary of a Physician. This is written by a person purporting to be Dr. Somebody, but what orand of M.D. I can not discern. Another purports to be a retired M.D., but affords no hint of what medicine one might trace its origin or professional past.

The one that is in proper form is not a definition at all, but a dissertation upon the double barrelled theory that what the good doctor calls "the common cold," "the simple cold," etc., is caused by "filterable virus" and "such organisms as the pneumococcus," "the influenzal viruses; the streptococcus hemolyticus," etc.

Regardless of the nonenity of "the common cold" or the inability of physician to agree upon a description of "something" which an illness or indisposition may be identified, the "authorities" will continue to publish their bulletins, rules or regulations about "common cold" treatment as long as the public likes such ass.

And as long as physicians and health officers continue to feed the public such sap the prevalence of the respiratory infections will remain constant.

Among the respiratory infections whose spread is favored by the myth of "the common cold" as no physician or health authority will deny, are infantile paralysis, measles, scarlet fever, epidemic meningitis, septic sore throat (Streptococic sore throat) and in some instances the sequal of such sore throat, rheumatic fever.

When an ignorant politician who serves as health commissioner in many communities issues a bulletin to the public warning people to keep cool and drafts, avoid sudden changes, inclement weather and insufficient clothing but to eat plenty of nourishing food and all the(hackneyed bosh) that he follows should be carefully wrapped in the paper that holds his drafts and used to line the ash can.

Aside from keeping of the best possible state of health there is no particular way to avoid catching "the common cold" except, so far as I know, except by keeping out of contact with anyone you suspect any one in your immediate environment has or is coming down with a respiratory infection. Contact-prevention may range in ordinarily two or three feet, rarely as far as five feet. The spray given off by coughing and sneezing carries that far, and its droplets, both visible or microscopic, may contain the germ or virus of the disease. So if you must converse with five feet from the illsther who purports to have a "cold" you are safe from the safe, whether the "little cold" proves to be a mild flu or not.

If your occupation involves closer contact than that for your own protection as well as for the protection of your clients you should wear a suitable mask—not the hideous uncomfortable and inefficient gauze mask, but a comfortable, efficient, washable shield held in place before nose, nose and eyes by headband or spectacle frame. Such a mask should be an essential part of the regular uniform of the doctor, dentist, barber, beauty parlor operator or optician who would protect his or her health and the health of his clients.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Where is the tree that is said to own itself?

A large white oak tree in Athens, Georgia, is known as the tree that owns itself."

The ground on which the tree stands was once owned by Wiliam H. Jackson, a professor at Franklin College, now in Athens. He was born about the close of the Revolution and was the father of James Jackson, who was Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia at the time of his death in 1887.

Professor Jackson was so fond of his oak tree that about 1820 he "wrote a deed conveying to the tree full possession of itself and the land on which it stood." The original of the so-called deed is not a matter of record and the tradition it was is the following effect:

"I, William H. Jackson, of the County of Clarke, State of Georgia, of the one part, and the oak tree (defining the location of the County of Clarke of the other part: Witness, that, for and in consideration of the great love I bear this tree and the great desire I have for its protection at all time, I convey entire possession of itself and of the land within eight feet of it on all sides."

Of course, the tree, like other trees, could not actually own property, but Jackson's admiration for the tree led him to adopt this unique, and perhaps whimsical, means of protecting it after his death. His sentiment has been respected. However desirable the title to the tree may be, it is recognized by the people of Athens who cherish and protect the tree as if it were "a treasured friend."

Soon after the beginning of the 20th century the property, at the owner's expense had granite posts connected by chains placed around the tree to protect it from vandalism, and a white marble bench was placed on each of the words of the traditional deed, was "Memorial to the tree."

Jackson's method of preserving his favorite tree has been imitated by a white oak tree growing on the sidewalk in Oxford, Ohio, and its condition is beautiful that the city officials deeded to it the land on which it stands so it could never be cut down. The "Treed-lauded Tree" at Pippapass, Kentucky, also owns itself. On August 10, 1918, a deed of conveyance was filed in Knott County granting 38 square feet of land to the tree, thereby, to protect it from interference during its life time and its consequent gift of shade, coolness, and inspiration."

North Hastings Women's Institute Holds 39th Annual District Meeting

The thirty-ninth Annual District meeting of North Hastings Women's Institute was held in Zion Church, Thurlow, on Thursday, May 21st, with Rylestone Branch as hostesses. In spite of inclement skies and an almost continuous downpour of rain the church was filled to capacity by 10 o'clock when the registration being completed, the meeting got under way community singing, led by the Wellman's Corners Trio.

The District President, Mrs. E. Moore, of Madoc, made a very gracious presiding officer and the business, reports and addresses were kept well within the scheduled time-limit. Following the community singing the usual opening exercises were carried through by the singing of the "Maple Leaf" and the "Institute Ode." The minutes of the 1946 District Annual held at Coe were read by Mrs. J. W. Hulin, Secretary-Treasurer, who also gave the Financial Report, compiled from the different branches in the district. The Auditors' report, signed by Mrs. Chas Whytock and Mrs. Grace Nickle was accepted as read.

Branches Flourishing

Miss Audrey Spencer of the Department of Agriculture was introduced and invited to the platform.

In her address, Mrs. Moore said she had visited nine of the ten branches in the district and had made many warm friends whose loyalty to the Institute would always be treasured in her memory. In all the branches she had found a fine spirit of friendship and enthusiasm. She had received the printed programs and found that the information of what was forthcoming, as a result of them, could not help but be instructive as well as interesting. The number of Institutes in the district doctors, lawyers, clergymen, school teachers, agriculturists, representatives and others. The Girls' Work was in very flourishing condition and was largely due to Miss Elsie Irwin, coach of the Girls' Work and the group leader of the leaders. Two new branches had been organized during the past year. She thanked all members for their hearty co-operation and friendliness and closed her remarks with a lovely poem "Success."

The reports of Standing Committees were then given.

Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. Mitts the convener gave outstanding topics, motion and rolls calls as sent in by seven branches Dr. Hammond of the Dominion Department of Agriculture had given a fine address on Dahlias at the Madoc Institute and splendid papers had been sent from the conveners of Marmora, Bannockburn and Elzdorado and Ivanhoe branches.

Mrs. Gardner reporting for Mrs. Eastwood for Citizenship and Institutes said eight branches reported. Splendid suggestions for topics and roll calls were given as well as contests. The Tweedsmuir Scrap book had been started in a number of branches and it was urged that the conveners and members do their utmost to make them interesting.

War Brides Welcomed

Social Welfare, Mrs. Rollins as convener said nine branches reported and along with good ideas for the motion and roll calls told of several war brides who had been welcomed and others who had been presented with gifts; Monetary donations to libraries and other organizations.

Mrs. Clayton Wright gave an encouraging account of the Girls' Club. At present there are six clubs, some taking the Garden Club work and the others the "Cereal Shelf." The girls are very interested in the work and thoroughly enjoyed the trip to Peterborough in December when they visited the Quaker Oats plant, the Canada Packers' plant and the Radio Station CHEX. One girl had won a trip to New York City.

Home Economics—Mrs. Green said eight branches had reported. Very fine papers had been given and several demonstrations of "Wartime Christmas Gifts," a supper dish, salads, etc. It was suggested that new members be invited to demonstrate something they can do, as a means of making them feel they belong.

Mrs. Sabine, convener of Publicity said eight branches had submitted reports of their work. Reports of monthly meetings had been sent to local and Belleville papers, radio stations had announced special meetings and posters, announcing entertainments and sales, put out. In most branches printed programs were used and women of the community were always invited to all meetings.

Mrs. Meiklejohn said six branches had reported on Citizenship and instructive papers, talks by business and professional men and discussions. Very fully covered this part of the work.

Miss Barbara Fox reported Junior Institute work. The Junior Farmers had donated $25 towards their work and a Box Social had been one of last winter's features.

Mrs. L. Anderson on behalf of Rylestone Institute extended a very warm welcome to the visitors and a member of the Eldorado Branch replied very suitably.

Thirty New Institutes Organized

The Provincial Director, Mrs. A. Mitchell, who represents the Belleville area, said this was the first visit in her term of office and she brought greetings from the Provincial Board. Her talk dealt with matters pertaining to Federation and the "Home and Country" as it contained a wealth of information regarding every phase of Institute work. She also spoke of the coming 50th Anniversary celebration at Guelph on June 18th. Among other attraction T. Eaton Company are providing a 35-piece orchestra and the special programs for the day.

It was reported with deep regret that Mrs. Clarence Holmes was in rather poor health and a letter, wishing her for speedy return to health was ordered written.

A very fine dinner was served in the Orange Hall by the Rylestone Institute. Prior to the afternoon session the members had the opportunity of examining the Tweedsmuir Scrap books and these proved most interesting.

Mrs. Beatty led the Community singing, which commenced the afternoon session.

To Hold Short Course

Miss Audrey Spencer, of the Dept. of Agriculture said her chief duty was to present the co-operative Program and after an informative talk on Short Courses it was decided to have the "Personality in dress" for this district.

Mrs. Cooper & Remington and Bancroft, & Hollowell Grain combine for the courses; Madoc, Marmora and Tweed; Stirling, Frankford, Ivanhoe and Wellmans; Mrs Hirt mentioned to each group that as attended.

Miss Irwin spoke on Girls' Work and to most of her listeners this was most interesting, as the girls from each of the Girls' Clubs were Institute members. Over 100 girls took part in the Achievement Day Service, a substantial increase over last year. The membership for this year in Canada may be small" covering different steps in cheese-making, etc., and chiefly the learning to co-operate with others.

Mrs. Beatty of Hungerford East, gave a most outstanding address on "Thoughts of the 50th Anniversary." She traced the career of the Institute from its infancy to its present strength in a way it is impossible to report in the space at our disposal.

Mr. Bunbury, the Agricultural Representative for Northumberland County at the request of Mrs. Rutherford, very kindly gave the report on Agriculture. He humorously remarked that it hardly seemed right after listening to the splendid address of Mrs. Hearty on "Thoughts of the 50th Anniversary" she traced the career of the Institute from its infancy to its present strength in a way it is impossible to report in the space at our disposal.

Mr. Bunbury, the Agricultural Representative for Northumberland County at the request of Mrs. Rutherford, very kindly gave the report on Agriculture. WEDDINGS

GOULD—ALEXANDER

Conacher—Hyacinths, narcissi and tulips decorated the evergreen arch from which hung white wedding bells, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander of Hillier, in the marriage of their daughter, Blanche Eileen, to Hazen Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Gould, of Canterbury, N.B.

Rev. A. N. Grant of Wellington, Ont., was the officiating clergyman. Music was programme supplied by Miss Myrtle Hubbs of Trenton, and Mrs. Ernest Bateman of Trenton, was the soloist, singing "Always" during the signing of the register.

The bride was very charming in a floor length model of white satin with net yoke and bouffant skirt. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by lilies-of-the-valley, and she carried a bouquet of crimson roses and baby's breath. Her only ornament was a gift from the groom.

The bridesmaid, Miss Clara Herrington, of Trenton, was gowned in pale blue taffeta, with matching veil and a headdress in pastel shades.

Mr. Walter Alexander was the groomsman.

Rose Marie Haight, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She made a pleasing picture in a floor length frock of pink nylon, fashioned with basque bodice and full skirt of white net. Her headdress was of white flowers and she carried a nosegay of blue and white blossoms. Robert Weese, nephew of the bride, accompanied the flower girl as a page boy.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to approximately forty-five guests when a beautifully decorated three-tier wedding cake formed the centre-piece for the attractively arranged table.

For a motor trip to the home of the groom's parents in New Brunswick the bride chose a suit made from time to time like a patchwork quilt. Many of these laws were passed without any idea of what radio would grow into.

The Independent Commercial Radio Stations of Canada believe the Canadian radio listener will take a lively interest in the suggestion that Canada's radio laws should be overhauled. Radio broadcasting in Canada is something which affects every home. It is important to you, and to your children that Canadian radio should be free from the restrictions of "Crystal Set" radio laws.

Talk on Music Given by G. Black

The May meeting of the University Women's Club was held on Wednesday evening last at the home of Mrs. R. A. Pringle, Trent Road, with the president, Mrs. Pringle in charge.

The guest speaker was Mr. Gordon Black, Mus. Bac., A.R.C.O., A.C.C.O. the organist at Christ Church, who gave us his topic, M.P.M.M., which was explained as "More People Make More Music." Mr. Black compared music to a language—a language with universal appeal. This appeal is first to the senses then to the emotions and finally to the mind. Like a language, music is learned in four stages, 1/ listening, 2, performing 3, reading, 4, writing. Its main ingredients are rhythm melody and harmony. Mr. Black illustrated and added when Mr. Black played the piano and used records to convince us more clearly.

At the conclusion of his address he advocated more musical festivals, explaining that they are not only enjoyable, but are also responsible for revealing hidden talent.

Following this talk, the business of the Club was discussed. Since this was the annual meeting, a slate of officers was presented, with the result that Mrs. Pringle is re-elected as the president for the coming year.

The meeting closed with the serving of refreshments by the hostess.

ARE "CRYSTAL SET" RADIO LAWS
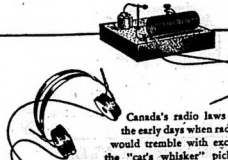
GOOD ENOUGH FOR CANADIANS?



Canada's radio laws date back to the early days when radio "pioneers" would tremble with excitement when the "cat's whisker" picked up some squeaks on their crystal sets. Today Canadian listeners can hear a quiet voice speaking from the other side of the world. Radio has come a long way. But Canada's radio laws have not kept pace.

Canadian radio today is handicapped by a jumble of hand-me-down legislation—an accumulation of laws, regulations, amendments and addenda. As a result of this tangle, the full benefit and enjoyment which a Canadian radio listener has a right to expect, is being curtailed.

To take one example—there is no legal right to freedom of speech on the air in Canada. As matters stand, any "government-of-the-day" could prevent expression by radio of any opinion other than its own. Obviously, no one of the governments responsible for various Acts or regulations had this intention in mind. The situation has arisen simply because the laws were

Best Form Not to "Pair Off" Bridesmaids and Ushers in Recessional

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To be my bridal attendants I have invited my bridesmaids, besides the maid of honor. I am wondering if it would be permissible for my bridesmaids to have four ushers instead of six ushers. In this case the bridesmaids would haveto walk two by two in the recessional, preceding the ushers, also by pairs. Would such an arrangement be considered correct?

Not only would such an arrangement for the recessional be correct, but it is the customary form for the recessional in the best-planned wedding. It is never necessary to have the same number of bridesmaids as ushers, because according to best form the bridesmaids and ushers are not "paired off" in the recessional.

Kind Friends Planning a Surprise Anniversary Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are planning a surprise fiftieth wedding anniversary party for two very dear friends of ours, and since we have never given a party of this kind before, we would very much appreciate your help.

1. First, about the invitations. We are planning to invite about 50 guests. On the invitations should we use "Mr. and Mrs. ——" or just the first names of the guests of honor? And should we sign our names on the invitations?

2. Then about the style of service. Since (according to our plans for the "surprise") we would like to spend several hours for the preparations, we thought buffet service would be most convenient to plan for. Do you agree? Should we have the table set in the living room (which is much larger than the dining-room) or in the dining-room? Would a table with a lace cloth, the anniversary cake, flowers, and candles be correct?

3. Would this menu be sufficient: sandwiches, beer, soda, and later on, the anniversary cake? Or should we add to this? We plan to set the time of arrival at eight o'clock, and the guests of honor won't arrive at our home until after nine o'clock. Should anything be served at that hour?

4. After our guests of honor have arrived and have greeted everyone, would it be proper for me to have the wife open the gifts then, or should this be done after the guests have been served? And it is proper, isn't it, to have them cut the anniversary cake? And would you approve of having the man who was best man at their wedding propose the toast?

1. Since doubtless only intimate friends of the couple are to be invited to such an intimate kind of party, your informal invitations (notes or cards) would use the first names of the couple. And your informal names would be signed to the invitations. Very often the invitations to a surprise party are given orally or by telephone . . . this is not only proper, but, in explaining the plans, often more practical than written invitations.

2. By all means have buffet service . . decidedly more convenient. Have your table set in the dining room (for buffet service). Your suggestions for the table-setting are excellent.

3. I suggest you add hot coffee to your menu; such accessories as potato chips, pretzels, and olives (all appropriate with beer); and perhaps small fruit tarts in addition and mints. I'm against your serving anything before the guests arrive . . . this might cause some confusion when there should be "quiet, please!"

4. The gifts are usually opened before the arrival of guests. Yes, please have the 'bride' cut the first slice of the anniversary cake and share it with the bridegroom." (The cake may be decorated with bride and groom figurines and/or the initials of the couple, but certainly with the dates, 1893-1947.) And I most heartily approve of your plan to have the best man propose the toast to "the bride and groom," as he probably did at the wedding.

Fashion Flashes

SMART VARIATIONS of the ensemble are current. One is a dress of pure silk, in black, with inserts of chartreuse, tan and white silk, appliqued along the neckline. With it is a short, flaring Mandarin coat of the chartreuse print lined with the black silk.

COMING ALONG in good style is the silk coat done on important lines. Such a model is of fine black silk, the straight skirt is made with a wide flare, and the basque top is fastened with a double row of square jet buttons. There are shaped revers, and easy sleeves finished with a very narrow turnback cuff.

EVEN IF YOU ARE AN ADDICT of prints, you should have at least one monotone dress in your Spring and Summer wardrobe. How about a charming frock of pale beige silk crepe, made with jewelry neckline, tiny sleeves and an extravagant, tucky cordion-pleated skirt, swirling down the side of the skirt.

COME SUMMER and there'll be many a belle wearing an ankle-length cotton dance dress. While prints and printed cotton is used for a pretty number, with mousseline de soie forming the short, ruffled sleeves, and the curved flounce outlining the hemline, and the crisp petticoat.

ANOTHER ABSENTEE returns to the fold. Applause at a recent style showing of fall suits was for tailored suit of pure silk in navy blue, punctuated in white. It had a small, high-necked collar and double-rows of tiny crystal buttons on the long, fitted jacket. Worn with a shirred white chiffon blouse.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Girl Who Doesn't Want a Date

A day or so ago, we were discussing the case of a young woman who longed for a date but had trouble getting them.

This is the strange story of a girl who declares in her letter, and vehemently underscores each word twice, that she "does not want to go out on dates."

She introduces herself as a 16-year-old who lives with her grandparents because her father and mother are divorced. She works after school, she says, and with the money she earns buys her own clothes and food, pays for her tuition at school, and takes care of her little miscellaneous expenses such as carfare.

"I do not like boys," she says flatly, "and cannot stay in their presence! This feeling I have had for a long time, so it is not just a childish fear that will pass in a year or two. I would say it started when I was about nine or ten years old.

"Besides the great dislike I have for all boys—it is almost a hate—I think I am too young to go out with them, and I would just as soon stay home and read a good book. My sister, who is 14 and does not live with me, goes to church dances, which I think is a very good thing, because she likes that kind of enjoyment. But I cannot go to dances because I get too upset and nervous. I went to a dance one night to please my sister, and I disliked it very much. I did not dance one dance, and I left early. I do not know how to dance. My sister has tried to teach me and I have been willing to learn for her sake, but it has just been of no avail."

Her aunts, she goes on to say, remonstrate violently with her about her attitude, and think she should go out more, and she is "almost crazy with worry and nagging." In asking for advice, she implies that what she really wants is someone to back her up in her resistance to any social life, on the ground that if she doesn't want to go out on dates, she should be let alone and not plagued about it.

Well, I don't think she ought to be plagued about it either. I don't think she ought to be forced to go out socially when she is so dead set against it. What I do think she ought to do is to try and find out why she feels as she does, with the idea of getting over it and acquiring the interest in good times that other girls of her age have.

It is very likely that her aversion to boys stems from some deep emotional hurt connected in some way with the disturbed relationship that resulted in her parents' divorce. Whatever the particular thing may have been in its effects it resembles a pebble dropped into a pond that creates a surface disturbance long after it has itself disappeared.

If this girl is wise for her 16 years, and I hope she is, she will try to find some understanding person to whom she can talk, and who can help her to a happier way of thinking. It is too bad that these aunts of hers seem to have no conception of the real truth of the matter, for if they did, they might be able to guide her. If they must be counted out, however, then I suggest that she go to someone used to young people and their problems, such as, for instance, a worker in her local YWCA. If she would like to write and give me her name and address, I will be glad to send her a letter of introduction to a specific person in the YWCA of her city.

"I guess you misunderstood what I meant by 'DRESS UP!'"

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Be on The Beauty Watch, Thirty Girl

One thing the modern woman knows: good-looks aren't just what you are born with; much beauty is cultivated. Perfect features don't mean so much! If they are topped with hair that calls for a more becoming arrangement, they are scarcely noticed. It is the way of the world to spot what's wrong before noticing what is right. If a woman has a deep desire to be attractive—that means every woman with brains in her head—she can find the ways and the means. Often enough others can't define her charm; it is a nebulous, elusive quality. Her friends say, "Well, she isn't precisely pretty. One would never consider her a beauty. But there is something about her that holds your attention. It is a pleasure to look at her."

A woman of this type takes a long look ahead. She has observed what has happened to other women's figures and faces as the years went by. Thirty finds her alert and watchful. She begins to consider the contour of her face carefully, the condition of her skin, the state of her hair and hands. Will they soon be slipping? Not while she's on the lookout, they won't.

She diligently attends to her good-looks chores. She respects the laws of health, realizing full well that health is the foundation upon which the temple of pulchritude is built.

When she applies a cream to her face, as she does every night of her life, she does not expect it to do all the work. She works with it, consistently and faithfully. A film of oily cosmetic on the skin surface may keep it soft and smooth, but that is not enough. It should be frictioned into the flesh so that underlying fibres and tissues will respond. The manipulations will stimulate the blood streams.

She has found that an excellent form of facial massage, she that will not force the tissues into folds, is a quick kneading with her knuckles. Try that method sometime. The skin will soon be warm and glowing, showing that the blood streams are travelling. This kneading treatment should start at the hollow between the bay of Quinte Conference the sessions of which are being held in Wall Street United Church in Brockville.

VEL eliminates wiping! Makes dishes, glasses gleam.

No streaky film to wipe away.

No dishpan ring with VEL. No soap scum to scour away.

"After washing with VEL my nylons rinse bright and sheer as new! A few dips, a little gentle squeezing in lukewarm water, and VEL makes nylons gloriously fresh! No dulling soap film!"

East Hastings W.I. Convention

By Mrs. W. J. Tufts

The annual convention of the East Hastings Women's Institute was held May 23rd, in Roslin Presbyterian Church, with Mrs. White and Mrs. Clapsaddle in charge of registration.

Some of the beauty of the Spring sunshine was brought into the church buildings with the addition of potted plants and Spring flowers.

The theme of the convention was "Good Homes are Essential to a Nation's Survival." Mrs. C. E. Askey, District President, well known for her many inspiring addresses to district branches, was in charge. Mrs. Roy Sills conducted the sale, "You Can Sing Anytime, Anywhere," and Mrs. Roy Badgley, convener of Agriculture, presented her report, in which she suggested some projects for Institute roll-call. This department is also urging the necessity of making Hastings county an area of T.B. tested cattle.

The report on Home Economics was given by Mrs. Ralph Sills in which she told of a practical demonstration on the "mound buttonhole" having been given at one meeting, and an exhibit of handicraft by junior girls at another. A paper on "The Home" included hints on the care of furniture and woollens.

A report on "Citizenship" by Mrs. Clare Weese, stressed the qualifications of a good citizen, the value of citizenship and the proper use of the franchise.

Social Welfare

The importance of "Social Welfare" was discussed by Mrs. P. Kimmerly, who suggested that medical doctors be invited to give addresses to the members of institutes on first aid in emergencies and at schools, as well as the dangers of social diseases. She also spoke on the humanitarian benefits of doing Red Cross work and of giving of cast-off clothing to families who have met with misfortune in the loss of home and furnishings.

Mrs. G. Bradshaw reported that several Institutes have started the Tweedsmuir Village History Books, and have prepared papers on several interesting and educational subjects.

In the absence of Mrs. Fred Hall convener of Civilian Relief, Mrs. Clarence Hall told of donations sent to the Institute for the Blind, to the Hospital for Sick Children and of furnishing motor and clothing to the Whitby Ontario Hospital.

A report on "Publicity" was given by Mrs. W. J. Tufts, stressing that the reporter be furnished with good and interesting material from which to fashion her report. She said "News is the most available commodity in the world," and stressed the importance of getting all reports to the press as soon as possible after meetings are held. All members should co-operate to keep the reporter informed as to activities in every department.

Girls' Work

Miss Irene Mowers reported on "Girls' Work" which has been supervised by Mrs. V. Elliott assisted by Mrs. R. Wilder. Last year Mrs. Wilder had 13 girls in her class; 14 this year. These girls demonstrated good sewing and crocheting at Belleville Fair, and exhibited vegetables and flowers grown in club gardens. They also attended "get-together day" at Stirling and at Picton. Miss Isabell Bird gave a report on year's round of activites on achievement day in Stirling.

Mrs. R. Robson, representative to the Federation of Agriculture suggested that all members take a special interest in this department. She said that "Rural Women's Institute has done much for rural living conditions, which is effective only in so far as it helps the vicinity, but to the whole world."

Mrs. Irvin Smith, girls' work coach, told of 110 rural girls competing in the Good Sheet Project in this district this year, as compared with 39 girls competing last year. She stressed the importance of co-operation by mothers. Misses Isabel Elliott and Dorothy Meeks demonstrated some of the work done by junior girls.

The prize for the best poster, "For Home and Country" in this district was won by Phillipston Zion Branch, and was presented to Mrs. Ida Cranston, president of the branch to be shared with the junior girl who worked a card on the poster. Following this the District Institute asked Mrs. Elliott leader of the girls, to accept for each one entered in the project a small gift as a token of appreciation for the effort expended.

Greetings from the Provincial Board were brought by Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, who expressed regret for the illness of Mrs. C. Holmes.

Accomplishments Reviewed

During the business session Mrs. Summers and Miss Lewis urged the delegates to study the co-operative system. The W. I. has sponsored 270 short courses, 1266 branches have studied agriculture. A canteen has been financed in Britain, and since September, and $1,000,000 sent overseas during the six years of war, the remaining $500,000 will go to Christie St. Hospital. Institutes were advised to order the magazine "Home and Country" and said that all member fees must remain at the low cost of 25 cents.

Adjournment for lunch at noon hour, served by the Roslin ladies.

Mrs. H. Chisholm welcomed the delegates to the afternoon session at one o'clock. She said, "We live just a time of looking backward with reports, but a time to survey the road ahead. Never before has there been a greater opportunity for W. I. members to show their strength than now. Let it be a challenge for us to do even greater things in the future to save the peace, to bring security, freedom and happy living to the world." Mrs. T. Leslie responded, calling attention to the hospitality of the Roslin ladies, and reminding her listeners of the 50th anniversary of Institute work which is to be celebrated at Guelph on June 18th.

With Mrs. McMath as accompanist, a fine duet was contributed by Mrs. Robert Tucker and Mrs. Kimmerly, adding much to the enjoyment of the afternoon session.

Wallen is Large Family

Speaking on the subject, "The Intelligence of the People is the Security of the Nation," Mrs. Ida Cranston of Phillipston Zion Branch compared the nation to a large family, saying it is God's plan that all mankind become one family. Patriotism is love of family, extended to the nation and world peace can only be won when all people learn the Christian way of life."

What the Institute Means to Both Old and Young" was the topic chosen by Mrs. Douglas Atkins of the Queen's Branch. She told of how, after fifty years of real work, the older members have accomplished much in the way of educational programs, with short courses in sewing, cooking, basketcraft and "Junior Farmers' Clubs. She said, "Through citizenship we have broadened our outlook on life, and now we see a world-wide organization which must put forth every effort to promote world peace."

Mrs. Platt of Plainfield spoke on "Institute Ideals" which inspire her listeners inspiring thoughts on a modern influence and motto, after the birth of which no one can look forward without a fine manhood and womanhood as the result. Closing with a quotation from the well-known poem "A Mother's Love."

Mrs. Harry Sills of Roslin spoke on "Greater Efficiency in the Institute." She said "Women's Institute is Ontario's gift to the world. In the Canadian Institutes these organizations have spread over all America, to England, Ireland, Scotland and Europe, as well as to Australia and New Zealand, where other branches are patterned after those of Ontario. The Woman's Institute is the largest single woman's organization in the world, and is proud to boast of having royalty among its members in the persons of Princess Alice of Athlone, Queen Mother, Mary and Queen Elizabeth. The Institute's aim is service in any sphere with right living and the betterment of mankind as its purpose.

Praises Farm Life

"Why I like the Farm" was discussed by Mrs. Arnold Ritley, suggesting the farm as a place of peace, a refuge and a home, wrapped in a feeling of security and contentment. A farm is a solid investment in spite of depressions, panics and wars. She appealed to farm women to appreciate their heritage and the privilege of making a position as a home-maker and a helper on the farm.

Many fine thoughts were given by Mrs. Bell Tyendinaga, speaking of Canada as a great nation, offering more opportunities, privileges and blessings than any other nation in the world today. "Never before" said Mrs. Bell, "were the eyes of the world so centred on the women of Canada. Are we ready for friendliness, kindness, sympathy and understanding to lead privileged people, or shall we fail in that which God entrusted us?" The training of Christian citizens begins at home, but before a mother can teach her child she must train herself. Temperance in all things is one of the most important lessons to learn. Alcohol is a menace to home life, and the enemy of the nation. Institute workers must at once the challenge against the evil which is within reach of the youth of today, who will be the men and women of tomorrow."

The Toronto Department of Agriculture was represented by Miss A. Spencer who spoke of the value of having these fine reports compiled for future reference. She said there are three new institutes in Hastings area, and presented a co-operative programme with courses sponsored by the Institute which are open to all who can attend.

Highlights Given

Highlights from the area conventions were brought by Mrs. W. J. Tufts. She said that the institutes are behind all young people's activities. The discussion presented much food for thought on the use of the franchise, the formation of public opinion, and the privilege of taking part in the pageant of life. Mrs. Tufts reminded her listeners of some things by Mr. Mother," she said, "all children should have laughter, humor and fun." She said, "Second, the younger generation there is a thirst for education and it can only be quenched by more advanced schools and colleges. She closed her remarks by asking all workers in the communities to look on the sunny side of life, turn in the past; but live in the future, "and do not walk this year in last year's mall."

Mrs. Frank Hutchison reported for the Courtesy Committee, describing expressing appreciation to the ladies who provided so bountifully for the noon meal, and made the church beautiful both inside and out. Miss Spencer and Miss Irwin for their inspiring addresses. Mrs. Akey personally thanked all the kindness shown her during the past year.

Plainfield Branch invited the convention to meet in Plainfield in 1948. Mrs. E. Denyes was song leader and Mrs. M. Fargey accompanist for the day.

Canadian Automobile Business Turned into 'a Crazy Market'

Toronto, May 28 — (CP) — An abnormal demand for a short supply and a willingness on the part of buyers to pay "almost any price" to obtain cars have combined in turning the Canadian automobile business into a "crazy market," Howard B. Moore, general manager of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada, said Tuesday.

He said the solution to the problem will be found only in more cars — which manufacturers were producing as fast as materials and work stoppages will permit — and when the public exercises sufficient patience to wait until the supply has improved.

Manufacturers and dealers who wish to preserve the goodwill of the public were making a sincere effort to get cars into purchasers' hands as quickly as possible at list prices.

But pressure and proffered "bribes" were creating great difficulties while "undercover acceptance of premiums and 'trades' is casting an ugly shadow" across the name of an industry whose members, in few exceptions, were striving earnestly to be fair with the public.

Markets Operating

"Unquestionably there are rackets operating as is always the case with any essential commodity when demand is much greater than supply," he said.

While Moore made no claim to "simon-purity," individual buyers contributed to the skyrocketing of prices. This was brought about by people exerting pressure on dealers to obtain delivery of new cars — at authorized prices — they then immediately reselling them in the present wild market at fantastic prices.

He said motor vehicles were being sold to dealers at figures based on cost and no advantage had been taken by them to obtain higher prices.

Considering substantially increased costs of production nowadays, Moore said, only the heavy sales taxes in effect, new car prices were not exorbitant — but it could not be denied many people were paying exorbitant prices through private deals, he said. "Prices of new cars as authorized by manufacturers are by no means as high, relatively, as prices of other commodities, whether staples or otherwise," he said.

UNBEATABLE HAND HELD

London Onl., May 28 (CP) — An unbeatable two-pronged hand in croidge was held here Tuesday by Murry Bryant, Toronto-born University of Western Ontario medical student, in a friendly game following a final exam.

Bryant's partner was Bob Bissonnette of Stratford, while their opponents were John Rawling of Windsor and Cec-il Craig of Harrow, Ont.

Pair Arrested Travelled 4,000 Miles in Stolen Autos in Month

Toronto, May 28 — (CP)—Police Tuesday arrested two men in a new model car on a downtown street on charges of auto theft. They said later the pair travelled more than 4,000 miles in stolen autos in Ontario and Quebec in the past month.

The men — Donald Lloyd and Clifford Le Mark, both of Toronto — were charged with theft of a car in Toronto and with receiving stolen property. Police said they are wanted on other charges at Kingston, Niagara Falls and Cayuga.

Detective James Morgan, in his account of the pair's travel, said they stole a car in Toronto May 7, drove to Peterboro, Ottawa, Montreal and to a number of Quebec summer resorts. Then they returned to Kingston to attend a wedding.

While their car was parked outside the church, another car crashed it. Detective Morgan said they pinched the damaged car in a nearby lot and stole another car, then drove to Quebec where they stole a set of auto markers and discarded the plates on the Kingston car.

The detective continued by saying the men drove to Niagara Falls. It is charged that they stole another license plate at Niagara Falls and it was this plate police said was on the car in which they were arrested.

The fighting is over, you heard the music, you ate, you danced the night away, but not in bridge play. The players will accept until all the rubbers are ready to lay up standardized rules.

It seems that south opened a bid of two spades when his north partner held this hand:

♠ K 9 7 5 2
♥ A Q J 4
♦ 7 3 2
♣ 5

A slam in spades was sure. The opener need only find out if it is a small or a grand slam. He can do so by using the ace-and-king showing convention. Or so, it would seem.

So, north responds at once with a jump bid of four spades. Now they write to ask me if this reply was wrong; and if so, why? Fair enough. To be right there must be a good reason.

The response was wrong. If opener happens to have four hearts as well as four spades, the best trump suit is hearts. More tricks can be taken when the trump suit is almost evenly divided.

Furthermore, there is no good reason for using two rules when one rule will accomplish the same purpose. Any response other than two no-trump is an invitation to determine what kind of slam cooks.

Also, when not necessary for showing something special, bids should be kept as low as possible. An extra round of bidding can help much to reveal information that may be needed for slam.

Standard rules exchange all the dope a pair needs. Some players still avoid them. They have the idea that they can anticipate the final result with fewer bits of information.

Horse Sense believes in using the fewest rules to cover the most situations. Good for any revealing extra stuff. But each type of jump has a different meaning, depending on the spot.

North should first respond with three hearts and assist south next. Some partners almost jump out of their skin.

"Nobody Lives Forever"

Teaming dynamic John Garfield with a fast-talking, fast-moving script that offers the star plenty of tough competition from a group of unscrupulous petty racketeers and, in equal degree, plenty of romantic dalliance with a lovely lady, seems an infallible formula for sure-fire screen entertainment.

And it is our pleasant duty to report that Garfield's newest cinema venture, Warner Bros. "Nobody Lives Forever," in which he co-stars with Geraldine Fitzgerald, is no exception to that rule. For the new drama, now on the Belle Theatre screen, stems from the pen of W. R. Burnett all-time champion of such hard-boiled film fiction as "Little Caesar" and "Scarface," provides Garfield with his meatiest "tough-guy" role in years. Boasting in addition to the able stars, a number of top-flight featured players like Walter Brennan, Faye Emerson, George Coulouris and George Tobias, it is not to be wondered at that "Nobody Lives Forever" unfolds on the screen as an inspired marriage talent and dramatic endeavor. Be sure to see and keep the Belle Theatre packed to capacity during the engagement of the picture's Belleville run.

Three Entertaining Featurettes

Three entertaining featurettes precede the feature attraction, including the Belle Global News; a funny Merrie Melodie production cartoon "Scentimental Over You," and a smart-paced sports film "Harness Racing" packed with thrills and spills.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was scratching my arm on account of having hives on it, and ma took me around to the docter and he gave me a perscription costing 45 cents at the drug store and saying on the label to take one teaspoon full of it after meels.

Being fierce black looking stuff, and after supper ma said, Benny it's time to take your ferst dose of medecine.

Aw, ma, why? I said, and ma said, Why do you suppost after I went to all the trubble of taking you around to the docter and paying out good money to have the perscription made up for land sakes!

But jimminy, ma, I mean heck, don't say on the label about do I'm suppose to start, I said, and ma said, Why I'll make it clear to you. You're suppose to start today, she said.

Gut gosh, ma, why cant I wait a while and see if I stop itching thankfully. Now we are both itching again although not as much as we used to. We can't afford it, of course, but we'll try to cut down somewhere else."

Theatre managers are inclined to blame current audiences on that smoke crisis.

Publishers also claim they notice business is falling off. Newsstand sales are dropping and the public no longer gobbles up the three six-penny magazines to while away a train journey.

Those who have found effective ways of economizing or making cigarets last longer are quick to share their knowledge. Our reader of the magazine Parliament drew diagrams to support his contention that "the law of marginal utility begins to operate at a fairly early stage in the smoking of a cigaret."

In other words, you get better value by cutting a cigaret in half and smoking the halves separately. The writer admitted that if his method was adopted "we can expect cigarets and pins will become commodities in joint demand."

A correspondent of the Times of London, who claimed it was easy to grow tobacco in England and offered names of places where seed could be bought, was swamped with letters, 240 arriving in the first 24 hours.

Because it's probably better for one to scratch than to just sit still without any exercise at my age, I said, and ma said, Now is that sensible?

You didn't say it had to be sensible, ma, I said. You just asked be for one reason, and that's one, I said.

The result being I had to take my medecine or else have a scrap, why I wished I had, tasting better than it looked but not good enough to make it seem worth 45 cents.

Old Country Letter

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The ragged man who once sold cigaret butts on the Thames embankment is there no more. Butts are too hard to come by.

It has been that way ever since the April budget of Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, boosted by one shilling to the already heavy tax on a packet of 20 cigarets. The immediate result was that almost everyone decided smoking was too expensive and gave it up.

But that was too painful. One by one they have weakened, from sneaking back to tobacconists' stores where the old "no cigarets" sign has been hidden and attendants are all eagerness to serve.

Partly to salve conscience and partly as a matter of sheer economy, smokers still try to reduce consumption and make cigarets last as long as possible. Most butts found in the gutter nowadays are not worth picking up.

"My husband and I gave up smoking for nearly two weeks after the budget," said one housewife. "But he looked so miserable I couldn't bear to see him sitting gloumly over a book night after night.

"Finally, I broke down. 'For goodness sake go and get some cigarets,' I said—and he fled thankfully. Now we are both smoking again although not as much as we used to. We can't afford it, of course, but we'll try to cut down somewhere else."

Theatre managers are inclined to blame current audiences on that smoke crisis.

Publishers also claim they notice business is falling off. Newsstand sales are dropping and the public no longer gobbles up the three six-penny magazines to while away a train journey.

Those who have found effective ways of economizing or making cigarets last longer are quick to share their knowledge. Our reader of the magazine Parliament drew diagrams to support his contention that "the law of marginal utility begins to operate at a fairly early stage in the smoking of a cigaret."

In other words, you get better value by cutting a cigaret in half and smoking the halves separately. The writer admitted that if his method was adopted "we can expect cigarets and pins will become commodities in joint demand."

A correspondent of the Times of London, who claimed it was easy to grow tobacco in England and offered names of places where seed could be bought, was swamped with letters, 240 arriving in the first 24 hours.

Man-in-the-Street Faces Prospect of Less Luxury Buying

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 28 — (CP)—The sterling which foreign countries earn from their trade with Britain must be convertible after July 15 into any currency in the world and the result may be more "austerity" for the British people.

The desire of most countries will be to change whatever sterling they get into dollars, as they can buy more food, raw materials and manufactured goods from the United States and Canada.

But every pound so used means a $4 drain on the lines of credit, set up a year ago, which Britain herself must use to buy necessities. Already the American and Canadian loans are half spent and if dollars are used to buy other countries' purchases, British buying must be curbed.

More exports from Britain to the dollar area are the only alternative to heavy withdrawals on the loans and the February fuel crisis cost this country $200,000,000 in shipments abroad.

Even without the problem of currency conversion, the man-in-the-street faces the prospect of less semi-luxury and luxury buying. Machinery, food and raw materials are the first requirement from North America. Everything else will have to be trimmed to the bone.

Government spokesmen say no one knows exactly what burden the convertibility of sterling by foreign countries will place on Britain's dollar resources. Some officials predict it will be negligible.

No foreign currency will be able to convert into dollars all the sterling it earns by sales to Britain. Actually Britain has a favorable balance of trade with most non-dollar countries. In other words, most countries need more sterling to buy from Britain than they can earn from sales to this country.

Even if a particular country — say, Switzerland — earns extra sterling, that sum may never be converted into dollars. France may take payment in sterling for fine goods shipped to Switzerland, because France needs extra pounds to pay for British imports.

But Britain's aim everywhere will be to buy as little as possible and sell as much as possible. For the little pan that means less imported goods in the stores, a narrower range of products on which to spend his money.

Foresees Changes, Perhaps Even Great Ones in Education

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 28—(CP)—The report of the Royal Commission on Education will more than apply a coat of whitewash to the existing educational setup, Mr. Justice J. A. Hope, chairman of the commission, told the annual school trustees assembled here in convention last night.

Revealing that the commission hopes to produce a complete report by the end of this year, Mr. Hope said: "I can assure you there will be changes, perhaps even great changes, in every phase of education in the province if our recommendations are implemented . . . there must be equality of educational opportunity regardless of race, color or creed."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"There is," remarked Arthur the orator, "unofficial mayor" of Foster Ward. "A prime minister like village that Hinsonor Mayor Frank Folliwell, of the neighboring suburb of Belleville, handles himself on the cinder, cement, grass, or asphalt track at the approximate distance of 100 yards. Is that correct, men?" he asked his doughty dozen wardsides.

"Yeah, Art," came back the old school cry.

"There is also," continued the Foster Ward "chief magistrate," another rumor along the Row, that Hinsonor Frank, of the next-door hamlet, is desirous of donning trunks, shirt, and his inscribed sweater, and jousting with any knight of the track who dares to cross spikes with him. Is that correct, men?"

"Yeah, Art," came back the doughty dozen.

"Are we to let this challenge go unchallenged?" he demanded.

"Nay, Art," howled the husky henchmen.

"Who, then," he thundered, "will be the knight gallant who will take up the cudgels for the honor of dear old Foster Ward?"

"We don't know," mumbled the murmuring mymidons.

Art stepped down from the podium. He flung his official mallet into a half-filled fish-box.

"What are you," he shouted, "men or councillors. Someone has blemished the escutcheon of this community. We are told that we are a bevy of Coolidges; that we do not choose to run. Is that correct, men?"

"Yeah, Art," canted the cowering councillors.

"There must be some one in this fair hamlet of Foster who can lower the colors of this track-running official from the suburbs." "Mayor" Keagan repeated. "Never let it be said that dear old Foster lacked for a champion. Never let it be said that we shall let this deity go unanswered. What is your answer, men?"

The reclining recalcitrants leaned back on their haunches. Tonsils were bared. Teeth slithered back, upper and lower. Then in stentorian tones came the famous battle cry of Foster Ward:

"Higgledy Horde, Higgledy Horde, we're the men of Foster Ward.

We're not rough, we're not tough,

But we're determined, that's enough.

Rah, Rah, Rah F-O-S-T-E-R!"

"Mayor" Keagan rapped for order. "That's the spirit, men. That's tellin' 'em. And just for that I'll uphold the honor of dear old Foster. It's a long while since I outran kangaroos in Australia; it's been years since I ran jack-rabbits to death in the wilds of Sumatra. But there's strength in the old dogs yet. Am I correct, men?"

"Yeah, Art," yessed the yesmen.

Whereat the mighty "mayor" of Foster smote himself such a blow on the chest he fractured seven ribs, severed his braces, broke his belt, and brulsed both clavicles.

And so, all that is now necessary is the completion of plans for this mighty binge of the Jamboree Master Folliwell's consent. The ankle-amblings is expected to take place during Old Home Week. Foster Ward is all agog, and every man in the ghetto is around 7-5 for their champion.

Brother Jonathan was far from satisfied last Friday night when Hy Lee, the stratospheric wrestling Eiffel Tower from the Ozark Mountains obtained a more or less decisive decision over him. The tough little Mormon growled his disgust through his whiskers and immediately went after Manager Walt Grewe of the International Arena for a re-match. So emphatic was he that Grewe could do nothing else than accede to his request.

So back again they come on Friday next. "That big so-and-so" that is the Mormon elder's idea of cuss-words, "won't get away with the same things that he did last week." the Brother predicted. And from the look on his shrubbaged face, he meant what he said.

In fact the entire card is a re-match of all the principals of last week's show. Ben Sharpe and the villainous Strangler Bob Wakner will tear at one another in the semi-final while Pat Flanagan and Ken Kenneth will again raise the curtain with another of their sparkling preliminaries. Last week's card was one of the best seen here in many a moon and the one coming up Friday should be as good if not better, because the Brother is definitely out for revenge for that defeat and so also by the 200 pound gent from the Ozarks. "Twill be a good night's entertainment.

Dave Castilloux, Montreal's fistic ace checked into Toronto Sunday evening and went through his training paces here yesterday before a large crowd of curious fans which included a goodly number of sports scribes.

Castilloux's form verified Montreal reports that he has already had over a month's preparation for next Monday's scheduled battle against "Lil Arthur" King, for the former triple title holder handed his sparring partners with ease and seemed in top form.

Qualifying Trials For the Classic Nearly Completed

(By The Canadian Press)

The famed Indianapolis racing oval looked like main street at rush hour as drivers flocked to the track to run off qualifying trials for the 500-mile classic here Friday.

With 33 places to be filled, 15 cars so far have met the starting requirements of a 10-mile run at an average of 115 miles an hour or better. Forty-eight drivers have filed entries.

Edward J. (Big Ed) Konetchy, 62, who played 1,993 games as a first baseman in the National League and later slugged 41 homers in a single season for Fort Worth of the Texas League, died at Fort Worth yesterday. While playing for Brooklyn, he took part in a 26-inning game which still stands as the longest in baseball.

Jet Pilot, winner of the Kentucky Derby, won't be around for the Belmont Stakes Saturday. Scratching of Elizabeth Arden Graham's campaigner left Faultless the Preakness winner, heavy favorite to take the race.

Staid Scots are still talking about Smiley Quick's bad temper as he smashed his putter to splinters and stomped off the green at Carnoustie after missing a three-foot putt that cost him his British amateur gold match against fellow-American Ted Bishop. Veterans who had seen every championship in Scotland since 1908 said they could not recall a similar outburst.

While a capacity house loudly disapproved, Jackie Phillips, British Empire featherweight champion, won the vacant European featherweight title by defeating Ray Famechon of France on a foul in the eighth round of a scheduled 15-rounder.

The touring South African cricketers staved off a last-ditch rally by Glamorganshire's tailend batsmen to win by an innings and 131 runs. Yorkshire and Lancashire drew their county match as Yorkshire needed 44 runs with five wickets standing when stumps were drawn.

Toronto Maple Leafs, tail-enders in the International League, trounced Watertown of the Class C Border League 25-3 in an exhibition game.

back from eight months in the Scottish Hockey League, 50 Ontario juniors were high in their praise of the smooth hockey ice surfaces—but they'll settle for the Canadian version. Many of them will graduate to faster company next year but Claude Kewley, who organized their trip, says other Canadians will replace them next year.

BUFFALO BISONS SLOWLY MOVING UP IN LEAGUE

Defeat Royals 10-3 Behind Smart Pitching of Clem Hausmann

(By The Associated Press)

Buffalo Bisons are slowly moving up in the International League standings and if their promising hurling staff rounds into its expected form, there's no telling how far Manager Paul Richards' hard-hitting crew will go from their present sixth place spot.

The Bisons' main trouble so far has been the ineptness of their pitchers. Although they possess such promising young hurlers as Lou Kretlow, Billy Pierce and Hank Perry, Buffalo pitchers have gone the distance only 12 times in 52 games.

Clem Hausmann, former big league hurler, showed youngsters a few things last night by pitching the Bisons to a 10-3 victory over the defending champion Montreal Royals.

Hausmann limited the Royals to five hits while his mates pumped out Ery Palica and Roland Marquardt.

Outfielder Cooker Triplett of the Bisons led the attack by batting in four runs on two doubles and a single to bring his total to 12 hits in his last 18 times at bat. The Giants absorbed an 8-1 lacing at the hands of Baltimore Orioles. Veteran Ray Poat scattered 10 Giants hits with Jack Graham's homer accounting for the lone run.

In the remaining games, Syracuse Chiefs battered Newark Bears, 11-3 as Herman Wehmeier stopped the Bears with three safeties.

LOUIS SAYS '48 WILL BE LAST YEAR IN RING

Will Stick to Exhibitions as There is No Challenger in Sight

Salt Lake City, May 28 (AP)—Joe Louis says that 1948 will be his last year of boxing.

The heavyweight champion made the statement yesterday during a discussion of why he has turned down some fight offers recently.

He said there isn't a competitor anywhere right now who will draw a big-time gate, but he believes an able fighter will develop by 1948 to challenge his title.

"But whether there is or not," he added, "I'm not going beyond 1948. That's my last year of boxing."

The champ said he thinks he'll stick to fighting exhibitions for a while until the real thing, in the way of money, comes along, since he has to spend as much as $62,000 in training for a title bout.

Louis made that explanation today in telling why he turned down some fight offers lately. He phrased the question that most sportsmen have asked when it comes to competition for the champ when he said: "Who is there to fight?"

Louis can get all kinds of fights that will gross about $300,000 but there isn't one that will draw the big money," he explained.

"As a result," he said, "I'm just going to go along fighting exhibitions. I can make more money on exhibitions than I can on any title fights. Why on the six-week trip to South America we picked up £200,000. On these exhibitions we don't have long training periods and the heavy expense of preparing for a fight.

Sterling Mound Performances By Second-Line Hurlers Make Detroit Strong Flag Contender

Benton Whips Bobby Feller and Increases Tigers' Lead to Four Games

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

American League batsmen are nominated "Please stay away from my door," today—and with good reason.

Detroit Tigers' pitching has simply been poison to enemy batters this season.

Rival managers were hopeful that once they got by Hal Newhouser, "Dizzy" Trout, Virgil Trucks and Freddy Hutchinson they might have an easier time with the so-called second-line hurlers but it simply hasn't worked out that way at all.

The "second stringers" have proven to be tougher to beat than the regulars. In fact, of the six decisions registered by secondary pitchers Hal White, Stubby Overmire and Al Benton, only one has gone against them. Benton leads the entire Tiger staff with three wins against no defeats.

Benton whipped Cleveland Indians 4-3 yesterday. His triumph came over Bobby Feller and increased the Tigers' first-place lead in the American League to four full games. George Kell was the chief Detroit offender, getting three straight singles. He drove in three runs and scored the other.

Chicago Cubs took over first place in the National League last night when they inflicted the first night defeat of the season on St. Louis Cardinals 10-3, while New York Giants were bowing to Brooklyn at the Polo Grounds 7-3.

Lefty Bob Chipman gained his third win over the Cardinals, scattering 11 hits. His batterymate, Bob Scheffing, led the Cub assault with three safeties and drove in three runs.

Ralph Branca had one of his good nights, holding the Giants to seven hits and striking out 10. The crowd of 51,780 fans was the largest ever to witness a National League night game. The big blow of the game was Pee Wee Reese's three-run home run losing pitcher Dave Koslo.

Johnny Sain gained his fourth victory of the season for Boston as the Braves took a 7-5 decision from Philadelphia Phillies.

Glen Russell's first home run of the season with two mates aboard enabled Boston Red Sox to snap a four-game losing streak and stop Philadelphia Athletics' run of night game victories at seven. The homer gave the Sox a 4-3 triumph before 23,843 fans at Philadelphia.

Washington snapped a five-game Yankee winning streak, overcoming a 4-0 Yankee lead to defeat the New Yorkers in a night game at Washington, 7-4.

Lanky Ewell Blackwell, rated by many as the best pitcher in the National League, gave Pittsburgh four hits as Cincinnati romped to a 5-1 victory over the Pirates.

Young Cliff Fannin shut out Chicago White Sox with three hits as Br. Louis Browns split with the Chicagoans. After Bob Gillespie pitched the Browns to a 5-3 win, Fannin came back to shut out the White Sox 2-0.

KIWANIS JUNIORS SHUT OUT 6-0 BY AIRFORCE CREW

Dunning, First-Sacker for Winners, Poles Homer With Bases Loaded

With tall Al. Wada, their ace right-hander throwing for a hit ball, the Trenton Flyers' 1947 edition baseball team started off the season auspiciously at the Air Alemite Field last night, shutting out the Kiwanis Juniors by a 6-0 score over a seven-inning route.

Dunning a newcomer, who has all the earmarks of a good baseball player, knocked the bottom out of what appeared to be a close pitching duel between Wada and Bobby Bunton, Juniors' righthander, in the third when he realized a baseball player's dream and poled out a towering home run to right field with the bases loaded. The quick first-sacker like wise got a double and a walk and batted in three runs with that bat.

Flyers added another in the 5th and that was the end of Bunton. Seamark, a southpaw, relieved him and yielded one run and one hit in the two innings he worked.

Juniors couldn't solve Wada's delivery when he served. He struck out twelve and the three clouts he yielded, a double by Jackie Wardhaugh who was promptly caught napping off the bag a second too later and the others singles by Bobby Strachan and Ken Seaman were well scattered. He walked two.

Bunton Hit Hard

Bunton was touched for four of the winners' five safeties, two of them Dunning's game-buster and a double and triple by Bridgeman and Hurtick. Bridgeman got his second clout of the' game off the southpaw delivery Seamark.

All the damage was done in the disastrous fourth. Bunton forced Wada to ground out and hit Hurtick. Bridgeman poled out a single to right field and Marietta got a life when the throw to the Juniors' first baseman was wide. That populated the bags and then it happened. Dunning picked out a high fast Bunton ball and parked it into the wild blue yonder far over Seamark's head in right field for a home run.

Errors Fave Way

Two Junior errors paved the way for the fifth run in the fifth innings while Bridgeman's hit, a base on balls and a hit by pitcher was responsible for their final 6th innings marker.

Juniors attempted to stage a rally in the fourth when Wardhaugh got to third base after stopping a Wada shoot with his body, a hit by Seamark and a free pass to Hank Reeves. But Wada bore down to strike out the next two batters and retire the side. Wardhaugh got in scoring position in the sixth after lashing out a double, but Wada's quick throw to the bag caught the junior third baseman napping.

Dunning paced the Flyer hit parade with his homer and double while Bridgeman got a pair.

ORPEN INTERESTS AND HORSEMEN COME TO TERMS

Dufferin and Long Branch Will Both Operate This Spring

Toronto May 28 (CP)— The big dispute over minimum purses between the Ho.semen's Benevolent Protective Association and Canadian Race-Track operators appeared all settled today except for the Hamilton Jockey Club.

The Horsemen started with demands for a minimum purse of $1,500 at the Toronto track, and after the dispute resulted in cancellation of the Greenwood Racing Clubs meeting at Woodbine Park, agreement was reached on a compromise os $1,350 minimum permitting regular operation of the Toronto Jockey Club meet at Woodbine and the Thorncliffe track in Toronto.

Then late yesterday it was announced that agreement had been reached with the Orpen tracks, Dufferin and Long Branch, for a minimum. Dufferin will operate one week from June 4 to 11, and Long Branch from June 14 to 21. In the case of these tracks the ruling was over the announced intention of the Orpen interests to run straight weeks at Dufferin in the spring and two at Long Branch in the fall.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JOHN SIFTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 28 — (CP) — From Thunder Bay to the Rockies baseball fat Western Canada seems headed for its biggest and best season in years but the sport is not without supporters who take time out to utter a word of warning.

Among these is Murray (Moose Jaw Times-Herald) Brown, who noting that the post-war revival is spreading like a prairie fire, fears it eventually will die a natural death unless the game is organized properly.

He advocates a great deal more organization in its business than it now has and . . . unless some action — a provincial baseball association in Saskatchewan for example — is taken "the chances are the baseball bubble which is presently being inflated may burst prematurely, dealing the game a blow from which it may never recover."

When Turk Brock quits Toronto to Leafs, to the gratification of other National Hockey League teams, he'll probably become the proprietor of a bowling alley in his native Brandon. Krug (Brandon Sun). Crawford reports he hears Turk and his brother Phil, are planning going into the business together. Joe Cooper, New York Rangers player, already has obtained a building permit for a new alley in the north-end Winnipeg.

ONLY ONE HIGH-TEST GASOLINE GIVES YOU THIS BIG PLUS!

SMOOTHER HIGH-TEST ACTION than any other gasoline!

HERE'S WHY: ALL gasolines (including Sunoco Dynafuel) are composed of "light" and "heavy" molecules. As the gasoline goes into the cylinders from the carburetor, some of the "heavy" molecules separate from the rest of the gasoline and go to certain cylinders which get most of the "heavy" molecules while other cylinders get mostly "light" molecules.

IN OTHER GASOLINES the "heavy" molecules are low in octane quality but the "light" molecules are high octane. The cylinders receiving a few grade "heavy" molecules do not receive the same high knockless quality as other cylinders.

IN SUNOCO DYNAFUEL, all molecules both "heavy" and "light" are high octane power. No matter whether a cylinder receives "light" or "heavy" molecules, each cylinder and all cylinders receive uniformly high knockless quality.

DYNAFUEL'S UNIFORM POWER IN EVERY CYLINDER GIVES YOU A SWEETER-RUNNING CAR

JUST TRY ONE TANKFUL—THAT'S ALL WE ASK!

CHAPTER 26

Penny was so thunderstruck with the possibilities of such a thing happening that she sat down on the front lawn and gave the matter several minutes of deep thought. Penny decided something had to be done about it. At least she meant to find out how Miss Lorraine and her father felt about each other.

The next day quite innocently Penny looked up from a little rug she was weaving and asked Gay:

"Do you like my father?"

Gay said quickly, smiling: "Do I like your father? Aren't you putting it a little mildly, darling? I love your father. He is one of the best friends I've ever had. You should be very proud of him, Penny. He is one of the finest men that ever lived."

That left no doubt in Penny's mind then her father stood as high as possible in Miss Lorraine's opinion. The girl went on with her weaving a moment, then said again with the innocence of a child:

"Don't you think he'd make a wonderful husband for some nice woman?"

Gay looked amused, nodding her red head.

"I should think a man like your father would make a perfect husband."

"I never could understand my mother," Penny sighed. "How she could go away from my father and marry all those silly men. I guess she just didn't appreciate him. I'll bet she's sorry."

"I'm sure she is," Gay wanted to change the subject. "How are you coming along with your rug?"

"Fine," Penny held it up for inspection. "I think my father is falling in love with somebody," the child looked at her rug closely.

Gay assumed Penny had sensed that Curt was in love with April. She said guardedly:

"That would be nice for him. Wouldn't it? I think we've been the home of a needy child long enough with the innocence of a child."

Gay accomplished a great deal for one day. When her father came home she followed him to his room settling herself on the arm of his chair when he sat down to relax a few moments with a cocktail before taking a shower and changing his clothes for dinner.

"Daddy," Penny snuggled close to him, kissing his cheek. "Do you like Miss Lorraine?"

Curt smiled. "Why I don't know how we ever got along without her around here. Gay is one of the most wonderful women who ever lived, darling. She's a very lucky girl."

Penny smiled to herself. Again looking the picture of innocence she sighed:

"Wouldn't it be wonderful if Miss Lorraine had a nice husband? She's so beautiful and she loves children so much. It would be a shame if she had to be an old maid, wouldn't it, Daddy?"

Curt hugged his daughter, amused. "Bless you, Gay, you wouldn't have to be an old maid. If she did happen to be, it would be my choice. Almost any man would be happy to have a wife like Gay."

"Any man?" Penny put her warm little cheek to his. "Does that mean you too, Daddy?"

Curt De Witt stiffened. Penny leaned back and looked at him, her big dark eyes filled with questioning.

"Would you marry her, Daddy, if she loved you? Would you?"

Curt said strangely: "Penny — what does all this mean?"

Penny's eyes filled. She buried her face in her father's shoulder and said in a choked little voice: "Oh, Daddy I love her so! I'm afraid if you don't marry her she'll marry somebody else and I'd be so unhappy without her. You — you do love her, don't you, Daddy?"

Curt De Witt held his child closely. His heart a storm of emotions. Marry Gay! Why of course! That was the answer to what had been in the back of his mind for weeks. He had been falling in love with Gay.

Then he was smitten with the fear that Gay might not feel the same way about him. Suppose he had been in love with April and Gay would refuse. There was a long silence, while Penny waited breathlessly for her father to speak. Finally he said gently:

"Would it make you very happy to have Gay for your mother, darling?"

"Oh yes! I—I'd die with happiness, Daddy. Oh, Dad!"

Curt kissed her: "Then we'll see if she'll have us, Penny. I'll ask her tonight after dinner. But you mustn't be disappointed if she refuses, Gay has a lot of pride, you know."

Penny cried joyfully:

"Oh no she won't, Daddy! She loves you with all her heart. I know. I can tell. I'm phychic about those kind of things. You'll see!"

A week later April came home from the hospital, and Dr. Malcolm had listed another medical miracle on his records to puzzle over. April Lind Hillyer had put her feet on the floor six days after the cast had been removed from her leg, and taken three steps.

For awhile she would spend most of her time in a wheel chair. But she was to be permitted to try every day until she was able to take the walk to the altar that had been the goal in her heart for so long.

Dr. Malcolm had shaken his white head, perplexed, and said wonderingly:

"I don't understand it. It's incredible!"

But April had smiled dazedly and reminded him:

"Oh but you see I had to walk. So much happiness depended upon it—Hillyer Kenny's and mine. I had to."

When Gay learned that Hill and April were to be married the first of September she and Curt had planned, she decided the most wonderful wedding in the world would be a double one at Pennyhaven. A quiet affair with only the immediate families present. Curt agreed with her.

April couldn't understand why she hadn't realized all along that Gay was meant for Curt, and not herself. It was all so very clear now. Of course Gay had been in love with him for months, but would have gone on hiding her feelings for the rest of her life because April was her best friend.

The night before the double wedding, Hill moved his belongings from his room across and the street back to his old home. April who still walked slowly and painfully, but was growing more certain of herself every day, helped him put them back in their old places.

There was his comb and military brushes and other toilet things back on the chiffrobe, and his pajamas and robe hanging on the bathroom door. Large bed room slippers snuggled beside her small ones just inside the closet door.

Kenny watched all the strange going on with blue eyes that danced with excitement and joy. It was a little hard to understand, but tomorrow Mommy and Daddy were going to be dressed very much alike.

Tomorrow night his beloved Daddy was coming home to sleep in his own room, beside Mommy. Mommy had said so.

Only one thing puzzled Kenny. Mommy wasn't going to be a radio star anymore. She was going to be a clinging vine. What was a clinging vine?

Well whatever it was, it must be something very nice. So he wasn't going to worry about it. Everything was all right.

Duck Hunting By "Flyways" Is Recommended

Denver, May 28 (AP)—Management of duck hunting by "flyways" from Canada to the south is one of the many-wide revolutions in the United States was recommended yesterday by representatives of conservation and game administrators attending a meeting here will life conference here.

C.N. Feast, director of the Colorado Game and Fish Department, explained that control by "flyways" was deemed necessary because of differing problems in the areas.

A majority also voted to split the duck season if a curtailment is necessary and to reduce the bag limit if needed. The votes were advisory only.

Under the split season plan, an early season would be held for pond and lake shooters and a later season for "river and corn-field" hunters.

Two officials said that a critical situation exists for all migratory birds, particularly ducks and geese. The number of ducks has thrown from 125,000,000 in 1944 to 54,000,000 this year, they reported. The number a year ago was estimated at 80,000 000.

Drought in the nesting areas of Canada and increased pressure of hunting were cited as the chief causes of the decline.

Because of this sharp drop in numbers, they said, efforts must be made to preserve sufficient ducks for breeding stock when conditions become better. They said this probably will be accomplished by shortening the hunting season and tightening regulations.

Judge H.S. Mott Tells of Probate Court in Toronto

Members of the Kiwanis Club enjoyed an address given by Judge H. S. Mott of the Juvenile and Family Court, Toronto, at the weekly luncheon held at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday. In charge of the Juvenile Court for many years, Judge Mott was able to tell some interesting facts of how care and foresight had helped some young boy along the pathway of life into full manhood. He spoke on the "Treatment of the Offender" and expressed his belief that courts in some future time would be eliminated and in their place would appear Probate Courts.

"All countries have a yardstick by which they are measured" said Judge Mott after being capably introduced by A. B. Collins and he referred to Greece, always remembered for her beauty and philosophy. Home for her power and leadership and Canada will be remembered when the history of the country is written by the method of dealing with the offender. The speaker explained how the guilty were found in the olden days and outlined the progress of law through the ages. He explained that in 1908 the Dominion government enacting a law to deal with children made one of the finest laws of any country. The government decreed that a child offender must be called a delinquent, which is a misguided and misdirected individual.

Established in 1921

Progressing from that start the Ontario government passed in 1920 a law forming a Family Court, which allowed families to air their differences without appearing in open court. There are only four or five of these courts in the Province" stated the speaker, "but they have certainly proved their worth." He outlined the functions of the Toronto court stating there was a large staff and nearly 2 hundred visit the court. "This court always bears in mind the sad idea when a man has a problem to solve that he tell it to some one else or talk to himself out loud, you can always understand a passage of a book if you will read it aloud," said the speaker.

"In this court we straighten out" remarked the speaker. At this point a number of interesting stories were told to illustrate the point. The speaker claimed that women should be the security and both the man and wife must share all the security that the one give and the man must show appreciation of his wife in order that the home continues strong and true. "Some men come home, eat their dinner and become engrossed in a book without showing any appreciation. Wail that man never got home, he is just a boarder," stated the speaker.

Judge Mott claimed for the most interesting and instructive and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Eddie Logan, Jack White presided at the luncheon with Vic White as song leader and Harold Carruthers as sergeant-at-arms. Bill Navin presided at the piano for the community sing song.

Probate Court "the test of good that is there and to see it it will come out" in any person that is brought before it. The old saying of "You must punish to correct" is absolutely false because the good in a person cannot be brought out by continual punishment but reason and help will go a long ways. His address was

Russians Accuse Hungarian Premier Of Complicity

Say He And Others Tried To Overthrow Government

Budapest, May 29 (AP)—A high Hungarian source said today that the Russians, in an official note had accused Prime Minister Ferenc Nagy and two other officials of complicity in a recent plot to overthrow Hungarian "Democracy."

This informant identified the two other officials as foreign minister Janos Gyongyosi and Bela Varga, speaker of the House.

All three men are members of the anti-Communist smallholders party.

A government announcement May 14 said Nagy would leave that day for a three-week vacation in Switzerland and that deputy Premier Matyas Rakosi, a Communist, would be left in charge. Private sources in Budapest said Nagy probably would stay longer than three weeks.

The government announcement followed by two days reports that Nagy was planning to leave for Switzerland and Paris to "talk off some Communist-inspired "crisis" in his coalition government.

No End Sugar Rationing In Sight Says Abbott

Ottawa, May 29 (CP)—Abandonment of sugar rationing is "out of the question for some time to come," Finance Minister Abbott said in the Commons.

Answering questions asked previously by John J. Pidgeon (PC, Lake Centre), about heavy sugar stocks in Canada, Mr. Abbott said the reason for the large stocks was that Canada had been receiving substantial shipments from Cuba.

However, these shipments would not change Canada's annual allocation under the world sugar pooling arrangement. The Dominion had to take shipments when and as the world obtain them.

He said Canada's allocation this year would be about 80 pounds per capita, which would be three pounds above last year's allotment, but 10 pounds under prewar per capita consumption.

Mr. Diefenbaker pressed for increased quantity, pointing out that sugar stored in Canada, saying he understood storage facilities were overtaxed, and Mr. Abbott said he would attempt to obtain the figures.

Upturned Canoe Found in Search For Missing Men

Peterborough, Ont., May 29 (CP)—An upturned canoe was found in nearby Pigeon Lake today by Provincial Police and fishermen searching for two Hamilton men missing since Sunday. Identified as the craft owned by E. A. Scallin, 39, and his son Ralph, 24, police now believe the two fishermen were drowned while returning to Grape Creek to their camp during Sunday's rainstorm.

The men arrived here Saturday and were last seen about noon near Nogies Creek when they attempted to purchase fishing bait.

The men arrived at Pigeon Lake one of the upper lakes—on Saturday for a weekend fishing and were last seen at Grape Creek Sunday afternoon at five o'clock when they attempted to purchase some bait.

An inquest yesterday quieted a tent located a heavily wooded island on Pigeon Lake and the men's boat nearby. The lake is not deep but heavy waves are always whipped up by the wind in the lake.

The area being combed by police and fishermen is heavily wooded on both sides of the Nogies Creek section of the Pigeon Lake are being combed.

Duke of Windsor Calls on Attlee

London, May 29 (AP)—Government sources said the Duke of Windsor called on Prime Minister Attlee unexpectedly today in the course of a 40-minute conversation explored the possibilities of receiving a colonial appointment.

Government sources did not say whether Attlee offered the Duke an appointment.

They revealed, however, that the Prime Minister told the Duke that his last post there was no job for him in the Labor Government's colonial administrative machine.

The Duke at that time was reported to have asked Attlee for a job as governor of some British territory where climate conditions would suit the health of his wife the former Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

During the war the Duke was governor of the Bahama Islands. He resigned after his wife's health began to be affected by the tropical weather.

SPEED-UP SEEN IN IMMIGRATION BY PREMIER DREW

More Shipping Space Will Be Announced Shortly by Ministry Of Transport

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 29 — (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario, a few hours before his return to Canada, today predicted that a speed-up in immigration will be coming from Great Britain and the continent will be possible this year and hinted that the Ministry of Transport will soon announce a greater allocation of shipping space than was originally intended.

Elsewhere it was learned that negotiations are proceeding between the Canada government and the ministry, though Canada House, to have the Cunard liner Aquitania left indefinitely on the Southhampton-Halifax run, but a decision has not yet been reached.

Interviewed by The Canadian Press in the London office of the Agent-general for Ontario, Maj. F. S. Armstrong, Mr. Drew said immier said his brief visit to the United Kingdom and the continent had been "most satisfactory."

Shipping will continue to be the bottleneck in immigration for some months, he said, but he believe decisions soon will be announced which will make it possible for a larger number to come to Canada this year than was originally anticipated.

"The information I have is definite," he said, "coming from the Ministry of Transport."

During his call the premier interviewed transport ministry, shipping company and immigration executives with a view to learning travel prospects.

Witness Receives 'Warning' Call

Montreal, May 29 (CP)—One of the witnesses in a case against four men received "warning" telephone call at 4 a.m. yesterday.

The witness, mother of three children, lives in the southwest Point St. Charles, was told by the caller to "wise up or you'll get the same evidence again. If you do things will happen to you, and you know what I mean."

Arrested and charged with conspiracy to murder are Frank Holmes, Thomas Holmes, Hughie Hughes and Frank Gallo. They are scheduled to appear in police court today for a voluntary statement.

The woman receiving the attempted call appeared at the preliminary hearing of the four accused. She testified briefly she and her companion allegedly were made friends with the men in a Central St. Catherine Street food cafe on the afternoon of June 6 Charles Homes in one of the men's automobile and were taken to a rendezvous where they got assaulted before being released.

Bevin Accuses Left-Wingers Of Stabbing Him in Back

Margate, Kent, England, May 29— (CP) — Foreign Secretary Bevin won an almost unanimous vote of confidence in his administration of British foreign affairs from the Labor party's annual conference today.

Scarcely more than a score of the 1,200 delegates voted for resolutions critical of Bevin's foreign policy. The vote was by a show of hands and no official count was taken.

The endorsement followed a 90-minute speech in which Bevin accused Left-Wing Labor members of participation of stabbing him in the back while he was engaged in important discussions with the United States government.

"The day I was driving a good agreement with America to keep the bread ration from going down was the day I was stabbed in the back by a Labor House (of Commons)," Bevin declared.

He did not specify what House action he referred to or the date.

Discussing the Middle East he said: there seemed to be many suggestions that Britain should give up her power over her possessions and throw them into a pool. But Britain will not go on doing indefinitely as she did not feel the Commonwealth would go along with her in this respect.

Warning against too much preoccupation with European problems, Bevin declared "Korea is still a very grave danger spot — and so is much of the Far East as anything in Europe." He added that future world peace would "depend to a very large extent on the solution of the Indian problem."

The whole Asiatic world is undergoing such tremendous change that it will have to handled with the greatest possible care.

"If the countries of the world spend all their time watching Europe, "we may not see the danger" in Asia, he said.

Opponents of a "too close" alliances between British and the United States earlier had launched a heavy attack an Bevin's policies.

Konni Zilliacus, outspokenly pro-Russian Labor parliamentary opposition, led off by moving approval of a resolution, the longest yet presented to the conference which urged close co-operation between Britain and Russia.

"We believe that subservience to capitalist interests in the world today draw us into an anticipated slump and that the only way to avoid this is by co-operation with Socialist economies," the resolution said.

Although several other Labor rebels against Bevin's policies spoke in support of the motion, party leaders expressed confidence that Bevin would win.

COMMONS CASTS SHARP EYE ON BUDGET CHANGES

House Upholds Ruling That 2 Cent Tax On Soft Drinks Could Not be Debated

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa May 29 (CP)—Budget proposals for changes in excess profits and income taxes came under the sharp eye of the Commons yesterday but went through the preliminary stages of parliamentary approval with little altercation.

The work was done in committee of ways and means, which permits broader question-and-answer examination than in the House proper. Finance Minister Abbott and the Chamber quickly gave its approval to resolutions dealing with excise levies and the war-induced excess profits tax.

The House bogged down later, however, when it came to the proposed changes in income tax regulations and opposition speakers held the floor in the evening sitting as they advanced various suggestions which they felt would better the position of the taxpayer.

The discussion carried the House into its third formal sitting session in two days when the membership voted 139 to 49 to support committee ruling that Speaker Marcdonald in a ruling that the muchcriticized two-cent tax on soft drinks could not be debated at the current stage of budget legislation.

The budget chit-chat drew several Conservative and state ments from Mr. Abbott.

COMMONS CASTS—Page 4

Difficulty Over Clause.

Adam Scott, district secretary-treasurer, said the trouble arose over a clause in the conciliation agreement drawn up in Montreal last week at a conference which paved the way for the end of the strike.

The clause read: "During the first six months of the agreement various matters affecting production, and brought up at this conference, will be dealt with and fully discussed."

Mr. Scott said the company was putting into effect changes which it said it had agreed to during the first six months of the contract which ends May 31, 1948. He said the company had taken away "certain rates and privileges" which it had given two years standing."

The dispute was "the dismissing of older employees and placing them on probation," when they were capable of doing a fair day's work, Mr. Scott said the union had "bitterly opposed."

There was no comment from company officials on the latest turn in the situation which cropped up after ratification of the return to work yesterday following acceptance of an agreement. Existing them wage increases of 8½ cents an hour strike basic rates of $5.84 a day.

The R.C.A.F. air-sea rescue unit at Halifax reported picking up a wireless message from the Rockwood Park today concerning the safety of the eight crew members.

Mr. d'Entremont said the United States Coast Guard cutter Legare was en route to the L.G.P. in an attempt to salvage her. The Gloucester cutter Legare had escorted the vessel sinking fast with only one foot of the starboard side of her black hull remaining out of water.

Main Defences Must be on Arctic Frontier if Another War Breaks

Washington, May 29 (AP). — The United States army believes that if there is another war its main defences must be "on the Arctic frontier."

Without naming any possible enemy nation, Gen. Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the army air forces, told the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee during hearings on the 1948 army budget bill, now before the House floor today.

He "very strongly" believes that ...we had continually in mind the concept of the Arctic frontier. While none of us, of course, knows when war may come, we can with reasonable assurance tell from whence it will come.

"We are of a scale of magnitude adversely to affect the United States must be composed of two primary elements—a large population which can produce the men and a vast industrial resource for the production of weapons."

Spaatz told the committee that, regardless of where the next war comes, "the enemy will aim the most certainly be fired on the United States" and that attacks, either by heavy bombers or guided missiles, "will hit the United States and do terrific damage."

Decries Trend of Youth to Ask More And More Social Security

Peterborough, May 29 (CP)—Speaking before the Kawartha Police Association here last night, Mr. W. J. Stewart, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare, declared there is a tendency on the part of the younger people to demand more and more social security.

"Growth of the tendencies of today," he said, "is to depend upon the government. Many people, and there are a great number of them, have the facilities but they would rather depend on the government. There is, in my mind, a need for more self-reliance and statesmanship.

"We shall always give public assistance to those in need, but no one should be afraid to ask for it. I don't like the principle under which the present old age pensions are paid because it doesn't contribute to initiative or a sense of thrift.

"We can't legislate that anyone who is able-bodied and willing, being unable to get all the necessities of life.

"We should have social security on a contributory basis, implemented without delay to take care of our older citizens.

HIGHWAY FLOODED AT MASSASAGA

Heavy rains of the past few days have filled marshes of the surrounding district to road level and in some instances the water has inundated the highway.

The Picton-Belleville highway that cuts through the Massasaga marshes was under water yesterday to a depth of three inches. Roads leading to Napanee from the south are also under water, due to flooding of creeks and marshes.

approval for his course by a large majority after he makes his reply.

Bevin was cheered when he took his place at the platform at the start of the foreign affairs debate, a highlight of the conference.

Zilliacus said modification of Britain's foreign policy as to smooth relations with Russia would make it possible to reduce the size of Britain's armed forces.

"It is going to be very difficult," he declared, "to convince the housewives and workers of this country that it is really necessary to put up with more austerity and hardship for the sake of maintaining forces abroad."

Richard H. S. Crossman, Labor member of parliament, called on the United States to employ dollars for the reconstruction of Europe and not in building up capitalism."

"It's time we laid the cards on the table with the Americans," he declared. "We should remind them that they ended lend-lease to us and continued it to their zone in Germany."

Regular Safety Inspections Urged by Speaker

Prince Edward county manufacturers and canning factory operators convened at the Globe Hotel in Picton on Wednesday evening in attendance at a sectional meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. Thirty-six persons, representing Prince Edward Industries, and representatives from Belleville and Deloro attended the meeting.

Guest speaker for the dinner meeting was George B. Stanton, personnel manager for Stephens-Adamson Mfg. plant at Belleville. He gave a very informative address on leadership in safety, stressing the fact that employees today cannot be driven but must be led in the proper direction.

Mr. Stanton pointed out the benefits to be had by plants in regular safety inspections and stated that manufacturers today are quoting no accident in establishing measures for the safety of employees.

A motion picture, "For Safety's Sake" demonstrating the proper use of hand power tools, was shown at the meeting.

General manager for Canadian Canners at Wellington, Mr. E. D. Millard, acted as chairman for the dinner meeting, while Don Baxter, Bloomfield, expressed appreciation to the guest speaker.

Representatives of sections of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association from Central Ontario will convene at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club on June 11, for a divisional meeting. It was announced at the meeting.

Montreal Used Car Dealers Comb P.E. County Fields

French-Canadian car dealers, said to originate from Montreal, were in Prince Edward county this week, apparently determined to make a clean sweep of all available used motor cars, according to reports today. Today, $10,000 changed hands in the six-hour period.

In a two-day combing of the used-car markets in the district, it is stated that sky-rocket prices were paid for the 1940 cars.

One Picton owner, who boasted a 1947 model, used only a few weeks, is said to have sold it for $2,700. Its original cost was $1,600. Another owner sold his car at a higher figure. He hurried to Trenton, bought another one, and on his return was offered $200 "for the deal" by the carbungry buyers. —

BOW OF BURNING TANKER BLOWN FROM SHIP

This striking aerial view shows members of the crew on the fiddley bow of the 10,000-ton U.S. oil tanker Newhall Hills, which caught fire off the Kent coast. The bow was blown off. It was abandoned, but later some of the crew went aboard to fight the fire. Lifeboats and rescue vessels had difficulty in finding the flaming ship which was enveloped in the heavy fog. One man was killed, but the remainder were rescued. The ship caught fire after a collision north of Dover Strait.

Salesman of Oil Company Travels The Modern Way--By Private Plane

SHRINERS' PRIESTESS

Elected grand high priestess for 1947-48 of the Ladies' Oriental Shrine of North America, which is holding its 33rd grand council session at Miami Beach, Fla., was Mrs. Harold Heal (Lady Eva Heal) of Bokara Court No. 22, Toronto, Ont. She is seen here at the National Hotel, Miami Beach, which is headquarters for the convention.

When the flaming red, streamlined Stinson Voyager monoplane flashed down out of sullen skies yesterday morning to the runway of the Belleville Flying Club at Mountain View, it heralded, perhaps a phase era in air travel.

In the past sales representatives of large companies like their brothers of the "satchel and trunk" travelled via train, automobile and earlier in horse and buggy.

So when Mr. Charles Jackson, aviation sales representative of the Imperial Oil Company Ltd., Toronto, stepped out of the trim craft, it marked the first time, in Belleville, at least, that one of his calling arrived "on call" in a plane.

The smart four-passenger aircraft is one of four now owned by the company, and is used especially by Mr. Jackson for calling on officials of private flying clubs as well as company branches.

46 Minutes From Toronto

A veteran flyer of World War II and of the districts in Northern Manitoba, Mr. Jackson, tall-less, and without a chute, smiled as he leaped to the ground. He looked at his watch and smiled. "Forty-six minutes ago, I was sitting in my office in Toronto. This method is not only a comfortable way to travel but also a great time-saver."

"Like to try it!" he asked those who greeted him.

Seconds later Mr. A. D. McLean, district manager of the company here, and this reporter were in the air zooming sharply until they reached the 2,500 foot level. Then the craft straightened away, its sleek lines cutting the low-flying cloudy scud. Far above sullen thunderheads rolled ominously, but Jackson deftly manoeuvred his craft in some cases the water was over the highway.

Then the plane bumped gently on the runway, and the thrill was over.

Private aviation is definitely a thing of the future, Mr. Jackson said. The youth of the coming generation will step into his private plane as nonchalantly as the present one does his father's car. At the present time there are 35,000 private planes in use in the United States while Canada has 800. Both figures are increasing rapidly each year.

Airports a Necessity

Private airports, naturally will be an important asset to municipalities, he said. "Not only from a pleasure standpoint, but from a business one as well. With metropolitan business executives rapidly coming into the private flying method of travel, these airports will not only become an asset but an actual necessity."

"In addition," Mr. Jackson went on, "with United States firms interested in the mineral industry in Canada, it will mean facilitation of travel and saving of time, for American business men and industrialists."

He was of the opinion that the present locale of the Belleville Flying Club is one of the best. "It has great possibilities, and the residents of the city as well as business and industry should get behind this project solidly."

Splendid Dance Program Given By Mart Kenny

Mart Kenny and his Western Gentlemen gave a delightful program of dance music at the Sports Hangar of the Trenton Air Station on Wednesday evening with a capacity crowd drawn from all points in the district being in attendance. The dance was sponsored by the Air Station Personnel and it was voted one of the best ever staged. The tables were assembled about the dance floor and many of the guests enjoyed refreshments. The orchestra was on a coast-to-coast tour having just returned from the Maritimes. The dance was informal and at the intermission refreshments were served in the Wintergarden, which has been added to the hangar since the war ended. The archestra gave a program of the latest dance music and Miss Sherma Locke, the vocalist, sang a number of choruses, which were thoroughly enjoyed. The band is composed of specialists on the several instruments used in the band and each of them featured in the evening rendered a solo. The jitterbugs present had their innings when each number was ended with a jive selection. A number of the older persons present were in their element in the waltz numbers.

DOUKHOBORS ESTABLISH NEW COMMUNITY ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

Story of British Columbia's Doukhobors, led by 82-year-old Mike Verigin, have set up a new colony at Hilliers, north of Nanaimo. The sect have renounced private ownership, not only of land and money, but of persons and families. Thus wife-sharing is in full swing at the colony where 80 men and 80 women live together on a rotational basis. Shown here is a typical Doukhobor woman baking bread in the old Russian fashion. Essentially Russian, 5,000 Doukhobors came to Canada in 1899.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CINDERELLA

Once upon a time there was a scrubwoman in Watford, England, who washed floors for 36 cents an hour, 8 hours a day. She resented stories about models and titled ladies who were called glamorous by newspapers. So Mrs. Sarah Walldock (right) wrote to one of them: "There's real loveliness in our little homes, but it's hidden under dust cups, mops and scrubbing brushes. I'll prove it." She hurried off to a beauty parlor early in the morning and then visited a dress shop. And when the clock struck twelve—Mrs. Walldock, the mother of three children, proved her point. At right you see the glamorous, finished job.

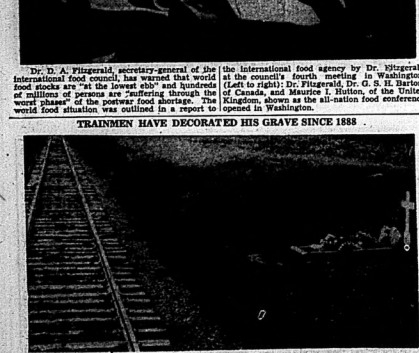
TRAINMEN HAVE DECORATED HIS GRAVE SINCE 1888



This Memorial Day, just like each Memorial Day since 1888, the crew of the Chicago and North Western Railway's train 106 will stop at Hirod, South Dakota, to place flowers on the lonely prairie grave of a 12-year-old boy known only as "The Little Fellow." "Big Bill" Chambers, conductor, became a close friend of the little boy whose parents worked with a railroad construction camp. When the boy became sick and died, he was buried along the right of way and Chambers visited the grave each Memorial Day as long as he was able. This year as usual the crew of train 106 will, at an unscheduled stop on the prairie, gather around the grave for a brief prayer and to place flowers in payment of a tribute to a friendship which grew from the fascination small boys have for railroading.

Holloway Street C.G.I.T. Girls Entertain Mothers

Candlelight and spring flowers formed a lovely setting for the annual C.G.I.T. Mother-and-Daughter banquet, in Holloway St. Church on Tuesday evening, which brought to a close a successful year's activities.

Jean Scott, on behalf of the C.G.I.T. welcomed everyone and proposed the toast to "The King", followed by one of the choruses proposed by Marilyn Canning. In responding to this toast, Mrs. R. E. Kilback referred to the church as a bank where we must deposit before we can draw out the many blessings it has to offer.

Toasts Proposed

Joan Walden proposed the toast to "Our Mothers." "The greatest influence in our lives. She drew attention to the many lessons taught indirectly by mothers who exemplify the qualities Jesus desired for us all and so lead their children to have a reverence for all things worthy. Mrs. F. A. Scott responded to this toast stressing the value of co-operation with the mother who has a great responsibility, next only to God with whom she is co-partner in the moulding of Christian character.

Mrs. Doig proposed the toast "The Daughter," hoping that each girl would live a life of loving service whatever vocation she might choose. Betty Woolley, responded saying it is enough to be a good daughter is a very hard task for us now which at the moment demands diligence and through religious education each girl may be fitted to make a worthy contribution.

Voices Appreciation

Lois Buck voiced the appreciation of the guests to the ladies of the W.M.S. who served the delicious meal.

After the repeating of the C.G.I.T. Purpose, Margaret Hillis led in a spirited sing-song with Anne Clare at the piano.

The denominational secretary, Doreen Mathews briefly reviewed the year's activities, stating that there are forty-five girls in the five Holloway St. Church groups. Scrapbooks for Sunpliad baskets for shut-ins, bales of food for Kagawa at Christmastime, and the Easter Study on India were among the projects mentioned.

Jean Doig, treasurer stated that the C.G.I.T. this year bought music for the Junior Choir contributing $25 to the new camp at Moira Lake, sent a girl to the one Presbyterial and bought a floor lamp for the church. A communage sale was held, proceeds being $62.

Mrs. A Hitchon told the girls about camp this year at "Hillcrest" near Concreon, July 29 to August 7th.

Group Leaders Introduced

Mrs. A. C. Campbell, superintendent, introduced the group leaders and paid tribute to the quality of leadership they had given throughout the year.

The leaders are—Ruth Lowther, Shirley Hitchon, Maude Burke, Vivian Dempsey, Barbara Dawson, Betty Gibson and Mary Potter.

Jean Scott expressed the thanks of the girls to Mrs. Campbell for her efforts during the year and presented her with a China brooch as a token of appreciation. A pleasant part of the program was the presentation of an aluminum tray to Mrs. R. McMurray, C.G.I.T. Mother. Barbara Rose told Mrs. McMurray of the esteem in which she is held by the girls and of how much the counsel and kindly chats mean to them. Mrs. McMurray replied saying she has been helped by so many in the church that she was always been glad to be able to help someone else in the Christian way of life.

Joyce Wiggins and Doreen Burkholder contributed a duet "Mother" accompanied by Mary Potter.

Camp Mother Guest Speaker

Guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. W. Lee of Foxboro, who was camp mother last year. Mrs. Sine spoke on what impressed her most deeply and lastingly at camp:

1. A short breakfast in the early dawn, which made her think of that early breakfast by Galilee, which Jesus had with some of His disciples and especially of Peter whom He commissioned to "Feed His Lambs".

"There is still much feeding of lambs."— Mrs. Sine continued, "and you girls are being fitted through the devoted, patient training of your leaders and teachers for the work just as Jesus trained His early followers."

"Yours is a great opportunity for the future of the church and of the world in the hands of the youth of today."

Mrs. Sine was introduced by Marion Nevery and thanked by Frances Thompson.

The singing of "Taps" in the Friendship Circle concluded this very inspiring evening of Christian fellowship; and the C.G.I.T. girls and their leaders are to be commended for the very fine manner in which it was conducted.

Future citizens of Canada are these Doukhobor children. "One person cannot hold another as his own," stated Joseph Podovinkoff, spokesman for the Doukhobors who have settled at Hilliers, B.C. He was referring to communal sharing system now being practised by the group.

BABY GOAT HAS TO QUIT KIDDING

Since he is just a kid, the little fellow at the right kept getting into so much mischief that the keeper at Chessington Zoo, Surrey, England, figured something had to be done about it. So "Sunshine," a patient and friendly big St. Bernard, has the job of keeping the kid from doing too much kidding in the future.

WOULD JAIL PARENTS

Vancouver, May 29 — (CP) — Mr. Justice A. M. Manson of the British Columbia Supreme Court believes that parents of children who do not go to church "should be jailed for delinquency."

Thirteen-year-old James F. Porter, called as a witness in the murder trial of Harry Medos, told the court yesterday he did not go to church.

"Well," said Mr. Justice Manson. "Your parents should be jailed for delinquency."

Porter was questioned by counsel for Medos, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Ethel Lee Hall.

Mr. Justice Manson added: "I'm not going to jail parents for choice with plains downward to $12. Hogs were steady at $22 for Grade A, $21.60 for B1. Sows $16.50 dressed. A few sheep ranged $5-$10. No early sales on sheep. Unsold from yesterday were 200 head of cattle. Receipts: cattle 20, calves 70, hogs 300, sheep and lambs 380.

SHORTAGE OF MINISTERS SHOWN BY ADVERTISEMENT

Toronto, May 29 (CP)—Shortage of ministers and assistant ministers in the United Church of Canada was indicated today when a classified advertisement in a Toronto newspaper sought an assistant for a London, Ont., charge, First-St. Andrew's.

As a rule advertisements are not placed in papers for ministers, a United Church official said. Sometimes they appeared in church papers but this was the first case that the official ever heard of one appearing in a newspaper.

Britain

A paragraph which appeared in the London Economist of exactly a century ago has been quoted by the Ottawa Journal as matching the view of some persons today as to the future of Britain. The words are:

"The awful predicament in which the country is now placed, and still more awful predicament into which it is fast hurrying, from causes over which human power can now exercise little or no direct control, render it the imperative duty of all to exert every effort of mind in order to avert, or at least to ameliorate, if possible, the disasters which impend over us."

But conditions at that time on May 8th, 1847, gloomy as they were, did not indicate disaster. Queen Victoria had been on the throne for ten years and during her reign British prestige throughout the world rose to great heights, making the era known as the Victorian period one of the greatest in British history. The disasters that looked so lowering in 1847 did not fall upon the British Isles. London became able to say in the later years of the decade 1842-1852 that they were years of "unexampled prosperity." British world trade expanded to previously unknown volume, art and literature flourished and the nation and reign the British Empire is considered to have become the greatest organization of peoples of the kind in world history.

Though Britain has been hit hard by weather conditions which have been very unfavorable and though these conditions come at a time when the British Isles like the rest of the world are striving to adjust themselves to the Second World War to the new era with its vast possibilities, despite this chain of events of recent months which make some people uneasy, the spirit of Britain has not changed and will not change. With such a national endowment as Britain possesses in the spirit of her people and in their ability to lead the world forward into the light of progress and development, with their gifts of leadership, developed through ages of upward growth and training of her people and her form of government, Britain will grow and rise to new heights of honor in the world.

British history has had its dark moments when the cloud seemed to threaten. When was there greater danger than in the summer of 1940 when Britain stood alone against the conquering hordes of Hitlerism? Yet that time is now remembered in a matchless phrase of England's great war leader and orator, Winston Churchill, as a time of "finest hour." The confidence in Britain was sound and it was this phrase he used, not in the days when there was less danger but in the time of very grave danger. He used the words when he said the eyes of the world were to be turned upon that time through their devotion and effort as their "greatest hour." That prophetic phrase inspired every Britain and the world responded to every call.

The years that lie ahead will be years in which the influence of Britain will be felt for the good of mankind everywhere. The coming years hold a future of great promise. There are those who are very sincere about the control of atomic energy, but Britain, as she has always been, will remain the protector.

Prime Minister Field Marshal Smuts of South Africa the other day gave expression to convictions which indicate how deeply he has appreciated the spirit of Britain, and how much dependence he places upon the security which British power gives the world. He sees in Britain the greatest guarantee of peace the world can possesses and has declared that Britain must regain and will regain her power in a short time. He admits the gravity of the present situation but sees British leadership returning in the interests of world security and progress.

The Once-Italian Colonies

Italy has applied for membership in United Nations, and diplomats at Lake Success are quoted as predicting that in due course the Italians will appeal for return to them of the African colonies they lost in the war. The fate of the colonies is not settled in the Italian peace treaty.

The suggestion comes from Lake Success that at least some of the colonies may be returned to Italian administration as a trusteeship of United Nations. That course should be taken only if it is unmistakably for the best interests of the people of those lands, and then under safeguards to prevent their exploitation and abuse.

The pride of Italy should not be a factor in the disposition of her former colonies, because Italy wilfully went into the war, and lost that war very thoroughly. Italy previously had given Africa a taste of her ethics by the ruthless conquest of Ethopia. Clearly Italy must not be given the chance again to boast of her "empire," or a new Mussolini the opportunity to exploit those African territories.

It will be the aim of Britain and the United States to raise the people of the once-Italian colonies to self-government, and at the same time protect the peace of the Mediterranean and the world. If within that scheme there is a place for Italy then no one will be inclined to complain.—Ottawa Journal.

Jacob and Esau

Mr. McLure: When the budget was finished I thought of an old quotation from scripture which is heard frequently. It will be found in Genesis, chapter 27, verse 22:

The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

Mr. Mackenzie: You have it wrong. Read your Bible again. The voice is the voice of Jacob, but the hand is the hand of Esau."

Mr. McLure: Mr. Speaker, I should love to correct the hon. gentleman; I know he has religious ideas, but he is mistaken in correcting me.

Mr. Mackenzie: Get me a Bible.

(Later)

Mr. Mackenzie: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege. I do not make a practice of referring to personal notes in the house. However, I have received a personal note from a dear friend of mine saying that I had made a mistake in a Biblical quotation. I find that the quotation in the Bible I was brought up on, the old Presbyterian Bible is—and my hon. friend was correct!

The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

The Bible of my very dear friend of another faith in this house—and in which I was not brought up—contains these words in Genesis:

The voice indeed is the voice of Jacob. but the hands are the hands of Esau.

Harvest From Antarctica

Britain is bringing back from the Antarctic a rich harvest of whale oil, meat, meal for cattle, feed and meat extract. The season has been remarkably good and the factory ship "Balaena" was fortunate in securing the highest proportion of whales and edible oil. Owing to the fact that at the present moment world needs are the most critical ever known, no less than 16 different expeditions have been fishing in Antarctic waters. More than 2,000 whales were caught by United Kingdom crews, 185,000 barrels of oil were produced in addition to large quantities of by-products. Another way in which the expedition distinguished itself was in the pioneer use of aircraft for whale-spotting and for weather reconnaissance.

Too Little and Too Late

It shouldn't be hard to remember back to the days when military supplies came "too little and too late" at the start of the early sweeping successes of the Japanese. Then the United States had to learn painfully what an all-out war effort meant, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Today it has to learn the meaning of an all-out peace effort. The need now is for relief supplies to avert starvation or near-starvation among millions. A failure to meet this demand will mean a sharp setback for democratic aims.

HATS

When a woman buys a hat,
She must ponder this and that.
Will it suit the gown she's wearing
For the luncheon she attends?
Will she have this shock to bear:
To discover when she's there
Ten or more exactly like it
On the foreheads of her friends?

Woman, be she thin or fat,
On her head must keep her hat
When she's at the luncheon table.
For all others to explore.
Not like man's; it has to be
In full view for all to see.
She can't leave her hat behind her
With the check-girl at the door.

Hats for men, to suit the trade,
By the millions can be made,
For a man is never bothered
By the things his fellows wear.
But a woman's joy is gone
If she meets another one,
And can see her bonnet bobbing
On another woman's hair.

Need for Farm Help

"Plans for meeting Ontario's urgent needs for extra farm workers are also under consideration but I cannot announce decisions until I return to Toronto," he said.

Arrangements for the distribution of Ontario flood relief donations had been completed on the basis of "actual need" through organizations established by the mayors of the affected areas.

"I have been in contact with many industrialists who are anxious to establish branch plants in Canada. There now are several hundred who have actually declared their desire to open plants in the province."

Most moves to Canada will be on a relatively small scale initially because of the United Kingdom's currency restrictions. Some manufacturers said they would be able to get local financing in Canada.

Sale of Farm Products on Normal Basis

The premier said the result of his talks with the British Ministry of Agriculture was to make it clear that "the time has come to get back to the sale of agricultural products on a more normal basis" than the present bulk agreement system.

An Ontario House official said one of the premier's main concerns had been to find what type of Canadian goods are particularly needed in the zones where the last harsh winter and its consequent floods did not damage. He was advised that light house furnishings — towels, sheets, blankets, curtains, upholstering materials, wallpaper, linoleum and pottery — all are in demand.

One official said the Ontario premier is considering moving some small groups of displaced persons from the continent to bring new specialized trades to Ontario. He is thinking especially of smaller settlements of groups making novelties, specialty equipment, glassware and light metal products aimed primarily at foreign markets.

In one, for instance, he announced the rescinding of an order-in-council permitting drug companies could make deferred maintenance and other tax-free plant-ments in any 12-month period in 1946, '47 or 1948 charges for each half of the expenditures against excess profits for any year after 1945.

Retained For Revenue

This was being done, he explained, because of shortages of labor and certain materials for which best could be used for the building of non-essential things. Later, a 12-month period ending not later than Dec 31, 1950 would be set aside for expanded plant maintenance work.

Mr. Abbott also announced that the new revised Income Tax Act will be introduced within the next two or three weeks. After some discussion, it might well go over to the next session of parliament.

At various stages during the discussion, he stressed that his declaration that he could not recommend cuts in excise taxes while he was recommending personal income tax reductions and said he had retained the excise taxes for "revenue considerations."

Along with several other minor exchanges, the House approved a resolution for the abolition of excess profits tax after this year, and, although several Progressive Conservative members said that it be dropped immediately and others members suggested that it be continued indefinitely.

Dropping One Clause

Mr. Abbott announced that he was dropping a clause empowering payment of excise tax on any perfume, cosmetic, medicine, or extract which included professional farmers, horse racers or motion picture actors in the sale of agricultural products on a more normal basis" than the present bulk agreement system.

SMOKING AND LEG PAIN

A physician complains that my having told about the effects of excessive use of tobacco made him start smoking two years ago. He has had been getting pain in his legs like the pain characteristic of Buerger's disease. He reports that he drove 600 miles overnight and, after a good sleep next day, walked many miles about a scenic resort with friends and had no leg pain at all.

Smoking, but it doesn't prove anything.

The good doctor does not reveal the extent of his indulgence, for one thing.

That, ladies is important. I say "ladies"—but you know what I mean, members of the weaker sex.

If you indulge just before a meal or in the course of a meal, certainly you are weak, anyway, whatever your habits. And at the time which a very little smoking does the harm.

If you indulge when under any tension, strain or excitement or to cover your inadequacy, that is overindulgence or excess and is questionably harmful in effect.

There is no arbitrary limit to moderation except that of excess begins. Of course what may be within moderation and harmless indulgence for one individual may be excessive and harmful for another individual.

To the adult man or woman who enjoys adults may use tobacco moderately or temporarely without injury. Moderation in indulgence at all is harmful to the health, but not to the extent it stalled full growth and development. Most persons reach their full growth and development until they are from 22 to 25 years of age.

Smoker's duodenal ulcer complaint is a chronic inflammation of tom-complex — the patient has symptoms of an inflammation of stomach or duodenum ulcer except that it does not.

The leg pain the physician complained of, whether it is manifestation of Buerger's disease (thromboangiitis obliterans) or not, is suspiciously frequent in excessive smokers — which doesn't prove anything, of course. But when prolonged relief of the phases of nicotine poisoning of smoking, as in the physician's case, it seems fair to say the smoking caused the leg pain.

The consensus of medical opinion is that excessive smoking cannot be the cause of Buerger's disease but that patients who develop such trouble had better not smoke at all. The reason for prohibition of smoking if any such condition is that constriction of the arterioles (or the "capillaries" as the old timers called them) and hence reduction of blood (oxygen) supply to the tissue cells, especially in the extremities, is the characteristic effect of tobacco smoke (not nicotine but more likely carbon monoxide).

Say about this in talks to folks. Right now I must get my borrowing pipe drawing well before I take up for the bowling green, which I haven't laid eyes on for three long weeks, what with this wretched flu — it was humiliating that after all these years I let it sneak up on me under disguise.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Migraine Relieved

I wish to write for your suggestion to supplement my diet to correct vitamin D. The relief has been wonderful, as I suffered terribly from migraine attacks at the time of the month when away for many years. I received treatment from many doctors with no relief. But now I have only a mild attack lasting a few hours, perhaps once in six or eight weeks—not enough to make me stop work—go to bed as I used to for two days or longer.

(Mrs. R. A.)

Answer — The calcium and D which you take do no harm in any case, seems to bring relief in some cases for migraine (acute sick headache) as well as so-called "nervous headache" and neurvasthenia. Your instructions, and a stamped self addressed envelope for the latter (do not use clipping, please) for the pamphlet "How to Tell a Child."

My boy can do no harm to any lots of questions as to where he came from. Please send me your leaflet on the subject of sex, engagement, marriage, etc., to American Institute of Family Relations, 5535 Hollywood Blvd., Angeles 14, Calif.

Answer — Write for list of pamphlets and books on all phases of sex, engagement, marriage, etc., to American Institute of Family Relations, 5535 Hollywood Blvd., Angeles 14, Calif.

INFORMATION BOUNDUP

Why is it considered bad luck for a black cat to cross one's path?

Isn't it a sign of bad luck for a black cat to cross one's path a black cat crosses ahead of you is the most prevalent of all superstitions.

It is probably a survival of the Middle belief that those who often assumed the form of a black tom cat when he sallied out upon his nocturnal prowls.

The ancient Egyptians regarded the cat as sacred and treated it with reverence bordering on awe, but during the Middle Ages this animal fell into bad repute among Europeans, who associated it with witchcraft and with the devil and darkness.

In some countries it was believed that all black cats were witches changed into cats at the end of seven years.

Who was Jeremiah Simpson of 1803), a Populist member of the U. S. House of Representatives for three terms between 1891 and 1899.

He was born on Prince Edward Island, Canada, and was brought to the United States by his parents when he was a boy. After living in Illinois and on the Great Lakes for many years and as a private in the Union Army during the Civil War, he settled in Kansas in 1879 as a farmer and stock raiser. Owing to a severe injury that killed his cattle and to "hard times" he went broke and became interested in politics.

Simpson, who had little formal education, he was well read, clever and witty. In his first campaign for Congress he pilloried his opponent as being wealthy and as wearing "silk socks." A newspaper reporter invented the statement to mean that Simpson wore no socks at all, and forever after he was known as "Sockless Jerry." Needless to say, he wore socks and dressed more like his fellow men in other respects in other circumstances.

In Congress, Sockless Jerry advocated free silver, fiat currency and other agrarian measures, and opposed imperialism and militarism in every form. He introduced few bills and seldom spoke on the floor, but was feared and respected by his colleagues for his pointed questions and witty comments.

Life Membership In I.O.D.E. Given Mrs. Ryland New

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 29 (CP)— A life membership in the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire — highest honor the Order can confer—last night was presented to Mrs. Ryland New of Oakville, Ont., as delegates attending the I.O.D.E. annual meeting here took this means of paying tribute to the woman who has displayed their organization for the last 18 years.

More than 900 I.O.D.E. members witnessed the presentation which took place during a formal dinner tendered out-of-town visitors by the Toronto Municipal chapter.

The first 10 bursaries from the second war memorial fund of the Order will be offered in 1949 delegates decided during meetings yesterday.

Yearly Awards

Unlike the first war memorial instead of offering nine bursaries —one for each of the provinces —the second war memorial will be set up on the basis of 10 yearly awards including one for the Yukon, it was decided.

So far $397,131 of the $500,000 objective has been reached for the second war memorial campaign established to further education in Canada.

"The second memorial will be set up along the same lines as the first," said Mrs. J. D. Detwiler, London, Ont., National Educational Secretary. "There will be bursaries for the sons and daughters of Canadian men and women either killed in the war or so badly wounded that they aren't able to do the work they would have been able to do normally."

Necklines Up So Are Hoods At U.K. Show

By DENISE DALTROFF
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 29 —(CP)— Britain's wholesale fur trade industry showed its wares at the British Industries Fair and features of the display were a tendency to higher necklines and the popularity of hoods.

Another noticeable aspect was the combination of color in good materials. There were violet and navy blue, woollens mixed with navy and black and white with a dash of scarlet.

Announcements during the parade were made in English, French and Spanish for the benefit of many overseas buyers.

Hoods were shown on a white lamb coat, and brown and white diagonal tweed topcoat and a smart buff raincoat.

Many woollen dresses were designed with high round polo collars, while black frocks had small white collars edged with white. Lines are softer—a draped shawl collar was featured in a caramel colored box jacket, and a tweed costume had curved panels on skirt and jacket.

Woollen dresses were cut on tailored lines such as the grey tunic dress with high polo collar, plain, close fitting bodice, slim skirt, and a row of buttons down the back of the tunic. Printed summer dresses displayed more of the current vogue for drapery.

Beachwear Too.

A beaver-edged swagger coat had a rounded yoke at the back and extending around the sleeves, with the fullness falling from yoke.

For beachwear, a floral printed canvas garden umbrellas and suit was shown with a very short cane-ribbed garden umbrellas bodice with pushed open sleeves and quite short trunks.

Accessories included a pale blue nylon umbrella on a long cadenzone handle in pale blue with sprigs of violets; lantern-shaped bag of suede fastened with a black cord drawstring; an evening bag in black moire and beaded silks with fringe-banded slip; evening shoes of red and gold silk brocade. There had been the new Turkish toepoint, turned back to reveal lining.

For the garden, were shown mushroom / cretonne umbrellas that clip on to garden chairs; painted-embossed silk covers, two-tiered

The Court of Color, arranged by the British Color Council, showed a huge spectrum of nylon threads in 31 different colors, rising 120 feet to the hall ceiling. Below this was a second spectrum of eight colors beginning with blue; red, orange, yellow to yellow-green, green-blue, blue and blue-violet.

W.I. of West Hastings Holds Convention at White's Church

The W. I. of West Hastings' District met in convention in White's Church, Bay of Quinte branch, May 23.

The seven branches answered the roll call "Predictions for the future of the women's institute based on the past 50 years." They all traced the growth of the W. I. in the local institute as well as in general through the years and predicted that in the next fifty years there would be a W. I. in every country. Without exception the speakers spoke of women's responsibilities as home-makers, and of the contribution that the W. I. can make in the members' join together to fight the liquor interests. The women of the farm homes are very temperance-conscious.

Mary McCallum graciously welcomed the convention to White's Church and Mrs. K. Paul replied, throwing out the suggestion that this district have a Sunday service as some other districts do.

Reports Given.

Mrs. John Reid reported for agriculture and Canadian industries, showing the valuable information given out by this subject.

Mrs. Earl White reported on citizenship. She outlined the study of the liquor laws of Ontario.

Mrs. Leslie Fralick reported on historical research and mentioned the fact that White's Church had passed the century mark.

Mrs. E. B. Finkle in her report on home economics suggested that after any paper was given there should be a discussion on it.

Mrs. Geo. Burkitt reported on social welfare and again was stressed the idea that the W. I. sponsor the "National Temperance Study Course."

Mary Chard in her report on publicity showed various ways in which members can bring the W. I. to the forefront, namely wear W.I. pins, advertise meetings, quiz on home and country, support the Adelaide Hoodless Fund, arrange good programs; be progressive.

Talks on Pest Control.

Mr. Dalrymple, agricultural representative for Hastings, gave an interesting talk on "D.D.T. and How to Use It." It can control mosquitoes, flies, moths, beetles. It has many uses, but also has some drawbacks. It reacts very slowly and will kill beneficial insects such as ladybugs and bees.

The treasurer reported the district funds to be in good condition, with a balance of $125.28 on hand.

A good dinner was served to about 80 persons, the number comparing favorably with those of past district annuals.

In the afternoon Miss Spencer of the Department of Agriculture read the reports of the morning. She said the convention should have functions of standing committees, plan of study and outline of work for guidance of conveners. Delegates should take back names and addresses of all the new officers.

Mrs. L. Rogers reported for girls' work. There were three groups this year, in Chatterton, Stirling and Walbridge branches.

Miss Irvine then gave a comprehensive survey of the situation in the county showing how increasingly popular it is becoming. The coming year the girls will have as their study course "Canadians May be Smart."

For the competitive program it was decided to have "Care of Clothing" the subject to be dealt with in the late fall.

From Unionville Mrs. Keith Fox favored with an instrumental solo.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell brought greetings from the Provincial Board. She stressed the value of the co-operative program and also showed how W.I. resolutions can be used to mold public opinion. ANGLO-SOVIET AMITY

The men who guide the destinies of their respective nations may not always agree with each other, but these two youngsters, children of United Nations officials, are in perfect accord as they enjoy a dog together at Steeplechase Park, Coney Island, N.Y., amusement centre. The children are Roy Stephens of Devonshire, Eng., whose dad is Ronald Stephens of the United Nations Documents Department, and Eugenia Safonov of Russia, whose father is Dmitri Safonov of the U. N.'s Radio Division. Here they partake of hot dogs and soda pop, which they share. Clown Angelo Brienza looks on.

General Boehme Dies From Injuries Suffered in Prison

Nuernberg, May 29 (AP)—Gen. Franz Boehme, indicted for war crimes alleged to have been committed during the German occupation of Yugoslavia, died today of a skull fracture suffered in a suicide leap in Nuernberg prison, as Boehme eluded guards while walking in a corridor in a third-floor tier of cells late last night and hurled over a rail.

Boehme was one of the principal defendants in a case against 12 German military leaders in the Balkans and Norway. He was indicted May 10 on charges that he rounded up hostages and issued orders for their execution.

Indicted with him were two field marshals, List and Von Weichs, and nine other generals.

Boehme was the fifth important prisoner to commit suicide in the American-guarded Nuernberg prison. Three, including Hermann Goering, were defendants before the International Military Tribunal.

A sixth would-be suicide, an S.S. officer, fractured his spin in such a leap, but recovered.

Veterans Market Flour Sack Gowns

Vancouver, May 29 —(CP)— "Looking like a flour sack" need not be a derogatory term any more since three Second World War veterans formed the McQueen, White and Dickinson Co., to compete in the fashion world.

They had noticed the drab, ragged garments worn by people in war-ravaged and impoverished countries and decided on their new idea — colored flour sacks which could be turned into wearing apparel after the flour was delivered.

First they made a survey into the preference of the different countries and then purchased 20,000 yards of the colored, dual-purpose sacks in three designs—flowered, striped and plain.

Now mailed in China, Greece, Poland, South America and the Phillipines is proudly showing off the latest word in flour sack frocks — "made in Vancouver."

American Colonel Given Ten Years For Jewel Theft

By TOM LAMBERT

Yokohama, May 29 — (AP) — Edward J. Murray, an American colonel of infantry who won his decorations in combat, today heard an army court martial sentence him to 10 years imprisonment for misappropriation of a fortune in diamonds he had taken home as "souvenirs of war . . ." He was ordered dismissed from the service.

Although the jewels he was charged with taking during his custodianship of the Bank of Japan vaults were valued at first at $210,000, the court reduced this to $82,000.

Murray himself, in the only statement he made to the court, said he was ignorant of the diamonds' value until after he had taken them home in March, 1946, and a diamond broker offered his wife "a price which astonished her by its size."

"To the best of my knowledge," his written statement asserted, the diamonds "were never in the custody of the United States' until he himself handed them over to customs officials who had challenged and searched him in San Francisco.

He has never revealed the source of the guns, saying only that they were not in American custody, and that only he was involved in their acquisition.

Building Code Is Simplified

Ottawa, May 29 — (CP) — The National Research Council today announced the issuance of a new simplified building code containing everything needed for inclusion in a municipal building by-law for most towns and smaller cities.

The code, an abridgement of the National Building Code, consists principally of minimum requirements for safety and health in a one and two-family dwelling.

The new code outlines the steps to be taken from the selection of the site to the completion of the dwelling. It deals with such topics as location of dwellings on lots, planning and types of construction of dwellings, quality of materials, structural and other requirements.

U.S. Buyers Strike Revamps Fall Styles

Chicago, May 29 — (AP) — A wail apparel industry executive has blamed women for "new and radical" styles in fall garments, asserting they had "gone on strike" against war-hangover clothing.

Glen G. Hayes, Chicago executive director of the National Wash Apparel Show, held here this month said:

"When you hear the old bromide that designers and manufacturers change styles in order to make current wardrobes obsolete and thus promote sales, don't you believe it. Women are arbiters of fashion and they demand style change."

He said there had been a "serious buyers strike" in the apparel field in that "retailers, caught with heavy inventories, had only one way out — clearance sales at drastically lower prices."

Despite a shortage of materials, he said, manufacturers have put their designs to work on styles requiring more cloth generally. The new dresses have a minimum drop of two inches in overall length.

Frankford

Champion Point Winners Given Silver Trophies

Frankford (Special) — The Frankford Continuation School held their annual Open Literary meeting in the Frankford Community Hall on Friday evening. The singing of "O Canada" opened the meeting after which the chairman Duncan Miklas spoke a few words of welcome to the parents and friends who were in attendance. The members of grade 40 sang "The Bells of St. Marys" and "My Adobe Hacienda". Grades 11 and 12 and grade 9 sang "Long, Long Ago" and "Rolling Along." Mr. H. J. Carter presented the silver cup trophy to Miss Ruth Rogers on behalf of the school as she was the highest point winner. The cup was won at the annual Field Day held last fall when students from Wooler, Warkworth and Castleton also competed in the events.

This is the first time Frankford has been able to win this cup and Mr. Carter mentioned how proud he was that in the few years they have been competing in these events that they could come up to make such a good showing. Medals won at this same field day were presented by Mr. James Whytock to the champion point winners of the day Girls' senior—Shirley Terry, Girls' intermediate—Ruth Rogers, Girls' junior—Joan Bennett, Boys' senior—Duane Hicks, Boys' junior—Joseph Regan. A piano solo, "Al-humblah" was given by Dan Cecha. A skit "The Successful Operation" was put on by Helen Tomecek, Wayne Arbuckle, Douglas Montgomery and Bob Arbuckle.

Mr. Arthur Duncan presented the graduation diplomas to Teresa Corrigan, Marjorie Wait, Harold Ferguson and Harold Rogers. In speaking to the students at this important point in their lives he pointed out to them they should not let themselves grow complacent but should strive on to do bigger and better things, now that they have passed this milestone in their lives. Ted Ott played on the trumpet "The Holy City" and "Whispering Hope". A play "Be Home by Midnight" put on by Hanna Skoutajan, Rose Finnegan, Louis Bush, Arnold Westlake and Ted Ott, under the direction of Mrs. P. Bennett, their teacher was very much enjoyed. The principal, Mr. White made a few remarks about his work among the students. At the close of the program, dancing was enjoyed.

SHOCKED AS MURDER TALE OF FOUR CHILDREN IS UNWOVEN TO FAMILY

William Smith, Imlay City, Mich., left, grimly tells members of the Smith family and relatives about the murder of his four children. Tragedy is clearly written across the faces of the close relatives who came to the Smith home to console the parents. Smith's eldest daughter is shown (hand to mouth). Mrs. Leona Fox, a cousin of the family, is in background with other members of the family, and in foreground is Betty Coulter, 12, bursting into tears. The four Smith children, Barbara, 16; Stanley, 14; Gladys, 13, and two-year-old Janet were shot to death with a .22-calibre rifle. Police have arrested Oliver Terpening, 16-year-old boy of a neighbor, in Lucas county, Ohio, and are holding him for questioning in connection with the murder. The children had been out in a nearby field picking flowers when they were shot down like "clay pigeons."

Oliver Terpening, above, of Imlay City, Mich., is shown after he was captured by police. He confessed he murdered four playmates for a thrill, but was disjointed with the experiment. He faces life imprisonment if convicted on a first degree murder charge.

More Ministers Needed in Service Of the Church

Brockville, May 29 (CP)—The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church in Canada entered the third day of sessions today in their annual 32rd annual meeting which will conclude Friday night.

Yesterday there were eight meetings at which reports were received from the Missionary and Maintenance Committee, Colleges and Secondary Schools Committee, laymen and laywriters, conference session, representatives on the Deaconess Order and Women Workers and Temperance Federation, the Pension Capital Fund, Christian Education Committee and an ordination service, with interspersed addresses.

Rev. Dr. H. A. Kent, principal of Queen's Theological College, told the conference that more money was needed to carry on an efficient training program, and that more ministers were needed in the service of the church.

He stressed that young people should be urged to enter the ministry.

Rev. A. M. Laverty, newly appointed chaplain at Queen's University, pointed out that the service was appreciated by students of the university, especially veterans, who looked to the chaplain for guidance as they did while in the armed forces.

Reports Given

The report on women workers was given by Rev. J. V. McNeeley of Oshawa, who explained that 340 women were engaged in various church positions in this country and that 110 were serving in other countries. He said more were needed each year to assist in carrying out social, educational, medical and missionary work.

Mr. McNeeley was also appointed conference representative for this week.

Rev. Albert Johnston of Toronto representing the Ontario Temperance Federation, asked ministers to seek the aid of doctors, social workers, teachers and other representative groups in an educational program against the drink problem which the new Ontario liquor legislation had increased.

Rev. E. R. Skinner of Toronto, representing the Lord's Day Alliance group, warned that unless there was better church attendance on Sundays the country would go to destruction.

He emphasized that Sunday must be a day of worship and must be observed in a religious fashion.

Ordained last night in an impressive service were, Henry Jo-Herlihy of Port Perry, Ont., William Geoffrey Julian, Plainsville, Ont., and Harold John Robbins of the Halifax Presbytery.

Rev. C. D. McLellan of Napanee, newly elected conference president, conducted the ordination service.

Black Kitten Causes Considerable Grief

Eau Claire, Wis., May 29 (AP)—A tiny kitten tried to cross a busy street and—

John B. Allen, 25, swerved his automobile to avoid hitting it, and crashed into a pole becoming an electric transformer. High-tension wires broke, fell on the car and set it afire. Allen got out safely. The car was a total loss.

The fire department arrived, put out the fire. A second pole collapsed, missing the truck by five feet.

The power circuit, covering a large section of the city, was out for 12 minutes.

The kitten was unhurt.

Discuss Rules

Mr. Burns discussed the rules and regulations for the Calf Club with the members. He stated that financial awards for the club were not based entirely on their calves, but on their management during the summer, the attendance at meetings, the regularity and accuracy in forwarding monthly reports as well as the results of the judging competition and the answers to the examination and showmanship at the achievement day all entered into the final results and standing of the members. He stated that the prime money offered was donated by the Madoc Agriculture Society, the Ontario Livestock Branch and the production service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture each organization contributing $1.50 per entry shown at achievement day. He also discussed the care and feeding of the calves and stressed the importance of cleanliness in order to prevent disease and gradual change in the calves' ration when changes were necessary.

Relatives Lead Search for Missing Physician-Flier

Rochester, N. Y., May 29—(AP)—Relatives of Dr. Robert E. Wheeler, 30, of Chicago, led the search today for the physician-flier who has been missing since he took off from Rochester Municipal airport Sunday night.

John D. Hill of Dundee, Ill., a cousin, and Mrs. Hill, accompanied by two pilots, arrived yesterday and began an intensive search of this area.

Hill announced that Mrs. Robert Wheeler, mother of the physician, had offered a $1,000 reward for "original and conclusive" information leading to the whereabouts of Dr. Wheeler or his four-passenger Stinson Voyager plane.

Meanwhile, Buffalo police said they had been asked by state police to look for the missing plane. Provincial police in Windsor, Ont. also were asked to join the search on the north shore of Lake Erie.

Church Attendance Falling off Says Retiring President

Brockville, May 29 — (CP) — Church attendance in Canada is falling off at an alarming rate, Rev. James E. Beckel of Elgin, Ont., told lay delegates at the United Church Bay of Quinte Conference yesterday.

Mr. Beckel, retiring conference president, said he believed the situation was the same in both town and city churches.

Paying tribute to the work of the laymen, he showed that through their efforts the United Church's pension capitalization fund objective of $8,100,000 had nearly been reached. Cash receipts to date were reported as $8,178,166.

Speakers at the afternoon session included Rev. Dr. H. A. Kent, principal of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, Ont., Rev. A. M. Laverty, newly-appointed chaplain to Protestant students at Queen's University; and Don Williams, Belleville, immediate past president of the Conference Young People's Union.

U.S. Secret Police Will Take No Chances When President Visits Ottawa in Summer

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 29 — (CP) — No one is likely to assault President Truman when he visits Canada but the United States secret service and local police will take no chances.

Primarily the responsibility rests with the 25 smart-looking, straight-shooting secret service young men who make up "the White House detail" of the United States secret service.

When the president's special moves out of Union Station for the 16-hour run to Ottawa every bridge, switch, tunnel and station along the entire route will be guarded by local police.

Washington police will guard the route he travels from the White House to the station. In Ottawa the Royal Canadian Mounted and city police will do the supplementary job.

But always he will be surrounded by the muscular young men with the keen eyes who ride on the running boards of his car and precede and follow him in armored cars in public highway travel.

Apart from all these precautions, which are strict routine for all the president's activities, the secret service head, James J. Maloney, makes exhaustive investigations of the places and people with whom he will come in contact.

It may be taken for granted that the secret service will know all there is to know about the staffs of Ottawa's hostelries which will cater to the president, the safety of the structures he may enter, and about the lay of the land along any Ottawa roads he may travel.

A bullet-proof sedan and the open car for parades in which the president rides with his secret service boys probably will be shipped to Ottawa in advance of the visit, also armored cars for the secret service motor escort.

Thurlow

Thurlow School Holds Empire Day

Empire Day was celebrated May 22nd in S. S. No. 20 Thurlow, in traditional style with a varied program of stories, recitations, songs etc. The outstanding number was the program, prepared by the Department of Education for use in public schools.

The program was designed to show the growth and greatness of the Empire from the earliest time to the present Commonwealth of Nations.

The program was as follows:—O Canada; Recitation: Jean Lloyd, Mary Ellis; Origin of Empire Day—Pat. Gerow; March of the Wooden Soldiers—Jr. Room; Song—The Young Musician; Contest—Kathleen Conboy, Pat. Gerow; Departmental—Empire Day program.

During the afternoon three films were shown: Westwing; Arts and Crafts in Quebec; Sports and Seasons.

Invitations were sent out to the parents and friends in the section and a very good number joined with the children in celebrating "Empire Day".

After the program was completed the parents enjoyed a social half hour in the Junior Room where the girls of the "Home Economics" class served refreshments, which they had prepared in class.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close an interesting and educational "Empire Day Program."

Soviet Ambassador Summoned to Moscow

London, May 23 (CP)—Informed diplomatic sources in touch with the Russian Embassy reported today that Georgi Zarubin, Soviet ambassador to Britain, had been summoned back to Moscow for consultations.

The purpose of Zarubin's reported departure from London was not at once ascertainable, but Whitehall observers recalled that Russia notified Britain late last week she was ready to begin discussions on the future of Italy's pre-war colonial empire.

Those talks, between deputies of the Big Four foreign ministers, are to take place in London "as soon as they can be arranged," according to a British foreign office spokesman.

London Letter

BY STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 23 (CP)—Some famous ghosts will be disturbed in a year or so as carpenters and builders move into Carlton House Terrace and start hammering out a new home for the foreign office.

Where 16 noble mansions now stand on either side of the Duke of York's steps, overlooking the Mall and St. James's Park, a modern block is to be erected for the diplomats and huge clerical staff required to deal with today's foreign affairs.

The silk clad legs of girl photographers will flash along the sidewalks that once knew the weighty step of such dignitaries as Lord Palmerston and Mr. Gladstone. Dispatch riders will roar along a roadway over which carriages once rolled to stately parties.

Victorian dandies paraded here and in more recent times No. 9 was the home of the German embassy.

Some houses already have been taken over by the foreign office and the Ministry of National insurance. At the far end of the terrace, next to Marlborough House, where Queen Mary lives, is No. 1 Carlton Gardens, Foreign Secretary Bevin's official residence.

It's been painted recently—a bright yellow cream that makes it stand out from its dingy neighbors. Soon workmen will move in and start modernizing its interior.

Mindful, no doubt, of the cries that go up when historic buildings are threatened, the architects have designed the new building to preserve the nash facade built along the Mall in 1830. Thus when the Royal Family drive Trafalgar Square to Buckingham Palace, the view of their right will be the same that William IV regarded.

Some of Britain's most famous clubs are along the adjacent streets—places like Boodle's and the Carlton. But the sightseer will be hard put to find them, however versed he is in history, for most of them conceal their identities behind facades thick with London soot, but unmarked by anything as vulgar as a brass plate.

FLOOD ODDITIES

Orangeville, Ont. — (CP) — Floods which washed away fill from under sections of No. 9 provincial highway between this Peel county town and Arthur, resulted in some odd effects, highway engineers say. At one point the pavement is sinking into a swamp and at another spot a spring gushes from the centre of the pavement.

Special Foreign Policy Session May be Convened

Washington, May 29 (AP) — Possibility of a special foreign policy session of the United States Congress late this year unless major differences between Russia and the western powers are removed was raised today by a high-ranking Democrat who does not wish his name disclosed.

He predicted the administration will await the outcome of the United Nations General Assembly in September and the London Council of Foreign Ministers in November before reaching the decision.

He said if substantial progress has not been made by then in resolving east-west friction, the United States must consider how its power and wealth can be used independently to restore economic stability outside the immediate sphere of Soviet influence.

The Democratic leader expressed this opinion in commenting on a suggestion by former President Herbert Hoover for independent pacts with Germany and Japan.

The factors behind the possibility of a late fall or early winter session of Congress include.

1. There have been unofficial but persistent reports that the United States, pursuing the policy of attempting to halt Communist expansion as laid down in the Greek-Turkish Aid Bill, will be called on by other countries for financial aid to strengthen their economies.

2. There is a question of whether Britain, sorely in need of dollars for imports to rebuild her economy, will be able to continue a 30 per cent contribution in the Joint Anglo-American occupation zone of Germany. British retrenchment would mean a potential increase of the American cost.

Builders' Costs Must be Reduced States Report

Kitchener, May 29 — (CP) — Reduction of housing builders' costs is "an urgent necessity," it was stated in the annual report of the Dominion Mortgage and Investment Association presented to the company's annual meeting here, today.

"If construction costs are not reduced, a sufficient volume of housing is not likely to be built in the next few years to meet the need," said the report.

The report also mentioned high cost of government, saying "It is difficult to escape the conclusion that the Dominion, provincial and municipal governments are giving free rein to that very human tendency to spend freely when income is high, and to give not too much thought to the future."

In his presidential address P. V. Wilson urged closer co-operation between the federal and provincial governments, and study of the wisest and most economical taxation methods. The average citizen, he stressed, is mainly interested in efficient and economic administration of government services.

As far as building costs are concerned, the annual report said that "easy credit terms" are not the cure for inflated prices. "Instead of increasing the production of homes they are likely merely to increase costs since they accentuate the inflationary pressure already existing."

STEAMSHIP SCRAPPED

Hamilton, May 29 — (CP)—The Athabaska, famous old lake steamship, came to its last resting place Tuesday night when she was towed into Hamilton harbor to be scrapped. Thousands of Canadians made the trip to the lakehead on the old ship during the past sixty years.

The Day in Parliament

(By The Canadian Press)

Today:—

The Commons considers government legislation.

The Senate will not sit.

Wednesday:—

The Commons voted 139 to 49 to uphold the Speaker in a ruling that soft drinks tax could not be debated at the committee stage of budget legislation; heard Finance Minister Abbott say already comment of sugar rationing was out of the question "for some time to come"; heard Reconstruction Minister Howe report the fuel oil situation for some heating was "worse"; heard him urge householders to make every effort to lay in their winter fuel supplies early; heard Finance Minister Abbott announce that a new revised income tax act will be introduced within the next two or three weeks; heard the minister repeat his budget declaration that he could not recommend cuts in excise taxes while recommending personal income tax reductions; approved a resolution for abolition of the excess profits tax at the year-end; heard various speakers, including G. K. Fraser (PC — Peterboro-West), make a number of suggestions for tax cuts.

The Senate did not sit.

SCHOOL DIDN'T HELP

Oklahoma City, May 29—(AP) — Police held a traffic safety school and only one man showed up. He listened intently, took notes and asked questions.

Five minutes after class was dismissed, he returned to police headquarters escorted by two officers.

He was charged with running through a stop sign.

1912 CAR PROBLEM FOR CUSTOMS

Fort Erie, May 29 (CP)—Customs and immigration men got a distinct "kick" yesterday when a 1913 Allan touring automobile crossed the Peace Bridge bound for Detroit. The owner said he purchased the ancient jallopy from a junk yard in 1918 and repaired it with spare parts.

WENT BACK TO BED

Worcester, Mass., May 29—(AP) —Joseph A. Landry, 46, went sleep-walking early Wednesday and took a long step. He caught himself just in time — on a window ledge 20 feet above the street. As he felt, he clutched at the ledge and hung on until he was rescued. Then he went to bed.

Govt. Urged To Abolish Luxury Tax

Ottawa, May 29 — (CP) — G. K. Fraser (PC — Peterboro-West) yesterday in the Commons urged the government to abolish the 25-per-cent luxury tax on alarm clocks, non-jewelled watches and plated knives, forks and spoons and claimed to have "definite" proof that the levy was causing unemployment across Canada.

Rising on a section of the budget resolutions dealing with sales and excise taxes, Mr. Fraser said the tax was affecting the sales of these articles and this, in turn, was affecting the livelihood of more than 2,000 industrial workers. Some 625 workers were affected in his own riding, 708 in Toronto, 375 in Niagara Falls, Ont., and more than 300 in Hamilton.

Finance Minister Abbott promised to consider Mr. Fraser's representations but said he could not hold out "any real hope" that he could start a revision of the tax structure this year.

Mr. Fraser said he felt that the removal of the tax on necessary articles would bring the government more revenue than the tax itself did at present because there was no doubt that the sale of these items across Canada had dropped because of it.

"There is no doubt that an increased production in the country together with the extra work that the men and women would be doing if the tax were removed would bring in more money to the government."

Mr. Abbott: "Perhaps I might tell my honorable friend that I have given a great deal of consideration to the points which he has raised, and I will give some further consideration to them.

Left to right: Harry Rizen, Gordon McGregor and Murray Wood. Their time was 1:42.9. The meet was won by the host school, U.C.C.

Four schools competed in the meet which finished in a downpour. Although relays monopolized the program, there were several individual track and field events. Here is action in the senior high hurdles. Left to right: Phil Weigand of U.C.C.; Dick Merry of T.C.S., and Sonny Avery of Pickering. Avery won.

SMALLEST FIELD SINCE '26 WILL FACE STARTER

Many of Better Machines Forced out of Race Due to Faulty Engines

By DALE BURGESS

Indianapolis, May 29 (AP) — Barring a sudden change of heart by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and the American Automobile Association's Contest Board, the smallest field since 1926 will line up tomorrow for the 31st running of the 500-mile Memorial Day race.

The cars figured to have the best chances to win the race were among the 26 qualified for the 33 starting places, but the missing included at least three-top-notchers. The 1946 winner, a Thorne-Sparks six driven last year by the late George Robson of Maywood, Calif., was eliminated yesterday by burned-out piston rings.

A new six-cylinder engine designed by Joe Lencki of Chicago, which veteran Emil Andres was to drive, went out with a burned piston. Engine trouble kept the new English E.N.A., brought over by H. L. Brooks of Coventry, from trying to qualify.

On the bright side was the fine driving exhibition by Bill Holland of Bridgeport, Conn., a first-timer who topped all qualifiers with a speed of 128.758 miles an hour in one of the two new Blue Crown Spark Plug specials.

Other threats to the nine-year-old speedway record of 127.8 miles an hour for the 500 miles were posed by Duke Nalon of Los Angeles, who qualified yesterday at 128.062 in a German-built Mercedes; Ted Horn in the Maserati that twice hauled Wilbur Shaw to victory; and the two powerful Novi Governor Mobil specials.

Bob Branze, U.C.C. husky, set a new mark in the open discus, hurling the mental plate 112 feet 9 inches, bettering the old mark by almost 8 feet.

$25,000 GATE EXPECTED FOR FIGHT MONDAY

Many Experts Figure King Has Too Much Punch for Castilloux

By JIM KEARNEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—Promoter Frank Tunney and his chief aide and counsellor, Deacon Jack Allen, are expecting Toronto's first $25,000 fight gate when lightweight Dave Castilloux of Montreal and Toronto's dark hope Arthur (Tiger) King, joust for a scheduled eight rounds at Maple Leaf Gardens next Monday.

To that end the ballyhoo is being directed in larger conclaimers than usual.

As far back as last Friday—10 days before the dressing—Tunney made due to dock with the record cargo of cash in the hold—Tunney made bold enough to announce that the bout was a lead-pipe cinch to outdraw the $23,000 the French Belanger-Ernie Jarvis flyweight bout realized here in the mid-30s.

With his reputation as a sear as stake, Tunney was considerably heartened this week when the two principals—Castilloux and King—let it be known they regarded each other with some contempt.

It started when Allen who in addition to being Tunney's assistant is Castilloux's manager, invited a photographer to the Toronto Amateur Athletic Club gym to take pictures of the two gladiators. King is reported to have cast a disdainful glance at Castilloux and asked of his handler, Davey Yack:

"Do I have to pose with that freak?"

The Montreal scrapper is reputed to have turned to Allen, who also finds time to continue as his manager, and murmured in French:

"To me he looks like a baby."

The handlers of the two fighters picked up the verbal needles and have been pushing them into each other ever since.

And every time they and the two fighters jab it into each other the sneering cracks are counted in the box office, where Tunney and Allen, in a prodigious bout of finger mathematics, add up the wordage to approximately $25,000.

NINE TO MAKE TRIP

Washington, May 29 — (AP) — A squadron of nine Superfortresses will leave the United States next Tuesday on a flight to Germany and England, the strategic air command announced. Gen. George G. Kenney, S. A. C. commander, said "the primary purpose of this long-range trailing flight is to practise and improve techniques of overwater navigation."

SESSI HELPING MONTREAL TEAM BY HIS HOMERS

Former St. Louis Cardinal Has Hammered Eight Since Joining Squad

(By The Associated Press)

Walt Sessi, the ponderous outfielder whose dramatic pinch homer helped St. Louis Cardinals win the National League flag last season, is helping Brooklyn Dodgers' Montreal farm club move toward the International League lead.

Since joining the Royals, Sessi has hammered eight home runs his latest being a three-run smash in the first inning of yesterday's game with Buffalo. The 6ft 2in 210-pounder added another run later in the game to make it four for the day.

The veteran Ed Heusser scattered nine Bison hits and had little trouble earning the decision.

Despite their win the Royals remained a game and a half back of the leading Jersey City Giants who whipped Baltimore 6-4.

Mike Meilis kept things under control with an eight-hitter.

Millard (Dixie) Howell of Syracuse hurled his second shutout of the year, blanking Newark 4-0 with four hits. Although Howell walked eight men he fanned 9 in the pinches, leaving 11 stranded.

SEVEN AMERICANS AMONG SURVIVORS

Carnoustie, Scotland, May 29 — (AP) — Ted Bishop of South Natick, Mass., the all American champion, teed off against Jeff-bander Percy Lucas, British Walker Cup player, in the opening match of the fourth round of the British amateur championship today.

Seven Americans, including Francis Ouimet of Boston, 54-year-old non-playing captain of the Walker Cup team, were among the 32 survivors of the first three days of match play.

Upset defeats of two former titlists and the English champion, Gerald Micklem, featured yesterday's play. The two titlists were Robert Sweeny, an American now living in England, and Dr. William Tweddell.

Alec Kyle, only surviving former champion, led the British group among the 32 survivors playing today.

Gray to Play Football At Queen's this Year

(By The Canadian Press)

Jack Gray, Toronto Western Tech athlete, who won most of the events he was entered in the Toronto Secondary School Athletic Association track and field meet this week, will play football this year at Queen's University, Kingston. He was with Toronto Indians last season.

Four teams have been entered in group 2 of the Western Ontario Athletic Association senior "A" softball division. They are Hanover, Durham, Kincardine and Walkerton. The loop opens June 2 with Hanover at Durham.

That well-known sporting character, the two-buck bettor, is not laying down as much money for his favorite pastime this year as he did in 1946, the Ontario Jockey Club reveals. Although the largest crowd to witness a sporting event appeared at Woodbine Park, Toronto, to attend the 88th running of the King's Plate, there was a decline in takings at the pari-mutuel betting machines. In the seven days of the Woodbine meet a decline of $280,000 in the take was observed by comparison with the corresponding period of last year.

A scheduled Ontario Lacrosse Association game between Hamilton and Mimico, near Toronto, at Mimico, last night, was postponed by rain.

President J. Fyfe-Smith of the British Columbia Cricket Association has announced that interprovincial cricket competitions, suspended during war years, will be resumed this summer. Provincial teams will meet in Toronto in August and the 1948 competitions will be held in Vancouver.

Tami Mauriello, Bronx tavernkeeper and fighter, had to go all out to stop Jimmy Carolio, of Long Island, in the fifth round of a 10-rounder at Brooklyn last night.

Yankees Soar into Thick Of American League Fight With Dimaggio Back in Form

Great Fielder Hitting Like a Fiend and Boosts Average to .340

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cancel the obits of Joe DiMaggio's career and add a new chapter. The Yankee clipper has recovered from a shaky .143 start and boosted the New York club into the thick of the American League fight with his .340 average.

More than one critic crossed off Dimaggio as "just another ball player" when he failed to hit .300 last year. His heel injury and subsequent hitting slump with a general Yank decline this spring. That was before President Larr, Macphail fined him $100.

Starting with the Yankees shutout conquest of Detroit's Tommy Newhouser, the night after the fines were published, Dimaggio has been hitting like a fiend. In seven games he has smashed 15 hits and driven in 13 runs. He has added 74 points to his average. The Yanks in winning six of their last seven, have moved into second place just 1-2 games behind idle Detroit and Tigers. Last night they scored a 9-5 victory over Washington Senators. Mauling four of Ossie Bluege's pitchers for 13 hits, the Yanks handed Bobo Newsom his third defeat.

Collects Three Hits

Dimaggio continued his sensational streak with three hits, all ringles, and Bill Johnson knocked in five runs with a double and a pair of singles.

As Boston thumped Philadelphia's A's 8-3 in the afternoon, both the Red Sox and Yanks picked up a half game on Detroit.

The big noise in the National came at the Polo Grounds where the befuddled customers watched their New York Giants take a second straight lacing from Brooklyn, this time 14-3.

Brooklyn's Manager Larry Jansen with his first loss and pole-axed three successors for his trouble, including Relief Hurler Bruce Edwards, Dixie Walker and Eddie Miksis at short.

Enos Slaughter rescued St. Louis Cardinals with a three-run homer that broke a 1-1 tie and sent the Birds on to a 4-2 victory over Cincinnati.

Pittsburgh Pirates ruined the night for Chicago Cubs, rallying scoring twice on Si Johnson in the first and adding enough to assure Ken Heintselman of his second success.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Jackie Robinson, Dodgers—Collected two singles, walked once, sacrificed once and filed to right and left field in Brooks' 14-2 romp over Giants.

Hank Greenberg, Pirates—Walked twice and hit a double as Bucs came from behind to trip Cubs 7-6.

Enos Slaughter, Cardinals—Helped St. Louis' 12-hit attack with pair of singles, scoring once in edge over Reds.

Mickey Vernon, Senators—Drove in three runs with triple and single in Washington's 9-5 loss to New York, Made two errors at first base.

Ted Williams, Red Sox—Walked three times, twice intentionally and scored twice. Filed to centre field and grounded to first base in two other trips in Boston's 9-2 win over A's.

NOT AGREEABLE TO STANDARDIZE FOOTBALL RULES

Lew Hayman Thinks Many Points of Canadian Game Should be Retained

Montreal, May 20 (CP)—Maybe it would be a good idea to standardize football rules if Canadian football rules were standardized, but "you can't prove it by me," at least one expatriated American, Lew Hayman, football manager-coach extraordinary and manager of Montreal's Alouettes, thinks it would be a good idea basically, but adds, "we have a lot of good aspects and points in the Canadian game which shouldn't be sacrificed."

Commenting on observations by Lou Little, Columbia University's famed coach, that the rules in the two countries should be standardized, languid Lew didn't quite agree.

Hayman suggested that common rules would be a good idea, "but only if the good Canadian points are retained and some good American points added."

Hayman, the often-unhappy Montreal coach who started this in one year brought Montreal from cellar position to near top-billing in bigtime football, noted that "in American football, on the one hand, the ball is put out of play when it crosses the touchline. But in Canada the football the single point may prove to be the deciding factor in a closely-fought game."

The American rule, thinks Lew gives up the game.

Hayman also thinks that the American emphasis on blocking and power play gives the spectator less chance to see the ball. Also, it's less fun for the players than in the Canadian game where the backs have more chance to handle the ball.

The three-down rule also makes the game more interesting in Canada for the play is constantly changing from side to side.

CHIPS
OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK
By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

"Smoky" Smith, starry Basawa southpaw, 'tis reliably reported will shortly shake the dust of the Shoetown from his feet and don spikes and his himself westward to make a new home. The reported stakes offered him will locate in Creemore, Ont., up around Simcoe way.

• • •

Batawa will feel the loss of the sweet scholarship entity as he was the mainstay of their pitching staff last year and one of the main reasons why the team went to the Ontario finals. Just what the pitching will be with the Shoemen now is a matter for conjecture, as it is understood Muffitt, another good flinger has not reported for duty as yet.

• • •

Smith gave ample evidence last Friday night that there is plenty of the old pitching ability still remaining in his good left arm when he held Kiwanis Aces to two hits. That definitely dispelled reports around town that he was "washed up" as did several offers from outside squads. "Whether up or not washed up, we know of no teams we'd rather have welcome Smith's signature to a certificate. • • •

Five Trenton Flyers, with five of the Trenton veterans on the squad should be a team to contend with this summer, according to their performance against the Kiwanis Juniors here the other night. Goodnatured "Moose" Mathews was present, Jim Hall, Bill Holdershaw, Bobby Robertson, Holdershaw, last year's stalwarts paraded last night and appear to have wintered well despite a tough hockey grind.

• • •

Flyers have several new faces however, and all showed up well in the first tilt of the season. Another "find" fans' eyes was the new first-baseman, a great hunk of boy-ing who wielded a mean wag-stick against the Junior pitchers. Trenton has been around the baseball world, a blind man can see that, has slashed out a lofty home run in night field with the sacks loaded, and also helped himself to a double. His fielding was outstanding and Mclen-Kelly, he of the three stripes who is the Glen Friday in sports up around the air station, has got himself a find.

• • •

Juniors haven't found their batting eyes as yet and their hitting record to date is four hits in two games. However, 'tis early in the season and the younkers may not have the winter kinks out of their legs and arms, as yet.

• • •

Napanee grapevine has it that Walt Gerow Jr., is carrying around two diamonds in Gibbsville stirred in a Napanee brew-stew. The idea reported that Ken Murphy's lads have a good squirt record on as the form of a pitcher from Bowmanville, Napanee has strengthened considerably over last year, and they won't prove to be the lucky weak sisters of the loop that they appeared to be last season.

• • •

Belleville Softball Association drew up its schedule last night and it appears elsewhere in this edition. Two squads from Point Anne and the newly formed Canadian National Railways War Veterans Association of Belleville form the loop this year. However, negotiations are under way, to have an interlocking schedule arrangement with the four Trenton squads, so softball fans should be due for some interesting pastiming here so if summer.

The Point Anne teams have been dubbed the "Redwings"

CHILD DROWNS

Guelph, May 28 — (CP) — Body of four-year-old Jimmy Mellow, who was drowned when he fell into the Speed River last Thursday, was recovered from the swollen waters Tuesday night. The body was discovered more than a mile from the scene of the drowning. The lad was a son of Dr. Gordon Mellow, medical officer at the Ontario reformatory and the "Leafs". The former is of "C" rating and will go on into the Kiwanis playdowns in that classification while the Leafs under Frank (Leo) Sedore are "A" rating and will play down in that grouping.

Names of Association umpires were submitted to the meeting and include Harvey Scott; Jack Pentland, Sandy Gerrard Ethier, Red Townsend Ed. Schrieder and Doc Thomas.

Softball is on the threshold of a new era in Point Anne, thanks to the efforts of Mr. J. H. Legris, manager of the Canada Cement Company's plant there. Mr. Legris has always been an ardent sports enthusiast, especially where Point Anne athletics are concerned. He is a great "hometown" rooter, and has always gone out of his way to promote interest in sports at the works. Thanks to him the company is sponsoring both Kiwani Aces and this year, and interest in softball is increasing by leaps and bounds.

The Kiwanis squad in the City Service Baseball League is holding a practice tonight at 6:30 in the Queen Victoria grounds. All potential players and members of last year's team are requested to turn out. The first official game opens on Saturday May 31st with a double-header at the Alemite field. First game starting at 2 p.m.

• • •

On Saturday May 31st, starting at 1:30 p.m. through to 6:30 Alemite will be the scene of the COSSA (Bay of Quinte) Track Meet. All events on the calendar are scheduled and it is expected that fifteen schools of the district will be represented. On Friday May 30th will be the locale of the Ontario Athletic Commission annual meet. Events include 100 yards for 14 mile; high jump; broad jump; pole vault, hop, step and jump; shot put and the 120 yard low hurdles. Winners will get coaching vacations of 6 weeks each.

• • •

Tonight at the Alemite Field, Jupe Pluvius permitting, the Kiwanis Juniors will attempt to wipe out that 7-4 shellacking administered to them by the Trenton Flyers earlier in the week. They clash with the lads in blue at 6:30 in their second meeting of the season. Tomorrow night Whalen's Dairy and Bell Telephones and Rousseau's Garage and Dry Beverages will meet in a Commercial Loop doubleheader, first tilt at 6:15.

A sharp card of wrestling action has been lined up for Friday night at the Arena. The main bout of course is the re-match between the powerful Scottish wrestler Brother Jonathan and the Ozark Giant Hi Lee. In the semi-final Pat Sharpe, the tall beautifully built Hamilton heavy gets his biggest test here when he tries conclusions with Bronislau Kenneth "Ken" Wagner. Wagner is a "longlie" from away back when, but this young Sharpe grappler is one of the two greatest 'finds' of the year in the tag and heavy sport. The other outstanding prospect is Ken's brother Mike.

• • •

In the third bout Ken Kenneth the New Zealand mat star will try to prove his superiority over Pat Flanagan. Kenneth is a terrific wrestler in his own style which is quite different from American and Canadian methods. Ken Ansac gave Wagner a violent going over when they met here last week. Although the match ended in a draw at the end Wagner was a well-beaten man so it looks as if popular Pat Flanagan will have to be at his sharpest to hold the blond Kenneth.

Marked Upsurge in Golf Interest Presages Gala Season for Links

Bay of Quinte Country Club Ready for Best Year in History; Live Organization Perfects Plans for Season's Activities

Recent heavy rains may have dampened the greens and fairways of the Bay of Quinte Country Club golf links, but the optimistic spirit of officials, members and golf bugs of the city refused to say "quit" to the persistent visits of Ole Jupe Pluvius.

One of the brightest stars in their crown of optimism is the return this year of the popular club pro, Charlie Pidutti. Add to this a rapidly increasing membership, excellent condition of the course, a fine all-over club spirit, and an outstanding schedule of seasonal matches and you have the answer to their attitude.

Veteran and novice, expert and duffer are looking forward to the best golfing season in years. There remains but over the course, between showers, the creaking of aging bones, and the shrill cries of excited youth, as five of the seven ages of men limber up for the summer's sport.

Claire Morgan, re-elected president of the club is again at the helm, ably assisted by Walter Allore, chairman of the House Committee. Plans have been laid for a gala opening of the club with a Golf Ball (no pun intended) at the end of the month. A name band has been secured by Mr. Allore and a grand evening has been planned to inaugurate the social activities.

Ken Reid again heads the play as captain assisted by Tommy Carruthers, Harry Ridley and George Faulkner. A series of outstanding matches is planned for the season with every golfing Joe or Jane will be invited to play, whether they punish the ball, the turf or Old Man Par.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

It appears the club, according to this committee is "more interested in fun and fellowship than low scores" so regardless of whether players break 80, a couple of clubs or the course par, they will be made welcome.

The greens are in excellent condition, due to the unstinting efforts of Chairman of Green Ralph Smith. In fact they are said to be in the best shape for years. Smith is assisted by Charlie Pidutti the pro, who by the way, is an excellent teacher of the Royal and Ancient Game.

Lorne McDougall, will keep an expert eye on the cuts on the finances of the club, while the secretarial chair will be occupied by W. S. Stone, a gentleman of figures, par excellence. It is in his office, Pinnacle Street, that application forms will be obtained.

All in all, and with a highly capable group of men at the helm, the Bay of Quinte Golf Argus appears to be headed for the best season in its history. Youth must be served, and youth this year, says that has been marked by a tremendous upsurge in all phases of recreational activities has turned to golf in numbers that are surprising.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

What bothers me is how Dunninger, the mental wizard, keeps from blushing in a bridge game. Or maybe he pays no attention to what his partner is thinking.

Suppose he is the dealer with a hand like this:

♠ K Q 5 4 2
♥ None
♦ K Q J
♣ K Q 5 3

If he reaches a contract of four spades and makes six, will he be criticized? If he gets to a slam and is defeated by one or two tricks, what will his partner think?

The opening bid with this hand is two spades. Such an opening is a forcing to game signal. Partner must help keep the bidding alive until at least a game contract is reached.

Suppose partner responds at once with two no-trump. This is the signal for showing a hand that lacks a sure trick. The hand you see would then bid three spades. It is not a game. Partner must bid again.

Assume partner then says four spades. This is an admission of support for a rebiddable spade suit. Is this enough information to try for a slam with the cards before you?

Take stock of what you know regarding the responding hand. It has no sure trick. So, partner has no ace. Nor has he a combination of king and queen in any one suit. This much he said with two no-trump.

Responder says he has adequate support for rebiddable spades.

He may have three or more spades. Aside from this help, however, he may not have another bit of stuff that you can use.

One trick will be lost to the club ace. There is a chance of losing a diamond trick. There is also a chance of losing another club trick. These are dangers to take seriously.

So, what would you do? Stop at four spades? Shoot for a slam in spades? Maybe you should take a look at the other cards. Funny how much better we can do when we see all the cards.

The Movie Column

Back at the St Catharines College Institute, Georgie Calderwood was known as the kid brother of two, beautiful sisters. He was a nice kid, fond of practical dramatics and the debating society, and he got by his academic subjects with little difficulty. Then came the war and Georgie whooped into the RCAF.

It was while overseas that a J. Arthur Rank scout discovering nothing of the beautiful sisters saw young Georgie who had grown tall, dark and handsome. He looked liked good grist for the movie mill and handed a contract. He wasn't to appear in pics for at least a year, during which time he would attend dramatic school.

Today the publicity releases say the soft-eyed George is ready for his next big chance. Even changed his name to Calder Wood. He's from where

CHAPTER 1

"Bruce Bartlett!" cried Rose, her voice rising until it attained a thin squeal of horrified incredulity. "You're joking."

She paused in her pacing to glare at Gayle, who was lying back against the pillows on the settee in a cluster of smaller davenport. "I don't believe it. I've seen what I've seen and I still don't believe it.

"I'm not fooling. Look." Gayle slipped her hand under a pillow and produced a small box. She touched a spring. The lid flew open and a diamond ring stood revealed, the sunlight catching it in a dozen prismatic rays. Nothing else would seem right."

"Right!" Rose took a step and let herself fall into a big overstuffed chair. "Right! Nothing could be wronger—nothing! You can't be such a fool, Gayle. You've got brains. Listen! That bird will take like hell for you. He's no good. You know he's no good. Gayle, where's your sense? I never thought you'd fall for a pretty face."

"Pretty? Do you really call Bart pretty, Rose?"

"No, darn it! He's, not pretty; he's so handsome he's a pain in the stomach. That's one trouble with him. He's a regular poster, and there's just about as much to him. He's rolled over, head at him, Gayle! It's all in his face. Anybody can see what he is."

"Did you ever see anyone more popular?" Gayle asked belligerently. "Now, be honest. Have you?"

"That's another thing wrong with him," Rose flung her arms wide and cried helplessly, "Oh, what's the use!"

Gayle sat up straight on the couch. "You won't believe me, Rose," she began, "but I'll bet I know everything you're thinking. When I first met Bart, I didn't think any better of him than you do. It's taken nearly three years for me to change my mind. . . . Bick Bart with his swivel hips," Rose observed, her voice toned to a razor edge with sarcasm. "Black Bart, Yale's miraculous king-bench; Bruce Bartlett of Germantown, New York, Newport, Bar Harbor, and points east, north, and south. . . . Bruce Bartlett, the glamor boy of Yale and the varsity clubs. Black Bart making a touchdown; Black Bart and his current deb dancing in the Sert Room; Black Bart wearing the first thing in sport jackets, Black Bart—"

Gayle's laugh interrupted further listing by Rose.

"Exactly," Gayle said. "Just exactly.

"I took it for granted, too, that he must be conceited and spoiled and stupid. I thought he was a sort of professional glamor boy. And my first meeting with him didn't change my opinion either. That was about the time you, our first year here. Before we took this apartment together.

"It's surprising in a way I felt that, because I was ready to believe everything about Yale was wonderful then. I was thrilled to be going to be a student at the School of Fine Arts.

"Bart and my cousin Nate had graduated two years before, and they'd come up from New York for a football game. Nate invited me to go, and he took me to a tea dance at his club afterward. Bart was there with some New York beauty. I knew who he was the minute I saw him, even before Nate pointed him out. My goodness how the girls fell on him!"

"Makes you want to vomit," observed Rose, gagging daintily.

"That's about the way it affected me, and when Nate brought him around, I had just one idea: I was going to show him I wasn't thrilled at all. . . . But he wasn't the way you think, Rose. You never played Romeo, and I began to find that he wasn't conceited and vain the way I'd supposed he was. He knew he was handsome, I guess. I don't know how he could help knowing it, and, of course, he knows he's a great athlete. Everybody in the country who ever reads a newspaper or a magazine knows that. But he doesn't show off his looks or talk about his athletic fame; he never mentions either. He's really very modest. And he's kind."

A strong word of disbelief formed itself on Rose's lips, but for once she did not let it escape. "And now," she said softly, "you're going to marry him. A rich man's wife. . . . Will you like that, Gayle?"

"No. I told him. I wished he hadn't so much money, and he said he didn't really have any money at all. He works in the New York office, you know, but he doesn't make much. He lives mainly on an allowance from his father."

"You love the beast. Is that it?"

Gayle bent her head in acknowledgement, and her cheeks grew very pink. "I know you understand people better than I do, Rose. Your caricatures are proof enough to prove that. I'll tell you something: I'd have been engaged to Bart two months ago if I hadn't been for you. I knew you didn't like him, and I was afraid to marry anybody you disapproved of. But—"

Rose sighed, and again she pressed Gayle's hand. "All right, sister, if it's got to be, it's got to be. I'm not going to say anything more, and I'll be glad to have my hero he'll never guess what I think of him."

"He doesn't guess now, Rose—he'd be likely to, he really does—"

"Why not? I haven't spit in his face, have I? Are you going to take him home?"

"Yes. He's an invalid now. It's his heart. Bart says he may live for years, or he may die any minute."

"Tough. That's tough." Rose patted Gayle's hand with her right hand and squeezed lightly with her left. "I'm sorry, Gayle," and placed them in her lap. "Thanks for not getting mad at me."

"You were really very mild—for you, I mean," said Gayle, turning to smile at her, "I wish you liked Bart, though. You don't know how I wish it."

"Maybe I will some day. I hope so, but I believe what I see in a face, Gayle. Most people never look at other people—really, but I do. Bart looks arrogant and sullen and selfish and childish to me; that's what I don't like about him." She shrugged her shoulders. "But why go into all that again? You think I'm nuts."

Gayle stood up. "No," she said smiling down at her, "not nuts—but wrong for once."

Once more Rose sighed. "I hope to goodness I am."

She turned into Howe Street, and her little nose wrinkled in disgust. "Such a place to live," she thought. "especially on a day like this."

It was Friday afternoon, the sun was warm, and she felt she could not sit in the apartment with its north exposure and look at the red brick wall of the neighboring apartment house. She would change her things and take a walk. Then she would have dinner at the Y and go to a movie. Gayle would be on her way to Germantown with Bruce Bartlett, and the apartment would be lonely.

FEELS LIKE DIFFERENT PERSON SINCE SYNTONA BUILT HER UP

Nerves on Edge Back Ached, Stomach Rebelled, and She Couldn't Sleep. Tells of Decided Change in Health Since Taking Syntona.

MRS. AMELIA McCOLL

Literally hundreds of men and women throughout this entire section have given public statements telling how quickly Syntona gives them satisfying experience: comes to them even after years of suffering. Such is the case of Mrs. Amelia McColl, well known resident of Parkhill, Ont., who said:

"I was badly troubled with gas, indigestion and biliousness for many years. Then I began to eat what I chose because second nature with me and let me eat hearty meals. I would bolt my food, sour liquids and gas would rise in my stomach and chest with awful shortness of breath. I would get dizzy spells, my head would ache and my back and legs ached badly. I could hardly do my housework. I had no ambition, for I couldn't sleep well at night, and I felt awfully tired and run-down in the morning.

"As you may assume, I tried many things, but was always disappointed. When I got Syntona, I thought it was just another medicine, but I'm glad I did, for after awhile I began to see that it was doing me real good. My appetite improved, digestion better. Then as I continued taking it, the distress in my stomach cleared up. Gradually I got so that I could eat hearty meals. Headache, heartburn and dizzy spells stopped troubling me. Now my nerves are steady, I sleep like a baby, enjoy my full sleep and I feel like a different person altogether. I wouldn't take anything for the good results Syntona brought to me."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Old-Age Retirement Plan Demanded From Ford Company

Detroit, May 29—(AP) — The C.I.O. United Automobile Workers' demand for an old-age retirement plan in the Ford Motor Company stands as the major barrier to a peaceful settlement of a contract dispute between company and union.

The U.A.W. rejected yesterday a company wage offer calling for an 11½-cent hourly boost and six paid holidays. This was the pay package pattern set in recent days-certance by union employees of General Motors Corporation and Chrysler Corporation.

Turning down the offer, U.A.W. vice-president and Ford department director Richard T. Leonard indicated it might have been accepted had it contained the retirement plan, held out by the union as a major demand in contract negotiations.

The union hitch threatened a strike vote earlier this week when oil and negotiations were not progressing satisfactorily, will resume discussions with Ford representatives Monday.

Originally part of the U. A. W. demand was a flat 25½ cents hourly along with the retirement proposal.

The Ford offer, which vice-president Hilbert John S. Bugas said would affect 130,000 production workers, excluded temporarily at least 3,000 members of the Foreman's Association of America, currently on strike.

The company also announced it is putting into effect June 1 a 10-per-cent-wage boost for 20,000 salaried employees.

40 YEARS DRY AND VOTES TO REMAIN SO

Bobcaygeon, May 29 (CP) — Bobcaygeon, village of 1,000 village which has been "dry" for 40 years in a Local Option vote yesterday by 204 votes to 177.

The village store and a brewer's warehouse for sale of beer. The vote gave a slight majority in favor of the liquor and beer but the figure was not sufficient to reach the 60 per cent margin required by law.

TENDERS

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

DOOR NOT SHUT TO SUBSIDIZED HOUSING PLAN

Shortage of Low Rental Houses Holds The Spotlight in Debate In Parliament

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)— The "come-one-spend-a-day discussing Canada's housing shortage yesterday and heard Reconstruction Minister Howe a statement that he was "not closing the door" on proposals for a new subsidized building program, although he would be "sorry" if this step became necessary.

Mr. Howe, the Minister in charge of housing, stated that view before the House in closing debate on a bill to amend the Housing Act to stimulate home-building generally in Canada.

The measure later passed quickly through committee stage, despite C.C.F. efforts to amend it to bring municipalities and provincial bodies under its provisions. Then it was given third and final reading and now awaits approval in the Senate.

Mr Howe, answering various opposition suggestions for improvement in the housing program, made these points:

1. If a subsidized program is undertaken, it will have to be handled by the municipalities with Federal aid.

2. Under the constitution, housing is primarily a provincial and municipal responsibility, but the Dominion recognizes the responsibility of taking care of the dislocation arising from the war.

Municipalities Must Co-operate

3. The Dominion cannot operate effectively without the "active" co-operation of municipalities. Where municipalities cooperate, housing needs are met; whether they fail to co-operate, there is only a "partial" solution.

$1,000 TAKEN BY FOUR GUNMEN FROM BREWERY

Enter Waterloo Store But Flee as Cashier And Inspector Enter The Office

Waterloo, Ont., May 30 (CP)— Officials of Carling Breweries, Ltd., of Waterloo said today the four gunmen who held up the retail office of the brewery last night escaped with approximately $700 and not $1,000 as originally reported.

A maroon sedan believed to be used by the thugs was recovered by a combined police search and the hunt is concentrated in that area. Waterloo police said the battery in the sedan was dead.

Entering the store just at closing time when it was empty of customers,the bandits ordered the clerks into a back room and ransacked the counter cash box. All were locked in a closet over the lower part of their faces.

Surprised by arrival of the office cashier and the government inspector, the thugs fled to an automobile outside where a fifth man, apparently unmasked, was waiting. They were in the office not more than two or three minutes.

Charles Kupiec, store manager and one of the two employees in the store, said he first mistook the men for last-minute customers.

They ordered the clerks to open the vault but found none there. A large sum of money in the vault is believed to have escaped their notice.

Arrival of the cashier and government inspector interrupted the thugs as they marched Kupiec and Allison Colfer, a clerk, to the back of the store. The bandits fled in their car as Colfer and Kupiec notified police.

Late last night police cars spotted a car, similar to the bandits', between Brantford area tracking down conflicting reports of the fleeing automobile's progress. The bandit car was reported travelling at more than 100 miles an hour when pointed at Ayr in Blenheim township.

The automobile was identified as one stolen at Woodstock Wednesday night.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Toronto, May 30 (CP). Rev. John R. Dunkin, pastor of Wortley Road Baptist Church, London, had a narrow escape from death today when shotgun blasts fired through the window of a Canadian National Railways train on which he was a passenger. The incident occurred as the train passed through High Park in suburban Toronto.

Rev. John R. Dunkin had opened a Bible on his lap when the bullet struck the window and showered him with glass. Mr. Dunkin escaped injury.

Police said they believed the shot was fired by youths engaged in target practice.

Unknown Man and Boy Were Heroes at Crash Of Huge Plane at N.Y.

By ANN HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 30 (CP)—The last three lines were home to scrape off the mud and soot and blood, and the sightseers were getting nervous.

The policemen and firemen were packing up; ambulance drivers had sorted out most of the bodies; gallons of coffee had been made and drunk; special telephone lines were being disconnected; by midnight last night the corner of Jamaica Avenue and Forest the Academy of Aeronautics was quiet.

It looked almost normal, except for the tail of a DC-4 and a surprisingly small litter of wreckage in the field behind the school. The neighbors, in their nightclothes, the flying students who had thought most of them saved out of the wreck in the 10 minutes of confusion before the emergency squads got there.

Some of the heroes were still around. Jack Ryan, a stocky white-haired vocational counsellor who wouldn't give his name—and who, quite by accident, had made much of the destruction of someone weak, possible.

He wasn't usually around at night. Last night he was. Somewhere in his 60 or so years he had been writing a letter to his phone switchboard, and somewhere he had learned how to keep stunned and half-hysterical people working, and how to help them translate their hysteria into courage and their shock into action.

It wasn't until midnight that he remembered what he had been doing when that blinding yellow flame exploded in the dark sky a few hundred yards away. He had been writing a letter to his daughter in Ohio, apologizing for not having written and planning for Cleveland. That was the plane that yielded up about 40 broken and blackened bodies.

The heroes who had gone home to a nightmare-broken sleep of exhaustion were no less to be honored. There was the boy—a few if any recognized him though the confusion of sirens and rising gasoline flames — who scrambled, somehow, to the very top of the high, bombed tail of the plane. Somewhere he found a rope and lowered the bewildered a hole in the sleek, glittering metal cage with dead. Then he dived inside to bring out the first survivor, a boy of 15 years reach. Later he found it was a girl—a dead girl; but in that inferno it was impossible to tell the living from the dead.

JUST SELF DEFENCE

Lewiston, Ida., May 30—(AP)— John Gibbons, 19, was fishing in the Clear-water River when he became frightened what he took to be the mouth of a steelhead trut. He struck a rock and let fly with perfect aim.

While walking home, the lad had six inches of the fish, a 10-pound 30-inch trout, but became frightened when he found it without pole and hook.

"I thought sure the fish was going to bite," he said.

"Obviously self-defence," ruled game warden Harry Palmer.

FIRE BOMB HURLED THROUGH WINDOW FIRES APARTMENT

Woman Who Occupied Flat Suffers Burns, Landlord is Arrested On Charge of Arson

Hamilton, May 30 (CP). — Severely burned when a home-made fire bomb, hurled through a bedroom window, set fire to her apartment last night, Mrs. Pearl Dobbins, 40, today was still in hospital where authorities described her condition as serious. Rescued by a passer-by attracted by the flash fire, Mrs. Dobbins' clothing was burned off, her hair set afire and furniture was reduced to ashes.

Police charged Joseph Bella, the woman's landlord, with arson and following appearance in court this morning he was remanded to June 6 and released on bail of $20,000.

Crown Counsel Hugh F. Brown told the court Bella was alleged to have hurled a bottle of inflammable material through the apartment window.

William Rockridge was quoted as having told police he forced open the front door to gain entrance to the apartment where he found Mrs. Dobbins on the floor. Assisted by a neighbor, he removed the woman to the street where blankets were used to smother her burning clothing.

Inferno-like Heat

Firemen said they were astonished to find Rockridge had been able to charge into the apartment at all because the heat from the blazing inferno. Heat of the fire was intense that a calendar on the wall, untouched by the flames, crumbled when touched.

Firemen they found broken fragments of a two-quart or gallon container on the bedroom floor.

Police said that on the way to the hospital, Mrs. Dobbins told Hockridge "someone tried to get me" and "they've got a lighting for me." She had returned from a trip to Chicago only five days previously.

Continuing their investigation, police said they had learned that some time ago tenants of the cottage-like apartment house had argued in a rental court against a request made by their landlord.

ONTARIO CROPS ARE THREATENED WITH DISASTER

Coldest, Wettest Spring in Canadian Weather Records Causes Damage

(By The Canadian Press)

The coldest, wettest spring in Canadian weather records has damaged this year's crops, particularly in the east, to an extent that cannot yet be accurately estimated. But in Ontario the crop threatened disaster in places.

There was frost again on the prairies and in parts of Ontario and the Maritimes last night. Prayers for relief came from the cold and rain in Roman Catholic churches.

The weather forecaster promised relief today from the cold persistent rain in eastern Canada with continued sunshine and a slight threat of warmer temperatures at the weekend.

While spring seeding was impossible in many areas of eastern Canada, Ottawa thought it "is not hopeless by any means."

That is the opinion of the Agriculture Department at Ottawa. After June 15, millet and buckwheat could be used as "catch crops."

45 CANADIANS DRAW WINNING TICKETS IN SWEEP

One Draws Tudor Minstrel Odds-On Favorite for Epsom Derby, June 7

By MICHAEL ROONEY
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Dublin, May 30 (CP). — The great drum of the Irish hospitals sweepstake was again today spewing out lucky tickets for hundreds of holders throughout the world on the Epsom Derby to be run June 7. Forty-five Canadians drew winning tickets in this 60th sweep that meant rich prizes for a total purse of $100,000 for a fortunate few.

Nineteen horses went to Canadians, holders of winning tickets drawn from the seven-ton revolving drum, one of them, with the nom de plume of "Michel" drawing the favorite, Tudor Minstrel, favorite for the derby. "Michel's" ticket number was AB40630.

Another Canadian and a holding ticket No. AH07513 under the nom de plume of "Junior", drew Blue Train, the King's entry which is a leading favorite.

Other horses drawn by Canadians were: Blue Street, drawn by two persons; Migoli, five; Blue Peter, one; Bhilibeg, two; Court Street, one; Richard III, three; Niger II, three; Combat, three; fog, and the scallop dragger, Argosy at dead slow speed, rammed each other forward of amidships, tearing a gaping hole in the port side of the little fishing craft.

Crew members of both ships said neither vessel had sighted the other until "it suddenly loomed up out of the fog." The fishing vessel's port side forward and the starboard forward side of the trawler were crushed together but the freighter, heavily loaded with sugar, hardly felt the impact that sent the dragger reeling off in a sinking condition.

Airliner Fails to Take Off At La Guardia Field Killing 39 and Injuring Nine

Two Planes Hit Mountains, One in Iceland, One in Japan

(By The Canadian Press)

More than 100 persons are feared dead after a series of widely separated crashes throughout the world yesterday and last night added up to one of the blackest days in peacetime aviation history.

In two civilian crashes, one in Iceland and one in New York City; 39 are known dead and little hope is held for 25 who crashed on a bleak Icelandic mountain.

In Japan, 40 occupants of a United States army courier plane are believed to have perished after their aircraft crashed on a hill not far from Mount Fujiyama.

In Argentina four persons were killed and one injured when two planes, one civilian and one army, crashed in separate accidents. Both members of the army aircraft's crew were killed when it crashed into a city park while the pilot and one-girl passenger were killed and a second girl passenger hurt when the civilian plane cracked up on a demonstration flight.

No Sign Of Life

The wreckage of both the Iceland plane and the one in Japan was sighted by searchers today and no sign of life appeared in either case. Ground parties are working under difficult conditions in the two areas to reach the crash scenes.

The New York crash was the worst in the history of commercial aviation in the United States. A Cleveland-bound United Airlines plane crashed on takeoff from busy La Guardia field, just across the East River from Manhattan, killing 39 and injuring nine.

The Iceland plane vanished in poor weather yesterday on a flight from the capital to North Iceland. It carried mostly women and children and one member of the Icelandic parliament.

In Tillburg, Holland, two Anson aircraft collided in perfect weather and 12 persons were killed on a military training flight. In another military mishap, three United States army airmen are missing and believed to have lost their lives after a Superfortress crash in Alaska. In this case, too, the crash occurred on takeoff.

In other recent air disasters a Trans-Canada airliner plane disappeared last month without trace after it had made radio contact with Vancouver airport and reported it was ready to come for a landing. Search of the mountainous British Columbia coast and the waters offshore has been fruitless.

12th Major Plane Crash of 1947

New York, May 30—(AP)— The crash of a United Airlines DC-4 airliner near La Guardia Field last night in which 37 persons were believed killed was the worst air disaster in United States commercial aviation history and the 12th major plane crash of 1947.

The year's record:

Jan. 5 — 43 reported dead in Chinese airliner crash in Taiwan.

Jan. 24 — 12 killed in crash at London airport.

Jan. 29 — 22, including Grace Moore and Swedish Prince, killed in Dutch airliner crash on Copenhagen field.

Jan. 27 — 11 killed in B-29 crash at Albuquerque, N.M.

Feb. 1 — 16 killed in crash near Lisbon, Portugal.

Feb. 7 — 10 die in crash of Italian plane in Spain.

Feb. 15 — 18 die in crash of Italian plane off Anzio.

Feb. 15 — 53 die in crash of plane on mountain top in Colombia.

Feb. 21 — 21 die in Chinese airforce transport plane crash near Chungking.

March 1 — 23 killed in crash of French plane in Alps south of Grenoble.

April 5 — 27 die in wreck of commercial airliner near Caracas, Venezuela.

In addition, a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane has been missing with 15 persons aboard since it left Vancouver for a landing, on April 29.

VETERAN OF DIEPPE DIES SUDDENLY

Hamilton, May 30 (CP)—A veteran of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry who was wounded and taken prisoner in the assault on Dieppe, Charles Lindsay Counsell died suddenly today at his father's home at nearby Ancaster. The 28-year-old Counsell had been under treatment for a pneumonia attack for several days.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Counsell, Lindsay employed by the Department of Veterans' Affairs at the Veterans' Land Act Centre, Dundas, he was first reported to have been killed in action at Dieppe. Later, however, reports however, revealed he was a prisoner in Germany and that he suffered serious wounds before his capture.

8 Fishermen Rescued From Death After Collision of Ships in Dense Fog

Saint John, N.B., May 30 (CP)— Eight men were rescued from certain death in the Icy Bay of Fundy by other fishermen early today after the Saint John-bound steamer S.S. Rockwood Park following a collision in dense fog yesterday, eight fishermen of Saint John, the dragger L.G.F. landed in Saint John today on the first step to-ward completing their homes at West Pubnico, N.S.

The collision occurred in the eastern end of George's Bank off the Nova Scotia coast as the 1,650 ton freighter, feeling her way at reduced speed through the

New York May 30 —(AP)— The crash of a United Airlines DC-4 plane with 48 aboard, just after it takeoff from La Guardia Field killed 38 persons last night and another, Cleveland-bound for his wedding, died today.

The disaster was the worst in the history of American Commercial aviation. The city's previous worst air accident occurred July 28, 1945, when a United States Army plane struck the Empire State Building, killing 14 persons.

Victor Levin, Queens County Assistant District Attorney, said that the pilot of the plane, Capt. Fenton R. (Lucky) Baldwin, told him he "tried to get it off the ground but nothing happened."

First fire, then heavy rains impeded rescuers who sought to determine which of the passengers were still alive and rush them to hospitals. Thirty-seven were taken dead from the plane and another, stewardess Helend Nicol died as she was being declared dead upon arrival at hospital.

Hundreds of spectators at La Guardia Field, including relatives of the passengers, saw the fatal takeoff of the plane.

Levin talked to the 36-year-old pilot before he was given sedatives.

Premier F. Nagy Of Hungary Resigns Office

Budapest, May 30 — (AP)—An official government announcement said today that Premier Ferenc Nagy had resigned. A high Hungarian informant said he had been "pushed from office" in what was described as a "Communist coup d'etat."

The announcement of the resignation, furnished by the official news agency, was only one sentence. It said the premier was on vacation in Switzerland, had called at the Hungarian Legation in Bern and had asked that President Zoltan Tildy accept word of the resignation.

Imre Olvanyi, a left-wing member of Nagy's small holders party was understood to have been chosen tentatively as premier.

Olvanyi, former National Bank president, was said to have won the conditional approval of leaders of the small Independence Peasants, Social Democrat and Peasant parties who, the informant added, "have accepted Nagy's resignation, telephoned to Switzerland."

The informant said Nagy, absent from Hungary since May 14, would not come back to Hungary, Nagy's wife, daughter and brother will be welcomed by the country. His four-year-old son, it was said, will be sent to Switzerland.

Pro-American Hungarians said the shift in power was a step in the direction of a full-fledged Communist police state in Hungary, which borders Russia and still is under Soviet occupation.

May Nationalize Banks

Nagy's resignation forecast an intensified Communist drive to nationalize the national bank and banks other than the central, 51 per cent of Hungarian industry, which already is 90 per cent nationalized. Panicky business leaders feared a repetition of last summer's inflation.

In 17 months in office, Nagy as leader of the majority party had fought for moderate reconstruction of his government in the face of contrary demands by the Communist minority and the encroachments of his followers out of parliament.

Shorty Cantlon Fatally Injured In 500-Mile Race

Indianapolis, May 30 — (AP)— William (Shorty) Cantlon, 45, was injured fatally today while competing in the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Cantlon, competing in his 12th 500-mile race, suffered a crushed chest, a broken leg and other internal injuries. He was pulled up and rushed to the field hospital where he died.

The train, usually made up of 16 cars, travels between Miami, Fla., and Detroit. It was en its way to Kansas City.

Feeling of Insecurity Plagues Dutch Citizens Despite Scenes of Plenty

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Hague, Holland, May 30 — (CP) — Holland, with its dreamy canals, tall canals, lazy windmills and lush fields, gives the appearance of peace and placidity. The citizens of Holland, in contrast, is one of the most anxious of men.

Here's why:

1. He has a sense of insecurity in a present-day world. After a searing experience of German methods during the war he fears the rebirth of German militarism and he does not think the British and American attitudes are likely to re-educate or change the Germans.

2. He is concerned about Russia, as much for the anxiety and uncertainty she causes among the other big powers as for any fear that Russian methods will ever affairs. If Russia and Britain and the United States quarrel, the Dutch feel the smaller nations will suffer.

3. His rations are scanty.

4. He is short of building materials and skilled labor for the homes and factories he needs.

Water has been pumped from the Zuider Zee, which the Germans flooded by opening the sea dikes, in the struggle for full restoration of productive farmland.

Rationing cracks down on luxuries more severely than in Britain. Gasoline-rationing provides that a motorist may drive only on Sunday, the day of rest except for emergency purposes.

Women are not allowed to ride in cars on Sunday unless a special permit is obtained. The assumption is that a woman in a car means a pleasure jaunt is going on.

The toughest shortage is clothing, yet none is ragged.

When a workman was highly complimented on his well-kept cloth on the street car he growled, "You look better than me on the surface but underneath we're both all holes and patches."

He hired the five local men for the work but some time Wednesday night disappeared from his lodging place at a local tobrist cabin.

Police have reasons to believe that the man went to Peterborough hiring a local taxi for his trip

$1,000 in Old Bills Found Behind Picture on Wall

Spring house-cleaning is not exactly a pleasant job for housewives, but at times it has its surprises, as Mrs. F. F. Wilson of 188 Ann Street can vouch for.

Cleaning one of the rooms the other day, the owner of the above-mentioned house found a picture from the wall and discovered a number of paper bag bulging with something.

Investigation revealed a liberal pot of gold, for in the bag the Wilson family found a total of bills of all denominations.

Later, she said she had recovered from the shock of surprise sufficiently to call her son, who lives next door to the Wilson house, Mrs. Arthur Calnan, of her discovery. The house, it is stated, had been the property of Mrs. Calnan's family for a number of years.

That same day she called at the Wilson residence and claimed the bag of money.

City And Township Delegates To Meet for Establishment Of Conservation Authority

At the request of the Ontario Department of Public Works, representatives of Hastings County municipalities in the Moira River Watershed and those of Belleville will meet in the Belleville City Hall at 2 p.m. Wednesday, June 4, to vote on the establishment of the Conservation Authority for the Moira River Development.

The city of Belleville will send two voting delegates and the reeve, while the townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Ameliasburg, Huntingdon, Hungerford, Marmora, Madoc, Elzevir, Lake, and the villages of Tweed, Madoc and Deloro, will be represented by one.

If the vote is to carry, there must be two-thirds of the named delegates present. Two-thirds majority of those voting is also necessary.

At a previous meeting held here on the matter, it was decided to hold several local meetings throughout the district involved to inform taxpayers of the aims, and projects of the development. But owing to the heavy demand for Western Ontario it has been impossible to arrange for the Department of Planning and Development to supply competent speakers for the purpose.

The meeting held Wednesday next will be in charge of Mr. C. R. Hutchinson, chief engineer of the Department of Planning and Development, and will complete the survey.

If the meeting decides to vote for the establishment of the authority, it is pointed out that no appreciable amount of money will be expended for the next year or two, following the 1947 work for completion of the survey, and in this connection the Hastings County Agricultural Committee will endeavor to secure a soil survey of the area during the same time other survey activities are being carried on. A request to this effect will be made by the municipalities.

It is pointed out by those in charge of arrangements for the proposed development that establishment of an authority, that it is of vital importance not only to urban residents but rural people throughout the county.

Projects of the authority, it established, would include flood control, soil erosion, forest preservation, conservation of wild life, and similar important phases.

The municipalities involved are urged by officials to have delegates present at the June 4 meeting.

Delinquents Act Proclaimed In P.E. County

Unofficial word has reached Picton that the Juvenile Delinquents Act has been proclaimed by the Federal Government to be effective in Prince Edward county. Consequent on that action a juvenile court has been established by the Ontario Government to administer the act with His Honor Judge W. S. Lane as judge in the family court.

Alderman Ormonde Butler, the chairman of city property, was interested in property room in the capacity as prosecutor in a Wartime Prices and Trade Board case, but made no comment on the matter.

Existence of a family court is said to assist in handling many cases involving family matters in an informal atmosphere when the parties can more properly belong to the jurisdiction of the police court.

Brighton Plant Manufacturing Puffed Oats

With the establishment of a factory by Graham Dried Foods Company of Belleville, the village of Brighton has the distinction of being the only place in Canada where puffed oats are manufactured. The new plant is the former Butler's apple storage at the foot of Railway Street.

In charge of operations at the new plant is W. S. Hutchinson of Toronto, an expert in the new process. Workers Canada oats with the hulls removed are used. The oats are placed in a cylinder under 300 pounds pressure and cooked with superheated steam. With cooking completed, pressure is suddenly released, causing the oats to puff.

The puffed oats, slightly larger than puffed wheat, are then sorted and placed in cellophane bags. The process was worked out by a Mr. Quisenberry and is patented in Canada and the United States.

Reward of $100 Offered For Missing Men

Peterborough, May 30 (CP)— A reward of $100 for the recovery of two men believed drowned in Rice Lake Wednesday was announced by Patrick Cline and Marshall Armbruster, Hamilton, relatives of the victims.

The missing men are R. A. Sutton, 59, and Cline, 45, aged 54. They have not been seen since Sunday at 9 p.m., when they sought to purchase bait at Nogie's Creek.

The pair were on a fishing expedition and yesterday searchers found an overturned motor boat and one outboard motor still attached. It is believed that the boat was swamped in a storm which hit Pigeon Lake on Sunday evening.

Magistrate Requests Renovations Be Made in Court Room

The dilapidated appearance of the local city police court above the police station, with its loosened plaster and pealing paint on the ceiling, drew a rise from court officials this morning as Magistrate T. W. Ellis requested that renovations and redecoration be made.

"I am not concerned with a possible expenditure of $25,000 at the city hall, but I would like to see conditions in this court room changed for the better," commented the magistrate as he looked up to see a loosened square of plaster in danger of falling over the chief constable's desk. "I think for the sake of safety we better request that the court be cleaned around."

Labor Party Solidly Behind Foreign Secretary

Margate, England, May 30—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin, who has previously been subjected to criticism of his policies from left-wing segments of the Labor party today had the party overwhelmingly behind him.

The outspoken Foreign Secretary received the unconditional endorsement of the party's annual conference yesterday after a fighting speech in which he defended Britain's international policies.

The former General Secretary of the Trades Union Congress told the conference delegates they could either support his policy or resign it.

"Either I am doing right, and the government is doing right, or we are not," Mr. Bevin said.

And after his 1 1-2-hour exposition which covered world problems, a motion resolution proposed against British foreign policy in various parts of the world was rejected. The final vote showed nearly 20 votes in opposition to Mr. Bevin from all the 1,200 delegates.

Bevin dealt with Korea, India, Palestine, Egypt and other countries in his round-the-globe survey.

On the Dardanelles question, he said Russia's demands on Turkey in this connection were unreasonable. They would result in Turkey "losing a good deal of her independence." That is a situation we have been unable to accept."

Coroner's Jury Brings in Verdict Of Negligence

A verdict holding that there had been negligence in the handling of the motorcycle upon which the girl had been riding as a passenger, was returned by a coroner's jury Thursday evening at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of Miss Sheila McGuire, age 16, Coleman Street, who died in Belleville General Hospital on May 18th following a motorcycle accident at Foxboro.

The jury found that "Sheila McGuire came to her death on May 18th, 1947, at the Belleville General Hospital as the result of a skull fracture sustained when her head apparently struck the base of a tree in the front lot of Mr. C. Finkle, Foxboro, when thrown from the pillion seat of a motorcycle driven by Mr. Allan Dunning.

"It is our opinion," the verdict continued, "that the owner of the motorcycle, Allan Dunning, was negligent in the handling of his machine with the inexperienced rider on the pillion seat.

"It is our opinion that the speed of the motorcycle at the time of the accident was considerably in excess of a reasonable speed limit."

The accident in which the McGuire girl sustained her injury occurred as she and Dunning were proceeding south through Foxboro early in the morning of May 18th. The vehicle failed to make the turn at the south of the village and Miss McGuire was found at the base of the tree in Finkle's yard.

Dunning, operator of the motorcycle, received only minor injuries in the accident.

The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. J. S. Demorest with Assistant Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown. The jury consisted of Frank Smith, foreman; John P. Howe, W. E. Clare, J. Keith Onderdunk and Ralph Knowlton.

Friend in Need Is Friend Indeed

St. Thomas, May 30 (CP)— A friend in need is a friend indeed.

Douglas Bolt young war veteran of St. Thomas well testifies.

At 1:15 a.m. Mr. Bolt received a telephone call from a friend that a big truck was in his building lot on No. 4 Highway, just south of the city, loading lumber without permission of the owner. Mr. Bolt investigated and surprised the big dump truck, loaded with his lumber, ready to leave with the property.

He gave chase, and the driver of the truck dumped the lumber into the ditch and disappeared in the nearest cornfield. The truck was traced to an Aylmer owner who said the truck had been stolen from him while he was in the city. Lumber on the truck was valued at about $300.

UNLIKELY TO GET COAL

London, May 30 — (Reuters) — The Liberal News Chronicle reported today that Britain is unlikely to get any coal from the United States because the country considers the price proposed by Americans of $22 a ton is far too high and would only add to the hole in the Anglo American dollar loan. British home-produced coal costs about $16.

VESSEL AT PORT SANDWICH, IS 1947 VERSION OF "FLYING DUTCHMAN"

The S. S. Jupiter, bulk freighter which is a 1947 version of the legendary "Flying Dutchman," as she plies lake Ontario without a port, is a C.I.O.-National Maritime Union picket line. ONTARIO CROPS

Spring Grain Out

At London, Ont., Roy Jewell, field man for the Middlesex Federation of Agriculture, said seeding of spring grain was out of the question now on many farms and time was even getting short for corn but there was still time for the short-season crops — hybrid corn, white beans, soybeans, buckwheat.

Thousands of acres of farmlands in western Ontario were waterlogged yet, St. Thomas had 5½ inches of rain in 29 days this month. It looked like the grimmest crop year in over a quarter of a century in sections of Waterloo. Many farms are veritable lakes in the Niagara peninsula.

The next two weeks are critical. If they turn out warm and dry much of the backlog can be overtaken; if not, it's going to be impossible to replace the seeding time that's been lost no matter what crops are used.

Growers of canning peas, tomatoes, tobacco, are all in the same boat. They can't get the land worked.

Four Come To Canada

Of the 50 residual prizes of £110 (£440) each, four went to Canada.

The Canadian showing of 45 winning tickets compared to the 30 going to the United States. Prizes are to be paid on or after June 17. A winner usually is paid in the country where he bought his ticket.

First ticket drawn away from North America was held by a Canadian from Montreal but his pseudonym and ticket number were not given out.

Another Canadian winner followed before United States was represented by a 45th ticket holder. Canadian winners came fairly rapidly but it became apparent early that the shortage of time since the last draw on the Grand National militated against a big ticket sale in North America.

The winning combination which at the millions of 10-shilling ($2) tickets sold will be riding on the 23 horses entered in the derby. It also decides the winners of several outright cash prizes.

Medical Supplies One of Most Urgent Needs of People of Greece

Many people in Greece are alive today only because of the gift of Canadian wheat during the occupation period, but countless thousands will be dead of disease during the coming year unless medical supplies reach them soon."

This opinion was expressed in an interview in Montreal by Dr. Leonides Polymenakos, former deputy minister of health and member of the board of directors of the Greek Red Cross, who is now in Canada assisting in the work of the Canadian Relief to Greece Appeal for $1,500,000.

"The health condition in Greece today is one of the worst my country has ever faced," declared Dr. Polymenakos. "The next twelve months will be a period of crisis, and unless help is quickly forthcoming I sincerely fear for the future of the Greek people as a nation.

Much Tuberculosis

He stated that many forms of tuberculosis, especially of the lungs, bones and glands were now rampant in Greece due to the long period of malnutrition through which the people are now passing.

"Tuberculosis of the glands, especially among the children, is making terrible inroads among these infants who are destined to be the foundation upon which the Greek nation will be re-built, but unless their health is rehabilitated soon it is no exaggeration to state that within ten more years the Greek nation will cease to exist," declared Dr. Polymenakos.

He stated that diseases such as malaria, cancer, typhoid, diphtheria, small pox and the ever increasing types of tuberculosis are now making rapid strides and only the prompt deliveries of medical, hospital and X-ray equipment, mobile medical-dental health units could stop this advance.

Much Disease Prevalent

"The people of Greece managed to survive as a nation during the enemy invasion and occupation," said the former deputy minister of health, "but they are now facing an invasion of disease which is equally as disastrous as that of the Axis and the occupation period will result in the total annihilation of the Greek people unless they have help."

Dr. Polymenakos described the working program of the health centres already established by the Greek War Relief, to which Canadians in previous fund-raising campaigns subscribed more than $4,500,000. He also told of the vital service being provided by the mobile medical-dental units, but emphasized that a tremendous amount of work remains to be done, especially in the rural areas of Greece where farmers are trying to rebuild their homes and farms in an effort to raise vitally needed food.

"This, however, they can do only under the most difficult circumstances," said the doctor, "as thousands of the farm people suffer from diseases which make it almost impossible for them to cultivate their broken farms and provide a home for their families."

Glad of Earlier Help

Dr. Polymenakos, who was a prisoner of the Italians for more than a year, paid tribute to the help provided by Canada during the previous campaigns and urged his fellow-countrymen in the Dominion, as well as all Canadians, to support the present Canadian Relief to Greece Appeal.

"I owe my life to the wheat Canada sent during the occupation years," he said, "and how I trust that my message will help to save the people of my homeland."

Contributions to the Greek Relief Fund are being accepted in the offices of the Ontario Intelligencer and offices of chartered banks in the city.

6,000 Ornamental Shrubs Presented By Netherlands

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 30—(CP)—Official presentation of 6,000 ornamental shrubs planted as part of The Netherlands Netherlands Memorial Garden in Queen Victoria Park, will be made by Dr. J.H. van Royen, Netherlands Ambassador to Canada, to the Niagara Parks Commission in a ceremony here June 6.

As chairman of the commission Ontario Labor Minister Daley will receive the gift, an expression of gratitude to Canada on the part of what now known as The Planted in a section of the park which overlooks the Horseshoe Falls, the trees and shrubs are expected to be at the height of their beauty in the early summer. The program will be recorded for rebroadcast in The Netherlands.

Pictures Ontario Promised Land Of Sobriety

Guelph, May 30 —(CP)— "In spite of what is happening in Ontario, I believe we are moving into a promised land of sobriety, a land of security in a warless world," Rev. D. V. T. Johnston, minister of Eglinton United church, Toronto, told Hamilton conference United Church deleegates at a banquet last night.

A request that Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell be called upon to ban all forms of advertising by beverage alcohol companies as "an evil effect of the Crown in Ontario and Province Income be used to such good without delay his promise to take over all retail brewery outlets, was contained in a report of the committee on temperance and social service, presented previously.

Drop in U. S. Traffic Deaths

In Canada and the United States there has been a great deal of publicity given to the efforts of both countries to bring about a reduction in the number of traffic accidents which have occupied so great a space in the news in recent times.

From Chicago comes information that 9,250 persons in the United States lost their lives in the first four months of 1947, a decrease of 14 percent compared with the loss of the corresponding period last year.

The total of 9,250 lives lost in a third of a year is very large as it represents a toll of sorrow, suffering and loss which the nation has been called upon to bear.

But the fact that 14 percent fewer persons lost their lives in that time would seem to indicate that the campaign for safety being carried out by the Government and by various organizations is bearing fruit.

Canada like all other nations suffers annually a terrible loss on her highways, a loss in life and in property value so great that officials of the Governments lose no opportunity in issuing warnings in the effort to create a spirit of safe driving by every driver on the roads and of carefulness on the part of pedestrians while walking on the thoroughfares.

The terrible toll in the United States in the first four months of the present year appears to indicate that the driving public is alert to the gravity of the accident situation and of a determined effort on the part of drivers and all other users of the highways to avoid accident.

Canada and Ontario can learn by this information that campaigns do help to keep before the minds of users of the open roads the fact that general attention to carefulness in driving and the avoidance of anything that would indicate anything less than a thoroughness of care and precaution do good work reducing a toll of disaster on the roads.

It is to be hoped that later reports will continue to show ever-diminishing loss of life and property on the highways and roads of the United States and Canada.

Officials who handle campaigns for safety can feel some confidence in the success of their plans and in the conviction of repetition of the need of care in driving or walking on the roads and thoroughfares.

Rain-Making

United States scientists some months ago made snow fall and word came over the cables a few days ago that Australian scientists had succeeded in making rain.

There have been men who have claimed in the past to be able to be rainmakers but recent months have produced the proof of the claims of modern science.

The Australian experiments have been going on for months.

Man somehow got the thought into his head that rain and snow could be produced and there have been various experiments in this line but what thing has now been achieved. The claim has been proven.

How long will it be before science will have so completely at its side the agencies which might make rain and snowfalls possible in a practical way? The future can lift the curtain from that hidden mystery.

Speaking of those who used to claim to be able to produce rain, the New York Times tells of experimenters bearing the mocks of doubters for the experimenters would fire off cannon at the clouds, spray electrified water from planes, and used even terrific blasts of sound to try to cause rain to fall.

Mention is made of the progress in World War II when "fog was burned away on British airfields and land fogs dispersed at a cost of 6,000 gallons of gasoline per landing."

Possibilities are suggested. "If minute particles of silver iodide are scattered by an airplane engine the results may be achieved. Clouds that are made to deposit snow in the open, thus saving New York the trouble and expense of clearing streets in winter; farmers praying for rain and getting it; winter resort obligingly scattering snow just when enthusiastic skiers want it—why not?"

The Times points out that "these attempts at weather making owe much to the exigencies of war . . . There is no immediate hope of drenching a hundred square miles so effectively that an enemy would find maneuvering difficult, but it would be good enough if airfields could be cleared of fog more cheaply than is possible by burning gasoline or shaking droplets down by supersonic vibrations so intense that the ears have to be stopped."

As to the future, that is speculation but the work of American and Australian scientists leaves no doubt that "the time has passed when rain-makers are the proper butts of witty meteorologists."

"Shut-In" Sunday

Sunday June 1 will be marked as a day dedicated to the people who are shut in through illness or age. A large number of communities in Canada and the United States will mark the day which is sponsored by the Shut In's Day Association.

On this day many people will carry out the Master's injunction by making a special effort to help bring joy and fellowship to as many persons as possible who are "shut in." In homes, hospitals and many out-of-the way places there are great numbers of persons who know what it means to be deprived of the opportunity of enjoying "God's great out-of-doors." So the first Sunday in June is set aside to remind the public of its obligation of visiting or in other ways of remembering those who are shut aside.

Among the suggestions are — to visit at least two sick folk or remember by letter, card or other token of one's thoughtfulness, to give a ride in a car to some of those who are fit to go out a bit, or see if they can attend church service.

The suggestions fall in line with the Scottish proverb, "Nae man can be happy without a friend." To-day is the time for the revival of friendships for the forming of new ones and for the sake of adding one's share to the sumtotal of human happiness by remembering the sick and shut-in, the disabled, both military and civilian. There is also the suggestion that each succeeding Sunday be a Shut-In Day.

Water

"Men little know how beautiful is fire," wrote Shelley, and he might have added that perhaps few realize how beautiful is water. From the viewpoint of the motorist a three-quarters of the globe assumes many forms and colors and even gives voice to many sounds, says The Victoria Colonist.

The beauty of water can be gentle and cannot be surpassed by a mountain in stony brooks, or it can be fierce and tempestuous on the wide sea. "This is terrible but beautiful," remarked a passenger looking out on a storm from a liner's deck, and indeed, the turbulent, mountainous waves tossing off foam as in scorn have a beauty of their own, for beauty in its sublimest state has always a touch of terror, as in the impregnable mists of the mountains.

The beauty of water veils itself in many colors, from the silver spray of the waterfall and fountain to the ocean's deepest blue, and it mirrors in its depths the riskes bows of its own creation. The music of water is also many toned. From the thundering organ of the surf to the tinkling treble of the brook it compasses the scale, and in forms as various as the wide seas and streams and seas, so that the fountain of life is a fountain of loveliness, too.

Passing Academic Hat

The popular conception of professors as very unpractical persons is often untrue and unjust. Professors can be very practical people under occasions.

This was evident recently at the annual Baccalaureate Service at Mount Allison University at Sackville, New Brunswick. When the time came to take up the offering, no collection plates were to be found. But eight robed and hooded professors rose to the occasion. With due dignity they left the platform, doffed their "mortar boards," and passed them among the congregation in place of the missing plates. In this manner the offering was collected, the professors returned to the platform and the service continued.

Whether the somewhat unusual collection plates stimulated giving was not revealed. But it was certainly demonstrated that the academic mind is not incapable of meeting a practical problem.—Montreal Gazette.

FROCKS

Of all the things that money buys
From life's assorted stocks,
There's nothing lovelier to the eyes
Than pretty, little frocks.

The glittering gems the grownups wear,
By vulgar folk called "rocks,"
For real beauty can't compare
With pretty, little frocks.

There's much for which man's money goes
And many a bill that shocks,
But nothing that more joy bestows
Than pretty, little frocks.

I hold the best of happiness,
Though many a cynic mocks,
Is this—a girl of seven to dress
In pretty, little frocks.

UNITED AIRLINER

He took off at 7 p.m. Eastern Standard Time with a capacity load of 60,000 pounds on runway 18, which is 4,150 feet long which he claims is the shortest runway on the field."—Levin said.

Went Through Fence

"He said he tried to get it off the ground but nothing happened. The plane continued through a wire fence and across a highway and crashed into a ravine on the other side of the highway. The next thing he knew there were flames all around him.

"He saw a puddle of water in the ravine, climbed out of the plane and was able to walk. His neck hurt and some people came along and helped him.

"He is suffering from first degree burns of the face and neck, and shock, and his condition is not serious."

William F. Riordan, a merchandise manager of a New York department store, said he watched the plane take off and "it had just cleared the runway when three of its engines caught fire". Other witnesses, however, said they saw no flames until the crash.

Flames Shoot in Air

"When it crashed flames shot about 400 feet up in the air," Riordan said. "Within two minutes there were three explosions, apparently from gasoline igniting."

BING IN CANADA

Laden with tackle and gear, Bing Crosby is a happy fisherman during a recent holiday at the Seigniory Club in the Province of Quebec, Canada. He caught his day's limit of five trout in short order, lunched at a small cabin on the lake, then toured through a section of the club's 104 square miles of Laurentian country, visiting the fish hatchery and guides' base camp where he chilled some of the rangers and woodsmen with their favorite songs.

The plane landed near the Academy of Aeronautics, and students and instructors from the aeronautical firemen, police and other volunteers began fighting the chief and injured from the plane.

Albert S. Ogden of Stormville, N.Y., a consulting aeronautical engineer, said he watched the loading of the plane and said the crew seemed to have difficulty starting the two port engines.

"The two engines only ran on one or two cylinders for a considerable time," Ogden said. "As the ship taxied away, the outboard engines began to smoke, and then the pilot stopped for about 10 or 15 seconds until the engine picked up again."

DOOR NOT SHUT

4. There is "doubt" whether the 1946 tiget of 80,000 new housing units can be reached, unless construction speeds up considerably during the next month. This is due to rising costs.

5. Slum clearance is a project of merit but should be left to areas of "proty" employment and should not be undertaken generally at this time when employment is at its highest.

Just before rising, the House debated a resolution, preliminary to a bill to increase the salaries of members of the Board of Transport Commissioners and to make provision for a grant of $200,000 towards maintenance of the railway crossing fund for the year period of 10 years. The bill itself was introduced and given first reading.

1,400 Being Brought

During the question period, Labor Minister Mitchell disclosed that 1,400 European displaced persons are being brought to Canada to work in Ontario lumber industry and confirmed reports that a number of refugees might come to Canada to work as domestics and take over certain farms.

In the housing debate, F. S. Zaplitny (CCF—Winnipeg North) contended that the only way to provide housing was through cooperation of Ottawa with the municipalities in putting up homes without profit, and expressed criticism of the operations of Housing Enterprises Ltd., which had made "huge profits" through the sale of scrap materials.

Joseph Harris (PC—Toronto Davenport) here also were on hand to lend a hand in the good work. Mr. Harris called upon the government to encourage a movement back to those districts. There were "nice homes" surrounded by good farm country.

Favors Low Rental

Co. Cecil Merritt, V.C. (PC—Vancouver-Burrard) was one of those who said that the proposed housing program of low rental housing, with the added charge that it would be "more than inexcusable" if the government failed to make such an appropriation.

The people needed housing which would rent for $25 a month, he said.

A.M. Nicholas (CCF—Mackenzie) argued that few people in Canada could afford to rent at $50 a month or more or to buy a home at the present inflated prices. The "saturation" point had almost been reached when it came to dispoling of houses at present rentals and buying prices.

NICOTINE OR CARBON MONOXIDE?

Authorities differ about the presence of nicotine in tobacco smoke. Nicotine is colorless in the first place, so it is a mistake to ascribe brown stain from tobacco or tobacco smoke to nicotine.

The colorless nicotine turns brownish only after exposure to the air for some time. There is three or four times as much nicotine in Kentucky or Virginia tobacco as in Havana tobacco. Anyway, the amount of nicotine has no particular relation with the "strength" of the tobacco, or with its taste or aroma. Most if not all of the nicotine in tobacco is destroyed by combustion before smoke is produced.

Speaking merely as a one-horse-and-buggy sixty-pipe man, I believe the ill effects of excessive smoking are due mainly if not entirely to the carbon monoxide in the smoke.

Two or three drops of pure nicotine (approximately one-twentieth of a gram) would kill a man; one gram of pure carbon monoxide would kill a man.

Analyses made by investigators in the United States indicate that a cigaret gives off 20 to 40 cubic centimeters of carbon monoxide in the smoke. This quantity distributed over perhaps twenty drafts or puffs would be a fair dose per draft. One breath carries about a pint (one cc.) of air to average quiet breathing (called tidal air); the cigaret smoker inhales 2% carbon monoxide with each puff.

But between puffs there are always several times as much air from carbon monoxide—which is fortunate for those smokers who breathing air containing that concentration of carbon monoxide would cause serious trouble in a few minutes.

Blood tests of a number of persons living in a large city revealed the blood of non-smokers to contain 1.5% of carbon monoxide—unhaled in air polluted by automobile exhaust gases, factory chimneys, domestic and business furnaces, steamships and the like. Heavy smokers contained 3 or 4% of carbon monoxide.

The characteristic ill effect of smoking I believe, is impairment of the oxygen content, ration of the supply of blood (oxygen essentially) to the functioning cells of tissues and organs, by combination of the arterioles (the smallest blood vessels that you see with the microscope) or, as the old timers called them, the capillaries. This is the action of carbon monoxide rather than "nicotine". Indeed, all of the symptoms of acute and chronic tobacco poisoning are those of carbon monoxide poisoning in my opinion.

Dr. Drabkin made scientific measurement of the rapidity of blood flow in the hand and in investigator (Lampson, JAMA, '35) found that inhaling one cigaret caused such constriction and slowing of circulation lasting about an hour.

Marked drop of skin temperature of fingers and toes follows smoking of 1 to 3 cigarets, as much as 10 degrees, for half an hour or longer—further evidence of constriction of arterioles and reduction in supply of blood (oxygen) to the cells.

Draw your thumb across the skin just below the base of the fingernail. Note the change in the blood out of it. The pink flush should return in a second if your circulation is good. When your circulation is impaired by carbon monoxide, by nicotine or other source—the pink flush will take longer than that. This is a rough test of the efficiency of the circulation.

This constriction of the arterioles (carbon monoxide anoxia) shows in almost all of the effects of excessive smoking, in my opinion

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is the sky blue?

What we call "the sky" is merely the limit of our vision into the atmosphere. The sky, like the ocean, is always blue as seen as one can see.

The white light of the sun is composed of orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet rays. A blue object looks blue as it absorbs all the rays of white light except those that produce the effect of blue.

It so happens that the atmosphere under ordinary conditions breaks up and scatters the white sunlight in such a manner that we receive the blue rays. For one thing, the completely moves the atmosphere into the "ether" the vault of the heavens, or the clear black.

Science are not agreed as to whether the blueness of the sky is due primarily to the component particles of air, nitrogen and oxygen, or to dust particles, water vapor and other impurities suspended in it. The conventional theory, however, is that the experiments made by John Tyndall (1820-1893) is that the color of the sky is produced by the reflection of the countless dust particles in the atmosphere.

There is evidence, however, to support the view that the air molecules themselves in the outer atmosphere are blue and that these are the chief factors in producing the blue effect. The sky appears bluer where there is least dust in the direction of the visual ray, and the blueness deepens toward the zenith and also as the elevation of the observer. Persons who have ascended into the atmosphere to altitudes of 10 miles or more tell us that the sky in broad daylight has a deep, dark blue or violet color. Professor Piccard reported that at 60,000 feet the sky was like black velvet on which the stars shone bright and dried—it was black with just the slightest touch of dark blue.

The rays of the sun produce different effects when they pass through layers of atmosphere laden with dust, water vapor, and it is known that the size of the refracting and reflecting particles combined with the particular slant at which the light rays strike them, determines the color of the mass.

The sky is generally lighter near the horizon because the visual ray has to pass through a thicker layer of atmosphere where the dust particles and water vapor are relatively more numerous.

Skies over thickly settled regions and industrial districts have decreased in blueness owing to the increased smoke, dust and other impurities in the air.

The color of the sky is an indication of the presence of water vapor and dust in the atmosphere and accordingly plays a part in forecasting weather.

Broader Sale Liquor Opposed By Conference

Brockville, May 30 — (CP) Opposition to broader sale of liquor was expressed in a resolution passed yesterday by the 32rd annual Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada. Specifically the conference objected to serving of beverage alcohol on passenger trains in this area.

Rev. Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the Board of Evangelism, declared "Premier Drew's administration, hiding behind an iron curtain, has absolutely refused to provide us with any date beyond March 1946, on liquor consumption." He was not concerned with politics but he said the Liberal government of Mitchell Hepburn provided the board with figures on a month-to-month basis.

Delegates were warned in report of the Evangelism Board to remain on the alert lest votes on sale of liquor be sprung unawares on the community. Sale of alcohol in dining lounges, especially those frequented by family groups, was deplored.

Extension of facilities for mixed drinking was regretted also and hope expressed that some action would be taken immediately to "mitigate this evil."

Urged to Set Example

Members of churches in the conference were urged to set an example by total abstinence, and to refrain from offering cocktails or other alcohol drinks on any occasion.

The conference in other resolutions urged church members to use their influence against the "increasing tendency towards commercialization of the Lord's day."

Industry was urged to decentralize to provide more sunlight and fresh air for workers' families.

In another resolution the conference said it "calls upon Prime Minister Mackenzie King to assure all Canada that the much-publicized and materially-wasteful Marian Congress to be held in Ottawa next month will not be an occasion when governments, armed or civilian services, and funds will be used to the advantage of a religious body contrary to the accepted Canadian belief and practice, that affairs of church and state be kept separate."

Dr. Mutchmor said in his address that the Crusade for Christ was the greatest single factor in the United Church post-war program. More than 25,000 persons had joined the church in 1945 and there had been an increase of 30 per cent in this figure last year.

Overell and his socially prominent wife aboard the Overell yacht last March. The state contends that the co-ed beat Miss Overell's parents to death and then staged a dynamite blast to conceal the crime. Both defendants stoutly protest their innocence. Those given for the crime is the parents' alleged objection to the marriage of their daughter and the navy veteran.

Legislation Will Clear Confusion Says Atty.-Gen.

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—Attorney-General Blackwell of Ontario yesterday forecast new provincial liquor legislation in an announcement which indicates that a long, vote-strewn road lies ahead of the three Ontario counties and 14 cities now under the Canada Temperance Act should they wish to ditch the C.T.A. and come under Ontario laws governing sale of alcoholic beverages.

The new legislation will be introduced at the adjourned session of the Provincial Legislature scheduled for June and Mr. Blackwell said its aim to eliminate confusion which has arisen, because of the pending plebiscite June 16 in nearby Peel county on the C.T.A. question.

Mr. Blackwell said an amendment to the Liquor Licence Act passed at the recent legislature session contributed to the confusion. This amendment provided that in areas where the C.T.A. was repealed, government stores could be opened for sale of beer, wine or liquor but no licences could be issued for public sale, such as in hotels and taverns, without an affirmative vote under Ontario law by the municipality involved.

New Proposals

His, the Attorney-General added took no account of the situation in municipalities which banned liquor sale under Local Option by-laws long before the C.T.A. came into effect. Hence the new proposals which are:

1. Wherever in Ontario the C.T.A. is in force or comes into force the Ontario liquor sale laws will not apply; if the C.T.A. is repealed, the Ontario law does apply.

2. When the C.T.A. is repealed, any municipalities which had Local Option by-laws ante-dating the Dominion law will go back to their local dry situation "unless and until sale and consumption of beer or liquor is authorized under an affirmative vote under the Ontario Act.

3. When there are no Local Option complications, government stores for sale of beer and liquor for home consumption may be opened following repeal of the C.T.A. But a vote under the Ontario Act is necessary before licensing of hotels or other premises for public sale. There are some exceptions. In that licences may be issued without such a vote for sale and consumption in clubs, military messes, railway cars or steamships.

Subject of Legal Wrangle

The C.T.A. which bans the sale of keeping for sale of intoxicating liquor, was the subject of a long legal wrangle between Province and Dominion which was settled early last year when the Privy Council held that the intra vires of the Dominion government. It is an optional law, and may be adopted or repealed in any area by a majority vote of persons eligible to vote in Federal elections.

The Privy Council decision upholding the C.T.A. brought a change in Ontario liquor policy in dry areas. Before that time the province had issued beer and wine sale licences to hotels in the three dry counties. These licences were cancelled more than a year ago and that led, in part, to the Peel county vote which was initiated by the Port Credit Branch of the Canadian Legion after it was unable to get a licence to sell beer in its club house.

Sparks Circus History

The forthcoming engagement of the world famous Sparks railroad Circus, which will exhibit here afternoon and night on Monday June 2 on the show grounds located at Station and Cemetery Streets will awaken nostalgic memories among old-time circus patrons, since the name of "Sparks" has for over half a century been a symbol of the finest outdoor entertainment in the United States and Canada.

The history of the Sparks Circus begins way back in the "Gay Nineties," in the year 1890 when John H. Sparks, its founder, laid its cornerstone with a small one-ring show which was titled "John H. Sparks Old Reliable Virginia Shows." With a little tent, a few performers, a single flown the little show was transported from town to town over the dusty and sometimes muddy dirt roads, in wagons drawn by horses.

A little town called Vade Mecum Springs, in North Carolina—with less than 500 population, was the first hamlet played by the tiny Sparks circus which today is one of the largest, finest and greatest of the tented amusement enterprises on tour.

From that humble beginning and the fact that John H. Sparks from its inception, inaugurated a policy of honest dealing with the public, a clean show—traditional of the Sparks name—and gave always the circus increase in size and popularity with the years.

In 1894 the show outgrew its wagon equipment and John Sparks purchased two railroad cars to transport his show. Later more cars were added, until it became a large railroad show.

In 1891 he bought his first elephant—now called "Queen Topsy" and still the "boss" of the Sparks present herd of performing elephants, one of the year's best features of the big show program.

This year, for the first time in

JAMES EDGAR Owner—Manager

rince World War II and now under the management of James Edgar, a progressive young circus owner and manager, is carrying out faithfully the long established Sparks traditions. On his season's tour the Sparks Circus is entirely streamlined and modernized, presented in three rings under a mammoth new Flameproof "Big Top" and carries a complete menagerie of wild animals.

And for the first time since the world conflict the Sparks Circus is transported on its own new special train of all steel double-length railroad cars and its program is presented by a galaxy of international stars of Circusdom.

Two complete performances daily—at 2 p.m. and at 8 p.m. with the doors of the menagerie and swinging open at 1 p.m. and at 7 p. m. to permit circus patrons ample time to visit the big show menagerie of wild animals before the Big Show program starts its performances.

Sister Kenny Leaves England For Long Trip

By STEWART COCKBURN

London, May 30 — (Reuters) — Sister Elizabeth Kenny, sometimes described as Florence Nightingale II, has just left England on her latest crusade. During the coming months she will tour 13 European countries, including Russia, to preach the cause of her now world-famous treatment for infantile paralysis.

July 20 she will be back in Britain for a reception by the Infantile Paralysis Fellowship. There she will be presented with a gold replica of the Fellowship's badge, and will discuss with members what they regard as one of the most important of the minor revolutions of the war — the "industrial emancipation" of paralysis sufferers.

Before the early 1940s, victims of paralysis found it all but impossible to obtain industrial employment of any sort in Great Britain. However, with the manpower crisis came more than 500 members of the I.P.F. were given a trial in jobs for which sceptics had hitherto regarded them as unfit.

They succeeded beyond even their own highest hopes. When the war ended the jobs continued.

Frederick Moreton, secretary of the Paralysis Fellowship, said:

"Employers were glad to have us then, and they are still glad to have us. They have found that victims of infantile paralysis are exceptionally conscientious, and fiercely determined to pull their weight."

BARGE BLOWS UP

London, May 30 — (AP) — A barge blew up on the Thames River today in a series of terrific explosions that shattered windows and spread smoke and concussion over a wide area of industrial East London.

A workman on a nearby wharf said: "There were five or six men working in the hold and they escaped by the skin of their teeth. One or two of them suffered from slight shock."

IODE Takes Firm Stand Against Communism

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—What may be one of the most significant women's meetings of the year ended here yesterday when the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire took an all-out stand against Communism in Canada during closing sessions of its annual meeting.

Urging Canadian Women's organizations not to become the dupes of Communist propaganda, the Order which speaks for more than 10,000 women throughout the Dominion, pledged itself to watch "with the utmost vigilance" for the activity of any Communist agents in the country.

Brought in by the resolutions committee, the resolution was seconded by Mrs. Gerrard Black, wife of the Progressive-Conservative member of Parliament for the Yukon. It stated that the Communist Party must "in set up women's organizations in Canada to be the tools of Communist policy and the purveyors of Communist propaganda" and resolved that the Order should "strive in every way to prevent the exploitation of our Canadian women's organizations and programs by the emissaries of an alien tyranny."

Past business of the Order—which boasts honorary branches in wide field of war-time services both in Canada and abroad—took up only a small part of the week-long session, as delegates, taking stock of the Canadian and international scene, wrapped up their finding in several other resolutions and recommendations.

So great was the value of the order's contribution, Lower Canada the Prices Board to the Canadian Housewives during the war years that members recommended the Order back a permanent voluntary consumer organization for in the process of formation.

Delegates also passed a recommendation urging that I.O.D.E. chapters be asked to contribute $1 each this year to the "Peace Garden Fund," established to pay for the garden of peace in the International Peace Garden on the Manitoba-boundary just south of Winnipeg. Work on the garden was suspended during the war, but plans now are underway to complete it.

Election of new national executive which closed the weekend convention saw Mrs. Ryland New of Oakville, Ont., re-elected to a fourth term. It was decided that next year's annual meeting would be held in Halifax.

The Experts Say . . .

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)—Early vegetables and fruits not only are welcome changes to winter-dulled menus, but they're also ideal time savers this spring house-cleaning season.

With crisp fresh lettuce, radishes and green onions as a base, it takes but a moment to arrange an appetizing salad, and cheese, eggs, left-over meat or fish with the greens will turn this into a main-course dish.

Home economists of the consumer section, dominion department of agriculture suggest Springtime Salad for either luncheon or supper.

Springtime Salad—One cup cooked diced meat; one cup cooked diced potatoes; one cup cooked diced beets (if canned, drain well); one-half cup sliced radishes; one teaspoon celery seed; one-quarter teaspoon pepper; two onions; one-half teaspoon salt; one-quarter teaspoon pepper; two hard-cooked eggs, coarsely chopped; two-thirds cup cooked salad dressing.

Combine all ingredients except one hard-cooked egg, which is to be sliced and used as a garnish. Add salad-dressing last and toss ingredients lightly together. Chill thoroughly and serve on crisp lettuce. Six servings.

Whether served at a bridge luncheon or a buffet-supper, the "appetizer" often spells success or failure of a party.

In arranging a assortment of hors d'oeuvres to be served with a beverage in the living-room before dinner, be sure they are attractively set out according to the variety on hand.

Never heap or pile them, but line up all of a kind together in a row or pattern and having half a dozen kinds on the tray at one time.

Canapes are small pieces of toasted or grill bread topped with seasoned spreads and attractively garnished. Day-old bread is best for canapes and should be trimmed neatly at either toasted or quickly browned in butter in the frying-pan on one side only.

Topping is spread on the untoasted side, and seasoned butters, made by creaming butter with parsley, mustard, horseradish, crushed garlic, anchovy paste, onion juice, or crushed mint, adds flavors to the canape base.

Canape Spreads—Lemon: Add one-half teaspoon grated lemon rind and one tablespoon lemon juice to one-quarter soft butter.

Mustard: Add one to 1-2 tablespoons prepared mustard to one-quarter cup softened butter.

Olive: Add one-quarter cup finely chopped green or stuffed olives and a few drops onion juice to one-half cup softened butter.

Horseradish: Cream butter and add drained horseradish to suit taste.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When a Girl Goes' A-Visiting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. In the near future my daughter is to spend a weekend at the home of a friend whose family she has not met. Inasmuch as she is not yet acquainted with the mother of this friend, don't you think it would be better for her to wait until she returns home before sending the mother a gift, rather than to take one with her? And will you please suggest an appropriate gift for her to give, either to take or to send?

2. When, on her return, she writes her bread-and-butter letter, should she address this to both the mother and father or just to the mother?

3. She and I would appreciate very much any suggestions you will give her for being a "perfect guest".

C. N.

1. For the personal present she will undoubtedly want to give to the hostess who is offering her such special hospitality, I do think it would be best to wait to send the gift after the visit.

Naturally while visiting she will be able to decide on a gift most suitable to the taste of the hostess. It might be, for example, a day-time purse, monogrammed; a dressy afternoon bag or evening bag; corsage ornament; automatic pencil, or pen and pencil set; travelling clock or dressing-table clock; jewel case; several small, white, sheer, monogrammed handkerchiefs; or a dressy occasions ..accessory for desk or dressing-table; monogrammed compact or vanity-case. This gift should, I think, be a personal gift for the hostess, rather than something for the house. However, your daughter might divide the gift-budget, sending the hostess a simple personal gift, and sending separately, a gift for "the family and the home that were so kind to me".

Also the "accustomed" guest generally takes something with her when she goes on a visit. . . a box of candy, an interesting collection of jewelry, a few current magazines, a current best-seller, or other gift of the "for-the-family variety.

2. Her bread-and-butter letter is addressed to the mother, her hostess, but in this letter she thanks the host too for his hospitality, for his thoughtful plans for her entertainment.

3. Someone has said that the three rules for being an ideal guest are: "(1) Be amiable; (2) Be amiable, and (3) Be amiable". The perfect guest is always eagerly ready to fall in with the hostess' plans, even if she doesn't particularly enjoy some of the plans that have been made. Be responsive . . . that's another important rule, for the success of a visit depends as much on the guest as on the hostess. And it is the guest's responsibility to do her best to be entertaining, to make things easy for the hostess, to be pleasant to other guests. Tell your daughter too that she should be alert to find out the customary routine of the family, their convenience as to breakfast-service, the hours for meals, the usual hour for going to bed. A good guest doesn't expect to be "entertained" every minute. And I'm sure your daughter has been trained in other rules that make for a good guest: to be well-groomed; to keep her own room and her bathroom (or her part of the bathroom) "neat and tidy"; not to have the grim habit of food notions; to know that the borrowing guest is a pest; and to offer to help with the housework if the household is a servantless one.

How Many Ushers for the Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In her bridal party my daughter is having a maid of honor and two bridesmaids. Would it be correct for her to have two ushers? A says "no", and B says "yes".

R.H.

From the way your question is worded, I judge that you and your daughter may think that it is the number of bridesmaids invited by the bride that determines the number of ushers to be invited by the groom. This is not necessarily so. It is the size of the wedding, and that is, the number of guests to be seated. . . that determines the number of ushers, for example, a large church wedding requires at least two ushers, preferably more, for every hundred guests invited.

Lumber Companies Will Bring 1,400 D.P's to Canada

Toronto, May 30 —(CP)— A three-man "selection team" for three big Ontario pulp and paper firms is traveling to Germany to select 1,400 men between the ages of 20 and 40 out of the displaced persons' camps there for bush work in Ontario's forests.

The scheme to bring 1,400 workers from the European camps to Ontario for work in the bush was disclosed to parliament at Ottawa yesterday by Federal Labor Minister Mitchell, while the companies issued a joint statement in Toronto giving details.

The companies who worked out the pian with the Federal Labor Department are the Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company at Kapuskasing; the Abitibi Power and Paper Company at Iroquois and the Great Lakes Paper Company of Fort William.

They have guaranteed to provide employment for the immigrants for a minimum of 10 months, and will pay wages and provide conditions of employment and accommodation at the same standards as prevail for bushmen in the areas where the immigrants will be working.

Wales Will Oppose

(A Sudbury last night President Bruce M. Lare of Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union said the union would oppose the entry of Europeans for bush work, saying "we have thousands of unemployed lumber workers in this district now due to seasonal lay-offs".

The paper companies' statement however said the movement would "help relieve the serious shortage of bush workers."

The statement also said: "One of the company as involved in the scheme is facing an expected shortage of 150,000 cords of pulpwood at present estimates and mill shutdowns are in prospect to be dwindling too rapidly to guarantee steady production of the sorely-needed paper."

Coal Collieries In Cape Breton Are Again Idle

Glace Bay, N. S., May 30 —(CP)— All Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation collieries in Cape Breton were idle today, maintenance men were withdrawn from one pit and pickets surrounded another as labor relations between Dosco and the United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) took a turn for the worse.

Two days after miners had started back to work at the end of their 14-week strike, Freeman Jenkins, president of the union's district 26, ordered them out of the pits again, charging a breach of agreement on the part of the company.

More than 12,000 men were affected by the newest development which Mr. Jenkins blamed on the institution by the company of a 55-point working program, one he said was to have been "subject for discussion" between company and union over a six-months period.

It would give the company "full and absolute control" over the disposition of its working force.

Went Back Friday

The miners had started back to work after voting Friday in favor of a memorandum of agreement drafted at a company-union meeting in Montreal. It provided for an immediate wage increase of 1 a day over basic wage rates of $5.84.

It also provided for discussion during the first six months of the contract, on which negotiations began three days ago, of "various matters affecting production."

At a mass meeting last night in New Waterford where miners voted "to remain on strike until we get a just settlement," Mr. Jenkins said the company was already putting the working program into effect.

There was no comment from company officials on the newest development in the prolonged labor dispute but the chief hope for a break in the deadlock appeared to hang on the impending arrival here next week of officials from the union's international headquarters in Washington.

Saint Louis Sinfonietta Delights Concert Association Audience With Fine Program

Climaxing a successful series of musical concerts the Community Concert Association presented the Saint Louis Sinfonietta with Paul Schrieber conducting on Thursday evening at the Collegiate Auditorium. The large audience began to arrive early, and by curtain time the hall was filled to capacity. This closes the current season of fine entertainment which has contributed greatly to the cultural life of the city. President of the Association, Mr. K. E. Hachborn announced an exceptional program for next year, stating that a day and a half after the lists were opened they had been fully subscribed and now had a long waiting list. Leonard Warren, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera will open the series, which also includes Sascha Gorodnitzki, pianist; Marina Svetlova, Prima Ballerina of the Met with two other solo dancers in attendance, and the Stradivari Quartet.

The Sinfonietta ensemble which is composed of twenty-one instrumentalists including three feminine members was conveyed to Belleville in their own blue and grey bus which carries their name.

Superb Performance

It was a superb performance, with the strings, wind and percussion instruments blending with artistic precision. The soloists performed ably, but it was in the ensemble that the full quality of Mr. Schreiber's interpretive accomplishments was displayed. This fine conductor has achieved an impressive "little symphony" orchestra which compares favorably to a full-size symphony in richness of tonal quality and color combinations.

The opening number was "Air for the G String", by Johann Bach, and was a series of short pieces, mostly dances of the period, which gave full sway to the violins, cellos, and bass viols in sweeping, sustained melody.

"Overture to the Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart was a stirring number, catching the spirit of the operatic comedy with sunny abandon.

Played in Four Parts

Joseph Haydn's London Symphony was played in four parts, the Adagio, Andante, Minuetto, and Allegro spiritoso. This was in muted minor tones expressed with the violins and developed into a crescendo with full force

Floods washed out the dam on the creek and ended activity of the old Red Mill near Burford. Owner says it would not be economical to resume operation of plant that has served generations of Brant county farmers. The little mill building is seen above. Machinery is being taken out.

Planting of what is expected to be the biggest tobacco crop in provincial history is under way now in the Norfolk-Brant district, a week behind the customary May 24 start. Maria Robinson of Burford and Mrs. Joe Bee, Falkland (above), pull plants in a greenhouse to transfer to field.

Junior Farmers Activities

Members of the Thurlow Township Junior Farmers will petition the township council to institute a warble fly demonstration in the municipality similar to the one conducted in Madoc township earlier in the year.

This was the decision reached at their May meeting when the matter was mentioned by Carl Thompson who urged that the measure be initiated in Thurlow. It was decided to invite members of the township council to the June meeting of the Junior Farmers to discuss the matter at that time. In the meantime each member of the club will publicize a warble fly demonstration program throughout the township.

Norman Ritz, Thurlow Junior Farmer, who has just completed his first year at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and who recently had a trip to Bermuda with the Royal Canadian Navy, gave a talk on his trip to the Junior Farmers. Other speakers for the meeting were Ted Bredden on weed control; George Clare on range rearing of chicks, and Ron Badgley on control of starlings.

Slides Shown.

Harry W. Burns, assistant agricultural representative, showed slides on the judging of dairy cattle, draft horses, sheep, swine and beef cattle. These slides very materially helped the Junior Farmers as a coaching practice in preparation for the annual Hastings county livestock judging competition which will be held in the Stirling district on Friday, June 6th.

The May meeting the Marmora Junior Farmers was held in the Town Hall, Marmora, on Tuesday, May 27th. The president, Harold Carman, was in the chair with a good attendance of Marmora Junior Farmers and Grain Club members present.

A very excellent address on range rearing of chicks was given by Doug McCoy. The Hastings county Junior Farmer Livestock Judging Competition was announced. This judging competition is to take place in the Stirling district on Friday, June 6th.

Mr. Harry W. Burns, assistant agriculturist representative, showed sets of slides on points to look for in the judging of dairy cattle, draft horses, sheep, swine and beef cattle and also gave a talk on the giving of oral reasons which would prepare the Junior Farmers for the judging competition.

The next meeting of the Marmora Junior Farmers will be held on June 24th, when the speakers will be John Cook on agriculture, Pat O'Neill on pastures and Ted Holtman on control of insects in stored grain.

40 Slavic Girls Arrive in Quebec Tired But Happy

By STEWART NEBBS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. Georges, Que., May 30 (CP) —Tired but happy, 40 Slavic girls from displaced persons camp in Germany arrived in this Beauce County town early today determined to start life anew and erase from their minds horrors of life in their war-ravaged country.

The girls, first of a group of 100 who will be brought to this picturesque municipality of 8,000 persons to work in the Ryan Spanning Mills of Ludger Dionne Liberal Member of Parliament for Beauce, arrived by bus from Bangor, Me., after a flight from Frankfurt, Germany.

Despite the early hour of their arrival—they arrived at 1:45 a.m. in a steady drizzle — a group of residents turned out to welcome them but severe police constables hustled the girls into the convent where they will live.

Residents had a bare glimpse of the new arrivals who have been the talk of the town for the past few weeks.

The girls, dressed in skirts and blouses, slacks and Girl Guide uniforms smiled shyly before they entered the convent.

Dr. Richard Fortin, on hand "just in case" prescribed a hot cup of coffee, cared relatives to revive girls who had become slightly ill on the bus and ordered them off to bed.

"There was nothing seriously wrong with any of them," Dr. Fortin said.

"Just a case of air sickness from the long trip and fatigue. They certainly are a healthy bunch of girls."

The 40, only a few of whom speak English, will be employed mainly in the mill as speeder attendants, spinners, weavers and winders.

They are not expected to start work for about a month.

All orphans and between the ages of 16 and 27, the girls will be given room and board at the convent at moderate rates and will be placed either in single rooms, or two, three or four to a room in a new $70,000 wing of the building.

Young Negro Tells How He Escaped Masked Mob

Raleigh, N.C., May 30 —(AP)— Godwin (Buddy) Bush, 22-year-old Negro lumberman's helper, told today how he escaped a masked mob and possible lynching in the early morning hours just a week ago.

In his prison cell here he said that "they came and woke me up. "There were three white men, all were wearing masks of red-and-white handkerchiefs. They told me to put on my clothes and come along."

Bush sat nervously during the interview as he told of his escape from the armed men who took him from the Northampton jail at Jackson, where he had been placed on a charge of attempt to rape a white, married woman in Rich Square.

He said he recognized one of the men but added the only member of the group he recognized was Joe Cunningham, an assistant theatre manager at Rich Square.

Cunningham and six other white men now are free under $2,500 bonds each on charges of kidnapping, beating and entering jail with intent of injuring or killing Bush, and conspiracy to break and enter the jail with such intent.

Bush said he was ordered to get in the rear seat of a four-passenger sedan outside the jail.

"They put me in the back seat, but I got right out on the other side of the car," he related. "I fell getting out of the car, but I got up and ran, but I fell again."

Asked if he was fired upon, Bush replied that he heard one shot, adding: "I don't know how close it came, and I never looked back."

Later he gave himself up to authorities.

Death Not Caused By Any Negligence

Toronto, May 30 — (CP)—The death of Douglas Cyril Aldridge, who died in the Toronto General Hospital, May 17, was not caused by any negligence on the part of jail or hospital authorities, a coroner's jury found yesterday.

Aldridge was serving a 10-day jail sentence on a charge of being drunk in a public place when he became ill and was removed to the hospital.

Dr. William Burr, provincial pathologist, testified Aldridge died from delirium tremens and congestion of the lungs.

AMAZED AT 'GAIETY'

McCook, Neb., May 30 — (AP) —A sunburned visiting British ambassador to the United States describes himself as amazed at the "gaiety" of his Nebraska hosts.

"In my country," said Lord Inverchapel, "we help our celebrations along with beer and whisky. You people do it on coffee. You have a strength that is unknown to us."

Cornwall Men Awaiting Trial

Cornwall, May 30 (CP)—Police said today two Cornwall men are under arrest in county jail here awaiting trial on charges of robbery with violence in connection with an alleged brutal assault on Duncan McGillis, Harrison's Corners drover, and theft of $240.

The men held without bail, are Henry Seguin, 21, and John Garlough also 21.

Seguin's capture resulted from a break in at a school house on R.R. No. 2, Cobourg, Monday night. Provincial police arrested Seguin and George Clarke Purdie of Peterborough and charged them with breaking and entering of the building and theft of a radio.

Appearing in Cobourg court yesterday, Seguin was sentenced to three years in penitentiary on the charge. He was brought back to Cornwall last night.

Garlough was arrested last night when he reported for work at a restaurant on the highway east of the city. He had been employed as a cook.

THREE MISSED PLANE

New York, May 30 —(AP)— Three persons missed their plane at La Guardia field last night—but there was missed possible death or injury in the flaming crash of a United Airlines DC-4. They failed to hear the field public address system announcing the takeoff and were left behind.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

At this very moment, somewhere in this world is a bridge player who would like to change his last bid. He stopped at game and made a slam. Or he went to slam and went down one or more tricks.

You can look at the pair of partnership hands shown here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠ A K Q 5 4 2	♠ 10 3
♥ None	♥ 8 6 3
♦ A Q 7	♦ 10 4 3
♣ K Q 5 2	♣ 8 6 4 3

The bidding starts like this:

South	North
2 S	2 NT
3 S	4 S

Seeing both hands and what you may be up against, would you stop at four spades or go to six? This was the decision south had to make before he had a chance to look at the north hand.

The north two-no-trump denies a sure trick (ace or K, Q), 56, the opponents must have the club ace. Nor was there anything to indicate that north had the diamond king.

So, a slam may need several finesses; two in diamonds and one or two in clubs. Their success depends on east having both the king of diamonds and the ace of clubs. Furthermore, the dummy hand in north will need three or four entries.

See what I mean? If you bid a slam, dummy may not have enough entries. Or the diamond king or the club ace may be in west. And if you do not bid a slam, everything is likely to be in the groove.

What to do in a case like this? Consider the chances. They are preponderently against making a slam. By almost every line of good reasoning, it is sensible to stop here at four spades.

On the other hand, there is a remote possibility of making a slam. This is what makes bridge so interesting. That element of uncertainty no matter how skillful you may be.

Every minute, some player somewhere is in some such a fix.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

More often than not, new movies are settling down to tell their story honestly, a trend to which we heartily subscribe. From Australia comes such proof in "The Overlanders."

Starring Chips Rafferty, six-feet-four of rugged manhood, the picture tells of the migration of settlers from the northern part of the continent when the Japs threatened invasion.

Rafferty, who was in Canada last autumn, does a masterful job in the lead. His supporting cast are comparative amateurs, but their performances do not betray them. Australia's scenery, tough and rough, makes an excellent background for a picture that is thrilling entertainment. A bow to Michael Balcom, the producer.

Woo-woo

Columbia is to produce a flic to be called "The Petty Girl," starring Ann Miller. Undoubtedly one of the best female dancers of the era, Miss Miller will combine her shapely gams in the new musical to be filmed in technicolor. She made her screen debut in "New Faces of 1937" and returned to Broadway to star in George White's Scandals of 1940.

Dickens of a Note

The perennial favorite, "Oliver Twist" will soon go into production in London. Robert Newton will play Bill Sykes with Kay Walsh as the tragic Nancy. Henry Stephenson, born in the West Indies and educated at Rugby, will interpret Mr. Borlow. The 72-year-old actor left the London stage 38 years ago and hasn't been in England since. His entry back at least be a new "twist" for him.

MAY BE FORCED TO SELL

Toronto, May 30 — (CP) — Unless farmers can afford "to buy feed to replace the loss through this spring's "freakish" weather they may be forced to sell some of their livestock, J. A. Carroll, superintendent of Ontario Agricultural and Horticultural Societies, said in an interview today.

IT'S TRUE!

By Wilfrid Perkins

AT THE BELLE — Wallace Beery is back in a big one — "The Mighty McGurk."

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 30 — (CP)—Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, struck his cabinet colleagues a body blow when his budget raised the price of 20 cigarets from 2s 4d. (about 48 cents) to 2s 6d., and hoisted pipe tobacco in line.

Prime Minister Attlee comes to his desk at 10 Downing Street each morning to find two filled pipes waiting for him. When he goes for his morning walk with the unimpressive Attlee dog, his detective friends are supposed to follow him through the trees of St. James' Park by the trail of smoke.

If the prime minister meets his right-hand man, Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the council, it looks like a forest fire. Morrison yields to no man in his affection for tobacco. The third strong man of the cabinet, Ernest Bevin, foreign secretary, chain-smokes cigarets when he is under pressure.

Surprising Smoker

The most surprising smoker is Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade and portrayed constantly as the symbol of austerity. But he smokes anything. At a press conference he may light up a pipe, a cigar and a cigaret in order, enjoying them one after the other.

In this aspect of cabinet solidarity, Dalton always has been a little shaky. He smokes, true, but he takes long over his selection of a cigar and he does not puff with the concentration of other ministers.

One result of expensive smoking has been that Commons members spend more time in the House, finding it cheaper to listen to speeches than consume cigarets at two pence a time in the smoking room.

Tobacco sales at the members' bar gave an indication of the budget effect. Immediately after the price rose, sales were cut almost in half. Since then — just like the purchases of ordinary people in ordinary stores — there has been an increase.

State Secretary Marshall Faces Delicate Task

Washington, May 30 —(AP)— Diplomatic authorities said today State Secretary Marshall faces an extremely difficult and delicate task in trying to negotiate a new defence agreement for the strategic island of Greenland.

While Marshall himself carefully avoided stating that the objective of the approaching negotiations with Denmark will be to retain American Military bases on the island, other officials made it clear privately that the United States would like to have continued in peacetime at least the right to such establishments.

Twice before the United States has sought to maintain bases on Atlantic Islands—Iceland and Azores—and twice it has failed to gain its full objective.

Greenland is regarded as possibly more important than the other two because it is closer to home.

Responsible information reaching here is that the request of the Danish government for an end to the wartime agreement for bases in Greenland was forced partly by conservative opposition, based on Danish nationalism, and partly Communist agitation.

Officials here regard the Communist campaign as in line with Soviet opposition to American military plans all over the world.

Warns Canada's Middle Class Of Apathy, Disinterest

Toronto, May 30 — (CP) — A sense of futility and helplessness in the face of current problems exists among intellectuals of today, Dr. Gregory Vlastos, Canada's University philosophy professor, told the Canadian Association for adult education.

He said there is a sinister similarity between Canada today and the Germany of the 20s. "The public's mood of disinterest and apathy; its sheer, smug refusal to accept its responsibilities as citizens; its lack of will to govern itself were Hitler's stepping stone to power.

"I see in all groups and chiefly among the middle class this sense that anything, but one's own immediate private problem, has something remote and unreal about it.

TOMMY PEDDER OPENS MODERN P.T. STUDIO

New Innovation In Health-Giving Exercise Supervised by Former U.S., Canadian Weight-Lifting Champion

If you are a tired business man, in need of exercise, and wish to reduce that abdominal inflation, and to generally rejuvenate yourself for a new man, there's a new innovation in town for you.

It's Tommy Pedder's new Physical Culture Studio just opened at 21 1-3 Campbell Street across from the YMCA. Tommy specializes in body building, general physical culture and a general toning up of the body muscles. He has arranged special courses which feature what he calls bar-bell-less weight-lifting apparatus and according to reports from the United States, is the form of exercise is meeting with public approval.

Tommy should know his business. He is the former United States and Canada weight-lifting champion; a likeable boy and tought in the greatest fight of all with the "Hasty Pee" for three years.

His specializes in the bar-bells dumbells, free exercises, and has all modern equipment with which to teach scientific weight-lifting. And he takes clients from ten years up. One of the most ardent enthusiasts is a man 70 years of age, who already is feeling 20 years younger.

The courses are simple. Thirty minutes a day, or three times a week under Tommy's tutelage, and he'll work wonders for you. To look at his splendid physique is proof enough of the benefits to be derived from his courses.

As a matter of fact, world's champion Joe Louis, saw the courses some time ago in the USA and now the bar-bells and weight-lifting is one of his favorite training exercises.

And Tommy has worked wonders with his new studio. It is attractively colored in cream, green and black with his equipment and exercise apparatus is signed to match. The colors is done in handsome red brick veneer with green trimmings.

The course is the latest thing in exercise, especially for those who are too old to gallivant about a tennis court, hockey rink or on a diamond. Business men and others will no doubt welcome this addition to the health giving assets of the city

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Babe Shepeman like the old-fashioned measles are liable to break out any unexpected place at any unexpected time. And if they are well he their way to a league record, at least, for Wednesday night they shut out the Lads crew 6-0 after a fifth-inning surrender, aided and abetted by Latta wildness, that netted them all half-dozen runs.

"Smoky" Smith has pitched 14 scoreless innings and struck out 23 to date. Wednesday he let the Latta crew down with no runs and two hits, then retired to let Muffit retire the enemy batsmen.

ASIDE TO TEAM MANAGERS, ALL LEAGUES

Listen boys, there are seven hours and 30 minutes of baseball operating in the city — or at least will be, if the sun ever shines. Now some middle in various parts of the city and district, but in the meantime five games will be played. Any one of the following department we are only human. Coverage of every game is impossible, but we will be published if reports are forwarded to this office as soon as possible. Space is not too plentiful but we'll do the best we can. All we ask is your co-operation in sending in scores, teams and outstanding features of your games. At the present time this newspaper has secured the paid services of three scorers but all games cannot be covered. So if you want it published, send it in. Avery (Bloodeye) Brundage, who has poked his unlivited schnozzle into Canadian sports affairs time and time out the Barbara Ann Scott edict to the Ottawa ear, has added another length to his probing proboscis and his latest scream is that Canada will not be allowed to send a hockey team to the Olympics if its members are paid for time lost from work.

Recently we picked up an aging mag from the files dated 1936. It was the "All Sports" magazine, a compact little tome and considered tops in its sphere in those days. Rippling it pages the following stared at us in black headlines. This was 1936 mind you:

"Who's Paging Mr. Brundage"

Avery Brundage, upon his return from Europe (The Berlin Olympics) made various statements including.

(1) "I will not serve any further on any American Olympic Committee."

(The mags comment:—"Excellent idea").

(2) "I am not a candidate for re-election as president of the A.A.U."

Comment — As fine an idea as No. 1.

(3) "Eleanor Holm Jarrett roomed with two girls aged 15 and 16. Suppose you had a daughter on the team. Mrs. Jarrett's dismissal from the squad was not handled by me alone."

Comment: Eleanor Holm Jarrett said: "His figures are crazy. I roomed with Lovo Petty, 26, and Olive McKean, 24. What kind of arithmetic is that?"

(4) "The games cost me $15,000 of my personal funds."

* * *

Comment; From the time the Olympiad opened August 1 to 18 — until the Olympiad closed, was about 20 days. Brundage infers that the cost to him was $15,000 — a rate of $500 a day. Like Mrs. Jarrett we would like to know what kind of arithmetic that is, unless of course. Brundage counted in the cost of taking 312 relatives and friends as his guests and made a down payment on Buckingham Palace or Muscoloth Jr.

* * *

A reporter, the magazine article said, was on his office said, who met Brundage at homecoming time said that he (Avery) had also lost a job as gatekeeper, which it seems had been, or was to be, awarded to him by a Mexican millionaire in Chicago, who changed his mind for reasons before or after election.

"Hearts and Flowers" please, Mr. Band Leader.

The boys who handle the green lettuce in and around boxlights have a poll of Toronto fans the other day and came up with the statement that "Lil" Arthur King, dusky idol of the Queen City fistic fans, will make Dave Castillous, Montreal's pride say "uncle" in their Monday night bout in Toronto. But the wise boys apparently are a bit wary as the quoted odds at the moment are 6-5 with King the choice.

* * *

Montreal fans. on the either hand, are confident that Dave's will give Lil Arthur a big dose of scrattlows all early in the fight, and they are willing to bet the Forum on it. "Petition the boxing board of reason Allen, Castillous' manager" reason asserts, "if this fight were in Montreal, my boy would be there to one over King. So what."

So yer pays yer money and takes yer choice. Personally we prefer Faultless.

London, May 30 — (CP)—With the recent suspension of six jockeys by Vancouver's B. C. Turf and Country Club providing a suitable starting gale, Andy (Toronto Star) Lyle is off to a fast and driving start on Canadian racing's attitude toward the little man whose job it is to ride up the thoroughbreds and always go their best lick.

Rounding the quarter pole Andy notes the B. C. Turf and Country Club's managing director, Al Hardy, is alleged to have told the press:

"We are just changing our floor show. Any prompter is entitled to that, isn't he?"

Going into the backstretch, Andy moves up with:

"Racing in Canada is a fine business adventure, but it has a number of untidy spots. These show most clearly to the public eye when the riders, whom you could term the hawks, collide with the voices that represent the haves, or the operators. What form of justice, British or what have you, is it when the right to take away a man's livelihood arbitrarily and without explanation is arrogated to-day by who yesterday occupied spots similar to the deprived men a year or two earlier?"

Among his many attributes, past president of the Canadian Rugby Union and First World War veterans W. J. (Piffles) Taylor, who died in Regina recently, had a keen sense of humor.

Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman recalls this as he repeats a story Taylor told him of how, while playing lacrosse for the University of Toronto at Ithaca, N. Y., he was bludgeoned so lustily over the head that right eye popped out of its socket.

"Friend and foe alike were shocked by the disaster. Muttering words of compassion, they stooped to their knees and probed the grass, seeking "Piffles'" dislodged optic organ.

"Gruesome though it may sound, they found the eyeball — They returned it to "Piffles". who clutched it happily.

"You see, I've been a glass eye! His own right eye had been smashed by an enemy shot when he was doing his bit with the Royal Flying Corps!"

FATHER IN JAIL

Lanett, Ala., May 30 — (AP)—Four children burned to death Wednesday night when fire destroyed their home in Hussicy community, three miles from here.

The children were Curtis, 14; Irene, 6; Thomas, 4, and Virginia, 18 months.

TWENTY-EIGHT CARS READY TO ROLL FOR PRIZE

Speedway Prepared to Handle Crowd of 150,000 to Watch Long Grind

Indianapolis, May 30 — (AP)— Either 28 or 30 cars, depending on how 29 owners feel about it, were ready to roll for $132,000 in prizes at 10 a.m. EST today in the 31st annual 500-mile race at Indianapolis motor speedway.

The uncertainty as to the size of the field resulted from a last-minute decision by the race committee to permit an extra hour of qualification trials late yesterday, subject to subsequent signing of waivers by the other qualifiers.

Mel Hansen of Los Angeles and Emil Andres of Chicago, both speedway veterans, were the only drivers, with cars in condition to take advantage of the extra hour.

The speedway was prepared to handle 150,000 fans and was letting them in two hours earlier than usual in an attempt to avoid last year's traffic jam with the city's history.

The crowd's favorite was "Hot Foot" Rex Mays of Long Beach, Calif., again at the wheel of the new Bowes Seal Fast Special similar to the one in which he placed second in 1946 and 1941.

Both Mays and Mauri Rose of Chicago, last co-winner, had strong backing in the pre - race predictions. The question was whether Mays' rebuilt car and Rose's spanking new Blue Crown Spark Plug special had been sufficiently broken in for the long grind.

Dan Parker of the New York Daily Mirror comes up with a comment that gives more evidence that baseball fans are people who don't worry about race, creed or color when the diamond sport comes up . . . Dan writes that thousands of Harlem Negroes turned out last week to see Jackie Robinson play for Brooklyn Dodgers against the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds — while at the same time two Negro Nationals League teams were playing at Yankee Stadium . . . and Dan goes on to tell a story about the famed Negro dancer, Bill (Bojangles) Robinson . . . seems a friend asked Bojangles if he didn't find it tough to know who to root gadgets may appear on your car

Asked why he said; "Bojangles, I understand. And I want to break down and 'cess up that if Booker T. Washington heself was playing first for the Dodgers, I'd still have to root for the Giants."

Leading National League Is Precarious Perch; Three Teams in And Out in 3 Days

Only Team That Has Not Been on Top Since Loop Opened is Cardinals

BY JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Leading the National League is the closest thing to life in a revolving door yet devised by man. Three different teams in three topsy turvy days have staggered into first place.

New York today, Brooklyn yesterday and Chicago the day before. Everybody is getting into the act except St. Louis Cardinals who were supposed to own the joint. Pittsburgh and Boston had three fillings earlier and even Cincinnati and Philadelphia set the pace opening day and the day after. Only the Cardinals have missed the whip.

The Giants' promotion was pretty much of a one man job as Clint Hartung, the fabulous Hondo (Texas) hurricane who won his fourth straight pitching start and clouted a tremendous 455-foot triple to make possible a 4-3 victory over Brooklyn.

Hartung weakened under the hot sun, yielded two runs in an eighth inning Brooklyn rally and finally gave way to relief pitcher Ken Trinkle who held the lead.

Continues Amazing Hitting

Bill Johnson, New York Yankees' third baseman who is getting a chance to play because Bobby Brown's injury, continued his amazing hitting with a three run homer and two singles in the Yanks' 7-2 decision over Washington. The three hits boosted Johnson's average to .386 and his three runs batted in upped his R.B.I. total to 13 in the last four games.

Frank (Spec) Shea, the Yanks' rookie pitching sensation, won his fifth straight since losing his first start although Lefty Joe Page had to be called to come to the rescue in the last three innings. It was Shea's seventh victory the Yanks knee in their last eight starts.

Tigers Lose Full Game

Detroit lost a full game to the Cleveland Indians and was shut after bowing to Cleveland 4-1. Red Embree, who twice was stung for 3 runs in the first, returned the tables on them with a four-hitter. The Cleveland victory was the first out in the ninth ruined his shutout bid.

Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr missed Boston Red Sox' game in Philadelphia's Shibe Park as Athletics eked out a 3-2 verdict on Russ Christopher's first pitching start single in the last of the ninth. The less sidespread, who replaced Lefty Savage in the eighth, came up with his third win at the expense of Harry Dorish's third setback. Williams was out with a leg injury and Doerr with a wrenched back.

Ellis Kinder earned his second straight victory, hurling the St. Louis Browns to a 4-3 decision over the Chicago White Sox in the only night game. A pair of doubles by Jeff Heath and Vern Stephens accounted for the Browns' 11-hit attack on loser Orval Grove and two successors.

CASTILLOUX WILL MEET GRECO IF HE BEATS KING

Promised Bout in Montreal With $17,000 Guaranteed for His End

Toronto, May 30 — (CP) — When Dave Castilloux looks across the canvas at Toronto's Lee Arthur King next Monday night at Maple Leaf Gardens, he'll be seeing another fight and $7,000 in the distance. The veteran Montrealer will step out at the opening gong against his whirlwind 20-year-old opponent with a lot on his mind — to wit, about as big a kitty as he's fought for in a long fighting career.

It's like this: If Castilloux beats Toronto's dark hope he gets a crack at Johnny Greco in Montreal with a $7,000 purse guaranteed by Raoul Godbout, former Castilloux manager and now an active Montreal promoter.

"Godbout made the offer to us the other day," revealed Deacon Jack Allan, who doubles as matchmaker. Frank Tunney's right-hand man and Castilloux' present manager. "It's a flat $7,000 guarantee. If we blow the duke to King the fight's off. Godbout is coming up from Montreal to see the fight Monday and you can bet your last dollar he'll let King cost him that kind of money."

Sports Shorts from Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Member)

London, May 30—(CP) — The "Tailor and Cutter" magazine, the last word in men's fashions, is perilously happy that formal dress may be worn at the Ascot races this year.

It is a return to the old days that we welcome, for as long as there is a definite dress for a definite occasion there will be always a clothes consciousness among the folk who attend the function," it says.

But, the T. and C. says, "there's another side to it."

"The long-suffering Briton finds himself today in a world that does not take as much notice of him as it did once upon a time. We find many of our traditions slipping away from us and with them much of that pardonable respect that the foreigner extended to us in spite of himself.

"The old story that the Englishman 'dressed for dinner' in whatever God-forsaken spot he resided, was merely a reflection of the high esteem in which the foreigner held our love of correctness.

"So let's hang on to that esteem for as long as possible.

"After all, there's nothing to be ashamed of in being correct."

Some members of the Royal Cinque golf course at Deal, Kent, have found their game has blown up at the 14th hole, and they breathed easier when an additional hazard was removed. A member spotted it — in the shape of a set of mortar-bomb fins sticking up in the bunker and he made a hasty follow-on.

Other golfers played "around" the hole until the green-keeper removed the danger, a used smoke bomb. He stuffed it into a rabbit hole.

It cost attractive Mrs. Chisendale Marsh one pair of nylons to win the Great Metropolitan Stakes with Star Song at Epsom. She was so excited at winning her first big race she didn't even notice a big hole in her stockings as she led the horse into the paddock.

The race was worth £1,400 ($5,600), enough to buy 700 pairs or more. But the question is where to get even one pair in this nylon-less country.

Horses will race around the runners, beans and peas July 5 when Alexandra Park, London's central racecourse, holds its first meeting since 1936. But the spectators' view won't be interfered with — dwarf varieties of peas and beans have been planted.

BATA SHOEMEN SCORE SECOND SHUTOUT IN ROW

Latta Uses Four Pitchers in Trying to Defeat 'Smoky' Smith

The Batawa Shoemen are establishing something of a record in the Belleville Baseball League. Wednesday night they registered their second straight shutout in as many games played, by blanking the Latta squad 6-0 in a six-innings game that was called on account of rain.

Bata's plate has yet to be crossed by an enemy player while they have shoved over ten tallies for 14 hits.

As in other games, the Shoemen broke out in a hitting-scoring splurge midway through the game that netted them all six runs while the Latta crew used four pitchers in an unsuccessful bid to halt the Bata march. In fairness, Weeks and Williams, two of the five relief hurlers used by Manager Carson couldn't locate the plate and it wasn't until brother 'Fred' went to the mound that the Bata guns were silenced.

Joe Marsh pitched his skill against "Smoky" Smith during his stay and the pair duelled in a neat game both being touched for a scattered pair in that period.

Score Six in Fifth

In the fifth a single by Smith and Peacock's double started the parade. Marsh was yanked and Williams who promptly walked the two batters to fill the sacks. Lefty Weeks to the Latta mound and he likewise walked. the next two Batamen. Solmes lofted out a double for three and Watson did likewise. That ended Weeks, and Carson walked to the mound. "Fred" finally got the side out and held the Batamen to one hit in the next and final innings.

"Smoky" worked the six innings, struck out ten and allowed two hits. Moffit went in to the ninth and blanked the losers.

The last two hits, one a double for Bata with Solmes and Peacock donating doubles. Goyer and Marsh were the only Latta hitters to connect safely with the Bata hurling.

Sparkling with the wit and humor characteristic of previous editions and profusely illustrated with pictures which tell in tabloid of the year's activities in sports, social and other phases of activity, the "Alibi" official magazine for Albert College is just off the press. The magazine was printed in the job department of the Ontario Intelligencer.

With the college quiz year observing its 90th anniversary, attention is drawn to the fact within the pages of the college magazine. Brief sketches of early college history are given along with a list of the Board of Governors and their duties. Further mention of the anniversary is made in the Headmaster's Message by Dr. Bert Howard, college principal. Literary efforts printed in "The Alibi" are worthy of special mention while sports and other school activities are well "covered" and profusely illustrated with timely pictures. Group pictures of the college faculty, editorial staff, students' council and various college sports teams, are also included.

Editor-in-Chief for the magazine is Wib Dowsett with Mary Jane Haskett as assistant. Mr. H. B. Simpson, faculty member, acted in an advisory capacity.

Other members of the editorial staff are as follows: business manager, Roy Spencer; advertising manager, Al Wiley; literary editor, Jack Aiken; social editor, Helen Virtue; art, Marcia Hyde and Bill Bullock; co-ed. activities, Phyllis Archard; sports, Tom Yates; exchange editor, Ed. McIntyre; Alumni, Bruce Sutter; photography, Blaine Bowyer, and humor editor, Dorothy Yates.

Irish Sweepstake On Epsom Derby Ready to be Drawn

Dublin, May 30 — (AP)—First step toward the enrichment of lucky chance takers with prizes up to $100,000 was scheduled today in the drawing of the Irish Hospitals Diamond Jubilee Sweepstakes on the Derby to be run at Epsom Downs June 7. The drawing decides which of the millions of 10-shilling ($2) tickets sold — many in Canada — will be lotting on the 23 horses entered. It also decides winners of several outright cash prizes.

Any sweepstakes player whose ticket is drawn on any horse today will be sure of at least $1,500, because that much will be paid on each unplaced horse. If he is lucky on race day he may get much more. Second prize of his horse wins, $40,000 for second place and $20,000 for third.

Derby favorites today were Tudor Minstrel, owned by John A. Dewar, at odds of 10 to 11; Sayajirao, owned by the Maharajah of Baroda, 4 to 1; Blue Train, owned by King George, 100 to 2, and Dante, 100 to 1, Irish horse owned by Y. L. Kilpatrick, 22 to 1.

Through last night, auditors worked at the calculation of the amount of money received from the ticket sale and the number of prizes to be distributed. Of the gross proceeds, minus expenses, some 25 per cent will go to a fund governed by 220 Irish hospitals and like institutions.

The remaining 75 per cent will be handed out in prize money.

CHAPTER 2

She had paused to search in her bag for her house key when a strong masculine voice called, "Hey-hey, Miss Beecher—Rose!"

She turned and saw Bruce Bartlett's handsome convertible roadster at the curb. Hatless, he was leaning out the door. "Hi," he said. "Here's Gayle?"

"Hi." Rose returned, approaching the car slowly. "Aren't you early? Gayle didn't expect you till four."

"I know." His face brightened with the famed boyish smile. "I couldn't wait."

"And now you'll have to. She won't be here until four or later. She's up to her neck at the School. Don't you want to come upstairs and park? Howe Street's no rose garden."

Bart laughed. "I'll say it isn't. Thanks a lot. I'm tired of sitting here."

"Come along, then."

Once they were in the apartment, Rose offered him a cigaret, told him to make himself comfortable if he could (and vanished into the bedroom. Five minutes later she reappeared, her short curls freshly combed, the pale golden face on rose lightly powdered.

"I forgot to do my Emily Price Post exercises," she said, waving Bart back into his chair. "Gayle's told me last Sunday. Congratulations."

"I'll bet you really do congratulate me, too. You've lived with Gayle; you know her. You know how lucky I am." Bart's black eyes were bright, and he smiled his thanks.

"Don't I?" She obviously was about to say something, as obviously decided not to say it.

Instead she got up, took down a small ink sketch from the wall, and handed it to Bart. "Like it?"

"I'll say I do," he enthused, studying the picture. "I always notice this. It looks just like Gayle. You did it, didn't you?"

"Yes. Want it?"

"Do I? Boy! Are you giving it to me?"

Rose returned to her chair and sat down. "I don't think it's kosher to give a man an engagement present, but who wants to be kosher? That's yours if you want it—me to you."

"Oh, thanks!" He studied the picture again, smiled once more at Rose, and for an instant seemed softly half his twenty-five years. "This is wonderful." Then he looked up at her, his eyes alight with an idea. "Say," he said, "I've just thought of something. My father's going to have a birthday. Mother works and reminded me. I don't know what to get him. He's sick all the time, you know. But I'll bet he'd like a sketch like this of me. How about it? Will you make one of these sketches of me? You set the price, and I'll pay."

Rose was about to say, "I'll be delighted if I will," when her eyes brightened and she looked almost eager. She leaned back in her chair and studied him as impersonally as if he were a professional model.

"He's got line," she admitted to herself. "Boy, he's got everything."

She took an easel, which had been leaning against a wall, and set it up; pulled out a drawer in a desk, extracted a sheet of paper, and thumbtacked a sheet of it to a board. "All right," she said, "let's go." She placed the board on the easel and studied Bart once again. "You're all right the way you are," she decided finally. "I have to sit particularly still. Talk if you want to." She lifted a pencil, and paused him thoughtfully. "Go ahead and smoke." Then she picked up a stick of charcoal. "Just don't freeze; that's all I ask of you."

He made an excellent subject, easy and relaxed, "No nerves," thought Rose. "No self-consciousness either. He knows he'll turn out beautiful."

She worked with extraordinary speed, stroking with freedom and sureness. Now and then she lifted the charcoal, squinted against it for a measurement, and then returned reassured to her drawing. From where he sat, Bart could see her moving, and there were many times when it seemed to dance.

"I've been drawn before," Bart said, and the artists always spent half their time looking at me. You just take a peek, though. How do you do it?"

"I don't have to look at all if I don't want to," she explained. "I can see you without looking. Don't be impressed. Plenty of people can pull that trick. They call it simply imagination, I think. Anyway, I can draw almost anyone I've seen. This is turning out right. You won't have to sit again. I've got it the first time. I thought I would." She paused as there was a quick step outside the door. "Hello, there's Gayle".

It was a quarter past four when Gayle reached the apartment house. She saw Bart's empty car at the curb and knew that he must be in the apartment with Rose.

"Oh dear," she thought; "oh dear. There's no telling what she'll say." By the time she had reached her apartment door she had become frighteningly certain that her fiance and her dearest friend were already irreconcilable enemies.

Before she had the door really open, Bart was on his feet hurrying to her. He took her in his arms, kissed her on the mouth with his foot, and kissed her hungrily. "Darling," he whispered; "darling."

Blushing, Gayle put her hands against his chest and pushed him away. "Yes, darling," she cried, "what will Rose think?"

Rose glanced at them over the basket she had been arranging for drawing. "Don't mind me," she said placidly. "You're in the movies."

Bart looked at her and remembered that he was supposed to be posing for his portrait. "Oh, my Lord," he said contritely, returning hastily to his chair. "I'm sorry. I forgot."

"Didn't you just?" Rose chuckled. "Didn't you? Well, it doesn't matter. I'm done."

Confused, taken aback by the genial atmosphere, Gayle looked at Rose, then at Bart, and then again at Rose. They seemed to be the best of friends, and apparently Rose was drawing Bart's picture. Gayle felt a little weak. She had been really frightened.

"Come take a look," Rose commanded. "Wait a minute though." she added sharply, holding up her little hand. "No slop. See? You say what you think—both of you. I'll know if you're lying; so tell the truth—or else!"

"Don't worry," Gayle said. "I wouldn't dare lie to you about your work." She turned to Bart. "She means that, if you don't like it you say so. She'll be furious if you give her a polite compliment."

"Ok." Bart promised and stepped behind Rose. Gayle stood beside him, with her hand tucked under his arm. He pressed it close to his side, and together they studied the picture. Bart spoke first.

"I like it," he announced, "better than any picture of me I've ever seen. I don't see how you could do it so fast. I think it's swell. Gayle, wait till you see that painting of me at home. I don't remember for sure, but I think Father paid three, artist ten thousand for it, and I'll bet anything you like this drawing is better." (to, anyway. I think it's wonderful. Don't you?"

"I don't know," she replied thoughtfully: "I'm not sure."

"You don't?" His voice went high with honest amazement. "Why, Gayle, that's perfect likeness. I'll bet Father—will like it, too."

"Yes," Gayle agreed slowly, still thoughtful and undecided; "it looks like you. But there's something...." Her voice trailed off. Then she spoke more clearly. "I'll have to study it .I don't know what it is that's bothering me. Now I've got to change my clothes and pack. I'll be quick, Bart."

She hurried into the bedroom, and Bart remained standing studying the picture. "I don't know what she's talking about," he announced. "It's perfect. Can I take it with me?"

"Oh no. It's got to be fixed." "Fixed?"

"Yes. You have to spray charcoal drawings with fixative or they'll smear every time they're touched. Anyhow, I want to have this photographed before I turn it over to you."

"How about Wednesday ! It'll be a good excuse to come up and see Gayle."

"That's all right."

Bart still stood before the portrait admiring it. "Perfect," he said more to himself than to her; "just perfect. Then she remembered. "How much?" he asked. "You didn't tell me what you get for drawings like this."

Rose laughed. "I've never sold one before. I've done a few for practice, and this was practice too. And, of course, I've done lots of them in class. I don't want any money."

"Hey, that's no go. Gayle told me you made your own living."

"Not with this kind of work."

"You've got to let me pay you," he insisted stubbornly. "That was the bargain."

Gayle opened the door from the bedroom. "What are you fighting about?" she asked.

"Rose doesn't want any pay for the picture," Bart explained indignantly. "I asked her to do it. It was a commission."

"Is this all? Don't even discuss it with her. You give me a check, and I'll see she takes it. I've got my bags packed, and I'll be with you in a jiffy."

Fifteen minutes later Bart and Gayle were alone. Rose went to the easel and stood looking at her work. "The poor goof," she said softly: "the poor, poor goof. How to have known he would never see. She dashed off a slipshod bank a pace. "Gayle saw, though," she thought. "I believed that I'd see the next time she'll see what she saw."

Then she turned away and once more spoke aloud. "Oh well," she said, "what difference does it make? Even if she sees it, she won't believe it."

Sycamore, the Bartlett estate, was not, as Gayle had always supposed it was, in Germantown but well into the country, miles beyond. Indeed, it seemed to her as she and Bart drove through the darkness that it must be completely isolated.

"Are you sure entirely by yourselves?" she asked Bart.

"Oh, no." He warned his hand. "There are estates all around here, but most of 'em have lots of ground, and you can't see the houses from the road even in the daytime. We're over a mile back ourselves."

Gayle shrank back in her seat; then, feeling lonely, she moved close to Bart and slipped her arm under his. She was becoming really frightened. From the first she had, naturally, been nervous about the visit, but Mrs. Bartlett's note had been kind: "I am so very anxious," she had written, "to meet the girl Bruce loves, and so is my husband. He is very dear to us, and we expect you to be too." The courage the note had brought her was fading rapidly away.

Details that Bart had let fall-in their hurry-were all knowing in other began to collect in her memory. His mother had a maid and a secretary—and a housekeeper. Then there was a butler. She was sure of that. And Mr. Bartlett had a nurse and a valet who probably a chauffeur, too. Oh! dear, there must be a dozen servants. And Mrs. Bartlett was having a party tomorrow night, a dance. All the girls would probably have dresses from Hattie Carnegie or the rue de la Paix, and she had made hers herself. She and her mother had thought it perfect and Rose had pronounced it a dream—but what did Rose know about dresses?

GIVE-AND-TAKE IN FILMS

Hollywood, May 30 — (AP) — J. Arthur Rank, the British movie magnate, is in favor of an equitable give-and-take between Hollywood and England — with certain limitations temporarily. He told a press gathering yesterday he favored eventual abolition of restrictions against American films in his country, but added that for the present the British industry must be protected by holding United States motion pictures to a quota.

Russia Could Not Make Effective War Now or for Years to Come Says High Ranking Army Man

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 30 — (CP) — "I do not believe Russia could make effective war now nor for years to come; I am convinced the Soviet government does not want to try it; I am certain the Russian people would be horrified at the thought of it."

This is the statement of a high ranking army man just back from Europe, an officer whose duty it is to know all that can be learned about such things, and who cannot be named in this connection.

He added: "It seems altogether possible that Russia may achieve her ambitions without resort to war," and in that he expressed the fears which prompted the United States policy of intervention in Greece and Turkey.

Gen. Mark Clark, back from his task of commander of the occupation forces in Austria, was less reticent. He bluntly told the American people the story of Soviet non-co-operation in Austria in the plainest talk about Russia that a five-star general has yet given.

Talk Safest

Gen. Clark took the attitude already adopted by a large school of public opinion in this country. He said as plain and blunt acknowledgment of the facts on the Russian attitude to international affairs "does not increase the chances of war but, on the contrary, reduces them."

The unfortunate fact is that most of the "plain talk" about Russia comes from irresponsible and extreme sources, and not enough of it from the high, official authorities who make and administer policy.

From the report of State Secretary Marshall, when he returned from the Moscow conference, from the official reports of what is happening in Europe and from the debates in the United Nations, it is obvious to any person who reads and listens impartially, that Moscow Communism is waging a virtually bloodless but successful campaign of expansion.

Chiefs of Staff Carry On

In Washington the United Kingdom and United States joint chiefs of staff committee, set up to direct the Allied war effort, remains at almost full force.

But, so far as can be learned from questioning, the purpose is not to plan against possible armed aggression by the Soviet Union. It would appear that the feeling there is that such an attack is unlikely in the forseeable future.

It is apparent that the all-absorbing problem of officialdom here is the apparent determination of the Soviet high command to keep the world in such a state of uncertainty and chaos that Communism may have its way as far afield as possible by any means short of armed conquest.

Purchase of Moira Camp Site Favored By the Conference

Brockville, May 30 — (CP) — Churches in the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church in Canada agreed to contribute additional money to the Board of Christian Education during business sessions at the 23rd annual meeting of the conference here Thursday.

Delegates were told by Rev. C. D. McLellan, newly elected president of the conference and chairman of the board, that only $1,000 had been contributed by the Bay of Quinte Conference to the board while western conferences contributed up to $4,000.

Rev. Manson Doyle of Toronto, associate secretary of the Board of Christian Education who retires from that position this year, requested ministers to seek out suitable young people as recquits for the ministry and other full time Christian workers, and to give consideration to establishing sanction schools in their communities.

The conference endorsed the purchase of the Moira camp site near Belleville and granted it official recognition as a church camp site.

Rev. J. E. Glover of Hastings gave the financial report of the conference and Rev. W. E. L. Smith, newly appointed Professor of Church History and Practical Theology at Queen's University, addressed the meeting to conclude the morning sessions. Dr. Smith spoke of the need for development of the rural church.

Former Minister Asked to Form New Hungarian Govt.

Cabinet Quits Following An All-Night Meeting

Budapest, May 31 (CP)—Lajos Dinnyes, 46-year-old former war minister, was asked today to form a new Hungarian government after the previous government had resigned following an all-night cabinet meeting.

The crisis arose after the resignation two days ago of former Premier Ferenc Nagy, who said that his resignation while he was on a vacation in Switzerland.

The cabinet announced Dinnyes had been chosen as premier at a meeting which followed the unsuccessful night negotiations.

The cabinet also announced that Istvan Kerecz, recently named minister to Rome, had been appointed to replace Foreign Minister Janos Gyongyosi, whose prowestern views have been opposed by left-wing parties.

It said that new national elections would be held in September.

Reports circulated yesterday that the Communists, having forced Nagy from office, had turned the premier's office over to Dinnyes. Tildy in continuation of what some informants said, was determined drive to turn Hungary into a police state.

Appointment of Dinnyes to the premiership surprised parties and military circles. Previously he had cabinet members said that up to this morning Dinnyes, chairman and president of the national bank, had been the Communist choice for the post and therefore the most likely candidate.

Turned Down By Soviet

The informant said Oltvanyi had been turned down at the last minute in a message from the Russians, who have occupied Hungary. They declared that it was too early to learn the real reason for the Russian veto, but first reports in parliament were that it was because Oltvanyi was a Swab (German) origin and had served in the Intelligence section of the Hungarian army which fought the Russians.

A high source Thursday declared that Nagy had been "pushed from office" by the Communists. He said Nagy would 'not return to Hungary.

Tildy, Nagy and Oltvanyi all belong to the moderately conservative small landholders party, but Oltvanyi is regarded as pro-Communist. This party has held 222 of the 420 national assembly seats to the Communist 70 and the Social Democrats 69, but has been under strong pressure from these two co-operating minority parties.

Take Gloomy View

London, May 31 (—AP) — A foreign office spokesman said today the government views the recent events in Hungary as a new step by the Communists to seize power.

"That is the view of His Majesty's government."

He said the foreign office had received a preliminary report from A. K. Heim, British political representative in Budapest, on the events leading to the resignation of Premier Ferenc Nagy. Lajos Dinnyes, 46-year-old minister of war, was named today to replace Nagy.

BILLS EMBODYING BUDGET CHANGES ARE DISCUSSED

Abbott Says Canada's Living Standards Could Not be Raised By 'Sock Rich' Policy

By GEORGE RITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)— Resolutions preliminary to bills embodying budget changes in income, excise and excess profits taxes were approved in the Commons last night after 2 1-2 days of detailed study in committee of ways and means.

The way now is open for introduction of the budget bills themselves, probably early next week.

Adoption of the resolutions came after a long evening of committee work by Finance Minister Abbott and Revenue Minister McCann with questions and advanced proposals for the betterment of taxpayers.

Later, the House gave first reading to a bill authorizing the Canadian National Railways to issue securities not exceeding $443,723,000 to meet the 1947 capital expenditures or capital indebtedness. The bill introduced annually.

The Chamber then agreed to refer to the committee on human rights and fundamental privileges, a bill sponsored by the late Wilfred Lacroix (L—Quebec Mississippi) which would outlaw Communist organizations in Canada.

"At the House opening, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent distributed what Conservative was being given to various proposals for preliminary discussions between empire countries on the Japanese peace settlement but said no final decision had been taken.

Captain Kidd's Hidden Treasures Sought With Bulldozer on N.S. Shore

BY IRVING WHYNOT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sunnybrook, N.S., May 31 — (CP)— A treasure town will be bull-dozer is scarring long ditches in this south shore village where pirate Captain Kidd is supposed to have watered and overhauled during a lull in his swashbuckling Spanish Main activities. And all it started in this lone woman's discovery by a railway gang 70 years ago.

The latest search for the long-dead pirate and his booty got underway in the early hours of Friday when Mrs. Frederick Faulkenham, whose only clue is a rock-scrawled skull and cross bones, told her husband she'd had a dream ago while serving with the railway gang. Father told son and after many years of "thinking about it" John Faulkenham hired the bull-dozer a few days ago, got permission from the resident of the "Hill" Lake district, which borders the Isa and started excavation.

Tuesday, the native Nova Scotian who normally is engaged in the lumber business in Andover, Me., reported he had located a section of the Oak Island legend. It climbs a pine-tree studded hill to the Oak Island Bay in the east and drain leads to a cave and the treasure-trove. Mrs. Faulkenham thinks the old drain was built to ensure the treasure, which he believes contains gold and riches, that would be kept reasonably dry.

Oak Island Author Morgan and Captain Kidd are believed to have spent "quite a few" of their many times in this Monahone Bay area of the south shore. Records have been made of visits to the area in 1705 and 1730 and Morgan's book, "The hidding booty-laden barquentine from the Caribbean eye of Prince Jesty's fleet.

This is Faulkenham's second attempt to locate the loot.

Two years ago he tried to find it by digging a 90-foot shaft and shovel. But he was forced to retire to the United States before he found a clue. This time the bull-dozer was operated in the covering the wall of the drain.

Low-Cost Home Subsidy Asked By Conference

Guelph, May 31 — (CP)— A recommendation that the government subsidize building of low-cost homes, indicative of the deep concern held for moral and spiritual aspects of the current housing situation, highlighted the closing session of the Institutes conference of the United Church in Canada, here last night.

The ministers agreed that unhealthy housing arrangements frequently cause family estrangements and misunderstandings—a menace to the peace of society.

A reaffirmation of the Protestant church's position regarding the Virgin Mary, Mother of Jesus, was suggested in a report in view of the coming Marian Congress of the Roman Catholic Church to be held in Ottawa June 16-26.

"We believe that she was a good woman but deny that she was free from sinful and original sin," the report stated. The ministerial group declared that the doctrine that the intercession of Mary was necessary to the salvation of soul, and that she is mediation between God and man, is false.

Delegates charged that the Roman Catholic Church was beginning out "an intensive campaign to capture all of North America. Members would not meet intellectual freedom of speech if the teachings of Wesley, Knox, Calvin, Luther and others had not brought about a reformation."

To "reach the unreached" the committee of evangelism on social service asked that efforts to use the program of home visitation, worship, be continued wherever possible.

DREW COMPLETES 19-DAY VISIT TO GREAT BRITAIN

Claims Substantial Number of British Immigrants for Ontario This Summer

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Completing a whirlwind tour-visit to Britain and the continent of Europe, Premier Drew of Ontario was back home today with word that if ships are available a substantial number" of British immigrants destined for Ontario this summer to help relieve the labor shortage in Ontario's primary industries.

Premier Drew arrived by air from Montreal at 10 a.m. and remarked on the fast trip from Britain. "I left London at 10 o'clock and at 2 p.m. Friday, and here I am in Toronto on the same day" he said.

He gave reporters at Montreal airfield a summary of results he accomplished and the impressions he gained during the trip which took him to The Netherlands, Germany, France and Belgium, and at Toronto airport last night spoke further of the immigration movement and gave a comprehensive report on the visit to Germany where he made a tour to the combined Empire and Canadian Clubs at luncheon here next Wednesday.

On arrival here Premier Drew said he was satisfied personally that the United Kingdom would dislocate any speed transport of British workers who are desirous of moving to this province. It was hoped that a priority system would be established on the basis of necessity, so that farm workers and those experienced in mining and lumbering would be given preference in the movement.

On arrival, they would be directed to areas where the need for this type of worker is acute and where there is no housing shortage, the Premier said. He did not mention how soon the first of the movement, but in Montreal he had been quoted as saying that the total might reach 5,000.

Ontario Labor Minister Morgan had received more than 100,000 applications from prospective immigrants he said.

Premier Drew said he was surprised to hear that C. G. Fenwick, Leader, Labor-Progressive member of the Ontario Legislature, had charged that the Premier was not in London at a dinner which cost the government $5,000.

"I did attend a reception at the Savoy which was arranged by a group of Canadians in London for the sole purpose of enabling me to meet the many people who were helpful in operation of the Ontario Canada Club during the war, he said.

DOCTORS BUILD NEW ESOPHAGUS FOR 8-YEAR-OLD

Toronto, May 31 — (CP) — A series of highly skilful operations to construct a new esophagus—the food passage from the throat to the stomach — is nearing successful completion and eight-year-old Albert Gagnon of Mesnil-low Lake, Sudbury, could soon be able to eat like any normal boy.

Ever since he was two — as long as Albert can remember — it's been a hospital bed and nurses, and feeding through a tube inserted into the abdomen; months and years of living in hospital bed and one operation after another.

Now surgeons of the Toronto General Hospital report that the work is nearing successful completion after a year and a half in the Toronto General Hospital. It has involved delicate skin-grafting on the surface of his chest.

Albert, when he was two, swallowed a lump of lye which destroyed four inches of the esophagus. He was brought to Toronto it was decided to join the upper and lower ends, which were undamaged, and these were brought to the surface while a new tube was built under skin of grafted skin. Pink, Blue Even Apple Green Hats Lighten Drab Lives of Englishmen

BY ED CREAGH

London, May 31 (AP). — No, junior, your eyes are not deceiving you. That is a pink hat which the man is wearing down Piccadilly. Yes, that other one is cream, and the one coming out of Bond street really is blue.

Hitler never brought it would happen but the English male is emerging from his cocoon of conservatism, so far as clothes are concerned, and he is really somebody to be reckoned with.

"Success to the bright colors," said a fashion expert in describing the revolution in men's clothes. "Let's get away from the old black and brown."

The war years, he said, left the average Englishman's wardrobe in a sorry state. Clothes were rationed and the man who had to make his coupons last a year was forced to wear dull colors.

Now, he said, the man who can afford it is going in for the brighter shades. Even the man in the street is showing signs of the change.

Take the hat, for instance. Before the war the average man wore a black or brown felt hat. Now he is wearing a straw hat in a color to match his suit.

Pink, blue and apple green are the favorites. Even the bowler hat is getting a new look. Some of the younger men are wearing them with the brim turned up at the back.

"I suppose it's a reaction against the drabness of London life generally," said a Bond Street haberdasher who admitted, a little shamefacedly, that he had had in a stock of apple green fedoras and was actually selling some of them. Even he was buying a bit many a man is casting tradition to the winds. "Soon we shall have our young bloods reported."

Sponsored by the season is the diagonal weave in greys, fawns and browns, a fine herring-bone and the draped shape to give a fuller chest."

However, little of this sartorial brilliance has penetrated London's ballrooms. Here the black tail coat (Derby) hat and the tightly rolled black umbrella remains the symbol of respectability. But a stock broker did turn up in a yellow waistcoat the other day. He said it lost him two customers.

Modern Hurdles For New Recruit

Toronto, May 31 (CP) — The wartime air force recruit had to hop a few physical and mental hurdles before he was accepted for flight training, but what he went through was child's play compared to the "toughening" through which they put the 1947 recruits.

The Royal Canadian Air Force last night gave an insight into what happens to the new recruits at a training centre here.

There were 52 potential officers at the establishment, flown from more than 1,000 applicants at various Canadian centres. Before arriving here they had gone through physical tests, had been passed by a couple of boards and pronounced ready for the next step.

Today they will be classified as future pilots or radio officers. When they graduate three years from now they may go into the regular, reserve or auxiliary air force. However they must spend 14 weeks each year, mostly in summers at the rugged task, And they must pass each University year as well.

In two weeks these 52 future R.C.A.F. officers have taken these tests: mechanical knowledge, mathematics, air sickness, hearing in noise, spatial relations, codent, gyllic attitude, navigator aptitude, visual link, decompression chamber, night vision, accelerination, audiograms, electrocardiograms X-ray of chest and eye-assessment.

The resignation of Rev. Phillips D. Ross of the Presbytery of Renfrew was accepted by the conference.

Second Group Displaced Persons Arrives in Canada

BY STEWART NEBBS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. Georges de Beauce, Que., May 31 (CP)—A second group of 150 displaced Slavic girls arrived here with little fanfare early today to begin their year of service yesterday to work in the spinning mill of Ludger Dionne, but possible trouble loomed ahead following a protest rally outside the plant gates by local textile union organizers and sympathizers.

The remaining 30 of the 100 girls being brought here by Dionne, a liberal member of parliament for Beauce, are expected to arrive at Montreal's Dorval airport Sunday.

Darker-eyed girls of the second group arrived just before dawn in an autobus which had brought them on the last 160-mile lap of their trip from Montreal. The other two, said to be slightly disposed after their arduous journey, arrived a half hour earlier in private automobile.

All were bedded down in the convent where the first girls were taken yesterday.

First indication that trouble might develop came when some 200 persons, most of them coming off shift at the mill, gathered outside the gates to watch the U.T. W.A. picketers and hear earlier in private, automobile.

Some of the posters read: "Twelve dollars a week is not decent wage, you are here to work in this great land, but work only as decent human beings. We ask same wages that Canadians get.

"And welcome to Canada. We are glad for you and wish you a happy and prosperous life in Canada but don't let people take advantage of you. You didn't escape death in Europe to be slaves ..." French and Polish workers unite for decent wages, shorter hours better working conditions, job security ...

The demonstrations were carried out in an orderly manner. A company spokesman said he had no comment concerning wages or unions at the plant. Workers there have no union affiliation at present.

S. Reid Moffatt 100 Years Old Spades Garden

Renfrew, Ont., May 31 (CP)— There was a real family reunion last night at the Argyle Street home of Samuel Reid Moffatt as he celebrated a full 100 years of life and shuffled scores of well-wishing telegrams, cards and letters, among them the royal congratulations.

The dean of the Ottawa Valley, he was born May 30, 1847 and is the oldest man in the district. As he sat last night with seven sons and daughters and a number of grandchildren grouped around him—some from as far away as Winnipeg—a steady stream of neighbors and friends came and went.

Among the first messages to arrive at the centenarian's home was a cablegram from Buckingham Palace.

There was another from Prime Minister Mackenzie King, one from Revenue Minister McCann who is a fellow townsman, and many from other parts of Canada. Mayor J. R. Barry and members of the Renfrew town council where Mr. Moffatt served two terms, gave him a handsome cane and illuminated scrolls, roses and resolutions of, congratulation came from various organizations including the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church.

Still able to get about, Mr. Moffatt last week took a turn at spading his own garden, just to prove he could do it.

Police Announce Murder Charge Will be Laid

Hamilton, May 31 —(CP)— Shortly after leaving his residence Mrs. Pearl Dobbins, 48, had died of terrible burns suffered when her car burst into flames in a gasfire Thursday night, J. W. Thompson, chief of detectives, announced today that a charge of murder would be laid against her landlord, Joseph Bella.

Unconscious since early Friday morning, Mrs. Dobbins died shortly after one o'clock this morning. An inquest will be held for the recovery of the woman who had suffered second and third degree burns which covered most of her body.

Bella appeared in magistrate's court yesterday morning on a charge of arson and was remanded to June 6 for trial. Bail was set at two sureties of $10,000 each.

"A charge of murder will be laid against Bella and he will be arraigned in magistrate's court Monday morning," said Inspector Thompson.

It is believed that police obtained statements from Mrs. Dobbins both before and after her admittance to hospital; statements in which she accused a man of throwing a jar filled with gasoline through her side window at about 10 o'clock Thursday night.

Now Pensions Minister Is Reelected

London, May 31 (Reuters). — Pensions Minister Paling isn't so sure that the customer is always right.

What makes him wonder, he told the Postmasters Association yesterday, is the case of a lady who questioned the postage rate on a package containing a pair of trousers.

Informed that the printed paper rate could not be used for postal transmission of clothing, she argued that anything open at both ends could go at a printed paper rate, and if the package had one of anything more open at both ends than a pair of trousers would he let her know about it?

Educational Notes

As a measure to promote educational publicity and to assist in the stimulation of community interest in education and to give the public correct information regarding education both in Belleville and throughout the district, the Belleville Teachers' Council each week will contribute a column to appear in the Ontario Intelligencer under the heading "Educational Notes."

The Belleville Teachers' Council is an organization representing teachers of the four public schools and the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School.

PROMOTION OF PUPILS

No more delicate task confronts the school than the promotion of pupils from grade to grade.

The examination as the sole test for the promotion has long since been abandoned in the best schools. Oral and written examinations at every level, as standardized tests have their places in assisting the principal and teacher to determine the child's readiness to assume the work of the next grade, but that they are infallible no one today believes. Many other factors must be carefully considered in the physical, physiological, emotional, social, etc., which enter into the child's mental activities, so that any attempt to make an exact measurement of a pupil's ability or efforts by means of the examination only, has been completely discarded.

Modern theory and practice have decided that education is a process of growth day by day, and week by week. Promotion of a pupil is not an annual affair but one of daily occurrence, measured by the pupil's ability meeting his daily difficulties. Hence the testing of a pupil's ability to do more advanced work proceeds step by step with the instructions he receives. Therefore when the time arrives for the annual stock-taking in the school without any possible exception, a pupil's efforts and ability are more accurately measured by taking into account his achievements day by day during the year than through a final examination. Cramming methods likewise serious interferes with this process of growth.

Another factor which must be considered is that the actual mental growth of a pupil may not always be determined by the results of his work in the regular school studies. Many times the congenial studies outside of school. One pupil may be very much interested in making collections of stamps or old coins, while another may be mastering the mechanism of an automobile engine or a radio. In themselves such activities may be highly educative as they broaden both intellectual and moral culture, but there is the danger that they may become too absorbing and thus detrimental to actual progress in the regular school subjects. As only voluntary mental work is truly educative and all else is drudgery, the interest and enthusiasm in such work make it a pleasure. In addition, the skill acquired power and even in the promotion of pupils, the value of this voluntary work must be taken into consideration.

Many other factors than those mentioned must be considered in determining whether a pupil is to be promoted or not but in general the requirements are that in the estimation of the teacher and the principal the pupil shall be able to take the next step

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

INDIGO BUNTING

So few bluebirds visit eastern Canada that it is 1-2 inch long Mr. Indigo Bunting is the next good light bird, certainly be mistaken for any other species. Blue Jay is more than twice his size; Blackbird is about 1½ times, yet, greyish blue, with pure white underneath and a black face; the Starling is not the Easy Swallow though with a similar iridescence on their blue backs, both have dusky-orange breasts. The Indigo Bunting is entirely colored as its name indicates, with the deepening towards the head. He looks as if he had dipped his head and nape—his whiter bothe.

Like other blue feathered friends he has a pet singing perch. His is on a high branch. In fact he is one of our highest singers both as to position and pitch of voice. Here he will enrol by the hour—but not just now. When other songsters are at their best, he is very quiet, just "warming up." Once the birds have quieted down, this bright, persistent little song, containing many repetitions, which can be heard most of the day, but especially at noon. This continues far into the hot summer days often until mid-August.

The unusual singing period is but one eccentricity of this species. Husband and wife are quite unlike: not the looks only, but also in disposition. While he is distinctly a singer, she is plodding (almost secretive) and seldom seen at all. When she is, she plugs brown coloring and size might give the impression that she is another bird. Many species Buntings have the bills of seed-eaters, though the size and berries and many injurious insects, she is not known to be confused with a Sparrow — to within general family she actually belongs. Another characteristic "cheep" and the side twitching of her tail may help identification, and in sunshine her wings and tail have a blue glint.

The pair may be found in scrubby trees, bushes along roadsides, in pastures, or near swamps. Generally four blue-white eggs are laid in a nest of dead leaves, grass, plant fibre, and bark roughly put together in a fork of a low bush, and lined with hair and other soft materials. The dwelling is not as carefully constructed as one might expect from a father too busy to do much singing until his children are old enough to leave home.

Riverside Police Chief Wounded, Suspect Held

Windsor, May 31 (CP)—Police officials and Crown Attorney E. C. Amyot today were in consultation over what charges would be laid against a man giving the name of Bert Goddard, 48, who alleged to be a would-be housebreaker who fired a shot that slightly wounded Police Chief Orville Mahoney of suburban Riverside.

A button on the chief's tunic deflected the bullet fired at him when he and Sgt. Wallace Renaud went to the Riverside home after neighbors complained a man was standing at the rear of the house. The chief assisted in arrest of the suspect before going to hospital for treatment. Goddard was found the chest injury was of a minor nature.

Goddard was wounded in the arm by a shot fired by Sgt. Renaud during the chase that followed the wounding of the chief constable. Police alleged that jewelry worth $5,000 was found in the accused's possession, but there was no official statement as to where the jewelry came from.

When the police received the call about a prowler, Chief Mahoney went to the rear of the house and Sgt. Renaud to the front. Sgt. Renaud heard two shots fired and heard the chief staggering in the driveway his coat torn.

Education Minister Speaks to Teachers

...spoke that he could be mature enough physically and mentally to maintain the standard of teaching in the general work of the next grade.

THERE AREN'T ENOUGH TEACHERS

Dr. Amoss, Director of Professional Teacher Training, in his remarks to the Public School inspectors of the provinces at a recent meeting in Peterborough, gave attention to these facts:—

(1) The Normal School enrolment for 1946-47 is 1,121.

(2) The Public School teachers of Ontario, number in their ranks 13,000 members without Ontario qualifications who are now teaching in the schools.

(3) Six hundred of this 1,100 have had no professional training, but many are not full High School Graduates

(4) The normal requirement for replacement of Public School teachers is 1,500 per year.

(5) Thus there is little prospect for improvement in September 1947, with a Normal School "crop" that will not replace teachers on permits, let alone replace the normal requirements from the profession.

(6) A Summer School will be given, but only to members of the profession. The reasons above so that this expedient will improve quality but not add to quantity.

(7) Upper School enrolment in Ontario Secondary Schools in 1946 was 8,866 in June 1945, with 1,140 members without Ontario qualification.

This well is neither deep nor wide, and many pumps are lowered into it, some with much more drawing power than Public School teaching. There is no necessity to recruit ill teaching necessary to staff our school from those securing full graduation.

There has never been a sufficient number of graduates in Normal School to meet the demand since the Second Class course was dropped.

Several possibilities exist to partially relieve the present crisis:

(1) Graduates of Upper School cannot supply the demand—

(2) The Department of Education must grant concessions to those who hold partial standing.

(3) An effort must be made to encourage more students to continue their education. High School course.

(3) Assistance can be given to the present shortage through consolidate schools and eliminate small and uneconomical units.

(4) Two year professional course can be recognized as feasible only if the admission requirement is lowered to Middle School standing.

Apple Orchards In Frozen North

Agriculture Abroad which is a digest of agricultural practice in effect or under consideration in various countries of the world, is one of the publications of the Economics Division, Marketing Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture. In dealing with the agricultural practice of the Soviet Union, Agriculture Abroad gives some interesting information about orchards in the frozen north.

On the eve of the war, the Soviet Union had 3.7 million acres in fruit trees and vine yards. Half of these were located in the RSFSR (Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic). It is the largest republic of the Union with thirteen time as its capital, and extends from the Baltic across Siberia to the Pacific. One-third of the fruit was in that republic we lost during the war. A ten year plan is in operation for the rehabilitation of orchard areas, the improvement of yields, and the extension of areas farther to the north and east. Government nurseries will produce 233 million cuttings of fruit trees, berries, and grapes to be distributed among collective farmers. Soviet scientists are breeding new varieties of fruit-resisting and early ripening fruit trees and berries and operating new fields for horticulture with telescopic hybridization.

One of the most outstanding achievements has resulted from experiments with fruit trees conducted by Prof. A. Eleyurin of the Omsk Agricultural Institute. After years of research, it now feasible to grow apple, pear, plum and other fruit-bearing trees in the north, which temperatures drop as low as 50 below zero. These trees crep 15 to 20 inches above ground instead of growing vertically. Although the only protection against Siberian frosts is a light cover of dried leaves, heavy blanket of snow, these creeping apple trees have yielded more than 160 pounds of fruit per tree every year.

URGE ARREST OF STUDENTS CHARS

Shanghai, May 31 (AP)—Two dozen Chinese Christian leaders urged the government today to cease the arrest of students and said they would ask United States Ambassador John Leighton Stuart to intercede. At the same time, the leaders appealed to the students to return to classes and call off plans for a mass "end the civil war" demonstration set for Monday.

Florida Bald Eagle Migrant Of Long Flights Says Naturalist

Toronto May 31 (CP)—Seven years of research by an Ontario naturalist has established that the bald eagle is a migrant of long flights, Prior to 1939, the bird was considered non-migratory in the permanent resident of the Peninsula state.

During winter residence in the southern United States was Charles L. Broley of Delta, Ont., banded 814 bald eagles, besides making exhaustive studies of their nesting breeding and feeding habits, Agriculture Abroad says. Of the 48 cases. One of these was recovered in Pinellas county, Fetter Edward Island, or 1,600 miles from where the "non-migratory" bird was banded. Two others were reported from Quebec, three from New Brunswick and four from Nova Scotia. Bands recovered in the United States were largely from coastal regions, thus showing the migratory route of the eagles.

In Florida, Mr. Broley kept 240 eagle nests under observation At St. Petersburg he examined one which was less than 20 feet deep and 9 1-2 feet wide, and he thinks vast it is probably the largest recorded in North America. The biggest eagle nest ever found in the district of the eagles, for they replaced their domestic affairs deplorably for months following the hurricane.

So important to ornithology was this research of Mr. Broley that Alexander Wilson, the special travelling and financial arrangement was restricted to ordinary tourists, was modified in his case. A 20-page report of his eagle research features the current issue of the Wilson Bulletin, devoted to ornithology, published at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Canadian and American ornithologists will be taking the honeymoon starting means uncommon interest in the month to come if they heed the plea of Clarence Mary of the American Museum of Natural History, New York. Recently he received a report from French researchers that there had been a "catastrophic decrease" in starling population of Normandy.

In Normandy, as in America, from 1910 to 1929 there was a rapid and continuous increase in their numbers, in both cases more desirable role-nesting species being driven from their nesting cavities by the pugnacious invaders. But the sudden decrease did not occur in North America.

Farmers, bird watchers and all interested are asked to report to the Museum any bird banded in North America if any notable change in the starling population is observed in the months to come.

Dogberry, rowan tree, whitlewood, round wood, witch wood children and fowler's service are some of the vernacular names for the mountain ash Syrpus of there it is a beautiful tree covered with great masses of white flowers in May or June and bearing abundant crops of scarlet berries, beloved by birds in the fall. Despite its officia label it is not a true ash, but belongs to the apple family.

Now Comes June

April was disappointing by the delayed arrival of spring but May has been even more disappointing, the weather cold and wet being so out of the ordinary as to cause much concern over the crops. Now June comes and spring is almost ended, three weeks only remaining before summer will be here. What will June turn out to be like?

Memory naturally fails to hold records of the past other than enough to make close comparison but to all people the late spring has been a sore disappointment to everyone and no one recalls anything like it.

The winter was one of heavy snow but it was rich seven in respect of cold temperatures. With winter's record and spring's protracted cold and volumes of rain in mind, people turn to June with the hope that this month, unlike its predecessor, the full-fledged glory of the flowers and of the most pleasant weather of the year before the heavy heat of summer sets in, will behave like June and not be so backward as the six weeks of spring so far have been.

May departs and leaves the feeling that it was the month of lost opportunity, when only on very rare occasions it partook of the characteristics which have made May in history "the merry month."

In modern days there has been a greater emphasis on weather, owing to the increase of knowledge of the science of meteorology and this has been in the mind of all as the cold chilly weeks of the spring months of April and May passed.

Science has yet to explain the strange phenomenon of the behaviour of the weather this spring, so opposed to every tradition of the season.

Let all hope that June will help to make up for the shortcomings of the lost months of April and May, that weather conditions may be favorable as far as it is naturally possible to help the crops, at a time when they are so greatly needed by the whole world.

Britain went through the worst winter season in a century and the results have had something to do with intensifying the problems with which the Old Land is faced and none the less grain granaries of the world are looked on in fond hope to help relieve world distress.

As June enters the world of the intermittent slime will be that it will bring weather more kindly than that which came during the previous two months, for June has a reputation as the rarest of the months. Lowell refers to this time in these lines:

> And what is so rare as a day in June?
> Then, if ever, come perfect days;
> Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
> And over it softly her warm ear lays.

Depths of Nazism

Mankind will ever hope that never again in all history will there be such a blight upon civilization as was German nazism. The world has read much of the degree of degradation to which the nazis stooped in their lust for power and hatred of humanity. Rightly such deserve whatever punishment is meted out to them for no punishment can adequately fit the case of the nazis.

Still horrors are being revealed and will be revealed as long as the prosecutions into nazism last. The world learned a great deal of the spirit of nazism as revealed at the trial of the nazi leaders but it still required the story of the inhumanities practised at Mauthausen concentration camp to convey something of the dead level of crime on which the Hitler henchmen were to be found.

Over 700,000 persons murdered in cold blood at that camp! That is something the world cannot forget. Suppose nazism could have conquered what would now have been the extremity of horrors the nazis would have inflicted on worldwide humanity!

German nazism never had its equal in all history. It was organized evil and inhumanity. It trained the men who murdered the hundreds of thousands at Mauthausen camp—these nazis were the full product of the spirit of Hitlerism.

How Germany can ever live down these horrors is difficult to realize. The world suffered a shock of horror at the revelations of what men, the nazis, would do and delighted to do in the service of their ideal, Hitlerism. Dante's Inferno with its inhabitants who had defiled and defied the law of life was not inhabited by such people as the nazis, for Dante, one of the supreme poets of all time and a great religious writer, could not have visioned such a picture and such beings as those who led nazi Germany and manned the camps of murder and death to which innocent humans were driven, not as dumb beasts to the slaughter, but as nazis would drive human beings of other races. Nazi henchmen were unlike human beings, they were a gang apart who had lost every resemblance of the normal human being. How remote is that men could have sunk so low. Mauthausen was a place of organized murder by shooting, gassing, drowning and electrocution. The spirit of fiendishness was in the deeds that were perpetrated when poor human beings were ground in cement mixers, buried alive, thrown to the dogs or had redhot pokers shoved down their throats.

These were variations of the deeds of horror done to poor victims. Such crimes against the human race were the principles prove how degenerate were the principles of nazism and they also show to what depths of horror and brutality men can descend when they defy the moral order of the universe.

By the sacrifice of the wealth and service of the gallant youth of the United Nations this terrible monstrosity of nazism was crushed. The immensity of the effort that had to be made throughout the Allied world to rise to such a beast suggests how careful the world must be never again to allow to rise so sinister a menace to all that is good and beautiful and true.

Farmer's Headache

To the city dweller wet weather is hardly more than an inconvenience. To the farmer it is a matter of success or failure. The present rains and conditions of low temperatures have already delayed spring seeding in this part of the country. Farmers are behind in their seeding schedule, beginning to wonder how they will make out when harvest comes. The old adage at present would suggest that oats and barley may be poor in quality because with late seeding they are apt to lose the early growth days and the hot sun fends to make them ripen.

On the other hand grass, pastures and hay should be excellent. And corn and peas and beans may do well enough if warm weather comes soon. Corn cannot be put in the ground in dampish spring. Farmers on light sandy soils need not worry. The next ten days will tell the story in Western Ontario as far as spring grains go and it may be a brighter story than some observers expect. A long delayed seeding however, accentuates the farm labor shortage and adds to the already heavy tasks confronting the farmer.—London Free Press.

"No' Bad, But Nae Comics"

Two small boys were overheard, in the street outside, discussing the program at The Gateway, the Church of Scotland cinema and theatre in Elm Row, Edinburgh, says Edinburgh Statesman.

"It's no' bad," said one, "but it has nae comics."

This conversation was narrated at a recent informal meeting of members of The Gateway. It led to the director, the Rev. George Candlish, stating that much thought was being given to the possibility of showing children's films, and they had it in mind to, set apart an entire week to these.

"An inspector of schools has, however, drawn attention to the fact that the period when juvenile delinquency is at its height is between 4:30 and 5:30 in the afternoon." Mr. Candlish said.

"This is the time before the evening meal and before the parents come home. We are bearing this in mind, and we may be able to show films for an hour about this time."

Summer visitors like friendly places. They appreciate a friendly smile and a wave of the hand as they pass by. Above all they appreciate courteous consideration when they are forced to stop and ask for directions or information in regard to accommodations says a contemporary.

FRIEND IN NEED

I didn't ask him how he prayed
Or was he black or white.
I only knew that he stayed
To share my little plight.

I only knew while passing by
He did a friendly deed,
And grateful at the time was I
To find a friend in need.

I didn't ask him to declare
His old ancestral line.
I only knew he's stopped to share
A pressing need of mine.

I thanked him as he left me there,
Once more from trouble free,
Most grateful that my time of care
Had brought a friend to me.

Belleville tax rate for 1927 will be two mills higher than last year. It was set by the city council last night at 41 9-10 mills which is the highest in the history of the city. Part of the increase is accounted for by an overdraft of $9,542.52 from last year, arising from unexpected expenditures in the various departments. This sums up one mill of the increase and the other mill is absorbed in larger school expenditures and interest payments on a larger debenture debt. Much of the overdraft this year is not within the control of the council. The assessment tax having been fixed at 2 3-10 mills. The public school rate is 9 7-10 mills and the high school calls for 4 mills more. Next year the tax rate will be higher. The new collegiate will mean a big jump in the rate. Unless there are several other things like the bay bridge which will add to the load of the taxpayer.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did "doughface" originate?

"Doughface" was popularized if not coined by John Randolph of Roanoke, who applied the term to Northern politicians who truckled to the Southern slaveholders. He branded the Missouri Compromise of 1820 as a "dough" bargain, helped on by 18 Northern doughfaces.

The New Brunswick Times on April 20, 1820, quoted Randolph as saying: "I knew these would give way. They were scared at their doughfaces. We had them."

James Russell Lowell defined "doughface" as "a contemptible, lickspittle, a common variety of Northern politician."

During the Civil War the term was applied to a Northerner who favored the South.

One authority suggests that possibly Randolph was improperly quoted and that what he really meant was "doughface," referring to the proverbial meekness and timidity of the doe. Others suppose it more probable that in the classical application the term compared certain yielding politicians with the kneadable character of dough.

In pioneer days, especially in the South, it was common for country people to make masks or false faces for Hallowe'en and other sporting occasions by putting dough on over their own faces. Such masks were called "doughfaces." This practice is mentioned in Edward Eggleston's "The Hoosier Schoolboy" (1883), and possibly Randolph had it in mind when he coined "doughface" in his political sense. He may have intended to compare the hypocrisy of certain Northern Congressmen with the expressionlessness of the dough mask.

Later politicians of the type described by Randolph as doughfaces were known as "Northern men with Southern principles." Franklin Pierce and James Buchanan both were so designated. The 1856 Lincoln campaign song said to the South: "Give us the measures and you take the men."

BILLS EMBODYING

First reading was given to two minor government bills to amend the Municipal Improvements Assistance Act and the Farm Improvement Loans Act.

A number of proposals were put to Mr. Abbott by Hees governing study of budget resolutions.

Li.-Col. Cecil Merritt, V.C. (PC—Vancouver Burrard) felt the government should investigate a wartime tax concession for prospectors. He predicted much interest to search for strategic minerals but Mr. Abbott said re-cleaning agents and mutating evil burning of the skin after shaving.

Put three level teaspoonfuls of boric acid (borasic acid, as it is sometimes called) powder; and two tablespoonfuls of tragacanth and one tablespoonful of glycerin into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with distilled water, rain water, snow water or well water and keep the entire mixture hot or at least warm, stirring up occasionally, until it becomes a clear fluid. Tragacanth is more likely to be genuine if it comes in shavings or curly chips than if it copes powdered.

Apply a few drops of the lotion after washing and before the skin is entirely dry. Leave the lotion on.

The lotion is more frequently needed in the winter and spring season.

For the relief of smarting, irritation, itching, mild sunburn, hives and other skin troubles which are more prevalent in summer and warmer weather, a simple lotion with or without phenol (carbolic acid) is recommended. Dissolving one-half ounce (tablespoonful) of powdered calamine, one-half ounce of powdered zinc oxide, two teaspoonfuls of glycerin, one level teaspoonful of borax (sodium borbate) in, enough lime water to fill a half pint (eight-ounce) bottle.

This calamine lotion is to be shaken well and then applied to the irritated skin frequently with cotton rubbing.

In cases of intense itching, such as ivy poisoning, some physicians add two teaspoonfuls of phenol (carbolic) which may be added to the lotion, say by putting from two to three teaspoonfuls into the standard 5% (1 to 20) strength carbolic solution. Shake the bottle before filling it up with the lime water. Druggists may add the phenol (5% carbolic acid) solution without prescription. The phenol adds somewhat to the relief of itching when itching is intense.

Now I suppose we'll have to tell what to do for lime water? Into a pint bottle of unslaked lime the size of a docto bird's egg put enough water to make a good chunk or as much as you can take on a spoon—in an earthen crock or glazed bowl with a quart or two of water, stir it up and let it stand till sediment settles. Pour off the upper clear liquid, that is lime water. Lime water contains slightly less lime (calcium) than milk does, so you

Home Remedies For Common Complaints

A lotion simple enough for any need one to prepare at home as needed has been used by a good many readers of this column with satisfaction. It is especially useful to prevent and relieve chapping, redness and irritation of the skin from strong soaps and other cleaning agents, and smarting and burning of the skin after shaving.

Dr. McCann, answering opposition, editor, said he did not think the income tax department was as much as "years" behind in making income tax assessments.

Wani Rich Taxed

A. H. Nicholson (CCF—Macdonald) urged that the government tax everything above $25,000 for the duration. Persons in Canada earning more than that amount a year and thus obtain an additional $50,000 or $60,000 income. This would ease the burden on those earning less than that annually.

Mr. Abbott said that no matter how hard the government tried he could not obtain from them revenues needed for governmental expenditures, and asserted that Canada's living standard could not be raised by a "purely 'soak the rich' tax policy."

Victor Quelch (CCF—Acadia) called increased exemptions but Mr. Abbott said he felt "strongly" that Canada's income tax "level was eminently fair, as far as it went." There may be added to the lotion, say by putting from two to three teaspoonfuls into the standard 5% (1 to 20) strength carbolic solution. Shake the bottle before filling it up with the lime water. Druggists may add the phenol (5% carbolic acid) solution without prescription. The phenol adds somewhat to the relief of itching when itching is intense.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Not All Elderly Folk Are Old Geezers

You said that after people pass fifty you may as well save your breath and you needn't tell 'em a thing about exposure. This is not always so. You told me enough about it after I had passed fifty to convert me from a veritable "exposure" fiend at 49 to 50. I spend as much time as I can on the golf course and I'm 57 and sun, I believe all of your teachings about "exposure" and I am well and healthy and enjoy better health than ever before...and or, yes, I eat those eating plain "meat since I first learned about it in your column. I'm sure many people needed your advice they would be better off. (C. M. J.)

Answer—Thank you, sir. But, as I said, most of 'em are so "set" in their ways they'll tell you anything about hygiene after they're dead and buried. Not only elderly folk, but everybody and especially the young ones, should be taught it as an everyday staple in the diet. You will find a lot more of it in the family dietary described in the pamphlet I sent to Ed," available on written request (a clipping will not suffice) if you provide address envelope bearing your address.

Pirates.

So you are not a quack? Well, look at the way the public appears regularly close to your column.

Seniors

Answer—According to the clipping you inclose some pirate advertisers "Dr. Brady's Digestive Antacid Discs." I know of no such medicine and, as a physician, would be deceived by pirates, who use my name.... no one has permission to make such use of my name.

Seniors

Don't call us three score and ten club members "old fogies," "old codgers" or "senile"—a less unpleasant term would be "seniors."

(A. B. S.)

Answer—Well, don't be old fogies, old geezers or senile. Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address for my booklet "The Key to Vite."

Luxury Tax on Hair Tonics Causes Some Lively Ribbing in Parliament

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—The parliamentary ball game has come in for a bit of ribbing these days.

First crack at these shining examples of baldnessness came during a budget discussion from Douglas Rose, Jr., Liberal Progressive Conservative member from Toronto St. Paul's, who himself is as clean on top as the proverbial billiard ball.

Popping up in the midst of a debate on so-called "luxury" taxes, he began frankly on the subject of hair oil: "anyone who says that all toilet articles, for instance, are luxuries, is crazy; or all things for the use and care of the human body—and that includes the hair."

Hair Tonics

Then, tenderly stroking his baldish pate, he added solemnly: "I did not take enough care of mine."

Perhaps you took too much," smiled Gordon Graydon, dapper Progressive Conservative member for Ontario's Peel riding.

Rose Macdonald, chairman of the committee of the whole and in charge of the debate at the moment, interrupted on a technical question. The committee, the Brantford member reminded, was discussing matters related to the excise tax on goods purchased by the provincial governments.

"If the honorable member," said Mr. Rose, "is referring to hair tonic purchased by the provincial government, he would be in order."

"They have as much need of it as we have," said Mr. Graydon, while Mr. Rose rejoined: "I shall not talk about buying hair tonic for myself any more than you would, Mr. chairman."

Nodding his partially naked cranium, Mr. Macdonald agreed: "The chairman has had enough of it himself," he replied, Alarm Clocks

The debate came during the Progressive Conservative party's criticism of the budget, and Mr. Ross' remarks followed the line taken earlier by G. W. Fraser, (PC-Peterborough). Grousing about "luxury taxes on articles which are not luxuries," Mr. Fraser mentioned table silverware and was outspoken on the subject of alarm clocks, still classed as luxuries under the tax laws.

This brought this interjection from Robert Mayhew, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott: "It's a nuisance."

Waxing warm on his subject, Mr. Fraser continued:

"A worker must pay for the luxury of having an alarm clock to waken him in the morning so that he may go to work to earn a living, and to earn enough so that at the end of the week he may have the luxury of seeing taxes deducted from his wage cheque by way of income tax."

"It's not really a luxury tax at all," he contended.

Not attempting to dispute these arguments, Finance Minister Abbott had his say:

"I want to make clear," he said, "that it is not called a luxury tax in the act. It has never been referred to by my predecessor or myself as a luxury tax. It is a tax on certain specific articles."

"Monday Is Circus Day" Sparks Three Ring Circus Will Stage 2 Shows Here

Monday will be "Circus Day"—the great event that children of all ages from six to 80 have been eagerly anticipating.

The world famous Sparks three ring railroad Circus will be here for one day only, giving two performances, afternoon and night, on the Station and Cemetery show grounds—the first big show of the 1947 season.

At daybreak Monday morning the Sparks Circus will arrive in town via the C. N. railroad and will unload the streamlined show wagons, herd of elephants cages of wild animals and other paraphernalia, at the C. N. freight yards to be greeted by the usual huge crowd to greet the special train of double length railroad cars that transport the circus.

Arriving at the circus grounds, the mammoth "Big Top" menagerie and horse tents will be erected, and after a hasty breakfast the showfolks will prepare for the two scheduled performances; a matinee show starting at 2.30 and the night performance announced at 8.30 p.m. Doors to the big menagerie tent will open one hour earlier so that circus patrons can inspect the open dens of wild animals, elephants, trained horses, and listen to the stirring circus tunes played by the Sparks Circus concert band directed by Henry Keyes, circus maestro.

This year's Sparks Circus is presented in three rings and elevated stages with a gala introductory opening spectacle "Americana" as the initial presentation. The big show program will be staged with a galaxy of international aerial and circus stars, for the first time since the late war, and the roster includes such stars of the world of "Spangleland" as the Joe Hodgini troupe of bareback riders and equestrians fresh from their foreign conquests; the Acrobat troupe of high wire and juggling artists from sunny Mexico making their American debut; Captain John White and his troupes of leaping greyhounds, Liberty horses, dogs, ponies and Swiss goats; the Aerial Ballet with a bevy of beautiful girls performing thrilling stunts high in midair; the Flying Sartons the famous Cardilla Sisters, a quartet of South American acrobats; funny clowns, the Sparks herd of performing elephants in intricate manoeuvers and a host of others.

The downtown advance ticket sale of tickets for both performances will be Monday at Latimer's—Circus Day—in advance in the usual admission prices charged on the showgrounds located at Station and Cemetery Sts. from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. for patrons who wish to avoid the crowds at the circus grounds.

500 Yugoslavs Leave Montreal For Homeland

Montreal, May 31 —(CP)— Tear stained faces lined the deck of the emigrant-ship Radnik here last night as the first group of 500 Yugoslavia with some 500 Yugoslavs aboard, sailed down the St. Lawrence River.

The Yugoslav government-owned vessel, carrying home Slav Nationals who prefer Marshal Tito's "regime," dropped out of life in Canada, moved slowly away from the Montreal dock with the aid of two tugs. A seven piece orchestra on the ship provided Slavic music, and a few of the passengers sang folksongs.

The journey home is expected to take 18 days. Later the Radnik will sail to Australia to pick up other returning Slavs in a movement hinse said to be inspired by the undying patriotism of Slavs living abroad.

Thief Named Tito.

Prior to the sailing, the Slavs crowded dockside where Mrs. Sergeant and toasted Marshal Tito and other Yugoslav leaders with vodka and native wine. Some declined to take part in the festivities and wandered to less crowded sections of the ship. Some showed obvious sorrow in breaking their tie with Canada.

About 20 children from five to 18, were included in the group. They looked sad and bewildered, forcing smiles when non—louring neyting relatives bade them farewell.

A 18-year-old boy from Windsor, Mike Dragovich, who is leaving with his parents and brother and sister, said frankly, "I am sorry to leave Canada." He hoped that some day he could return.

"My mother and father say I must go," said the youth.

John Chabrian, 17-year-old hard rock miner from Val d'Or, Que., said:

"I don't know why they go. They are Gypsies. Canada is a wonderful country. I could not give it up for Tito or anybody else."

Women's Activities

BRIDGE ST. W.A.

The Woman's Association of Bridge Street United Church met May 20th with Mrs. Mullins president, presiding for the opening exercises. A great deal of activity was carried on through the different groups during the month for which the president expressed thanks. A pot luck picnic was planned to be held the last Friday in June at the Tourist Camp.

Mrs. Sargeants and Mrs. Clapp's group then took charge for the program. Mrs. Seldon gave the devotional reading from Acts 26, verses 1-18. Mrs. Sergeant read some poetry composed by her agent. The topic was Work, Prayer, Influence and Love.

Crash of Airliner Believed Caused by Freak Gust of Wind

New York, May 31 (AP)—Relatives and friends sought today to complete identification of 40 persons killed in the holiday weekend crash of a DC-4 airliner near La Guardia Field which United Air Lines said probably was caused by a freak gust of wind "of almost unbelievable suddenness."

The toll of 40 was reached this morning when an injured passenger, Charles J. Shannon of New York died in hospital.

The other eight persons on the plane, which crashed and burned before a takeoff for Cleveland Thursday night, remained in hospitals, five of them in critical condition.

J. A. Herlihy vice-president of operations for United Air Lines, said last night in a statement that the pilot had tried to halt the plane when it failed to lift. "A study of weather conditions which prevailed at the time," Herlihy said, "indicates that the probable cause of the accident was a wind shift of almost unbelievable suddenness."

Herlihy said the direction of the takeoff, being attempted as the New York area had thunderstorm clouds, rain and strong wind gusts, was away from a "squall-line was responsible for the accident. To my knowledge, this has never before caused a fatal accident to a plane of this type or, in fact, to any large transport plane."

Hy Lee Wins Second Straight Bout From Brother Jonathan But End Comes Outside Ring

Von Sharpe Loses to Wagner While New Zealander, Ken Kenneth, Defeats Flannagan

Hy Lee, the reputed 300 pound wrestler from Mark Tree, Arkansas, won his second straight victory over Brother Jonathan, of Utah, Friday night at Memorial Arena, when in a dramatic outside-ropes battle, he crawled inside the ring to get the nod while his opponent lay unconscious amid a crowd of howling fans. Hy Lee won 2 of 3 falls.

In short, the Brother, infuriated at the setback he received last week at the hands of the towering Ozarkian, won the first fall more or less easily with the application of his "Mormon Crusher" hold. This is his favorite method of disposing of his opponents which was met by the furious snarls of the Ozark Giant who preferred a punishing leg-hold.

To offset the crushing tactics of the Brother, Hy Lee started a leg attack that was more or less consistent throughout the match, but it proved futile or nothing for the Brother just as consistently resorted to his favorite hold, the "Mormon Crusher" but the canny Arkansaw gent always sought the ropes when he was subjected to the breath-taking punishment.

Then Hy Lee selected another sort of ring technique. He offered a his-and-miss style of offensive whereby he tucked the shrubbased chin of the Brother beneath his strong right arm, and politely but oh so firmly, bounced the Mormon cranium against a ring post.

All Even In Third

That made it all even. Came the third fall. The Ozark giant subjected his opponent to some more or less merciless punishment via the smash and flip route, and the Brother came back with that crusher hold, only to have the towering giant back up to the corner. Referee Keith Powers did a spot of separating.

Then Hy lumbered, Lee heaved the Mormon out of the ring during a flurry of wrestling excitement. Brother Jonathan shook his head and attempted to crawl back into the roped-off garden, But the Ozarkian was not to be denied. He leaped out of the ring, and while spectators scattered, he had the Brother hoisted in the out-of-ring battle that was a dilly to watch.

They exchanged elbow smashes. One went down, then the other. Finally Hy Lee secured a neck hold on the Brother and backing up, raced forward to bash the Mormonian noggin against a ring-post. He did it again. Backing up with all his superb strength, Hy Lee, crashed what he thought was the post. Brother Jonathan catapulted through the ropes. Hy Lee followed him into the crowd. Bedlam reigned. Oh, no dear critics, there was no sign of gore.

Fought Outside Ring

The pair fought outside the ring. One elbow-smashed the other's head. It seemed. Then the Ozarkian, jaw out-thrust secured a neck-hold on the Brother. He lifted him aloft. There was a crash as the Mormonian head hit ring post. He slumped down—out. The crowd milled around him Hy Lee crawled inside the ring and Referee Powers held his hand aloft in victory when the Brother failed to return.

New Zealander Wins

Popular Ben Sharpe after taking and giving a lot of punishment to Eugene Bob Wagner was the victim of a bad break in the semi-final bout. The set-to was lively with the faithful soldierly behind the tall handsome Wagner.

It was spirited action, with both boys giving and taking plenty. Benny subjected the Straight A terrific punishment and appeared on the way to victory, in a flurry against the ropes Wagner suddenly reversed his tactics and quick as a flash pinned the surprised Sharpe to the mat.

In the curtain-raiser, Pat Flannagan, strangely enough, adopted a villain's role against Ken Kenneth, New Zealand sensation. The villain was fast with plenty of clean action. The bout went the limit but Referee Powers' fist flop awarded the nod to the smart New Zealander.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Great Unknown, the long distance runner, twirling his long moustaches, and gazed at the fleecy clouds that floated overhead. Then he spoke. He inquired of Pete Pinchand: "Hoodjeesee?" (The Spec). Pinchcastle, his manager, laboring under a bad cold, sang more ah mills of magnesia, placed a footstool on his favorite chair, and settled down beside the modern edition of Pathfinder. He is the gent who galloped over the first long distance course from Marathon to Athens, long before the first Grant and the second and opened a restaurant.

• • •

"There is so fim told," remarked the Unknown, "stories being circulated along the Hillo, Front Street, Belleville, Bridge Street, Trenton, Foxboro, the main stem of the thriving metropolis of Foxboro Ward, that the executive mayors, Follwell and Keegan, Frankie and Arturo to you, Murgatroyd, have in their moments of mental weakness, conceived the idea that each is better than the other over the 100 yard distance, without the benefit of being chased by a cop."

• • •

He stretched his eight foot frame, this favorite starting method is to fall flat on his face, roll over twice, fall again, and be off to a four yard start on his opponent(s). "Y'know, Murgy, old pal," he articulated, knocking two seven pound tins of beans, a little too, "I've an idea that these gents are getting ready for the 1948 portion of the four winds and raucous Saskatchewan Day celebrations, and have told so many lies about the events, that they believe it themselves."

• • •

Murgy gazed pensively at a nearby tree, plowed a groove-ous portion off the end of his left thumb, blackthorn walking stick, expectorated expertly and drowned a hummingbird that was buzzing into a sweet pea cluster a hundred yards away before answering.

"I have," he mumbled, "checked the records of this metropolitan Percy Williams, and suburban Charlie Paddock and Jackie Fleetfoot-Follwell, as he was dubbed, defeated the Mayor of Cornwall last year, but when the jaunt was over it was discovered someone had hitched the Cornwall mayor to a beer truck and he lugged it over the course."

• • •

Murgy tossed off a long gargle of citric acid, before continuing. "Then," he said, parting his long grey beard with a sickle, "Fleetfoot Follwell, a local dash-taunted with a mechanical hound, one named Henry Rollins. First of all it was a partial strip-tease act with both lads parading in naked torsos, bristles, and curlers to keep the hair off their legs from flowing behind like a setter's tail. They started even-steven. Then this Rollins threw a shoe, and Fleetfoot threw a back at him. That started an argument, and all along the weary path of the hundred they bickered. Finally they compromised at the thirty-nine yard mark when Rollins promised he would not run for dog-catcher this year and the Mayor was so surprised he jumped a foot in the air and came down a winner by two windblown bales of his chest."

• • •

The Unknown grunted. "I am firmly convinced now," he said, "that I should enter the lists. In fact I shall challenge these two galloping gees to a race to the death (of one of them, that is). I shall, Murgatroyd, fling the gauntlet into the arena, so to speak. It shall be an old one, in case some one is short a mitten.

• • •

And you, Murgatroyd, shall put up a fast one, before we race. I shall allow you to do that. But it must be something far in the Sherlock Holmes style, one that will hold a quart at a filling. I have small pets, but please don't am short a quart. But I will, I'll be generous, I shall allow these gentlemen certain privileges. I hereby challenge them to a five mile race and will allow them a half-mile start. Furthermore, I shall carry a pest weight of sixty pounds of old horses' shoes and equip myself with a blackjack loaded with lead worn in the conventional manner. If won't bother my horse seller say."

• • •

The Great Unknown paused, smoked three cigars without exhaling, then continued: "The kangaroo punch will be used for emergency and perhaps its natural form modified. If I see, as I expect I shall, that I am running away from them, say, at the mile mark, I shall halt, turn, pull the cork, tuck them in the pouch, hook on my bridle and continue on to the thirty yard mark. There I shall replace them on the track, and the race will continue. That should make it close. Of course, the latter event shall be staged during Old Home Week, as all the old boys can see that the old mayors are not what they used to be. Make a note of that, Murgatroyd."

• • •

Then all was quiet at Pinhead Field. The Unknown rose, donned his, running weighed fifty-seven pounds, and started on his, thrice-daily fifty-mile jaunt. In the evening following this minor exercise he wrestles three bears, one black, one bear, bores ten rounds each with four professional, swims five miles, then lunches on. After lunch he retires to the hay until three, runs another fifty miles and plays ten sets of tennis, before pitching for the Pinhead baseball nine. Then he does the other fifty miles. Next week he is going into serious training.

The Belleville Canadian Legion softball squad is holding an important practice at the B.C.I. campus Monday night starting at seven o'clock. All players are urgently requested to attend as the first game of the Legion League is scheduled for June 5. Locale of the game will be announced later.

• • •

Baseballers offer a doubleheader on Saturday when the Kiwanis Juniors playing hosts to the Latta crew and the RCAF to Flyers trekking to Batawa where they will take on what is expected to be the Smithfield Shoemen. Both games at 6.30. Latta and Juniors play at the Alemite Field.

• • •

Belleville Softball Association also pries the lid off the 1947 season on Monday evening at Pulsi Lane where the Pulsi Anne Leafs meet their local rivals, the Wings in the loop opener. Both teams will bear brand new uniforms and a double header is the order to attend the initial fill with fandom being evenly divided.

• • •

This afternoon at the Alemite Field there is a Service Club double-header. The Optimists meet the Kiwanis team while Y's Men tangle with the Kinsmen. The first game is scheduled for 2 p.m. and the second at 4. These teams are comprised of players 16 years of age and under, you might be surprised at the calibre of baseball they will offer. Nice spot to spend a warm Saturday afternoon, anyway.

TORONTO LEAFS WIN TWO FROM BUFFALO BISONS

Now Only Game and a Half Back of Seventh Place Bisons

(By The Associated Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs, who got off to a good start and then fallspinned to 10 straight defeats, are showing signs of vacating the International League cellar.

By walloping Buffalo Bisons twice recently 7-3 and 5-2, the Leafs were the only club to sweep both ends of the Memorial Day doubleheaders. They now are only a game and a half back of the seventh-place Bisons.

Austin Knickerbocker, recently sent down by Philadelphia Athletics, hit a home run in each game, helping Joe Leafs' coach Van Harrington and Oscar Grimes also homered behind Luke Hamlin in the opener. Buffalo's only score off Herman Besse in the second tilt was Coaker Triplett's homer in the second inning.

Newark bounced back to hand the leading Jersey City Giants a 15-3 lacing in the second game after bowing in the opener 7-4.

Montreal scored four in the 7th inning to down Rochester 5-3 in the opener but dropped the second 2-0 when Mel Harkcut toked a two-hitter. Roy Campanella's homer with a man on proved the margin for Montreal.

Syracuse knocked out Gene Bearden and continued to pour it 8-6 victory at Baltimore in the first of two but the Orioles rallied behind Bob Kuzava in the second tilt for a 5-3 win.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 31 — (CP) — Jimmy Cannon of the New York Post can, when he wants to, write the kind of sports prose that makes us wish we were so gifted . . . The stoop-shouldered sports writer famous for his lead: "Joe Louis is a credit to his race. I mean, of course, the human race," wrote of this week's Tami Mauriello-Jimmy Carollo fight at Ebbetts Field' . . . In the second spasm, James was down for eight and nine and his mouth gone open and his eyes were stupid when the three minutes were over. Carollo took the third because Tami was bleeding from an old cut and was goaded into his senseless lunges with his right hand. He realized that Rugby Carollo, the referee, might be compelled to stop the fight, if more wounds broke and leaked. Tami split Jim's left eye in the fourth as they struggled, painted and weary, but churning punches . . . in the fifth, a right and Carollo's head went up at 10, the way tumblers come out of a fall they plan. But he realized that it is a dream created by the right hand . . . " that's the way Jimmy wrote I wish we could write like that . . . "

Today we Live in a Greater Canada
"New Additions to the Family!"
New products and materials—never made in Canada before—today pour from Canadian plants.
Ranging in variety from penicillin to electric razors, these new additions to our industrial family swell modern Canada's record-breaking production totals.
In their extent and diversity they perfectly typify the increasing, interesting and varied opportunities awaiting those who commence their careers in Canada today.
The giant spheres and towers of Canada's great synthetic rubber plant are dramatic symbols of war-born chemical industry which includes a whole new range of plastics products.
Typical, too, of industry developed for war, now serving us in peace, is our production of optical glass. It seemed impossible, but we became one of the great suppliers of optical instruments in the allied world.

"...TODAY'S LAND OF OPPORTUNITY"

Ex-F/L R. C. (BILL) SHEPHERD, after his discharge from the R.C.A.F., refused to let difficulties interfere with his determination to make aviation his life's work, managed to buy and overhaul three planes, commenced air services at Windsor, Today, in less than two years of operation, his business is making steady and profitable progress—now operating six twin engined aircraft and eight single engine aircraft from Windsor, Chatham, and Toronto, providing Charter Service, flying instruction and aerial photography for many Western Ontario centres.

MR. SHEPHERD says: "Our very satisfactory progress to date has convinced me of the soundness of my decision to follow a Canadian career. My choice was aviation—but for practically every kind of work, it's the same: Canada is certainly today's land of opportunity."

When south reaches four spades they should stop there. A slam has very little chance of succeeding. To make six- declarer needs all the lucky breaks he can conjure. But see what happens.

The West heart lead was trumped by south spade queen; an entry precaution. Trump five, entailing only forward was taken by dummy ten. East ducked a small heart. South won with 16 with the queen.

Now four went do dummy jack and another club ducked by east was taken by the south king. When club five forced the east ace, a heart return was ruffed with the south spade king.

Club deuce goes to dummy club and diamond is finessed. Spade deuce goes to dummy spade and diamond finesse is good. With what was left, a total of 12 tricks entail.

All this is very entertaining and exciting, but it is not proof that a slam should be bid. Those who go around relying on 50-to-1 shots rarely only one thing. They're nuts.

PARTY FOR EVERYONE OVER SEVENTY

Hankinson, N.D., May 31 — (AP)— Frank H. Peltz celebrated his birthday and 50 years in business here yesterday by throwing a party for every person over 70 years age in these parts and 52 showed up for the shindig in the Hankinson city hall.

There was a huge birthday cake, plenty of sandwiches and hot coffee. On the harder side, the beverage came in a large barrel and was cold.

The Thinker

You may not know what it is to be hit by an avalanche. You will if you try to prove a point to a supercilious bridge group. No matter how sound your argument, they can frame a hand to discredit your proof.

See why. There are 635,013,-559,600 different hands in a pack of cards. Only a few rules handle all of them. They must surely be a few hands on the fringe of every rule.

A sound bidding system is based on the most generally expected divisions in opponent hands. Anything unusual in their hands may not be revealed to the pair that is bidding.

Yet you sometimes run up against a combination of two or more buffers. Your own bidding may be at one or the other ends of a rule. Your opponent hands may have unexpected distribution.

We were discussing the north and south hands in this deal:

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY

Ann Sheridan is a polished actress who can do justice to any role they toss in her direction. Currently she is appearing in "Nora Prentiss", which gives her an opportunity to exploit her talent and it all works.

The picture, slowly paced in spots, gives Sheridan a chance to scintillate and emote in turn, and presents the age-old problem of the single girl who falls for a married man. And what a mess she gets herself in for.

Kent Smith, as the stodgy doctor who is brought out of his shell of propriety by the beauteous Ann, proffers a rather rigid performance and only comes to life when you feel like lighting a fire under his easy chair. He portrays the victim of a nagging wife who makes him completely ga-ga-ed.

Bruce Bennett, a fine actor, and Robert Alda, who is fast getting to be top_land rich support.

Heavy Drama.

One of the most dramatic bits of newsreeling we have seen in a long time was unfolded in the current Admiral Boyd expedition pics. It shows a task-force commander being moved from one ship to the other by a cable and bosun's chair. As he was almost dead centre between the heaving ships, the cable tightened and broke, plunging the unfortunate victim into icy Antarctic waters. After struggling for six minutes, the rescue ship saved him. You get a chill just watching it.

Brush Fire.

Canada's Raymond Massey, soon to star in "Mourning becomes Electra," is a little tired of portrait painters. Recently he was forced to pose for seven portraits by Martin Lewis, to be used in the new play. The painting will show succeeding generations of the family around which the story is woven.

S. S. LEADER TURNED OVER TO POLES

Dachau, Germany, May 31 — (AP)—Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Stroch, whose S.S. troops ravaged Warsaw's ghetto in 1943, was turned over to the Poles yesterday for trial as a war criminal. Stroop already is under death-sentence imposed March 21 by an American court for the slaying of American aviators after they parachuted and surrendered.

AT THE BELLE — Dorothy Patrick and Cameron Mitchell are the attractive new romantic team seen with Wallace Beery in "The Mighty McGurk." Others in the M.G.M. comedy-drama are little Dean Stockwell, Edward Arnold and Aline MacMahon.

In Manhattan

By PAT USHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 31 (CP). — As the curtain falls this week-end on the 1946-47 Broadway theatre season, a backward survey shows that it was most notable for its revivals and for a couple of original and highly diverting musicals.

The outstanding revivals included "Cyrano de Bergerac" with Jose Ferrer in the title role; the Gielgud productions of "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Love for Love"; the American Repertory Theatre's "Alice in Wonderland"; "Burlesque" with Bert Lahr; "Sweethearts" with operetta Bobby Clark starring the Victor Herbert operetta into a riot of laughs, and "Lady Windermere's Fan".

The original musicals were "Finian's Rainbow" and "Brigadoon", both of which showed originality and touches of whimsy and fantasy. "Street Scene," the musical version of Elmer Rice's revival of "Camille", and "Vous Les Deux", a two-character play by the French author, Ferdinand Dellud, in which Henry Daniell would play the other part, Vicki Cummings, who has for months played in "The Voice of the Turtle", has signed for one of the lead parts in Harry Segall's "The Stars Are Sey".

That hardy perennial of the New York stage, "Life With Father", on June 14 will become the longest-run show in the history of the United States theatre, topping the record set by "Tobacco Road". For that performance, the 3,182nd of the family chronicle comedy now in its eighth year, Howard Lindsay and Dorthy Stickney will return to the roles they created.

CHAPTER 3

She shivered, and Bart asked solicitously, "Cold, dear?"

"Cold with terror," she confessed, drawing as close to his side as possible. "I'm scared, Bart. I'm scared silly."

The night rang with his shouts of laughter. "What, me? There's nothing to be scared of."

"Yes, there is. My father is a professor. In an Ohio college. I'm bound to death of him, but he isn't rich, and yours—"

"Mine!" interrupted, he laughing again. "You can't be scared of Father. Nobody is, not even the servants. I guess he was tough in his day when he was making his money, but that was a long time ago, and he's certainly nothing to be scared of now. He's kind of like a professor himself, I guess. Anyway, he doesn't care about anything anymore but books and flowers."

"But your mother," Gayle ventured timidly. "She's very beautiful, isn't she?"

"I'll say! She certainly is. She's a knockout if there ever was one. But she's the softest hearted thing you can imagine. I can get her to do anything I want to, I always could. You're my girl, and that'll be enough for her. You'll see."

A mile from the road? It seemed to Gayle that Bart drove for miles through a forest, and then suddenly she saw a great white house looming ghost-like before her. "Oh, dear," she thought, "maybe it's more; oh dear!" That wasn't a house. It was a palace—one of those incredible places she had read about with ninety rooms and armies of servants. And Bart thought that some day she would be his mistress! "Oh no," she cried to herself, panic-stricken; "I can't. I never can. I don't want to."

Almost, before Bart stopped the car, two men appeared. Both of them said, "Good evening, Mr. Bruce." One went to the baggage compartment and opened it. The other opened the door beside Gayle and held it while she descended.

"Grease her up, will you, Tom?" Bruce said to the man at the car door. "There's a squeak."

"Tonight, sir?"

"Oh no. I won't want it before ten tomorrow."

"Yes, sir."

Gayle sighed. It didn't seem as if she could walk up the broad steps before her. The door had opened, and she could see the butler waiting. What was she walking into? How had she dared?

Bart took her arm and felt her sway a little.

"Dear?" he asked.

She laughed nervously. "Stiff with fright. Oh, Bart, this is terrible."

"No, it isn't. Come on. You'll see. It isn't in about two minutes. Besides, there's just Mother to meet now. Father has been in bed for hours. Come on, sweetheart."

"I'm coming. Tell the family," she faltered but did—oh, dear—"I want lots of music at the funeral."

Laughing, Bruce put his arm around her and ran her up the steps. "Hello, Symes," he said as they passed the butler. "Where's my mother?"

"Right here, Bruce, dear," a rich contralto voice answered. "I've been waiting."

Bart released Gayle, stepped quickly to his mother, put his arm around her, kissed her lips, and then held her off at arm's length.

"Come here, Gayle," he said, his eyes smiling into hers.

Mrs. Bartlett held out both hands. "Come, my dear," she said, "and let me look at you."

Feeling like a drab scullery maid, Gayle approached shyly and placed her hands in Mrs. Bartlett's. She thought of something apt to speech at that moment, she could not have produced one syllable.

"Well, Mother," said Bart proudly, "does she do?"

"Bart, exactly what I expected," his mother replied, "exactly." She smiled quietly at Gayle. "May I welcome you with a kiss?"

Gayle lifted her head, and Mrs. Bartlett kissed her cheek. Gayle took heart a little and managed a smile. "You must forgive me to live up to Bart's publicity, will you?" she asked, her voice husky with her nervousness.

Mrs. Bartlett's laugh was soft and throaty. "Indeed, no. Bruce is a man and hardly a safe judge of women. She let Gayle's hands fall and turned to smile at Bart.

"We're all wrong to stand here," she said. "Let's sit down and get acquainted." She led the way across the wide hall to a small sitting room. Its smallness seemed to Gayle a blessing. The hall had been awesome, as was the room it led to, as a ballroom, and the marble stairway had seemed to wind upward into infinite distance. But this room was cozy, bright with chintz and potted flowers. It was like a room at home, in which a person could breathe normally in.

But even a cozy room Mrs. Bartlett was overpowering. Gayle had never seen such beauty in a woman past fifty, and never in any woman had she seen beauty so perfectly dressed.

They did not talk long. Bart rang for a servant ordered a Scotch and soda for himself, sherry for his mother and Gayle. They sipped their drinks and Bart to Gayle's heartfelt gratitude, listened to his mother about the picture he was giving his father.

"You ought to have seen her do it, Mother," he said. "It took her less than an hour, but it's perfect. I bet you're crazy about it."

"Who's she?" his mother asked. "The artist?"

"Yes, Rose Beecher, the girl, Gayle lives with. She's little and fat, but she can draw like a house afire. She gave me a sketch of Gayle. I'll show it to you tomorrow."

Mrs. Bartlett asked a question about Rose. Gayle answered it, and Bart offered comments. On the surface the conversation was easy and natural, but the impersonality of it was searing to Gayle Mrs. Bartlett was just as she should have been pleasant and unaffected, apparently doing all in her power to put Gayle at ease and saving her as much as possible from the embarrassment of unusual under the circumstances; but as the minutes slowly ticked away, Gayle's coldness grew.

She looked at Bart. He was sprawled in a big chair, his drink in one hand, a cigarette in the other. He was utterly at ease. He looked at here. He was at home. But she didn't belong here. She could never belong here. How could she have even dreamed she could?

"It's late," Mrs. Bartlett said after a time, "and you must be tired, my dear. I know I am. Wouldn't you like to go to your room? We can tell we want tomorrow and get really acquainted."

"I am tired," Gayle confessed. "Of course," Mrs. Bartlett turned to her son. "Gayle will be in the blue room in the south wing. Will you show her."

"Oh yes." He jumped to his feet, bent and kissed his mother, then said, "Come on, Gayle."

Gayle rose to go, Mrs. Bartlett held out her hand and lifted her cheek to be kissed. "Good night, my dear," she said, her rich voice very gentle. "I hope you are happy here. You must learn to love us."

"I'm sure I will, Mrs. Bartlett. Good night—and thanks so much."

Bart, with him arm around her, led Gayle up the marble staircase and down a wide hall. "Here we are," he said, stopping before a door. Then he put his arms around her and kissed her so passionately that her senses swam. "Gayle," he whispered, "Gayle, darling."

"Good night, Bart dear."

"Not yet."

"I must. I'm so tired."

He kissed her again, more gently this time, and released her. She said good night and opened the door, feeling that safety and sanctuary must wait behind it. She felt forbidden when a uniformed maid rose from a chair almost before the latch clicked.

"Oh," said Gayle, surprised. "Did you wait up for me?"

"Yes, Miss Kent. Do you want me to help you?"

"I'm sorry," Gayle said, her regret reflected in her voice. "I didn't know. I'm sure I shan't need you."

"If you do, just ring." The maid pointed to a bell by the bed. "Would you like breakfast here? Mr. Bruce comes down sometimes, but Mrs. Bartlett always has hers in her room."

"Yes, I'd love it here. I'll ring."

"There's nothing else?"

"Not a thing. Good night."

"Good night, Miss Kent."

Once the door closed behind the maid, Gayle sank into the nearest chair and buried her face with her hands. She felt lost and bewildered and frightened. The house was terrifying, the maid was terrifying, but his placid acceptance of everything so strange to her was terrifying, and Mrs. Bartlett was most terrifying of all. She could never go through with it. Never—not possible.

The little electric clock on the table beside the bed said 9 o'clock when Gayle awoke the next morning. "What do I do now?" she wondered helplessly. "I'll bet nobody else will be up before 10."

She pressed the button, and in a few minutes the maid entered the room. "Good morning, Miss Kent," she said, smiling pleasantly. Then she went to the windows and drew up the shades. Bright sunshine streamed across the blue carpet. "It's lovely today—real spring."

WORLD TRADE TALKS
Geneva, May 31 — (Reuters) — It seemed likely today that the world trade talks now being held at Geneva would last into next year instead of being ended ending July 3. Child Tumbles From Moving Car

Milford — Reginald Gallagher, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gallagher, Black Creek, sustained severe facial injuries one when he tumbled from the rear of his parents' car near Picton.

Mrs. Gallagher was returning home from a shopping trip at Picton when her small son, who was sitting in the rear of the car, opened the back door and fell out onto the road. He was rushed to Picton office of Dr. Hart where medical aid was given.

The month of May has been lighthousemen at the Duck Islands. Their fog alarms have been in operation for several hundred hours, and a constant vigil has been maintained to ward off lake vessels from the dangerous shoals which surround the islands.

Talk of Miners' Strike Increases As Deadline Nears

Sudbury, May 31 (CP)—Strike talk increased and tension heightened among miners here today as the hour of expiration to a working contract drew near with negotiations for a new agreement still deadlocked between the International Nickel Company and Local 598 of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CCL-CIO).

Should a strike develop—said by a union official to be a distinct possibility—it would affect approximately 13,000 men. In Toronto, a company official said this number would include workers at the INCO Refinery of Port Colborne, Ont., where an identical situation prevails.

An emergency meeting—termed by a union leader as a normal prelude to strike action—was held early yesterday by stewards of the Sudbury local. Later it was unofficially reported they had voted 43-4 against staging any "wildcat strike."

The 1940 contract runs out at midnight tonight and negotiations for a new one, in progress since April 10, reached an impasse last Wednesday. Principal points in dispute on which neither party would yield ground have been wage increases and union security provisions the miners demanded a general hoist of 15 cents an hour in pay while the company replied with an offer of 10 cents an hour.

At Port Colborne, company and union committees held morning and afternoon sessions with Provincial Labor Department conciliation officer James Hutcheon. Information on what went on in the meetings was refused, but it was announced the sessions would continue today.

Two Straight Shutout Wins Over Yanks Focus Attention On Fifth Place Athletics

Good Pitching and Fine Play of Rookie First Sacker is the Answer

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports writer)

Long-suffering Connie Mack clubs are dusting off their charters to celebrate the Philadelphia Athletics' spurt into the thin air of fifth place in the American League.

Condemned to the basement and dismissed as an outclassed ball club, the A's not only are in 5th place, but they're only a half game back of Boston Red Sox, the defending champions.

Good pitching and the fine play of rookie first baseman Ferris Fain and shortstop Eddie Joost has been the answer to the Philadelphia success story.

Dick Fowler and freshman Joe Coleman teamed up in the A's pitching victory in one of the eight Memorial Day doubleheaders that attracted a banner turnout of 233,830 fans. Fowler stood out Spud Chandler 1-0, in the opener although the A's touched Chandler for only three hits. Coleman gave up nine hits in the second win, 4-0

Detroit muffed a chance to lengthen its leader considerably by splitting with St. Louis. After Hal Newhouser defeated the Browns for the 14th straight time over a three-year stretch, 3-1, the Tigers succumbed to Rex Potter's wiles in the finale 8-3.

Indians New Second

Cleveland slid into second place by thumping Chicago twice, 5-4 and 10-1. Hal Peck hammered two homers and Joe Gordon hit one in the opener which was won by reliefer Bob Lemon. The veteran ace Mel Harder started his 20th season with a five-hitter in the second game. No. 218 of his career.

Boston Red Sox lost two games to Washington Senators who routed Tex Hughson 12-6, and shut out a 5-3 nod over Joe Dobson in the final.

National League activities again were highlighted by New York Giants who swept two from Philadelphia Phils 7-1 and 5-3, to take a one-game lead in the tight race.

Warren Spahn preserved his unbeaten string, adding an eighth straight for Boston Braves in their 6-3 first game success over Brooklyn. The Braves also took the second half 3-0, a five-hit shutout job for Red Barrett.

Dodgers Fourth

The double win boosted Boston into a second-place tie with Chicago and the two setbacks dumped the Dodgers into fourth place.

Hank Borowy got Chicago even for the day by copping his fifth in a row in the nightcap over Pittsburgh, 5-2, after Billy Cox' 10th inning homer had given Preacher Roe and the Pirates a first game 2-1 edge over Lee Erickson.

St. Louis Cardinals failed to climb out of the cellar, splitting two with Cincinnati. After the Reds hopped on four Card hurlers for 15 hits to hand Ken Burkhart a 4-1 loss in the opener 12-8, St. Louis came back, behind Al Brazle, to defeat Lefty Kent Peterson 7-3.

Bauer of Bruins To Coach Guelph's Junior A. Entry

(By The Canadian Press)

Four hundred golfers, representing Ontario Lions Club, will compete in the annual Guelph Lions Club golf tournament at Cutten Fields course next Wednesday. The meet is sanctioned by the club's international as a provincial championship event for Lion's golfers.

Bobby Bauer of Waterloo, famous winger of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League and winner of the Lady Byng Trophy for 1946-47, will coach Guelph's new Junior "A" entry in the Ontario Hockey Association season next winter, the club announced last night.

Moldy, R. S. McLaughlin's winner of the King's Plate last Saturday, is entered in today's feature race at Toronto, the $5,000 added Prince of Wales Plate, at Thorncliffe Track.

At least 140 entries are expected next Wednesday in London for the annual invitation amateur tournament of the Sunningdale Golf and Country Club. All sections of the province will be represented.

The Rt. Rev. J. W. C. Wand, Anglican Bishop of London, has arrived in Toronto yesterday and said he was not against Sunday sport "for private recreation." He added he disapproved of organized Sunday sport, but had no objection to amateur teams playing games "as long as it does not interfere with church worship."

Strathroy Royals defeated Dresden 6-2 Friday night here to take the lead in the Big Six Baseball League.

Kingsville, who won the King's Plate last year for his owner, R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, started well but ran out of wind—and out of the money—as Favorito won the $100,000 Alger Memorial Handicap at Detroit yesterday.

COLLIE HITCH-HIKES

Kansas City, May 31 (AP)—A collie dog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hoskins was back home today after hitch-hiking from the Missouri-Iowa state line.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bartness were returning from Ft. Dodge, Ia. The dog ran in front of their car, then jumped in when Bartness stopped the vehicle. When they reached Kansas City the dog, missing for six months, left the Bartness car and dashed to the Hoskins home across the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartness said they had never seen the dog before.

Color, Thrills In Screen Story Of Pioneer Days

Thrilling action sequences, filmed against a background of breath-taking scenic beauty, and a romantic story that endures in the face of death, highlight the Universal production, Rex Beach's "Michigan Kid", in Cinecolor, now playing at the Metropolitan.

The seldom photographed scenic wonders of Northern California's High Sierra Mountains are presented in new glory through the Cinecolor process, expertly photographed by Virgil Miller, ASC—without sacrificing any part of the exciting story.

Frontier Underworld

Rex Beach's "Michigan Kid" concerns a hard riding, gunslinging peace officer's attempt to defeat a powerful frontier underworld that has arisen in the West during his absence while fighting in the Sioux Indian Wars. In the process he falls in love, involving his sweetheart in circumstances which almost brings death to both of them.

Jon Hall in the title role of the Kid, lives up to all expectations of action fans as he cleverly outwits the desperados and their ruthless leaders, Victor McLaglen and Andy Devine. The latter give their usual seasoned performances.

Rita Johnson sparkles in her role of the Kid's sweetheart. Outstanding supporting performances are credits to Milburn Stone, William Brooks and Leonard East.

Italian Cabinet Nearly Formed

Rome, May 31 (AP).—Premier-designate Alcide de Gasperi finished shaping up his four-straight cabinet today and for the first time in three years Italy will have a government without any Socialist or Communist members.

The new cabinet, approved last night by President Enrico de Nicola, is composed solely of Christian Democrats and Independents, it awaits only the acceptance of two dengrees to become official.

Included in the new ministry, source close to De Gasperi said, are Carlo Sforza, 63-year-old diplomat-turned-politician, foreign minister, a post he held in the outgoing cabinet, and Luigi Einaudi, governor of the Bank of Italy, who was expected to receive a new cabinet post from which his responsibility would be to balance the Italian budget.

De Gasperi's third coalition government consisted of Christian Democrats, Communist, Socialists and Independents, quiet similar to the differences between its Leftist and moderate members over De Gasperi's economic policies.

ADMITS UNACCOUNTABLE ACTS AS CLERGYMAN

Officers announced the alleged confession yesterday as Carpenter, unable to provide $50,000 bail, was lodged in the county jail pending town court arraignment Monday on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

HE'LL NEED FORESTS TOO!

If you look to the bush country for recreation or business, you'll realize how much it will mean to the youngsters of today if you help to save the forests for tomorrow. Above all, protect the forests from fire:

Ontario has been abundantly blessed with natural resources; which, if not properly protected, can be quickly exhausted. Every year, for example, thousands of acres of trees are destroyed because someone is not careful with fire.

Forests mean much more than a pleasant place to holiday : : : an attraction for tourists : : : shelter for game animals and fishing haunts. They mean more than a source of lumber and paper products; and jobs for thousands of people, dear as these are to national welfare.

Climate is tempered—extremes prevented—by forest areas: They store water too—help to keep rivers and streams from dangerous and costly flooding in spring time. They spread the flow of water more evenly through the year. That means they help to ensure a year-round supply of Hydro power for you.

Protect the forests: They serve you well:

SOME WAYS TO BE CAREFUL ABOUT FIRE

- Break each match in two before you throw it away.
- Be sure your discarded cigarette is really out.
- Keep camp fires small, and always in a safe place.
- Before you leave, put the fire DEAD OUT with water.
